2 Voting on Legislative Proposal: Glasstone Benefaction

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal removes the gender restrictions currently governing the Glasstone Benefaction trust, thereby ensuring compliance with the Equality Act 2010 and enabling it to be administered as a single fund.

If the income is sufficient, the University may award more than one fellowship in any given year.'

2 Ibid., delete existing section 24.5 and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'24.5. (1) The fellowships shall be awarded ~~from time to time~~ by the University in accordance with arrangements approved by Council, and shall be tenable at the University.

(2) They shall be awarded for a period of up to three years at the absolute discretion of the body or persons responsible for the award of the fellowship or fellowships in question.'

2 Voting on Legislative Proposal: Glasstone Benefaction

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal removes the gender restrictions currently governing the Glasstone Benefaction trust, thereby ensuring compliance with the Equality Act 2010 and enabling it to be administered as a single fund.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Glasstone Benefaction, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

'24.2. (1) The benefaction shall be known as the Glasstone Fund ~~divided into two equal funds which shall be known respectively as the Glasstone Fund for Men and the Glasstone Fund for Women~~.

(2) The net income arising from ~~each~~ the fund shall be used for the establishment of postdoctoral fellowships for research in the University in the fields of Plant Sciences~~Botany~~, Chemistry (Inorganic, Organic, or Physical), Engineering, Mathematics (including Statistics and Computer Science), Materials~~Metallurgy~~, and Physics.

(3) ~~The fund for men shall support fellowships open only to men candidates, and the fund for women shall support fellowships open only to women candidates.~~A fellowship will be made available by the University at the commencement of any academic year where sufficient income and suitable candidates are available. If the income is sufficient, the University may award more than one fellowship in any given year.'

2 Ibid., delete existing section 24.5 and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'24.5. (1) The fellowships shall be awarded ~~from time to time~~ by the University in accordance with arrangements approved by Council, and shall be tenable at the University.

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Oration by the Vice-Chancellor

The Research University

Colleagues, members of Congregation, it's a great pleasure to welcome you here this morning. Thank you for joining me.

By long tradition, this annual Oration provides the Vice-Chancellor of the day with an opportunity to take stock of our university at the start of a new academic year – looking both back and forwards. Well, there's no doubt – looking back – that the dominant topic of the last twelve months for this university, as for others, has been the intense and complex debate over undergraduate funding. And it may be, given that intensity, and given the continuing uncertainties of what may flow from it, that you will be expecting me to focus on that same absorbing topic this morning. Well, if that is the case, I fear I am going to disappoint you. Not because I think there is no more to be said on the subject. Far from it. But because – with the new regime not due to come into force for another twelve months – there will be time and place aplenty to discuss the likely consequences, both intended and unintended.

But I also plan to focus elsewhere this morning for another very important reason. The intense debate on undergraduate provision and teaching has, perhaps inevitably, diverted attention away from an equally significant aspect of Oxford's educational mission: our role as one of the world's leading centres for academic research, as a place creating important new knowledge as well as distilling and communicating existing knowledge. So it is on the challenges we face in sustaining Oxford's outstanding research that I want to focus this morning. Funding will inevitably form a major strand of those thoughts, as will the associated challenge of adequate financial support for graduate students, without whom many of the roots of our research would soon wither and die.

And, in fact, as I remarked in my Oration last year, there is an important sense in which the distinction between teaching and research is in any case a false, or at least a misleading one. As I noted then,

> Those of us who toil in the Groves of Academe know full well that our research helps inform our teaching as we lay out to students the shifting boundaries of knowledge. And our teaching, probed and challenged by bright students, brings new perspective and direction to our research questions. For the students, whether graduate students in our libraries and laboratories or undergraduates in our classrooms and tutorials, there is no educational experience more profound than being taught by those who themselves are repositioning those intellectual boundaries.

In other words, this is a truly virtuous circle, and if my focus this morning is not directly on undergraduate study, I hope and believe that what I have to say is nevertheless highly relevant to it.

One of the contexts in which we at Oxford, in common with other UK research-intensive universities, need to be thinking about our research activity is the government's new Research Excellence Framework, or the REF as it's affectionately known. Can't you just imagine those future newspaper headlines such as: Universities Cry 'Foul Ref!'? One of the novelties of the REF is devising tools to measure the 'impact' of research. Who knows, perhaps even this speech might one day register, however slightly, on the 'impact' scale.

But in truth, wherever you look across the university, the range and quality of research at Oxford is truly remarkable. I know this personally from my discussions with colleagues in the Department of Chemistry and across the university, but it is objectively clear from Oxford's consistently excellent performance in the predecessor of the REF, the Research Assessment Exercise. It is also reflected in the fact that Oxford's external research income comfortably exceeds that of any other UK university, as well as in the number and range of successful research grant applications.

Let me try to illustrate something of the scale and dynamism of our research enterprise, beginning with the fact that, of the university's operating income of nearly £900m for 2009/10, more than half of that was for research.

In the last few months alone, the Biomedical Research Centre within the Medical Sciences Division received five-year funding of £98m from the National Institute for Health Research; the new Social Sciences Doctoral Training Centre received £15m – more than any other single institution – to fund forty-five postgraduate studentships every year for five years from the Economic and Social Research Council; and in Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences, two of the four L'Oréal UK and Ireland fellowships for Women in Science went to researchers in the Department of Chemistry and the Dunn School of Pathology. The Humanities Division, which has trebled its research income since 2006/7, has recently received £225,000 over three years for postgraduate studentships from the Wolfson Foundation, a sum which the university is matching from philanthropic donations. And at the end of last week, we received a cheque from the Mellon Foundation for US$2m for postdoctoral fellowships in the Humanities.

This gives just a flavour of our success in generating research income. But what of our research output; what are we doing with the money? Here too the evidence is enormously impressive and I will give just a few examples to illustrate.

In Medical Sciences, a study by the Department of Clinical Neurology found that a daily low dose of aspirin can reduce by 20% the number of deaths from a whole range of common cancers. In February the first babies were born in the UK using a new chromosome-counting technique pioneered at Oxford University to select the best embryos for IVF. In March, scientists at the Department of Physiology, Anatomy and Genetics developed a new method for delivering complex drugs directly to the brain, a necessary step for treating diseases like Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, Motor Neuron Disease and Muscular Dystrophy. And, looking to the future, we have high hopes that the new closer relationship with Oxford's hospitals will produce significant benefits in terms of research, teaching and patient care.

In the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division this year, scientists discovered the world's oldest fossils, whose existence suggests that there was life on earth more than 3.4 billion years ago. In June, an international panel, led by Professor Alex Rogers of the Department of Zoology, issued a preliminary report of their findings that the world's oceans are at risk of entering a phase of extinction of marine species unprecedented in human history, with nine million species in danger if coral reefs are destroyed. It was discovered that meat grown using tissue engineering techniques would generate up to 96% fewer greenhouse gas emissions than conventionally produced meat, while a team from the Department of Materials found that a new way of splitting layered materials like graphite into sheets of material just one atom thick could lead to revolutionary new electronic and energy storage technologies.

In Humanities, an Oxford-led project began this year to investigate a swathe of untouched coroner's reports from Tudor England. Historians have already discovered the report concerning Jane Shaxspere, a young girl whose manner of death – falling into a river while picking flowers – could have provided the inspiration for the account of Ophelia's death in Hamlet. These reports could significantly improve our understanding of life in Tudor England and they are so detailed that, where one man is recorded as having been killed by a performing bear, it is even noted that the bear was valued at 26s 8d! A study in the Faculty of Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics has sent researchers to Indonesia to document a language which is spoken by only three people. Oxford has continued to lead the way in digitisation programmes in the Humanities and the past academic year saw the launch of CLAROS: the world of art on the semantic web; Around 1968, a digital archive of interviews with 1968 activists; and Ancient Lives, a collaboration between the Departments of Classics and Astrophysics, which asks the public to help in the study of fragments of papyri.

In the Social Sciences Division, the Migration Observatory was launched in the spring, aiming to provide an evidence-based impartial assessment of one of the major topics of national debate in Britain. In June, the Observatory's analysis of the UK's migration policy showed that the government was set to miss its net migration target by more than 65,000 by the close of parliament. Research by David Anderson, Professor of African Politics, into missing files from the Mau Mau rebellion made him a crucial witness at the trial brought by four Kenyans against the British government at the High Court. A recent study showed the lives of 600,000 infants could be saved each year by giving vitamin A supplements to those in countries where they are at risk of having a poor diet.

I have given just a few examples from across the academic range of our university; I could have given literally scores more. Inevitably, research of such depth and range does not come cheap. But before moving on to consider in more detail the vital question of how it can best be sustained in the future, it is also important to say something about its purpose. Self-evidently some new knowledge will have clear practical application; but some may not, or may seem to have very little at the time. It was, I think, Werner von Braun who remarked, 'Research is what I'm doing when I don't know what I'm doing.'

Sir Thomas Bodley, the sixteenth-century benefactor of the world-famous library that bears his name, built up collections in languages such as Chinese and Arabic, which no one in Oxford could read at the time but which are now recognised and celebrated as treasure troves for international scholarship. Bodley was clearly relaxed about the sometimes unpredictable inefficiencies of academic inquiry; he wrote of the 'natural and beneficial profligacy of ideas and exploration'.

Government and other public funders may be rather less relaxed. The fact that the fruits of knowledge can be unpredictable or slow to ripen does not always sit easily with short-term political imperatives, least of all in a time of serious economic downturn. This should not be a matter of great surprise but it should be a matter for careful reflection, not least among those seeking to shape both the economic and educational future of any developed or, for that matter, developing nation. In reality some of the less direct public benefit that academic research can bring may not fit easily or neatly with government timescales or official metrics. But that does not mean that the benefit cannot be both real and enduring.

Successive governments in this country and elsewhere have tended to see the great appeal and function of university research activity as providing direct benefits to the economy, through applied research and technology transfer. In 1993, the government of John Major produced a White Paper entitled Realising our potential. It called for wider and deeper links between academia, the public science, engineering and technology base, and industry. That theme has been echoed in many reports since, and we now await another with the publication of an Innovation and Research Strategy from the coalition government by the end of the year.

Certainly in comparison with the deep government cuts to university teaching grants, funding for research has fared relatively well. It will be important to see how this develops. But the evolving mantra of doing more with less is not an approach that will commend itself to researchers facing increasingly stiff international competition.

It is dispiriting to say the least to learn that the share of GDP the UK spends on higher education has fallen to 1.2%, thereby pushing it still further down the OECD index, and further behind the international average. And this is while public expenditure on universities elsewhere is expanding. When other governments are ramping up investment in higher education, particularly for research, treading water will not be enough.

The international trend is clear. China has a project to make two universities – Tsinghua and Beida – among the best in the world, and is investing over US$280m per institution per year in pursuit of that goal. In all, China is aiming to create more than one hundred leading universities in the course of the century. The observation that the Chinese are starting from a much lower base than in the UK may be true, but scarcely does justice to the scale of the challenges that are looming.

However, it would be wrong to suggest that it is only about competition. It can also be about collaboration. There are many examples across Oxford of leading-edge research being carried out in partnership with other outstanding universities and organisations. The point is that if a university is not in a position to compete at the highest level, it is unlikely to be in a position to collaborate at that level either.

A related question to the amount of national public investment in university research is the spread, or conversely the concentration, of that investment. Here in the UK it surely makes sense, at a strategic policy level, to focus hard-pressed public money where it can be most effective in delivering the highest-quality research. At a political level, though, there are always likely to be pressures to make sure that everyone gets a share. For a university like Oxford, with its unswerving commitment to excellence, it is pretty obvious where the balance of the argument lies.

At the outset of this speech, I indicated that I would focus not just on issues of research investment but also on the related challenges of graduate funding; related not least because the health of the UK's research base depends critically on the supply of talented graduates. Research students in particular are the engine of ground-breaking experimentation, and just as they are drawn to working here with leading academics, so too are we able to recruit the best academics because of the quality of Oxford's research students. In addition, and no less valuably, they enhance the intellectual life of the collegiate university, and they provide a considerable proportion of the next generation of academic leadership both in the UK and internationally.

The growth in graduate student numbers at UK universities has been one of the major but less publicly acknowledged shifts in higher education over the last two decades. In the UK as a whole, the total has increased more than three-fold. In the same period, undergraduate numbers have approximately doubled. Here at Oxford while undergraduate numbers in recent years have remained stable, the growth in graduate students has been steep and rapid. They now account for more than 40% of the overall student body. In the last five years alone, applications for graduate study at Oxford have risen by more than 60%.

Another significant aspect of our graduate student body is its international character. Three-quarters of applicants come from outside the UK. Oxford currently has students from more than 140 countries, many of whom will use the knowledge and skills they have gained here to make significant contributions back home. I think, for example, of our masters course in Global Health Science which equips students to assume leadership positions in major healthcare organisations and national ministries of health. I think too of Oxford alumni with doctoral degrees, who include the Prime Minister of India, the US Ambassador to the United Nations, and the Governor of the Bank of Canada.

But, as with research investment, competition for the most able graduate students is intensifying in what is increasingly a global market for talent. Our competitors are not only in the Ivy League but in places like China and India. China now attracts 265,000 foreign students every year. That is a greater number than the 180,000 Chinese students who study outside China annually.

And the competition can be very well heeled. A growing number of US universities provide full five-year funding packages for almost all of their doctoral students. By contrast, at Oxford, only just over one in two of our doctoral students are on full scholarships; for the Social Sciences and Humanities the figure is less than one in three.

Even fewer taught graduate students are funded from public sources. This is a particular issue in the Humanities and Social Sciences, for while many students read for these degrees as a stand-alone, professional qualification, they also form the first step toward a doctoral degree. Without funding for taught courses, the masters degree becomes a broken bridge to the doctorate.

Against this rapidly evolving and increasingly challenging international backdrop it is both noteworthy and regrettable that the recent government White Paper on higher education gave graduate studies scant attention. In Oxford's response to the White Paper we called for further work to be done on this now-crucial aspect of higher education. Last year Professor Sir Adrian Smith produced a review for the government entitled One Step Beyond: Making the most of postgraduate education in the sector. In its response the government stated that it planned 'no further changes to postgraduate funding' though it would keep the matter under review. In reflecting on this unsatisfactory state of affairs, I have to confess I was reminded that One Step Beyond is the signature tune of a group of musicians rejoicing in the name of Madness. How fitting.

But this is really not a joking matter. It is hard to escape the logic of the argument: if this competitive disadvantage in funding is not addressed, the UK higher education sector will increasingly lose out to its international competitors on the recruitment of the best students and the best academics. There are sadly too many examples of Oxford losing bright graduate students to overseas universities because of the funding gap. It is the single biggest reason why those to whom we make offers turn us down.

And there is another aspect to the problem, which relates directly to the continuing UK debate about equality of opportunity and enhanced social mobility. One of the reasons that students now go on to seek higher degrees is that it is an advantage or even a requirement for future career prospects – and not just in academia. It has often been argued in the past that graduate study is more akin to a lifestyle choice: something you can do if you wish to and can find the funds. But that argument rings increasingly hollow. If part of the point and benefit of higher education is to enhance individual life and career prospects, then major funding barriers to the kind of study that can do a great deal to enhance those prospects is hardly equitable, or likely to promote the social mobility that is such an important part of the current higher education debate. As a 2009 government report stated: 'Postgraduate qualifications, both from taught and research courses, are increasingly a necessity for careers in the public and private sectors alike.'

It is surely time, as we have urged, for a fresh look by policy makers. It is striking, for example, that there is nothing in the UK to compare with the US government's federal loans scheme, to enable graduate students to finance their study.

Meanwhile graduate scholarship funding from government sources in the UK is declining. In July, HEFCE's Overseas Research Students Award Scheme came to an end, a scheme which at its peak provided £1.5m annually to support overseas graduate students at Oxford. In addition, research council scholarship funds for UK and EU students are diminishing, although an initiative by all seven research councils to match-fund their graduate scholarships does at least offer some new options.

Politicians, not unreasonably, often like to turn the question round and ask: What are you doing about it? The answer at Oxford is: a great deal. Increasing support for graduate scholarships is a major priority of the Oxford Thinking fundraising campaign, which has proved such an outstanding success and which is now fast approaching the initial target of £1.25bn.

In the long term, we aim to offer needs-blind admission to attract the most talented graduate applicants from around the globe. Our strategic objective is to provide full funding packages covering all fees and living costs to the majority of students studying for doctorates and stepping-stone masters degrees.

Already we invest significant and increasing collegiate university resources in graduate scholarships. Notably, this term sees us celebrating the tenth anniversary of our flagship graduate scholarship scheme, with the one thousandth Clarendon Scholar joining us in Oxford this week. Oxford University Press now provides £7.5m each year to support Clarendon Scholars, generously supplemented by £1m from some two dozen colleges working in partnership, and £1m from external donors. Across our departments and colleges, a further £13m in graduate scholarships is given out each year.

We are also fortunate in having highly prestigious externally funded graduate scholarship schemes at Oxford. Rhodes is of course the most famous. Much more recent but also visionary is the Weidenfeld Scholarships and Leadership Programme, which aims to cultivate the leaders of tomorrow from transitional and emerging economies. As one recent corporate donor of graduate scholarships observed: 'In universities are our future prime ministers, our future directors of large companies, our politicians. They are studying in our universities now so there is no better investment than in higher education.'

As I have already signalled, the significance of philanthropy in supporting ground-breaking research at Oxford is hard to overestimate. If one looks at recent major developments round the university, the generosity of our donors has been, and remains, key. The Oxford Martin School, the Saïd Business School, the Blavatnik School of Government and the Smith School of Enterprise and the Environment are all potent examples of how philanthropy, in association with rigorous academic values, can shape and inspire research that changes how we understand the world and how we respond to its complex challenges.

We must and will continue to work hard to attract still greater philanthropic support for our world-leading research. But the sometimes highly targeted nature of major giving means that it will also be vital to go on developing the diversity of our research funding base. Noteworthy in that context is the rapid growth of overseas support. In 2004/5 this totalled £28m for research in Oxford; by 2009/10 the figure had more than trebled to £89m, by far the best performance among UK universities.

But for all the drive towards greater diversity, government support for research remains crucial. Governments can bring resources to bear on a scale that dwarfs every other funding stream. And that is true not just here but also in the United States, where universities are often thought to have to fend for themselves in the market. In reality most research income for US universities flows from government. At Harvard it is a whopping 80%; for Oxford last year it amounted to just over 40%. You can see why we attach such importance to future UK government intentions.

But the wider world is not only a major source of research funding. It is also, as already noted, a vital source of academic talent. I have described the challenging financial context in which we are competing to attract that talent. But the obstacles, sadly, are not just financial. There are also constraints on the free movement of students and staff. Across the globe the number of students studying abroad has risen by more than three and a half million, an increase of three-quarters in a little over a decade. In economic terms, the UK higher education sector earns more than £5bn per annum for the UK economy.

Restricting the free flow of the brightest and best academics and students is an area where heeding the experience of the US may serve us well. The numbers of international students in the US dropped after 9/11 following a tightening of student visa regulations. Economic recession and currency exchange rates played a significant part, but it was widely accepted that visa regulations were a key factor in a 20% drop in student visas in 2002. The total enrolment of foreign students declined in 2003 (for the first time in two decades) and again in 2004. It was not until 2005, when there was investment to speed up the procedures and some rules were relaxed, that student numbers began to rebound.

Here in the UK, new lower limits on the numbers of international academics we can recruit or retain poses serious risks – both scholarly and economic. Difficulties over visa applications as a result of current regulations and restrictions – and I could detail a number of examples from recent months – threaten if unchecked to affect adversely the academic health of the university. And while I am pleased at the recent assurances given by ministers over their willingness to work with the HE sector and with the UK Border Agency to remove what have been described as 'obstacles to the essential business of global intellectual exchange', nevertheless I feel bound to point out, in rather more home-spun fashion, that the proof of the pudding is in the eating.

I have by now learned that the Public Orator is able, effortlessly, to upstage the Vice-Chancellor each year in June by recounting the achievements and awards of their colleagues within the university. As last year, I will not repeat those many achievements and honours, but I should like to highlight, in this written version of my Oration, two awards that speak to the regard with which Oxford academics are viewed by their international peers. The first is the recent Balzan Prize awarded to Professor Joe Silk, Savilian Professor of Astronomy; the second the award of the Cundill Prize in History to Professor Diarmaid MacCulloch, for his History of Christianity: The First Three Thousand Years. Another achievement I should like to mention is one that reflects well on academic and administrative colleagues who have worked so hard on our summer school programmes, as well as on those attending them. Of those attending the inaugural UNIQ summer school in 2010 who went on to apply for an undergraduate place here at Oxford, starting this term, over 39% were successful, against an overall success rate for Oxford applications of around 20%.

I should like to record my gratitude to those Heads of House who have retired, and who have, over the past two years, provided me with advice, encouragement, and comradeship: Mr Richard Smethurst, Provost of Worcester; Dr Diana Walford, Principal of Mansfield; Professor Andrew Goudie, Master of St Cross; Mr Andrew Graham, Master of Balliol; Professor John Landers, Principal of Hertford; and Professor Roger Cashmore, Principal of Brasenose. I look forward to working with their successors, respectively: Professor Jonathan Bate, Baroness Helena Kennedy, Sir Mark Jones, Professor Sir Drummond Bone, Mr Will Hutton and Professor Alan Bowman.

I should also like to take this opportunity to thank a number of close colleagues within the university administration who have supported me during the last year, but who have moved on in one way or another. My thanks go again to Dr Julie Maxton, who stepped down as Registrar in January, and was succeeded by Professor Ewan McKendrick. He was succeeded as Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Education) by Dr Sally Mapstone, who, in her turn, was succeeded as Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Personnel and Equality) by Dr Stephen Goss. Professor Tony Monaco was appointed as President of Tufts University, and has been succeeded by Professor William James as Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Planning and Resources). Professor Sally Shuttleworth stepped down as Head of the Humanities Division during the summer, and her place has been taken by Professor Shearer West. Ms Sue Cunningham resigned as Director of Development to become Vice-Principal of Advancement at the University of Melbourne. Her place as Director of Development has been taken by Ms Liesl Elder. Ms Christine Fairchild has joined us as Director of Alumni Relations, in succession to Lady Kenny.

This year has seen the retirement of many distinguished colleagues who have contributed to the university's intellectual life over the years: Dr Judy Bastin; Professor David Bethea, Professor of Russian Studies; Dr Glenn Black; Mrs Irene Boller; Dr Jonathan Boyd; Professor Oliver Braddick, Professor of Psychology; Professor Judith Brown, Beit Professor of the History of the British Commonwealth; Mr Peter Brown; Dr Ros Burnett, Reader in Criminology; Dr Hugh Cartwright; Professor Thomas Charles-Edwards, Jesus Professor of Celtic; Professor Robin Cohen, Professor of Development Studies; Mr Peter Conrad; Mr Anthony Courakis; Dr Thomas Cunnane; Dr Christine Cuthbertson; Mr Chris Day; Professor George Ebers, Action Research Professor of Clinical Neurology; Professor Robert Evans, Regius Professor of History; Professor Michael Freeden, Professor of Politics; Professor David Gaffan, Professor of Behavioural Neuroscience; Professor Michael Goldacre, Professor of Public Health; Professor Robert Griffiths, Professor of Mathematical Genetics; Dr Peter Grout; Dr Kunde Guo; Professor Ralph Hanna, Professor of Palaeography; Dr Phillip Harries; Professor Barbara Harriss-White, Professor of Development Studies; Dr Felicity Heal; Professor Sir David Hendry, Professor of Economics; Dr Clive Holmes; Dr David Howlett; Dr John Hutchison, Reader in Materials; Dr Martin Ingram; Mr Michael Inwood; Dr Celia Kerslake; Dr Carol Leonard; Mr Kenneth Macdonald; Dr Angela Maciel; Professor Klim McPherson, Visiting Professor in Epidemiology; Dr Jaromir Malek; Professor Helen Mardon, Professor of Reproductive Science; Dr Piers Nye; Mr Bernard O'Donoghue; Professor Avner Offer, Chichele Professor of Economic History; Professor Neville Osborne, Professor of Ocular Neurobiology; Mr Tom Paulin; Professor Ken Peach; Dr Karen Pulford, Reader in Immunodiagnostics; Professor Graham Ross, Professor of Theoretical Physics; Dr Chris Sauer; Dr Carl Schmidt; Professor Avi Shlaim, Professor of International Relations; Dr David Shotton, Reader in Image Bioinformatics; Professor Joe Silk, Savilian Professor of Astronomy; Professor Edith Sim, Professor of Pharmacology; Professor Derek Siveter, Professor of Earth Sciences; Professor Fred Taylor, Halley Professor of Physics; The Revd Dr Colin Thompson; Dr Piet van Boxel; Dr Ralph Walker; Dr David Watkin; Professor Andrew Wilkinson, Professor of Paediatrics; Professor Adrian Wood, Professor of International Development; and Professor Roger Zetter, Professor of Refugee Studies.

I would also like to mention those other colleagues who have retired from valued administrative, library or service posts in the university: Mr Robert Atkinson, Mr Joe Barclay, Mrs Sue Blackshaw, Ms Dee Broquard, Mr Nick Carver, Mrs Margaret Chapman, Dr Paul Davis, Dr Robert Gatten, Mr Alan Grace, Dr Mary Gregoriou, Mr Grahame J Hambleton, Mrs Brenda Hanson, Mrs Carole Harris, Ms Margaret Herdman, Mr Steve Howarth, Mrs Jill James, Mr Dana Josephson, Dr Tony Klepping, Mr Geoff Lescott, Mr Glenn Mcintyre, Mr Gerald Metcalf, Mrs Susan Miles, Mr Roger Mills, Mr Andrew Morgan-Giles, Mrs Jennifer Morton, Mr Richard Osmond, Miss Amanda Peters, Ms Margaret Robb, Mr Michael Simpkins, Mr David Smith, Mrs Julie Smith, Mr Paul Sullivan, Mrs Diane Thomason, Mr John Thomason, Dr Roger Treweek, Mr Colin Wakefield, Dr Trevor Walton and Dr Jeremy Whiteley.

This year the university community has lost colleagues whose early deaths have been a source of great sadness: Mrs Gudrun Loftus, Senior Language Instructor in German; Dr Ann McPherson, Medical Director of the DIPex Research Group in the Department of Primary Health Care; Dr Peter Rellos, Senior Scientist at the Structural Genomics Consortium in the Nuffield Department of Clinical Medicine; and Lord Rodger of Earlsferry, High Steward of the university.

Finally, we pause to remember the contributions of those colleagues who have died in retirement over the past year: Professor Donald Blackwell, Professor Alison Brading, Mr Tony Butler, Professor David Cockayne, Miss Eileen Davies, Mr Paul Foote, Professor David Grahame-Smith, Mr Alfred Gunning, Dr Wilfred Halls, Mr Richard Hawkins, Mr Michael Howson, Miss Margaret Hubbard, Mr Geoffrey Hurst, Miss Margaret Jacobs, Miss Patricia Keen, Mr Wilfrid Knapp, Mr Gilbert McKay, Mr Robert McNeil, Ms Elaine Matthews, Professor Basil Mitchell, Mr Colin Moore, Professor Eric Newsholme, Dr James Porterfield, Dr Simon Price, Professor Daniel Quillen, Mr Julian Roberts, Mr Bede Rundle, Miss Mary Tregear, Lt Col Frank Walker, Dr John Wilders and Professor Zbynek Zeman.

In conclusion, having now completed two years as Vice-Chancellor of the university following my return after nearly three decades in the United States, it is no longer a matter of surprise to me that so much public attention should be lavished on Oxford's undergraduate life and character, and so relatively little on its graduate and research dimensions. True, we see a steady stream of media stories about research breakthroughs and advances, and very welcome they are too in the main. But they might have emerged from the far side of the moon for all the accumulated sense they convey of a living, breathing university community. And yet, as I hope I have gone some way to illustrate, this is an absolutely vital part of what a great university means in the twenty-first century: vital to us here; vital to the cause of outstanding scholarship; vital to the economic wealth of the country; and vital to meeting the challenges that so beset our world.

That is why it is time for everyone who cares about these things (and really can anyone afford not to?) – be they politicians, policy-makers, opinion-formers or voters – to reassess the way we understand and the way we support our research-intensive universities, keeping clearly in view what they mean for our common future. Because unless we do that, the future will look and feel a pretty unappealing place.

Council and Main Committees

Council of the University

Changes in Regulations

Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 28 October.

(a) Establishment of Employer Justified Retirement Age

Explanatory Note

These changes make a number of amendments to Council Regulations 3 of 2004 to reflect the decision taken by Council, on the recommendation of the Personnel Committee and following consultation across the collegiate University, to establish an Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) of 67 for academic and academic-related staff on the abolition of the statutory default retirement age (DRA).

During Michaelmas term 2010, the Personnel Committee and Council considered the potential impact of the abolition of the DRA in the context of the government consultation on this proposal. Those bodies agreed that maintaining predictable retirements through a collegial process was desirable, not least in relation to academic staff, in order to assist academic and financial planning, to promote inter-generational fairness and maintain opportunities for career progression, and to promote diversity in the workforce. Council therefore asked the officers to develop proposals that might enable the University to continue to implement a normal retirement age, for some categories of staff at least, once the DRA was phased out, and to seek legal advice as appropriate on this matter. It was recognised that, in respect of joint appointments in particular, close liaison with the colleges would be essential as the situation developed. The Conference of Colleges was therefore invited to nominate representatives to work with representatives of the Personnel Committee on this issue.

During Hilary term 2011, the Personnel Committee conducted a wide consultation exercise (with divisions, colleges and the Oxford UCU, as well as individuals via the Staff Gateway) on proposals developed by the joint group to maintain an EJRA of 67 for academic and academic-related staff, for an initial period of ten years. The consultation revealed broad and substantial support for this proposal. During Trinity term a second consultation was conducted on draft arrangements under which staff could request to continue in employment beyond the EJRA, with a right of appeal where such requests were turned down. This second consultation also indicated broad and substantial support for the proposed arrangements. In addition, the Conference of Colleges took a binding vote to maintain an EJRA of 67 in respect of the college-side of joint appointments. The arrangements set out below reflect the comments received in the second consultation.

The amendment of Council Regulations 3 of 2004 is required to give effect to Council's decision to maintain an EJRA for academic and related staff of 67 (ie 30 September immediately preceding the staff member's 68th birthday). Under the provisions of clause 3 of these regulations, Council has approved a policy on the Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) and a procedure for the consideration of requests to work beyond the EJRA, which are reproduced online at www.ox.ac.uk/gazette/ejra.

Consequential changes have also been made to the regulations in order to reflect the changes to the Universities Superannuation Scheme (USS) which came into force on 1 October 2011. In regulation 7 (2), the omission of a specific age at which staff can choose to retire reflects current legislation and the rules of the University's pensions schemes, under which staff may choose to retire no earlier than age 55. Under the changes to USS which came into effect from 1 October 2011, the normal pension age in that scheme will be 65. USS has agreed that staff who were 55 or over and had a contractual pension age of 60 on 1 October 2011 will retain a vested right to retire to an unreduced pension at age 60. Staff who choose to retire earlier than the normal pension age specified by the pension scheme will be entitled to such benefits as are provided under the rules of the relevant scheme. All current staff who are under age 55 as at 1 October 2011 will have their benefits calculated in two tranches: tranche A, relating to pensionable service up to 30 September 2011; and tranche B, relating to pensionable service after 30 September 2011.

Text of Regulations

1 In Council Regulations 3 of 2004, amend regulation 7 as follows (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'7. (1) Every employee of the University specified in section 13 of Statute XIV shall normally retire from employment not later than the 30 September immediately preceding his or her ~~66th~~ 68th birthday.~~, and every other employee of the University shall normally retire not later than the 31 July immediately preceding his or her 66th birthday, subject to paragraphs (2)-(4) below.~~

(2) Any person may elect to retire to pension ~~on~~ at, or at any time after, ~~his or her 60th birthday.~~ the minimum pension age stipulated in the rules of the pension scheme to which he or she belongs, as may be amended from time to time. Retirement benefits payable will be in accordance with the rules of the pension scheme.

(3) Council may make arrangements to provide for the continued employment in special cases of a person who wishes to remain in the employment of the University and whose services for the University it desires to retain.~~, but normally no person shall continue in the regular employment of the University after:~~

~~(a) if subject to the jurisdiction of the Visitatorial Board, the 30 September immediately preceding his or her 71st birthday; or~~

~~(4) (a) Any person who~~

~~(ii) at 1 July 1985 held an appointment (whether or not of the University) with entitlement to hold office at least until his or her 67th birthday (or any such person then holding an appointment to which he or she was appointed on the basis that if subsequently reappointed he or she would be eligible to hold office at least until that age), and~~

~~(iii) has continuously since then held an appointment or appointments with such entitlement,~~

~~shall not be required to retire before the 30 September immediately preceding his or her 68th birthday.~~

~~(b) In determining whether such appointments have been held continuously, any interval between a successful application for, and the taking up of, an appointment shall be disregarded.~~

~~(c) Appointments accepted by, but not taken up until after, 1 July 1985 shall be deemed to be held at that date.~~'

2 These regulations shall be effective from 1 October 2011.

(b) Audit and Scrutiny Committee

Explanatory Note

This change in regulations shortens the term of office of the Chair of the Audit and Scrutiny Committee from five to four years so as to align it with the standard term of office on Council.

Text of Regulations

1 In Council Regulations 15 of 2002 concerning the Audit and Scrutiny Committee (Supplement (2) to Gazette No. 4628, 26 June 2002, as amended on 8 May 2003, 1 June 2006, 21 January 2010, 18 March 2010, 23 September 2010 and 9 December 2010, Gazette, Vol. 133, p. 1212; Vol. 136, pp. 1152–3; Vol. 140, pp. 444, 746; Vol. 141, p. 3; Vol. 141, p. 284), delete existing regulation 8.1 and substitute (new wording underlined):

'8.1. (1) All members of the committee, save for the Chair, shall serve for five years and shall be re-eligible for reappointment for one further and final period of five years;

(2)The Chair shall serve for a period of four years and shall be re-eligible for reappointment for one further and final period of four years.'

2 These regulations shall be effective from 1 January 2012.

(c) Establishment of Quality Assurance Subcommittee of the Education Committee

Explanatory Note

Following review by the Education Committee of the scope of its responsibilities, and in the context of the changes to the Institutional Audit methodology from 2011 onwards, the proposed regulations establish a Quality Assurance Subcommittee of the Education Committee. The composition and terms of reference of the subcommittee will allow the committee to continue its close collaboration on quality assurance matters with colleges, divisions and student representatives, and to ensure institutional oversight of quality assurance in line with national expectations.

Text of Regulations

In Part 3 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002, concerning committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4634, 16 October 2002, p. 226), insert new Part 37 as follows:

'Part 37: Quality Assurance Subcommittee of the Education Committee

37.1. The Quality Assurance Subcommittee of the Education Committee shall consist of:

(1) the Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Education), or his or her nominated deputy, who shall chair the subcommittee;

(2) one of the Proctors or the Assessor as may be agreed between them;

(3)–(7) a person appointed by each division and the Department for Continuing Education;

(8)–(12) the Quality Assurance Officers from each division and the Department for Continuing Education;

(13) the Chair of the Senior Tutors' Committee;

(14) the Chair of the Graduate Committee of the Conference of Colleges;

(15) the Vice-President (Access and Academic Affairs) of the Oxford University Student Union;

(16) the Vice-President (Graduates) of the Oxford University Student Union.

37.2. The subcommittee shall report to the Education Committee at least once each term and shall meet not less than once each term.

37.3. The subcommittee will consider all quality assurance matters arising out of Education Committee's terms of reference, and in particular the University's institutional responsibility for threshold standards, quality of learning opportunities, enhancement, and public information in the context of the Academic Infrastructure.

37.4. The subcommittee will keep under review from the institutional perspective:

(1) the implications for the University as a whole of the quality indicators (including relevant data) available to divisions, the Department for Continuing Education and colleges to monitor the quality assurance of all aspects of learning and teaching and student provision;

(2) the effectiveness of the institutional policy frameworks for the quality assurance of all aspects of learning and teaching and student provision;

(3) the reports provided by divisions, the Department for Continuing Education and other University or college bodies dealing with all aspects of the quality assurance of learning and teaching and student provision.

37.5. In addition to its termly report, the subcommittee will refer to Education Committee proposals (including recommendations) on the following matters:

(1) any major aspects of the University's preparation for Institutional Review or major changes in the national framework for quality assurance;

(2) any new quality assurance aspects of proposals for new courses, and major changes to existing courses;

(3) any issues arising from divisional and Education Committee joint reviews which warrant wider consideration and might suggest the need for institution-wide development;

(4) any major changes or concerns relating to the conduct of assessment, where there are (or may be) systemic implications for the University;

(5) any matters related to the institutional policy framework for quality assurance related to any aspect of teaching and learning and student provision where it is proposed to make significant changes to the existing framework.

37.6. The subcommittee or officers acting on its behalf shall have delegated authority to consider the quality assurance aspects of the following specific matters on behalf of Education Committee with report to the committee as appropriate:

(1) reports on the annual quality assurance templates;

(4) collaborative agreements including exchange arrangements;

(5) Final Honour Schools and First Public Examination outcomes;

(6) Proctors' reports;

(7) Common Framework annual returns;

(8) divisional or Department for Continuing Education reports on internal and external examiners' reports, with special regard to the maintenance of threshold academic standards;

(9) college academic provision reports;

(10) operation of the University's services as they relate to Quality Assurance matters, with special regard to the quality of learning opportunities;

(11) outcomes from divisional and Education Committee joint reviews, including interim reports;

(12) the institution-wide provision of information for students, via handbooks, examination conventions and websites;

(13) the effectiveness of institution-wide mechanisms for enhancement.

37.7. The subcommittee will also consider any matter referred to it for advice by Education Committee.'

(d) Committee on the University Statutes and Regulations

Explanatory Note

The following change disbands the Committee on the University Statutes and Regulations. The Committee was established in 2002 with a remit to keep the University's legislation under review and consider proposed amendments or additions to it. However, the way in which new legislation is put forward has changed over time and the function of the Committee has largely been superseded by ad hoc working groups or review panels that are now usually established specifically to review an area of activity and to make recommendations as to any changes to the legislation that are considered necessary.

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 28 October.

(a) Establishment of Chung Kin Kwok Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Chung Kin Kwok Fund to support conservation of, and provide digital access to, the University's Chinese books, manuscripts and maps, in particular meeting the costs of providing the Ming Dynasty Map of East Asia for exhibition in Shanghai; and support the Chung Kin Kwok Chinese Studies Librarian.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p. 609, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, and renumbered by the changes published on 14 November 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), insert new § 64 as follows, and renumber existing §§ 64–171 as §§ 65–172:

'§ 64. Chung Kin Kwok Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude the sum of £2,000,000 from The Chung Kin Kwok Education Foundation Co. Limited to be held on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Chung Kin Kwok Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain the assets in the Fund as permanent endowment.

3. The University shall apply the income of the Fund:

(1) in the period ending ten (10) years from the date of the trust instrument, supporting conservation of and providing digital access to the University's Chinese books, manuscripts and maps, in particular meeting the costs of providing the Ming dynasty Map of East Asia (the "Selden Map") for exhibition in Shanghai; and

(2) thereafter, supporting the salary and expenses of the Chung Kin Kwok Chinese Studies Librarian (the "Post"). The Post holder shall be responsible for managing and promoting access to the Bodleian's Chinese collections for the purposes of educational study and research.

Any surplus income in any year shall, at the discretion of the University, be used in that year for the support of Chinese studies within the University's libraries or be placed on reserve for expenditure in the subsequent year as if it were income in that subsequent year.

4. Bodley's Librarian shall be responsible to the Curators of the University Libraries for the administration of the Fund and the application of its income.

5. The appointment of the Post holder shall be approved by Bodley's Librarian.

6. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

7. The University shall have power to pay out of the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Post.

8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

9. Regulations 1–4 and 6–11 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

10. Subject to regulation 11, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

11. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(b) Establishment of Human Sciences Developing Nations Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Human Sciences Developing Nations Fund to provide bursaries to Human Sciences students from developing countries.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p. 659, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, and renumbered by the changes published on 14 November 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), insert new § 168 as follows, and renumber existing §§ 168–71 as §§ 169–72:

'§ 168. Human Sciences Developing Nations Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude the sum of £96,000 from an anonymous donor, to be held on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Human Sciences Developing Nations Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the Fund towards providing bursaries to Human Sciences students from developing countries.

3. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Board of the School of Anthropology and Museum Ethnography, on the recommendation of the Institute of Human Sciences.

4. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

5. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund and the management and administration of the Fund.

6. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

7. These regulations shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

8. Subject to regulation 9, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal clarifies that the scholarships may be awarded for study in any graduate programme in the Faculty of Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics, and provides the Faculty with flexibility to provide one or more partial awards in a given year.

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

2. If:

(1) a quorum is not present within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting; or

(2) In the absence of provision in these regulations for a larger quorum, a quorum is one third of those members eligible to vote upon the business of the committee in question (rounded to the nearest integer).

(3) A member who is participating in a meeting by telephone, video-conference or any other means of communication which permits all members simultaneously to hear one another, shall be considered present and therefore shall count towards the quorum.

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 11 November.

Wood Professor of Forest Science

Explanatory Note

These revised regulations replace the existing regulations for the Wood Professor of Forest Science to clarify that the post is endowed and to provide for the possibility of future donations, which may be treated as permanent endowment depending on the wishes of the donor(s).

Text of Regulations

In Section III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002 concerning individual professorships (Statutes, 2000, p. 423, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), delete existing § 95 and substitute:

'§ 95. Wood Professor of Forest Science

1. There shall be a Wood Professor of Forest Science, who will be a distinguished specialist in a branch of forest science and who has some understanding of the environmental, ecological and economic aspects of forestry. The Wood Professor of Forest Science shall undertake research in and shall lecture and give instruction in forestry and promote its study in the University ("the Professorship").

2. The University receives with gratitude the sum of £750,000 from Audrey and Martin Wood to be held on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Professor of Forest Science Fund ("the Fund").

3. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

4. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of the holder of the Professorship and associated overheads.

5. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income and expendable capital, shall be the responsibility of the Department of Plant Sciences.

6. The professor shall be elected by an electoral board consisting of:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor, or, if the head of the college specified in (2) of this clause is Vice-Chancellor, a person appointed by Council;

(2) the head of the college to which the professorship shall be for the time being allocated by Council under any regulation in that behalf, or if the head is unable or unwilling to act, a person appointed by the governing body of the college;

(3) a person appointed by the governing body of the college specified in (2) of this clause;

(4)–(5) two persons appointed by Council; and

(6)–(9) four persons appointed by the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Board.

7. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

8. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Professorship.

9. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

10. Regulations 2–5 and 7–12 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

11. Subject to regulation 12, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

12. Any amendment to regulation 4 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund and may only be made:

(1) by Council if more than 25 years have elapsed since the date of this regulation and the application of the Fund in accordance with regulation 4 has, in the University's reasonable opinion, ceased to provide a suitable and effective method of using the Fund, regard being had to the spirit of the original gift; or

(2) pursuant to Part D of Statute XVI with the approval of both Congregation of the University and subsequently Her Majesty in Council.

13. The professor shall be subject to the General Provisions of the regulations concerning the duties of professors and to those Particular Provisions of the same regulations which are applicable to this chair.'

Response to White Paper

The University submitted a response to the government's White Paper on higher education, Students at the Heart of the System, on 16 September. Comments were invited by the government through a consultation period which opened on 28 June and closed on 20 September. The University's approach to drafting the response over the long vacation, while the usual decision-making committee structure was not in operation, was set out in Gazette, Vol. 141, p. 790, 28 July 2011.

BIS's technical consultation on regulation of the higher education sector was launched on 4 August, with a closing date of 27 October. This considered the changes required to the legislative framework to implement the proposals in the White Paper. Matters discussed included the implementation of HEFCE's new role as lead regulator, and approaches to easing the operation within the sector for alternative providers of degree-level study (defined as those which are not currently eligible for HEFCE funding, and are not further education colleges). Drafts of the University's response to this consultation were considered by the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, Education Committee and Council and the response was submitted by the deadline.

Copies of both responses are available online at www.admin.ox.ac.uk/pras/oxonly/whitepaper.

Congregation 15 November 2 pm

¶ Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on Monday, 7 November, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they intend to oppose the amendment to Congregation Regulations at 1, any of the legislative proposals at 2–5 or the resolutions at 6 below (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise, the change to Congregation Regulations, the legislative proposals and the resolutions shall be carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

(1) Voting on change in Congregation Regulations: membership of Congregation

Explanatory Note

The following change affirms that staff who have transferred to the University under the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006 ('TUPE') and are on grades assessed as equivalent to grade 8 or above are eligible for Congregation membership.

Text of Regulations

In Congregation Regulations 1 of 2002, concerning membership of Congregation (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002, p. 160, amended on 20 March 2007), delete existing paragraph (10) of regulation 1 and substitute (new wording underlined):

'(10) all persons working in any university department or institution who hold posts on, or assessed as equivalent to, grades 8 and above;'.

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute V: Green Templeton College

The following legislative proposal replaces references to Green and Templeton Colleges in Statute V with a reference to Green Templeton College, following formal conclusion of the merger. If the Statute is approved, the existing regulations concerning Green College will no longer be required and will therefore be repealed.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the list of colleges recognised by the University to include Green Templeton College, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

1 In section 1 of Statute V concerning Colleges, Societies, and Permanent Private Halls (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002, approved with effect from 1 October 2002, as amended on 17 July 2003 and 12 October 2010, Gazette, Vol. 133, p. 1536; Vol. 141, p. 110, 14 October 2010), delete 'Templeton College' and insert 'Green Templeton College' after 'Exeter College'.

2 Ibid., in section 5 delete 'Green College'.

Regulations to be repealed by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council Repeal Council Regulations 9 of 2002 concerning Green College (made by Council on 26 June 2002, Supplement (2) to Gazette No. 4628).

(3) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Basant Kumar and Sarala Birla Graduate Scholarship Fund

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal clarifies that the scholarships may be awarded for study in any graduate programme in

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Women Students Fund, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

2. The Committee for Educational Studies shall be the board of management for the fund.'

General notices

Van Houten Fund

The Van Houten Bequest is a fund left by the late M Van Houten in the 1950s to be used 'for the benefit of the University in such ways as the Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, and Council shall see fit'. The Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, Council and PRAC agreed in 2005 to delegate responsibility to the Registrar to approve grants subject to a regular report to be made to Council on the decisions taken.

Bids are now being invited for grants from this fund to be used to support projects that do not form part of the normal day-to-day operations of a department and which would not easily be funded from other regular sources. Examples of recent recipients include:

- the UAS Conference 2011;
- the Vice-Chancellor's Civic Awards 2011;
- purchase of a grand piano by the Holywell Music Room.

Grants to internal applicants are usually in the region of £6,000–£20,000 either given as a one-off payment or spread over one to three years. Grants are also available to organisations external to the University; in such cases, the amounts awarded are usually lower and there is a cap on the total amount of funding provided to external organisations of £30,000 in this financial year.

The guidelines by which bids are assessed are as follows:

1. Bids for grants will be assessed according to the breadth of the benefit to the University offered by the project in question, the strategic importance of the project to the University and the availability of funds. Only in exceptional circumstances will a grant be awarded in respect of a project which benefits a single department.

2. Grants will not ordinarily be awarded for purposes for which other trust fund (or similar) support exists within the University, for example, the funding of academic scholarships, regardless of whether or not the alternative fund(s) in question are in a position to fund the expenditure proposed.

3. Grants will not ordinarily be awarded in respect of costs for which a department might reasonably be expected to hold a budget.

4. Grants will not ordinarily be agreed in respect of recurrent activities except to provide:

(a) seed funding to support an activity in its first one to three years; or

(b) bridging support for one year only where a source of funding is lost and the department/faculty in question is confident that an alternative can be found for the following year.

5. Grants will not ordinarily cover the full cost of a project. Departments will be expected to make some contribution, or to use the grant secured by the Van Houten Fund to assist in securing other funding (including external funding).

6. The extent to which funds may be awarded to external organisations each financial year shall be subject to an upper limit, to be set by the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee and reviewed on an annual basis.

Bids for funding should take the form of a written submission outlining the amount requested, what the use of the grant would be, the benefit that would be conferred to the University, approximate costings, timescales, details of other funding secured and any other relevant information. The bids will be considered by the Registrar as a gathered field. Bids should be sent to the secretary of the fund, Mrs Adrienne Lingard, by 9 December 2011.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs Lingard: telephone (2)80092, email adrienne.lingard@admin.ox.ac.uk or at the University Offices, Wellington Square, Oxford, OX1 2JD. The next invitation to bid is scheduled to be sent out in April 2012.

Elections

Nominations for these elections closed at 4 pm on 27 October.

Contested election

BOARD OF THE FACULTY OF ORIENTAL STUDIES

One ordinary member elected by all members of the faculty, exclusive of the persons qualified to be official members as per Regulation 19.7:

Professor W L Treadwell, St Cross	MT 2012

The following nominations have been received:

R G Hoyland, MA DPhil Oxf, Fellow of St Cross

Nominated by:
I Bangha, Wolfson
L J N Mignon, St Antony's
N Sinai, Pembroke
D G K Taylor, Wolfson

[No candidate statement submitted.]

Dirk Meyer, MA PhD Leiden, Fellow of Queen's

Nominated by:
P B Ditmanson, Pembroke
M Hillenbrand, Wadham
S-Y Kan, Wadham
Y Song, Faculty of Oriental Studies

Candidate statement:

Chinese is currently represented by only one ordinary member of the Faculty Board in Oriental Studies, despite the size and importance of this subject group and the very large number of students for whom it is responsible. Our sole member on the board is also on leave at present, leaving the group with still less of a presence on the most important decision-making body of the Faculty. This under-representation is particularly regrettable given that the subject group has been without a professor since 2009 during what is a critical time for the development of Chinese Studies within the University. My nomination has been proposed as a means of providing some minimal rectification of this anomaly. I hope that my presence on the Board will assist the Board in their discussions pertaining to Chinese and the East Asian sub-faculty generally, whilst also helping the Chinese subject group to understand and implement Board decisions. As a reasonably new member of the Faculty who has come from a very different academic system, I am also very keen to gain as much understanding as possible of the administrative workings of the Faculty and the Division.

General notes:

Ballot papers were sent out by 7 November to those eligible to vote in the contested election. Completed ballot papers must be received by the Elections Office not later than 4 pm on 24 November.

Completed application forms (signed by the head of department where appropriate) should be returned to the head of the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences division or the divisional contact shown above, as appropriate, for processing and for faculty board/divisional board approval.

3. Sabbatical leave in advance of entitlement

In some circumstances individuals may wish to take leave for purposes covered by the sabbatical leave scheme at a time when they do not have sufficient sabbatical entitlement. Such circumstances might include an unrepeatable opportunity to pursue academic interests, or a need to undertake fieldwork for a period exceeding one year. In such cases leave could be granted in whole or in part as sabbatical leave in advance of entitlement if a good academic case could be demonstrated.

4. Applications for leave to hold some public offices

Applications for leave to accept an appointment in the public service of national or international importance are normally granted by the divisional board, provided that:

- the purpose of the leave can be shown to be compatible with the academic interests of the department or faculty;

- the department or faculty (and the college in the case of joint appointments) supports the application and is able to cover the individual's duties including examining and graduate supervision;

- it is clear that the individual intends to return to university service after the period of leave.

Applications for leave to hold such offices should be made to the divisional secretary, faculty board secretary or other officer as notified locally.

5. Applications for certain research awards

Applications to national bodies for prestigious and competitive research awards (e.g. British Academy Research Readerships and Senior Research Fellowships, AHRC Research Leave awards, EPSRC Senior or Advanced Fellowships) are normally granted by the divisional board provided that the department or faculty (and the college in the case of joint appointments) supports the application and that appropriate arrangements can be made to cover the individual's duties, including examining and graduate supervision, should the application be successful.

Applications for research awards by members of the Humanities Division must be notified to the appropriate divisional research facilitator at least one month before the funder's deadline. The research facilitator will provide advice and support for the application, produce a budget and an OG (internal authorisation form required by Research Services) and will liaise with the Humanities Division and Research Services to obtain approval for the application. It is the responsibility of the applicant to obtain in advance the consent of the college (where appropriate) for any research leave application. Consent must be forwarded to the research facilitator and is required by Research Services as part of the internal checking and authorisation process. Note: all applications to outside bodies for research funding must be checked and authorised by Research Services. The AHRC will not accept applications directly from colleges: applications from CUF lecturers to that body can only be submitted via the relevant faculty.

6. Applications for special unpaid leave

Applications for leave other than those outlined above may be considered as applications for special unpaid leave. Applications may be considered if they meet one or both of the following criteria:

i) providing academic benefit to the University;

ii) providing a career development opportunity for the individual, hence aiding staff retention.

Activities under these criteria might include visiting another institution to study specialised laboratory techniques, taking up a visiting lecturership or visiting professorship at a prestigious department abroad, an extended period of fieldwork etc.

In all cases, it is essential that the consent of the college (where appropriate) and of the department/faculty board is obtained before an application is made to the divisional board. In considering applications, colleges and departments/faculty boards must be satisfied that the proposed leave fits with their overall plans and objectives, and it must be clear that the individual's duties for the college and for the department/faculty, including examining and graduate supervision, can be covered satisfactorily. Divisional boards will consider applications both on their own merits and in the context of overall operational needs, and will not approve applications which are prejudicial to the teaching and research of the department/faculty or which are not supported by the applicant's college.

Occasionally applications are made for leave to enable an individual to accept a fixed-term appointment in another academic institution (other than routine visiting appointments held during sabbatical leave). In such instances the college and the department/faculty board would need to be satisfied that the application was in line with their overall plans and objectives, as above, and that all operational requirements could be covered satisfactorily, before the application was put to the divisional board. Applicants would normally be expected to give a commitment to return to Oxford after the period of leave. It should be noted that the longer the appointment at the other institution, the less likely it is that leave will be granted.

Leave will not be granted, except in the most truly exceptional circumstances, to enable an individual to decide whether to accept a permanent post elsewhere.

It is recognised that some offers are made to individuals at short notice. Given the fact that all members of the academic staff have clear obligations to the University and to their college under the terms of their contracts, no such offer should be accepted without the support of the college and the department/faculty and the explicit approval of the divisional board. It is essential, therefore, that any prospect of such an offer is discussed, in confidence, with the college and with the divisional secretary or faculty board secretary at the earliest opportunity so as to avoid delays, and the possibility of refusal, if a firm offer is then made at very short notice.

All applications for special unpaid leave should be made to the divisional secretary, faculty board secretary or other officer as notified locally, who will also be able to advise on the likelihood of success of any application on the university side; the college's consent in appropriate cases must be obtained before an application is put to the divisional board.

7. Special paid leave

Divisions may, if they wish, with the concurrence of the college in relevant cases, grant additional paid leave outside sabbatical entitlement, funded from their own resources, to enable staff to undertake projects of mutual benefit to the individual and the University. Examples might include asking a member of staff to concentrate for a term wholly on considering revised teaching patterns across a whole subject area; or permitting a member of staff to teach at another university for a term to foster inter-institutional links, possibly as part of an exchange arrangement.

8. Stipendiary arrangements

- Sabbatical leave and dispensation from CUF lecturing duties: leave will be granted with stipend (although it may be granted without stipend if taken for the purpose of holding a remunerated visiting appointment under 6 above).
- Leave to hold a public office: leave will be granted without stipend.
- Leave to hold a research award: the arrangements vary depending on the regulations governing the award, but it is normal for individuals holding such awards to continue to receive their usual university stipend, the awarding body either providing funds to make a replacement appointment or reimbursing the University for the individual's salary costs.
- Special leave: leave will normally be granted without stipend, but see 7 above.

9. Implications for future entitlement to sabbatical leave or dispensation from CUF lecturing duties

Special leave does not count as qualifying service for the purposes of calculating future entitlement to sabbatical leave or dispensation from CUF lecturing duties. However it does not count against an individual's future entitlement. When special leave has been granted for the purposes of holding a public office or a research award, sabbatical leave is not normally granted in the period immediately preceding or following the period of special leave, although some flexibility may be exercised at the divisional board's discretion in respect of periods of special leave not exceeding one year, especially in connection with the holding of research awards.

Contested Election

Board of the Faculty of Oriental Studies

One ordinary member elected by all members of the faculty, exclusive of the persons qualified to be official members as per Regulation 19.7:

Professor W L Treadwell, St Cross	MT 2012

The following nominations have been received:

R G Hoyland, MA DPhil Oxf, Fellow of St Cross

Nominated by:
I Bangha, Wolfson
L J N Mignon, St Antony's
N Sinai, Pembroke
D G K Taylor, Wolfson

[No candidate statement received.]

Dirk Meyer, MA PhD Leiden, Fellow of Queen's

Nominated by:
P B Ditmanson, Pembroke
M Hillenbrand, Wadham
S-Y Kan, Wadham
Y Song, Faculty of Oriental Studies

Candidate statement:

Chinese is currently represented by only one ordinary member of the Faculty Board in Oriental Studies, despite the size and importance of this subject group and the very large number of students for whom it is responsible. Our sole member on the board is also on leave at present, leaving the group with still less of a presence on the most important decision-making body of the Faculty. This under-representation is particularly regrettable given that the subject group has been without a professor since 2009 during what is a critical time for the development of Chinese Studies within the University. My nomination has been proposed as a means of providing some minimal rectification of this anomaly. I hope that my presence on the Board will assist the Board in their discussions pertaining to Chinese and the East Asian sub-faculty generally, whilst also helping the Chinese subject group to understand and implement Board decisions. As a reasonably new member of the Faculty who has come from a very different academic system, I am also very keen to gain as much understanding as possible of the administrative workings of the Faculty and the Division.

General notes:

Ballot papers were sent out by 7 November to those eligible to vote in the contested election. Completed ballot papers must be received by the Elections Office not later than 4 pm on 24 November.

Elections

Contested Election

Board of the Faculty of Oriental Studies

One ordinary member elected by all members of the faculty, exclusive of the persons qualified to be official members as per Regulation 19.7:

Professor W L Treadwell, St Cross	MT 2012

The following nominations have been received:

R G Hoyland, MA DPhil Oxf, Fellow of St Cross

Nominated by:
I Bangha, Wolfson
L J N Mignon, St Antony's
N Sinai, Pembroke
D G K Taylor, Wolfson

[No candidate statement received.]

Dirk Meyer, MA PhD Leiden, Fellow of Queen's

Nominated by:
P B Ditmanson, Pembroke
M Hillenbrand, Wadham
S-Y Kan, Wadham
Y Song, Faculty of Oriental Studies

Candidate statement:

Chinese is currently represented by only one ordinary member of the Faculty Board in Oriental Studies, despite the size and importance of this subject group and the very large number of students for whom it is responsible. Our sole member on the board is also on leave at present, leaving the group with still less of a presence on the most important decision-making body of the Faculty. This under-representation is particularly regrettable given that the subject group has been without a professor since 2009 during what is a critical time for the development of Chinese Studies within the University. My nomination has been proposed as a means of providing some minimal rectification of this anomaly. I hope that my presence on the Board will assist the Board in their discussions pertaining to Chinese and the East Asian sub-faculty generally, whilst also helping the Chinese subject group to understand and implement Board decisions. As a reasonably new member of the Faculty who has come from a very different academic system, I am also very keen to gain as much understanding as possible of the administrative workings of the Faculty and the Division.

General notes:

Ballot papers were sent out by 7 November to those eligible to vote in the contested election. Completed ballot papers must be received by the Elections Office not later than 4 pm on 24 November.

Council and Main Committees

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 16 December.

(a) Nuffield Medical Trustees

Explanatory Note

This change allows Council's General Purposes Committee to determine in an individual case that a person be allowed to continue to serve as a Nuffield Medical Trustee after reaching the age of 70.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 25 of 2002 concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p. 692, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), in § 261 delete existing regulation 1 (3)(b) and substitute (new wording underlined):

'(b) No person shall become or remain a trustee after reaching the age of 70 years, unless Council's General Purposes Committee has determined otherwise in an individual case.'

(b) Establishment of C V Starr Scholarship Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the C V Starr Scholarship Fund to provide scholarship assistance to undergraduate, graduate and postdoctoral students of the University's own selection on the basis of merit and need.

Text of Regulations

'§ 341. C. V. Starr Scholarship Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude the sum of US$250,000 from the Starr Foundation via Americans for Oxford, Inc. to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the C.V. Starr Scholarship Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the provision of scholarship assistance to undergraduate, graduate and postdoctoral students of its own selection on the basis of merit and need.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Board of the Wildlife Conservation Research Unit.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Scholarship.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(c) Department of Earth Sciences Field Teaching Fund

Explanatory Note

These changes, recommended by the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Divisional Board and the Trusts Management Board, clarify that the capital, as well as the income, of the fund can be spent down over an appropriate period. Although the current wording of regulation 3 suggests this can be done already, it has not been possible to establish this conclusively, and the clearer wording is therefore intended to put the matter beyond doubt.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002 concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p. 628, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), in § 101 amend regulation 3 as follows (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'3. The administration of the Fund~~, and the application of its capital and income~~, shall be the responsibility of the Department of Earth Sciences, which shall appoint a committee with delegated authority to discharge this responsibility on its behalf. The committee shall be responsible for applying the income and, at its discretion, the capital of the Fund.'

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute V concerning the Permanent Private Halls

Explanatory Note

In Hilary term 2006, Council appointed a Review Panel chaired by Sir Colin Lucas to conduct a review of the Permanent Private Halls (PPHs) associated with the University of Oxford. The review report was completed in July 2007 and its recommendations have been implemented subsequently. Foremost amongst these was the establishment by the Vice-Chancellor of a Supervisory Committee for the Permanent Private Halls (chaired by Dr Ralph Walker) which would undertake the detailed discussions with the individual halls to establish a new framework for their association with the University. The conclusion of the discussions undertaken by the Supervisory Committee has now resulted in a form of Agreement between the University and each of the halls which is embodied in an amendment to Statute V. The Agreement with the halls covers a number of areas previously dealt with by regulation and so the current regulations concerning the establishment and maintenance of the PPHs can be abolished. Taken together, the amendment to Statute V and the individual agreements with the associated new regulations are intended to provide a revised framework for the halls' association with the University.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Statute V concerning Colleges, Societies, and Permanent Private Halls, THE UNIVERSITY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS.

In Statute V, concerning the Permanent Private Halls, (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002, as amended on 17 July 2003 and 12 October 2010, Vol. 133, p. 1536; Vol 141, p. 110), delete existing sections 7–11 and substitute:

'Permanent Private Halls

7. The University has granted each of the following institutions the status of Permanent Private Hall of the University:

Blackfriars Hall
Campion Hall
Regent's Park College
St Benet's Hall
St Stephen's House
Wycliffe Hall

8. The terms on which the status is granted, and the circumstances in which the status may be revoked or surrendered, are set out in an Agreement between the University and each institution. Revocation other than on the grounds of an institution's insolvency or dissolution shall require the consent of Council and Congregation.

9. The status may be granted to other institutions on similar terms, but only with the consent of Council and Congregation.'

Regulations to be made by Council if this Statute is approved

(a) Proposed new regulations governing the Permanent Private Halls

Explanatory Note

These new regulations are made in association with the Agreements entered into by the University and the Permanent Private Halls as part of the revised framework for the halls' association with the University.

Text of Regulations

Delete existing Council Regulations 12 of 2002, concerning the establishment and maintenance of Permanent Private Halls (Supplement (2) to Gazette No. 4628, 26 June 2002, as amended on 17 July 2003 and 14 October 2010, Vol. 133, p. 1536; Vol 141, p. 110), and substitute:

'Council Regulations 1 of 2011

Regulations governing the Permanent Private Halls

1. Permanent Private Halls shall satisfy the Supervisory Committee for Permanent Private Halls ("the Committee") that the Hall's regulations or by-laws include provisions for the employment of staff, equality of opportunity, the prevention of harassment, the protection of freedom of opinion and speech, the resolution of complaints, disciplinary issues and rights of appeal which are consistent with the corresponding University regulations and codes of practice.

2. Directors of studies, and tutors and lecturers who are appointed by a Hall to teach students of the University, whether on a full-time basis or on a regular part-time basis, must be approved for the purpose by the relevant faculty or department. For this purpose people shall be deemed to be employed on a regular part-time basis if they are employed in more than three terms in any five-year period.

3. Each Hall shall ensure that there is participation both by academic members of the Hall's staff and by matriculated students in the decision-making processes of the Hall, taking guidance on this point from the Committee, which may from time to time specify a standard reflecting practice generally in the University.

4. Each Hall that takes matriculated undergraduates shall designate a director of studies, appointed as specified in regulation 2 above for each of the subjects for which the Hall takes undergraduates, with the responsibility of ensuring that each student's course is properly arranged and conducted, and that teaching is provided at an appropriate level. The director of studies shall take responsibility for admissions in the relevant subject or subjects, and for conformity to the University's best practice in this area. He or she must ensure that feedback is given to students on their work at least once each term, and must be readily available for consultation in the Hall on academic and academic-related matters. He or she must also make sure that collections are taken by all students under his or her charge for whom they are appropriate given the nature of final assessment, and that they are marked and returned promptly.

5. Each Hall that takes matriculated undergraduates shall ensure that they receive in every academic year at least the number of tutorials, and where appropriate classes, prescribed from time to time by the relevant faculties or departments. Guidance given by the Senior Tutors' Committee as to the types of teaching which may be appropriate to different circumstances should be consulted. This teaching shall be given by appropriately qualified individuals, either members of the relevant faculty or otherwise, approved for this purpose by the relevant faculty board or departmental committee, whether these individuals are on the staff of the Hall or not.

6. Each Hall that takes matriculated graduate students shall designate an advisor from its academic staff for each such student. The advisor shall maintain contact with the student's supervisor, and shall be responsible for the student's pastoral welfare.

7. Each Hall that takes undergraduates shall have at least one tutor or lecturer in each subject offered at undergraduate level, or in a closely allied subject. Such tutors and lecturers must be retained on a basis which will ensure their regular and frequent presence in the Hall during Full Term, and their ready accessibility to students as required.

8. A lecturer may also be director of studies in the same subject provided that there is in the Hall concerned a senior tutor, or some other person (in addition to the head of house) with oversight of academic matters, and to whom students can turn in the event of problems or disagreements.

9. Unless a member of a Hall's religious order for whom a stipend is not payable, each director of studies shall be entitled to receive an appropriate stipend, in order to be identified within the Hall as a responsible person able to devote significant and sufficient time to the academic, intellectual and pastoral development of the students.

10. Each Hall that admits visiting students shall be initially responsible for their admission, instruction and assessment, and for their integration academically and otherwise within the Hall. All relevant faculties and departments must be notified before a visiting student is admitted to the Hall; and visiting students shall not be admitted if their admission is unacceptable for academic or resource reasons to a faculty or department concerned. In the event of any dispute in this matter, the issue shall be decided by the Committee.

11. Any Hall with an undergraduate membership of five or less may apply to the Committee for approval of arrangements that modify the requirements of regulations 4 and/or 7 above. Such arrangements will be approved only if the Committee is satisfied that they will effectively achieve the educational and pastoral objectives of that regulation.

12. Each Hall shall maintain a library containing core reading matter in each undergraduate subject taught; and shall ensure adequate provision for administration, teaching rooms and IT infrastructure.

13. Each Hall must be able to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Committee that it is in a position to provide sufficient administrative cover, in vacation as well as in term.'

(b) Establishment of the Permanent Private Hall Supervisory Committee as a subcommittee of the Education Committee

Explanatory Note

This change establishes the Supervisory Committee for the Permanent Private Halls as a subcommittee of the Education Committee with specific responsibility for the relationship between the University and the Permanent Private Halls.

Text of Regulations

In Part 3 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002, concerning committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4634, 16 October 2002, p. 226), insert new Part 38 as follows:

38.3. With the approval of the Education Committee on each occasion, the subcommittee may co-opt up to two additional members who shall hold office for two years and shall be eligible to serve for a total period of four years.

38.4. The Supervisory Committee shall have regulatory, monitoring and reporting functions.

of opportunity, harassment, and the protection of freedom of opinion and speech;

(9) the arrangements for appointing teaching staff in each of the PPHs;

(10) administrative support to ensure that adequate arrangements exist, with the possibility that this be achieved by collaboration among halls;

(11) the availability of proper statements of rules governing the conduct of junior members and access to the Conference appeal processes in each PPH;

(12) the quality of the student experience in each PPH;

(13) the provision made for visiting students in each PPH.

38.7. In the exercise of its reporting function it shall:

(1) receive and consider the financial statements of the PPHs, reporting to the Education Committee on any matter which it considers raises issues of concern;

(2) report to Education Committee where there is cause to examine an existing agreement, or for any other cause the committee considers appropriate;

(3) provide an annual report to Education Committee on academic, administrative and financial matters (including admissions), with recommendations for regulatory action if appropriate;

(4) advise Education Committee on any applications for changes in approved student numbers and on any proposal to offer a new qualification within the PPHs;

(5) advise Personnel Committee on applications for a joint appointment with a PPH;

(6) advise the Development Committee on the appropriateness of support for PPH fundraising priorities in the light of appropriate match with university academic priorities.'

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Murray Fellowship in History

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal (i) removes the restrictions on the eligibility of applicants to the Fellowships, in terms of their age and of the institution from which they have graduated (as detailed in the will of Reverend Robert Henry Murray, although not specifically referenced in the original trust regulation); (ii) clarifies that the award of Fellowships is the primary purpose of the trust; and (iii) redefines the membership of the selection committee in terms consistent with the appointment and normal procedures for appointments at such a level.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Murray Fellowship in History Fund, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

Council and Main Committees

Council of the University

Changes in Regulations

Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 27 January.

(a) Committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees

Explanatory Note

This change in regulations imposes a limit on the number of times a chairman or other member of a committee may be reappointed, re-elected or co-opted where such a limit is not already imposed in the regulations. The default limit will be two consecutive periods of office, with the possibility of extension by one further period, as determined by the General Purposes Committee of Council in an individual case.

Text of Regulations

In regulation 1.1 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002 concerning committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees (made by Council on 24 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1544, 5 July 2002), delete existing regulation 1.1 and substitute (deleted text scored through, new text underlined):

'1.1. (1) Appointed, elected, and co-opted members of committees of Council, other than student members, shall, in the absence of provision in these regulations, or in the General Regulations of Council for Committees, to the contrary, serve for three years ~~and shall be re-eligible~~.

(2) Student members shall, in the absence of provision in these or those regulations to the contrary, serve for one year ~~and shall be re-eligible~~.

(3) Where it is a condition of an appointment that the person appointed is a member of Council or another committee, the period of appointment shall coincide with the appointee's known membership of the latter, provided that the period does not exceed the maximum term allowed.

(4) In the absence of provision in these regulations or in the General Regulations of Council for Committees to the contrary, appointed, elected, co-opted and student members shall be re-eligible for one further and final period of office.

(5) Notwithstanding regulation (4) above, in the case of appointed, co-opted and student members, the General Purposes Committee of Council or, in cases falling within the Personnel Committee's delegated authority or cases concerning the membership of the General Purposes Committee, the Chairman of the Personnel Committee, may determine that one further period is permitted in an individual case.'

(b) Nominations Committee

Explanatory Note

There is currently no limit on the number of times elected members of the Nominations Committee may serve, even though appointed members are limited to six years in total. This change in regulations rectifies this anomalous position.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 15 of 2002 (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4634, 16 October 2002) concerning the Nominations Committee (made by Council on 15 November 2007, Gazette, Vol. 138, p. 316, as amended on 25 September 2008, 18 March 2010 and 29 April 2010, Vol. 139, p. 2; Vol. 140, p. 746; Vol. 140, p. 908) delete existing regulation 26.3(1) and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'26.3.(1) The term of office of the members of the committee appointed by Council shall be determined by Council in each case up to a maximum of three years and may extend beyond the term of each individual's membership of Council. No external member of Council shall serve on the committee when his/her own reappointment to Council is being considered. Members of the committee appointed by Council shall be eligible for reappointment but shall not serve for more than six years in total. Members of the committee elected by Congregation shall serve for three years and shall be eligible for re-election for one further and final period of office.'

(c) Committee to Review the Salaries of Senior University Officers

Explanatory Note

These changes amend the composition of the Committee to Review the Salaries of Senior University Officers (CRSSUO) to allow an external who is not also an external member of Council to serve on the committee and also to allow an external other than the Chair of the Audit and Scrutiny Committee to chair the committee. The opportunity is also taken to remove from the regulations the specific reference to the Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Development and External Affairs) to reflect the current position, that is that the postholder's salary is considered in the same way as the salaries of other Pro-Vice-Chancellors with special responsibility for designated functions (ie by recommendation from the ALC6/RSIV Panel of the Personnel Committee to the CRSSUO).

Text of Regulations

In Part 28 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002 concerning the Committee to Review the Salaries of Senior University Officers (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4634, 16 October 2002, p. 226, as amended on 9 October 2003 and 28 June 2007, Gazette Vol. 134, p. 90; Vol. 137, p. 1334) delete existing regulations 28.1–28.2 and substitute (deleted text scored through, new text underlined):

'28.1. The Committee to Review the Salaries of Senior University Officers shall consist of:

~~(1) the chairman of the Audit and Scrutiny Committee who shall chair the committee,~~ (1)–(3) three external members appointed by Council, one of whom Council shall appoint as chairman, and at least two of whom shall also be external members of Council;

(~~2~~4) one of the Proctors or the Assessor as may be agreed between them;

~~(3), (4) two external members of Council, appointed by Council;~~

(5), (6) two other persons appointed by Council, neither of whom is subject to arrangements with regard to their personal salary which are determined by any process involving an individual whose salary is covered by the remit of the committee.

28.2.(1) The committee shall be responsible for making recommendations to Council on the salaries on appointment of the Vice-Chancellor, ~~the Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Development and External Affairs),~~ the Registrar, and the Director of Finance; for reviewing the salaries of each of those office-holders with effect from the 1 October closest to two calendar years after the starting salaries were set for each office-holder; and for reviewing the salaries of each office-holder every two years thereafter.

(2) The committee shall also be responsible for determining, on the recommendation of the ALC6/RSIV Panel of the Personnel Committee, the salaries on appointment of the ~~other~~ Pro-Vice-Chancellors with special responsibility for designated functions and of the Heads of Divisions; for reviewing, on the recommendation of the ALC6/RSIV Panel of the Personnel Committee, the salaries of each of those office-holders with effect from the 1 October closest to two calendar years after the starting salaries were set for each office-holder; and for reviewing, on the recommendation of the ALC6/RSIV Panel of the Personnel Committee, the salaries of each office-holder every two years thereafter.

(3) The committee shall also carry out other such reviews as are requested by Council.'

Text of Regulations

Delete existing Council Regulations 12 of 2002, concerning the establishment and maintenance of Permanent Private Halls (Supplement (2) to Gazette No. 4628, 26 June 2002, as amended on 17 July 2003 and 14 October 2010, Vol. 133, p. 1536; Vol 141, p. 110), and substitute:

'Council Regulations 1 of 2011

Regulations governing the Permanent Private Halls

1. Permanent Private Halls shall satisfy the Supervisory Committee for Permanent Private Halls ("the Committee") that the Hall's regulations or by-laws include provisions for the employment of staff, equality of opportunity, the prevention of harassment, the protection of freedom of opinion and speech, the resolution of complaints, disciplinary issues and rights of appeal which are consistent with the corresponding University regulations and codes of practice.

2. Directors of studies, and tutors and lecturers who are appointed by a Hall to teach students of the University, whether on a full-time basis or on a regular part-time basis, must be approved for the purpose by the relevant faculty or department. For this purpose people shall be deemed to be employed on a regular part-time basis if they are employed in more than three terms in any five-year period.

3. Each Hall shall ensure that there is participation both by academic members of the Hall's staff and by matriculated students in the decision-making processes of the Hall, taking guidance on this point from the Committee, which may from time to time specify a standard reflecting practice generally in the University.

4. Each Hall that takes matriculated undergraduates shall designate a director of studies, appointed as specified in regulation 2 above for each of the subjects for which the Hall takes undergraduates, with the responsibility of ensuring that each student's course is properly arranged and conducted, and that teaching is provided at an appropriate level. The director of studies shall take responsibility for admissions in the relevant subject or subjects, and for conformity to the University's best practice in this area. He or she must ensure that feedback is given to students on their work at least once each term, and must be readily available for consultation in the Hall on academic and academic-related matters. He or she must also make sure that collections are taken by all students under his or her charge for whom they are appropriate given the nature of final assessment, and that they are marked and returned promptly.

5. Each Hall that takes matriculated undergraduates shall ensure that they receive in every academic year at least the number of tutorials, and where appropriate classes, prescribed from time to time by the relevant faculties or departments. Guidance given by the Senior Tutors' Committee as to the types of teaching which may be appropriate to different circumstances should be consulted. This teaching shall be given by appropriately qualified individuals, either members of the relevant faculty or otherwise, approved for this purpose by the relevant faculty board or departmental committee, whether these individuals are on the staff of the Hall or not.

6. Each Hall that takes matriculated graduate students shall designate an advisor from its academic staff for each such student. The advisor shall maintain contact with the student's supervisor, and shall be responsible for the student's pastoral welfare.

7. Each Hall that takes undergraduates shall have at least one tutor or lecturer in each subject offered at undergraduate level, or in a closely allied subject. Such tutors and lecturers must be retained on a basis which will ensure their regular and frequent presence in the Hall during Full Term, and their ready accessibility to students as required.

8. A lecturer may also be director of studies in the same subject provided that there is in the Hall concerned a senior tutor, or some other person (in addition to the head of house) with oversight of academic matters, and to whom students can turn in the event of problems or disagreements.

9. Unless a member of a Hall's religious order for whom a stipend is not payable, each director of studies shall be entitled to receive an appropriate stipend, in order to be identified within the Hall as a responsible person able to devote significant and sufficient time to the academic, intellectual and pastoral development of the students.

10. Each Hall that admits visiting students shall be initially responsible for their admission, instruction and assessment, and for their integration academically and otherwise within the Hall. All relevant faculties and departments must be notified before a visiting student is admitted to the Hall; and visiting students shall not be admitted if their admission is unacceptable for academic or resource reasons to a faculty or department concerned. In the event of any dispute in this matter, the issue shall be decided by the Committee.

11. Any Hall with an undergraduate membership of five or less may apply to the Committee for approval of arrangements that modify the requirements of regulations 4 and/or 7 above. Such arrangements will be approved only if the Committee is satisfied that they will effectively achieve the educational and pastoral objectives of that regulation.

12. Each Hall shall maintain a library containing core reading matter in each undergraduate subject taught; and shall ensure adequate provision for administration, teaching rooms and IT infrastructure.

13. Each Hall must be able to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Committee that it is in a position to provide sufficient administrative cover, in vacation as well as in term.'

Corrigendum

College contributions 2011/12

When revisions to Council Regulations 1 of 2009 concerning college contributions were published in the Gazette of 20 January 2011, Vol. 141, p. 333, increasing the tax threshold from £30m to £35m with effect from the contribution payable in March 2012, a consequential change to the figure in the highest tax band was overlooked. The revision, which takes effect from 1 January 2012, should have been shown as follows:

"In Council Regulations 1 of 2009 concerning college contributions (Gazette, Vol. 139, 23 April 2009, p. 904, as amended on 21 January 2010, Vol. 140, p. 444), delete regulation 3(4) and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text struck through):

'(4) The bands and rates for the contributions payable in ~~2010/11~~2011/12 based on the ~~2009/10~~2010/11 accounts shall be as follows:

At the same time as submitting its annual financial statements under section 8, each college shall also submit a statement in the form set out in the Schedule to these regulations.' "

Planning and Resource Allocation Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The Planning and Resource Allocation Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 27 January.

Establishment of Stanley Ho Lecturership in Chinese History

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Stanley Ho Lecturership in Chinese History in the Faculty of Oriental Studies.

Text of Regulations

In Sect. III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002 concerning academic and other posts (Statutes, 2000, p. 435, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), insert new § 129 as follows and renumber existing §§ 129–66 as §§ 130–67:

'§ 129. Stanley Ho Lecturership in Chinese History

1. The University receives with gratitude the sum of £1,250,000 from Dr Stanley Ho to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Stanley Ho Lecturership in Chinese History Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of the holder of the Stanley Ho Lecturership in Chinese History and associated overheads. The Lecturer shall undertake research, lecture and give instruction in Chinese History. If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Lecturer are wholly or partly covered from other sources or there are further funds available, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or capital of the Fund to support the advancement within the University of teaching, scholarship, and research in Chinese History.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Faculty Board of Oriental Studies.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Lecturership.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

An invitation from Bodley's Librarian to all Oxford DPhil authors

Response to the Bodleian Libraries' call for DPhil theses to be digitised has been extremely good (and if you have already proposed your thesis for digitisation, there is no need to contact us again). We are pleased to let you know that there is still an opportunity to have your thesis digitised and added to the Bodleian's digital collections at no charge; thanks to the generosity and vision of Dr Leonard Polonsky, the Bodleian Libraries are able to offer to digitise a number of Oxford DPhil theses. Theses in digital format are rapidly becoming ubiquitous, as scholars want to make their research widely available and easily find the work of others. This opportunity enables us to add to the growing Oxford digital thesis collection, and should result in new citations to your work.

Digital copies will be made available online in ORA (Oxford University Research Archive, http://ora.ox.ac.uk), the university's principal online collection of research outputs produced by Oxford scholars. It offers high visibility for Oxford research. Wherever possible, the full text of research is made freely available for easy online access. You can find out more about Oxford digital theses at www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/ora/oxford_etheses. If you would like us to digitize your thesis and make it available in ORA, please reply to thesis-digitisation@bodleian.ox.ac.uk as soon as possible, with the information below:

- your name (as it appears on your thesis)
- the title of your thesis
- the year of your thesis
- if possible, the Bodleian shelfmark of your thesis on SOLO (eg MS.D.Phil. d.2804)(you may be able to find this at http://solo.bodleian.ox.ac.uk)
- an email (or postal) address where we can contact you (you will be informed if your thesis is digitised and the URL will be sent to this address).

Also, please respond to the following:

- Do you grant the Bodleian Libraries permission to digitise the print copy of your thesis and make the digital copy available online in ORA? YES/NO
- I agree to be bound by the terms of the ORA Grant of Non-exclusive Licence (www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/ora/deposit-in-ora/deposit-licence) and I warrant that, to the best of my knowledge, making my thesis available on the internet will not infringe copyright or any other rights of any other person or party, nor contain defamatory material. I AGREE/I DISAGREE

If you already have a digital copy of your thesis which you would like to deposit in ORA, please contact ORA@bodleian.ox.ac.uk.

I very much hope you will take advantage of this exciting opportunity.

Task Force on Academic Employment

Council of the University

In 2005, Council set up a task force to undertake a wide-ranging review of a range of key academic staffing issues. The task force has now made its final report to Council and the full text of that report is set out below. Council has endorsed the recommendations in this report, which will now be taken forward through the permanent committee structures of the collegiate University. Individual academics are invited to direct any comments they may have at this stage on those recommendations to jeremy.whiteley@admin.ox.ac.uk by 12 March. The task force has now been discharged.

Full details of the work of the task force since 2005 may be found at www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/staffinfo/academic/taskforceonacademicemployment.

Duties of academics, and other issues: final communication from the Task Force on Academic Employment

(a) Summary

This paper presents final proposals from the Task Force on Academic Employment about the duties of academics and about the range of other issues that the task force has reviewed (beyond those relating to merit pay and titles of distinction, on which final decisions were taken by Council and Congregation in 2010).

These final proposals arise from the terms of reference of the task force (annexed at A), from discussions in the task force itself and from the five extensive consultative exercises which it undertook in 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008 and 2009.

A list of the membership of the task force is included at the end of this report.

(b) Action required of Council

Council is asked to consider the following recommendations, which are explained in more detail in the next section of this paper:

(i) that the Personnel Committee, in liaison with the Education Committee, the divisional boards and the colleges, oversee the introduction of new arrangements for the duties of lecturers holding joint appointments, of a new framework for the variation of the duties of lecturers holding joint appointments, and of new contractual terms for lecturers;

(ii) that at the beginning of each budget cycle relevant university bodies all be routinely reminded to consider the scope for additional focused investment in improving academic terms and conditions (alongside other top priorities);

(iii) that no further consideration be given to any proposal (mooted in earlier discussions) to relax the entitlement statute at the margin until time has been taken to assess the impact of the improvements suggested by the Conference of Colleges' Working Party on College Associations;

(iv) that eligibility to apply to the University's professorial housing scheme be extended, in acute recruitment and retention cases, to lecturers/readers without tutorial fellowships and those in the University's most senior research support grade (RSIV);

(v) that outline proposals from the task force in relation to research staff, which are set out at Annexe E, be referred to the Personnel Committee for substantive consideration;

(vi) that colleges, departments/faculties, and divisions work positively to keep administrative burdens on academics under review, reducing them wherever possible;

(vii) that the University Administration and Services consider appropriate actions to minimise, as appropriate, the administrative requirements made of academics;

(viii) that the question of developmental appraisal for academics be referred to the Personnel Committee for consideration in the medium term; and

(ix) that, subject to Council's views on the recommendations above, the task force be disbanded.

(c) Key issues

(i) Academic duties

1. When the task force presented to Council and then to Congregation in April 2010 its proposals on career progression for academics, in the shape of a combined system for titles and merit pay, it also reported on its progress on questions relating to academic duties.

2. Congregation was informed (www.ox.ac.uk/gazette/2009-10/supps/1_4915.pdf) that the task force was consulting divisional and college representatives on a draft revised framework for academic duties; and the draft framework, which had been developed by the task force in the light of successive broad consultation exercises across the collegiate University and in particular in response to specific consultation on this in 2009, was included as an annexe to the documentation received by Congregation. While that material covered issues like the embedding of graduate supervision in contractual duties, and the wording of such duties, a particular focus was the flexibility and variability, over time, of the duties of individual academics holding joint appointments – this in response to the issue which emerged from the task force's general consultation in 2006 as the one which most preoccupied individual academics as well as university and college appointing bodies.

3. Since then, discussions of the task force's emerging framework for academic duties have, as agreed, been pursued through a 'plenary group' of representatives of the task force, the colleges and the divisions. The group comprised Dr Goss, Dr Mapstone, Dr Davies, Professor England, Dr Heal and Professor Softley from the task force; the President of Magdalen, Dr Dinshaw, Dr Durning and Dr Pobjoy from the colleges; and Professor Goodman/Dr Shaikh, Professor Paterson, Professor Shuttleworth/ Dr Achinstein and Professor Woodhouse from the divisions.

4. That group produced a revised version of the framework, with ancillary material, and this was then discussed in divisionally based meetings, each with college representation, and also separately and subsequently by a meeting of college representatives. The written responses to the revised draft framework which emerged from those meetings were then considered by the plenary group.

5. In the light of those discussions revised draft documentation has now been carefully considered by the task force, which now commends to Council the material annexed at B, C and D: the task force recommends that the Personnel Committee, in liaison with the Education Committee, the divisional boards and the colleges, oversee the introduction of new arrangements for academic duties on the basis of these documents.

6. The first document (Annexe B) is a draft overall framework for the duties of lecturers holding joint academic appointments at Oxford.

7. The second document (Annexe C) sets out draft arrangements for the variation of the duties of lecturers holding joint academic appointments at Oxford.

8. In discussion the task force has acknowledged that some scope for flexibility of duties already exists in practice, even across the University/college divide, but it continues to believe that a formal set of arrangements for enabling this should be agreed and should be referred to in contractual documentation; this would be an important element to underpin recruitment to and retention in joint appointments and in the career development of academics.

9. In redrafting Annexe C, the task force has tried to safeguard the interests of all parties, and also to manage the expectations that the document might generate among individual academics. In response to views expressed not only by the divisions but also by the college representatives, it has withdrawn the idea that requests for variation should be invited and considered in annual gathered fields (though it would still be possible for departments/faculties, divisions or colleges to delay a decision on a particular case until details of other relevant cases were available). The task force has noted that heads of department/chairmen of faculty boards and senior tutors will in the natural course of events develop informal knowledge about proposals that lecturers are likely to wish to make.

10. The task force continues to believe that it might be appropriate to monitor the general operation of these arrangements via annual reports from the divisions. The task force suggests that Council might wish to ask the Personnel Committee, the Education Committee and the Conference of Colleges to consider what would be appropriate in terms of monitoring.

11. The task force believes that agreement on and availability of formal arrangements for variation of duties is more important than the detail of their operation; but one important detail will be the agreed rate at which colleges may be compensated for the true costs that they incur in replacing the teaching lost as a result of an agreed reduction of a fellow's college duties. The Conference of Colleges is currently surveying colleges about the actual costs to them which have resulted from individual temporary reductions in college stint agreed at the request of the University since 2008. It is likely that this survey will lead the colleges to wish to renegotiate the buy-out rates agreed between the colleges and the University in 2000. Although it may be expected on the college side that particularly the long-term adjustments to college stints that the new arrangements are designed to cover may justify a higher buy-out rate, the plenary group has noted that divisions may not immediately share this view, and will be concerned if any higher rate unreasonably constrains the number of variations that can be afforded (especially perhaps in the Humanities).

12. The third document (Annexe D) consists of revised draft headline contractual terms for future appointments of lecturers.

13. This document continues to reflect the wish of the task force to move, for future appointments, to a single type of general University duty for lecturers (albeit with variation between appointments as a function of the level of the college stint), permitting variation of the lecturers' duties over time (after the tenure point).

14. It would be open to the divisions to gloss these University duties as they wished. In particular, the task force sees considerable advantage in divisions overseeing the development, by subject and in liaison with college representatives, of ancillary documents describing how teaching in the subject is delivered, bearing in mind the requirements of the curriculum, modes of delivery, and the availability of individuals to contribute; how duties are fairly and transparently allocated and equalised, in order to promote the best use of teaching capacity without overburdening individuals; and what standard expected loads for lecturers are in relation to undergraduate teaching, graduate teaching, examining, and administration (either separately or agglomerated on a unitised basis). In setting out the university load, divisions would need to take due account of the particular level of college stint attaching to the post, and could give a broad indication of the normal proportion of time that lecturers could expect to spend on research, teaching and administration respectively.

15. The task force has considered whether to propose (a) that these new terms be imposed on existing lecturers; (b) that they be offered to them; or simply (c) that the new arrangements for variation be available to existing staff, without change in contract. The task force is firmly in favour of the last of these options.

16. The discussions noted the existence of a general template for the duties of tutorial fellows, developed by the Conference of Colleges in 2002; the task force was pleased to note that the revision of this material is likely to be discussed in the Conference of Colleges.

(ii) Other key issues considered by the task force

17. The task force, and many of the bodies and individuals making submissions to it, attach considerable importance to the existence of a mechanism for regular, highest-level consideration, in the annual discussions of budget/resource allocation, of the scope for additional, focused investment in improving academic terms and conditions (alongside other top priorities). The task force understands that in January 2010 Council agreed that any proposals from the Personnel Committee for increased investment in academic salaries, in the shape of merit pay for lecturers, readers or professors, should in future be considered, alongside other top priorities, by the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, Council and a sub-set of the Finance Committee. To ensure that this is embedded in the work of the range of relevant university bodies the task force recommends that at the beginning of each budget cycle Council, the Finance Committee, the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, the Personnel Committee and other appropriate bodies are all routinely reminded of this general issue of additional investment in academic terms and conditions. The task force has noted that the Personnel Committee (having considered in Michaelmas term 2010 and in Trinity term 2011 whether to recommend that funding be made available for merit pay for lecturers, and declining to do so) has determined that it will revisit this issue each Trinity term.

18. On joint appointments, the task force would wish to emphasise its strong support for the principle that senior academic appointments at Oxford should be made on a joint basis between the University and the colleges. The main focus of the task force's work has been on arrangements for the duties of academics and in particular how these might vary over time at the level of the individual, as discussed above. More generally, the task force has during the course of its existence repeatedly discussed whether the basic pattern of academic employment at Oxford should continue to be a joint one between the University and the colleges. The task force has also noted the report of the Working Party on College Associations, chaired by the President of Magdalen. The task force believes that its own consultations, and those of that working party, showed that there was no appetite for a wholesale discontinuation of the joint appointments system at Oxford, but much support for improving the current arrangements around the entitlement statute. The task force supports the practical suggestions made by the Working Party on College Associations, and now recommends that it would be appropriate to give those proposed reforms a chance to work before any further consideration is given, presumably in the first instance by the Personnel Committee and the Conference of Colleges, to any proposal to relax the entitlement statute at the margin (eg by not guaranteeing that a college fellowship would be available for a university lecturer in a small number of cases, as had been mooted in earlier discussions).

19. On allowances for college fellows, the task force has in the past confirmed that it would favour the upward harmonisation of college housing allowances and of college housing support/joint equity schemes for tutorial fellows, and very much welcomes the provisions that have been put in place, with significant financial support from the University and from many individual colleges, to foster such harmonisation under the aegis of the College Contributions Scheme and the College Contributions Committee. It notes, too, that the College Contributions Committee was broadly sympathetic to proposals made by the former Principal of Linacre, on behalf of certain graduate colleges, for the introduction of modest allowances for the fellows of those graduate colleges in recognition of the work they undertake with graduate students in their colleges; and understands that the introduction of some such allowances has now been approved in the case of at least one college. The task force encourages the College Contributions Committee to continue in this way to build on the work of the University over recent years to improve the salary arrangements for University lecturers without tutorial fellowships. For its part, the task force recommends that eligibility to apply to the University's professorial housing scheme should be extended, in acute recruitment and retention cases, to lecturers/readers without tutorial fellowships and to those in the University's most senior research support grade (RSIV). This would be in line with the approach taken to the availability of medium-term transit accommodation, following the report of the Property Working Party.

20. On the position of research staff, the task force has noted that the work of the Personnel Committee's Research Staff Working Group has recently been gaining momentum, not least in terms of the development and implementation of a new code of practice on the employment and career development of this important group of staff. For its part, the task force has taken the view that its own concentration should be on the position of research staff on an academic trajectory, and this has been reflected in its proposals in relation to titles and the duties of academics. It accepts, however, that it is appropriate for the range of issues affecting research staff to be considered in the round, and therefore recommends that its own outline proposals in this area, which are set out at Annexe E, should now be referred to the Personnel Committee for substantive consideration.

21. Responses to the task force's 2007 'direction of travel' consultation showed a widespread wish for the bureaucratic burdens on individual academics to be reduced. This was the third most popular area identified as a priority for reform, with the proposal that unnecessary bureaucratic burdens be eliminated receiving the highest percentage of positive responses among all of the task force's propositions. The task force itself does not believe that many, or indeed any, of the administrative requirements currently made of academics are in themselves unnecessary; it is in complete agreement with the view that the prime function of the administration is to support teaching and research, and that collegiate and University administration should be funded, and trusted, to fulfill that function, consistent with the demands made on us by external authorities.

22. In many areas, the potential remedy to the perceived problems around bureaucracy is, in the task force's view, in the hands of academics themselves, and the task force recommends that colleges, departments/faculties and divisions work positively to keep administrative demands on academics under review, reducing them wherever possible by transferring them to other staff, with academics locally deciding what is a burden from which they can be relieved, what is a duty of self-governance which they must retain, and what administrative support would best help the situation. Recognising, however, that not all administration is under such local academic control, the task force recommends that the Registrar and relevant Pro-Vice-Chancellors be asked to consider any appropriate actions to ensure that the University Administration and Services works to minimise, as appropriate, the administrative requirements made of academics.

23. For its part, the task force believes that the measures that it might be appropriate to consider might include the enhancement of information systems, so that requests for information from or requiring the involvement of academics are made only where necessary, and only once; better systems for feedback from academics on the ground as to the impact of the administrative practices of the various central functions; and the possible creation of a small troubleshooting group with central, divisional and collegiate representation, with a specific remit to ensure that unnecessary administrative burdens on academics are not increased, and, where possible, are reduced.

24. The role of developmental appraisal for academics features in the task force's terms of reference. The task force recommends that this question should be referred to the Personnel Committee, for it to consider the practicalities of trying to build on that committee's new arrangements for personal development review for support staff and for academic-related staff by scoping their possible extension to academics (strictly against the background of Congregation's rejection of any system of mandatory performance review linked to sanction or reward). The Personnel Committee might wish to consider these issues in the medium term, once revised arrangements in relation to academic duties have bedded in, in liaison with the Senior Tutors' Committee as far as joint appointments are concerned, and particularly in the light of the experience of introducing personal development review for academic-related research staff.

25. Successive chairmen of the task force, as Pro-Vice-Chancellors (Personnel and Equality), have worked actively with colleagues in Personnel Services and the Equality and Diversity Unit, and in consultation with the academic divisions, on a range of equality and diversity matters in relation to academic staffing issues. Ongoing work will include reviews, from a gender profile perspective, of recruitment issues at various levels and of training and personal development. This work can continue independently of the task force, though it very much responds to comments and insights that have come out of the task force's consultations.

26. The task force believes that all major elements of its terms of reference are adequately covered in the points above, or by the continuing work of other University and/or intercollegiate bodies. Subject to Council's views on the recommendations above, the task force recommends that it be disbanded.

Task Force on Academic Employment: terms of reference, as approved by Council on 5 December 2005

1. To undertake a comprehensive review of arrangements for academic employment in the collegiate University, specifically:

a) the principles relating to all academic appointments made by the University alone or jointly with colleges, including the joint appointment system, and the effect of current and possible alternative arrangements on individual workload (in respect of teaching, research and other duties) and on the achievement of academic objectives;

b) career structure and career development, including the implications for titles, remuneration, duties and other general terms of employment, and the role of developmental appraisal;

c) academic salary structures, taking into account suitable comparator organisations, including the number and structure of pay grades, promotion, arrangements for recruitment and retention payments, for merit pay and market pay and for allowances and other additional payments and benefits;

d) the implications of inequalities in remuneration between the colleges;

e) the promotion of the principles of equality and diversity, including gender, ethnicity, disability and age;

f) arrangements for tenure, ie appointment to the retiring age after a probationary review.

2. To make proposals for future structures for academic employment, bearing in mind:

a) the University's values and objectives and its commitment to the tutorial system, as expressed in the Corporate Plan;

b) the key importance of arrangements to recruit, retain and reward academic staff of the highest international calibre;

c) resource issues such as the financial position of the collegiate University, the proportion of its expenditure which should be devoted to academic salaries, and the desirable balance between general and discretionary levels of academic salaries;

d) the implications of the National Framework Agreement on salary 'modernisation' in higher education.

Task Force on Academic Employment: draft framework for the duties of lecturers holding joint academic appointments at Oxford

This is designed to be an acceptable broad enabling framework for local implementation. It is intended primarily to meet the needs of academics as optimally as possible, while also maintaining proper teaching provision, safeguarding institutional (including college) interests and being capable of providing any relevant external bodies with confidence as to the arrangements for academic duties at Oxford. It consists of the following points, and should be read in conjunction with the more detailed arrangements for the variation of individual academic duties [see Annexe C below]:

1. a commitment to maintaining and improving the principles and processes of the joint appointments system at Oxford;

2. reassertion of the current Education Committee principle about the preponderance of teaching being delivered by senior academics (as defined), noting that not all teaching is done in tutorials; that other academics have a role to play; and that it will be in the interests of all parties to try to meet reasonable requests for flexibility at the level of the individual academic, in order to recruit, retain, motivate and develop high-calibre academics who will be committed to the collegiate University;

3. contractual duties for lecturers remaining generally as at present, save for the clearer integration of graduate supervision and for the replacement of any requirement to give no fewer than a set number of lectures by a general duty to engage in research, undergraduate and graduate teaching, examining and administration;

4. therefore a single form of lecturership on the University side, in the sense of a standard general University duty, but with levels of college and University teaching which may vary (i) between posts; and (ii) within the individual post, over time[1];

5. so the continued existence of posts with different levels of college teaching would reflect the current distinctions in that respect between University and CUF lecturerships; and the level of college teaching agreed when a vacancy is advertised would continue to determine whether the college or the University was the 'major' employer in terms of the joint selection process[1];

6. arrangements for the possible variability of duties to be available to all those holding joint appointments;

7. variation within the individual post may be proposed at any time after the successful completion of the initial period of office;

8. but variation is strictly subject to tripartite agreement between the individual, the University and the college: the guarantee of quality substitute provision is recognised as being crucial. The onus would be on those suggesting a change or supporting a suggested change that would increase the duties owed to one employer to explain why this change could not be accommodated by that employer without requiring any reduction of duties owed to the other employer; to propose a detailed solution; and to demonstrate how the full range of the individual's current duties would be discharged effectively in the future;

9. the normal lead-time between the suggestion of a change and its eventual implementation, if agreed, would be one year;

10. the arrangements for the balance of an individual's duties following any subsequent variation would normally be expected to last for at least three years;

11. variation of the duties of an individual postholder will normally have no implications for the nature of the underlying joint appointment, for example when it becomes vacant for refilling;

12. divisions to develop, with colleges, effective and sensitive ways of implementing the arrangements for the variation of individual duties;

13. appropriate use should be made of the ability of trained academics below the lecturer level to contribute to academic work in the subject in the collegiate University, including quality-assured tutorial teaching;

14. divisions/departments may, if they wish and subject in appropriate cases to the rules of the external body funding the appointment, introduce for new research appointments and for new academic appointments below the University lecturer level a requirement to undertake, if asked, a certain amount of teaching within the collegiate University (ie for the University and/or for individual colleges) for no additional remuneration; if divisions/departments choose not to introduce such a requirement, such teaching would need to be separately remunerated;

15. the University and the colleges to develop effective and sensitive ways of monitoring the operation of the arrangements for variability;

16. different arrangements will cover situations in which academics successfully apply for prestigious external research awards which may involve funding to 'buy out' teaching duties (although many of the principles reflected in the above points will apply to those situations too);

17. there is no expectation that successful application for research grants will lead to any formal variation in duties.

[1] Thought would need to be given to nomenclature for future lecturership appointments: in the view of the task force this should be as simple as possible, for example university lecturership (CUF); university lecturership (TF); university lecturership (NTF)

Annexe C

Task Force on Academic Employment: draft arrangements for the variation of the duties of lecturers holding joint academic appointments at Oxford

Preamble

Teaching is as important a part of the work of the collegiate University as research; the personal and career development of individual academics at Oxford is not to be equated with a steady and irreversible reduction in teaching duties or in the level of overall commitment to the joint appointment.

It is recognised, however, that academic and personal needs and abilities change over the course of a career and that for various reasons it may be desirable for the pattern of duties that applies during the initial period of office to be varied for a long-term period at some later stage.

The purpose of these arrangements is to support the University, the colleges and lecturers in reaching agreement on the variation of duties, whenever possible. The arrangements set out how such variation may occur. They are designed to preserve fair opportunities for all academics and to produce variations which are acceptable to all sides, are sustainable and affordable and do not produce unfair workloads for others.

This document should be read in the context of the collegiate University's general framework for the duties of academics [see Annexe B above]. It is designed to give a clear view of (a) the process for discussing the potential variation of your duties and (b) the factors that will need to be taken into account in such cases, and to encourage early discussion between you, the college and the University so that the reasonable expectations of each party can be understood and fostered.

This document is not designed to cover situations in which academics successfully apply for prestigious external research awards which may involve funding to 'buy out' teaching duties (although the principles underlying point 6 below in particular will apply to those situations too).

It should be noted that there is no expectation that successful application for research grants will lead to any formal variation in duties.

Key points

1. The initial arrangements for your duties will be expected to continue until at least the successful completion of the initial period of your university appointment and may remain in place for the full duration of that appointment. However, after successful completion of the initial period of appointment, you may propose a variation in your duties and, with your consent, the college and the University may also propose such changes.

2. The University will in the first instance seek to accommodate a proposed increase in one of your university duties by adjusting your other university duties.

3. The college will in the first instance seek to accommodate a proposed increase in one of your college duties by adjusting your other college duties.

4. Should any change be proposed at your initiative or with your agreement that would require an increase in one of your university duties through a reduction in one of your college ones, or vice versa, this will be discussed between the department/faculty/division and the college, and will be subject to agreement between them and with you.

5. Such changes will include (but will not be limited to) proposals to reduce college teaching in order to spend more time on research or vice versa; cases in which colleges wish their fellow to take on demanding college offices; and cases in which it is proposed to increase the teaching done either for the college or for the University while reducing the teaching done for the other employer.

6. If such a variation in duties is proposed by you and the University, the expectation will be that the University will explain to the college why the change is desirable and why it cannot be accommodated by an adjustment in your other university duties; and will suggest to the college in detail ways in which the proposed shortfall in college duties might be met, demonstrating how the full range of your current duties would be discharged effectively in the future. This might be through the supply of a suitably qualified replacement teacher, whom the department/faculty would if necessary remunerate; or through direct payment to the college at the general buy-out rate approved by the University and the colleges.

7. If such a variation in duties is proposed by you and the college, the expectation will be that the college will explain to the University why the change is desirable and why it cannot be accommodated by an adjustment in your other college duties; and, noting the need to ensure that the full range of your current duties can be discharged effectively in the future, will offer appropriate funding to cover the agreed costs of such substitute provision as the department/faculty might require.

8. The normal lead-time between the proposal of a change and its eventual implementation, if agreed, will be one year.

9. New arrangements for the balance of your duties will normally be expected to last for at least three years.

10. It is recognised that in some cases it will be necessary to consider requests for variation at short notice, eg in response to sudden opportunities or to acute retention issues.

Annexe D

Task Force on Academic Employment: draft contractual formulations

GENERAL UNIVERSITY CONTRACTUAL DUTY FOR LECTURERS, FOR FUTURE APPOINTMENTS

You will be expected to perform the following duties to the satisfaction of the divisional board:

a) to engage in and publish original research in the general area of [ ]; and

b) to engage in undergraduate and graduate teaching, including graduate supervision, in the general area of [ ] under the direction of the head of department/the chairman of the faculty board; and

c) to undertake an equitable share of other activities in the collegiate University as required, including administration and examining, under the direction of the head of department/chairman of the faculty board.

If you are a Principal Investigator on a research grant, your responsibilities will include managing any researchers who report to you and supporting them in their career development.

The full duties of the [fellowship at X College] which you hold in association with this university appointment will be set out separately to you by the college; it is noted that your [college teaching stint/equivalent for ULNTFs] will be [ ], and this will be taken into account in the allocation of your university duties.

The balance of your duties may be reconsidered as set out in [Annexe C above], in discussion with your division and department/faculty, and your college, as necessary. The agreement of all parties (you, your division, your department/faculty and your college) is required for any changes.

Annexe E

Outline proposals on research staff

a) Suitably qualified research staff who are on (or who wish to be on) an academic trajectory should in general be encouraged/required to take a fuller part in the academic work (research, teaching, and administration) of the collegiate University (University and colleges), rather than concentrating solely on the particular research project on which they are engaged;

b) this should be fostered by a contractual duty that goes beyond their narrow research focus and envisages/requires such a wider contribution;

c) that wider contribution should not attract any additional remuneration;

d) the wider contribution to colleges should be recognised by forms of college attachment;

e) those who successfully pursue the Oxford academic trajectory, and are of the requisite calibre and proven contribution, could be considered for translation into substantive lecturerships (if the division did not think that an open advertisement of a new post was preferable);

f) that process would include an assessment of whether the research contribution was equivalent to the current requirement for a lecturer to be reappointed to the retiring age (or perhaps the title of professor); of their willingness and ability to take on the full range of a lecturer's teaching and administrative load; and of the likelihood that, if they were not already a fellow, the extent and level of their contribution to college teaching and administration meaning that appointment to a fellowship could be achieved;

g) in such cases the normal expectation would be that an open-ended terminable contract would already be in place (rather than a fixed-term one);

h) such translated lecturers would then become eligible to apply for the merit pay arrangements which have been approved by Congregation;

i) similar provision for translation into single-tenure professorships would be possible but is perhaps less likely;

j) others in the research support grades, and eg departmental lecturers, would continue to be eligible for discretionary super-scale payments and regradings; this would apply equally to those on an academic trajectory who do not succeed in translation into a lecturership, as well as to those researchers not on an academic trajectory.

Council and Main Committees

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has approved the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 17 February.

(a) Establishment of Edita Butterworth Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Edita Butterworth Fund in support of teaching and research relating to Alexander the Great.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002 concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p. 606, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), insert new § 50 as follows, and renumber existing §§ 50–173 as §§ 51–174:

'§ 50. Edita Butterworth Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude the significant bequest of Edita Lily Wesseley Butterworth to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Edita Butterworth Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets (if any) in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards higher research and University teaching within the University of Oxford connected with the scholarly interpretation of the historical personage of Alexander the Great and towards possible publication of any works resulting from the same.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Board of the Faculty of Classics.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund and the management and administration of the Fund, including, without limitation, the costs of realising the full value of the bequest.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(b) Establishment of Recanati-Kaplan Centre, Tubney House Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Recanati-Kaplan Centre, Tubney House Fund, which shall be used towards the running costs of Tubney House (headquarters of the Wildlife Conservation Research Unit).

Text of Regulations

'§ 299. Recanati-Kaplan Centre, Tubney House Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude a benefaction from Thomas S Kaplan on behalf of his family via Americans for Oxford, Inc. to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Recanati-Kaplan Centre, Tubney House Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund (if any) that are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the running costs of Tubney House (headquarters of the Wildlife Conservation Research Unit) to be known as the Recanati-Kaplan Conservation Centre, Tubney House. Such costs shall include the services and maintenance bills, operational costs, cleaning, upkeep, repairs and staff costs associated with general operations and maintenance, and information technology support.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Board of the Wildlife Conservation Research Unit.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Planning and Resource Allocation Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The Planning and Resource Allocation Committee of Council has approved the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 17 February.

Establishment of Sinclair and Rachel Hood Trust Fund for a Research and Administrative Assistant to the Lecturer in Aegean Prehistory

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Sinclair and Rachel Hood Trust Fund for a Research and Administrative Assistant to the Lecturer in Aegean Prehistory, to cover the salary and expenses of the postholder and associated overheads.

Text of Regulations

In Sect. III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002, concerning academic and other posts (Statutes, 2000, p. 432, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461) insert new § 125 as follows and renumber existing § 125–69 as § 126–70:

'§ 125. Sinclair and Rachel Hood Trust Fund for a Research and Administrative Assistant to the Lecturer in Aegean Prehistory

1. The University receives with gratitude the sum of £100,000 from The Malcolm Hewitt Wiener Foundation to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Sinclair and Rachel Hood Trust Fund for a Research and Administrative Assistant to the Lecturer in Aegean Prehistory ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund (if any) which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of a Research and Administrative Assistant for the Sinclair and Rachel Hood Lecturer in Aegean Prehistory and associated overheads. The Assistant shall undertake research, administrative and other tasks at the direction of the Sinclair and Rachel Hood Lecturer in Aegean Prehistory. If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Assistant are wholly or partly covered from other sources, there are further funds available or the post of Assistant becomes redundant, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or capital of the Fund to support the Lecturer's research.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Social Sciences Divisional Board.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund and the management and administration of the Fund and the post of Assistant.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Consultative Notice

Committee on Statutes before the Privy Council

ST JOHN'S: REVISED STATUTES

The Committee on Statutes before the Privy Council, acting under authority delegated to it by Council, is minded to give consent on behalf of the University to the revised statutes of St John's College, approved by the Governing Body on 11 January, in so far as such consent is required by section 7 (2) of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923. The consent of the committee to the amendments to the statutes will be effective eleven days after publication of this notice unless written notice of a resolution, signed by at least twenty members of Congregation and calling upon Council to withhold that consent, has been given to the Registrar by noon on 20 February.

The effect of the amendments is to (i) repeal existing age limits upon eligibility for and tenure of the presidency of the college and the introduction of provision for the tenure of the presidency for a term not exceeding ten years, with provision for review within the first five years; and (ii) repeal existing age limits upon tenure of fellowships and bursarships of the college.

General Notices

Annual Report from the Clubs Committee, 2010–11

The Clubs Committee is pleased to present its annual report for 2010–11, in accordance with section 4.6 of its terms of reference as set out in Council Regulations 2 of 2004. This report was considered by Council's General Purposes Committee on 30 January.

1. During the academic year 2010–11, under the chairmanship of the successive Assessors (Dr Eric Eve and The Revd Dr Teresa Morgan), the Clubs Committee continued to provide a variety of support for student clubs and societies registered with the Proctors under Rules Committee Regulations. This support was directed primarily towards non-sports clubs and publications, as sports clubs can look to the Sports Department for assistance.

2. Funding for the Committee's activities was provided in the usual way, mainly from two sources: an allocation from PRAS (£9.1k, slightly reduced from the previous year's level) and a share (£10.71k) of the proceeds of a per-capita levy paid by colleges to support both sports and non-sports clubs at University level.

3. The Committee continued to operate a Clubs Office (co-located within the Proctors' Office in Wellington Square) staffed by a part-time Clubs Officer. In addition to being available to provide secretarial services on request to student organisations, the Clubs Officer advised on and assisted with registration procedures (including checking financial information submitted). During the year, 28 new clubs registered with the Proctors and the total number of non-sports clubs and publications re-registering through the Clubs Office each term was about 175.

4. The Committee also continued its co-operation with the Sports Department over the Driver Assessment and Vehicle Hire Scheme (administered from the Sports Department but open to use by any club registered with the Proctors). This important scheme enables students to drive good-quality hired vehicles safely, insured by the University, when taking part in bona fide club activities such as travelling to sports fixtures or events outside Oxford. Some 670 vehicle bookings were made under the Scheme, and some 175 driver assessments were carried out. There are more than 400 approved student drivers on the Scheme's database. Fifteen reportable insurance incidents occurred during the year (down on the total of 23 the previous year). These resulted in mainly minor damage to vehicles; most importantly, no personal injuries were sustained. Some administrative changes were made to streamline the operation of the Scheme (eg use of online booking for vehicles). The Committee is keeping under review the increased costs which are being incurred as a result of changes to the University's insurance arrangements.

5. Financial support was provided directly to clubs in the form of grants and interest-free loans. During the year the Committee received some 14 applications, representing about 5% of non-sports clubs and publications on the Proctors' Register. Of these, nine applications were supported. Start-up awards (up to £200) were made to organisations as diverse as the Oxford International Debating Society, the Oxford Czech and Slovak Society, the Oxford Lithuanian Society, the Oxford Morris Men and the Jean-Jacques Rousseau Society. Other recipients were the OU Wind Orchestra (£400) and the OU Brass Band (£400) which both needed support to enable them to participate in events taking place outside Oxford; the Oxford Poetry Society (£200); and the St Antony's International Review (which received a loan of £500 for publication). The reports back to the Committee show that its funding, although often comparatively modest, makes a considerable difference to the viability of new clubs and to the success of the activities of those which have been in existence longer. The Committee was nevertheless somewhat disappointed about the number and quality of applications received, despite the steps previously taken (for example through publishing new information on its website) to publicise the availability of funds and provide guidance on preparing good-quality applications.

6. As always, the Committee benefited from the keen interest and lively contributions of its student members. The Committee believes that student clubs contribute hugely to the University's sporting, social, cultural and charitable activities and is pleased to be able to help to promote and support them.

Oxford Learning Institute

GRADUATE ADMISSIONS

New online guidance for academic assessors and admissions staff is now available. The Graduate Admissions Committee is launching this new resource, primarily for academic assessors and admissions staff in departments and faculties. It may also interest those in colleges.

The new online resource is intended for those selecting graduate students for admission. It covers: good practice in admissions; selection processes; criteria and record keeping; where interviews fit in the selection process as a whole; and making and justifying decisions.

The Oxford Learning Institute is hosting the guidance materials on its website on behalf of the Graduate Admissions Committee which has been responsible for their development. Where there are overlaps with the Undergraduate Admissions Interviewing online course, these are signalled to enable those already familiar with that course to avoid unnecessary repetition but to briefly revisit any materials if they would like to remind themselves of the main points.

Access to these materials is by means of a self-registration process on the Learning Institute website (provided you have an Oxford University email address). Once you have created an account on the self-registration page you will be able to access the course directly, without the need for booking in advance. The Graduate Admissions Assessors and Admissions Staff Guidance is available at http://courses.learning.ox.ac.uk/login/index.php.

Guidelines for Leave for Academic Staff

Academic staff are reminded of the guidelines for applying for and taking leave, which were published in full in the Gazette of 17 November 2011 (Vol. 142, p. 137) and are published on the Personnel Services website: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/staffinfo/academic/guidelinesforleave.

Gazette

Student Numbers 2011

Introduction

Student statistics tables for 2011–12 are now available on the Academic Administration Division (AAD) website: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/ac-div/resources/statistics/student.

The statistics provide an overview of the student body based on a snapshot taken on 1 December 2011 and allow comparison with the previous three years. The same snapshot forms the basis of the Higher Education Student Early Statistics return (www.hefce.ac.uk/learning/datacoll/heses) and the Student Number Planning Exercise, but with some small criteria differences. These are explained on the website.

This supplement contains only high-level overviews of the student population. A complete set of tables and charts is on the website. Six different views are available:

- Timelines – trends of different categories, by division, over time
- One-year summary – high-level overview of one year's snapshot
- Detail table – complete details by programme/programme type for any single year
- Nationality/domicile details
- College populations over time – total student numbers for four years
- College details – table with filters that allow different views of the college populations in any given year.

A complete set of terms, definitions, abbreviations and notes on exclusions/inclusions can also be found on the website.

The data is prepared by the Student Data Management and Analysis team. Questions concerning the content or format of these tables should be directed to sdma@admin.ox.ac.uk.

(2) Voting on Resolution authorising use of space in Phase 2 of the Botnar Research Centre

Explanatory Note

In 2002, the University was involved in the development of the Botnar Research Centre on the Nuffield Orthopaedic Hospital site. The Centre was developed by an independent charitable trust, Nuffield Orthopaedic Limited (NOL) with the sole purpose of the University occupying and operating the Centre for charitable medical research. The Nuffield Department of Orthopaedics, Rheumatology and Musculoskeletal Sciences (NDORMS) has been growing year on year and phase 1 of the Botnar Research Centre is no longer big enough nor has the right type of space to accommodate the NDORMS research staff. Phase 1 is principally designed for laboratory-based research and does not have the type of space required for the growing number of clinical trials, epidemiology and rheumatology research themes. Phase 2 of the Centre is currently being developed by NOL on a similar basis to the initial building and will be designed as more suitable office-type research space to meet the University's needs. It is proposed to allocate to NDORMS approximately 1000 sq.m. net usable area, based on the current plans for the building. This includes all space on the ground and first floors.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 1000 sq.m. net usable area in Phase 2 of the Botnar Research Centre be allocated to the Nuffield Department of Orthopaedics, Rheumatology and Musculoskeletal Sciences from the date of completion of the building (estimated to be 1 October 2012).

[1]If other changes concerning Council Regulations 19 of 2002 are approved (see item (b) concerning the Faculty of Oriental Studies, p. 326, above), the numbering of the regulations will have changed and there will be a further amendment to new regulation 7 to note the new name of the Faculty of Theology.

(2) Voting on Resolution authorising use of space in Phase 2 of the Botnar Research Centre

Explanatory Note

In 2002, the University was involved in the development of the Botnar Research Centre on the Nuffield Orthopaedic Hospital site. The Centre was developed by an independent charitable trust, Nuffield Orthopaedic Limited (NOL) with the sole purpose of the University occupying and operating the Centre for charitable medical research. The Nuffield Department of Orthopaedics, Rheumatology and Musculoskeletal Sciences (NDORMS) has been growing year on year and phase 1 of the Botnar Research Centre is no longer big enough nor has the right type of space to accommodate the NDORMS research staff. Phase 1 is principally designed for laboratory-based research and does not have the type of space required for the growing number of clinical trials, epidemiology and rheumatology research themes. Phase 2 of the Centre is currently being developed by NOL on a similar basis to the initial building and will be designed as more suitable office-type research space to meet the University's needs. It is proposed to allocate to NDORMS approximately 1000 sq.m. net usable area, based on the current plans for the building. This includes all space on the ground and first floors.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 1000 sq.m. net usable area in Phase 2 of the Botnar Research Centre be allocated to the Nuffield Department of Orthopaedics, Rheumatology and Musculoskeletal Sciences from the date of completion of the building (estimated to be 1 October 2012).

[1] If other changes concerning Council Regulations 19 of 2002 are approved (see item (b) concerning the Faculty of Oriental Studies in Gazette No. 4979, 16 February 2012, p. 326), the numbering of the regulations will have changed and there will be a further amendment to new regulation 7 to note the new name of the Faculty of Theology.

Note on procedures in Congregation

¶ Business in Congregation is conducted in accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/statutes/regulations/529-122.shtml). A printout of these regulations, or of any statute or other regulations, is available from the Council Secretariat on request. A member of Congregation seeking advice on questions relating to its procedures, other than elections, should contact Mrs C Benton at the University Offices, Wellington Square (telephone: (2)80107; email: ceri.benton@admin.ox.ac.uk); questions relating to elections should be directed to the Elections Officer, Ms S L Stacey (telephone: (2)80463, email: elections.office@ox.ac.uk).

Notices

General notices

Guidance notes for the holding of outside appointments and the conduct of outside work

This Guidance Note should be read in conjunction with Council Regulations 5 of 2004.

(1) Procedures for applying for approval to hold outside appointments

(a) Applicants must complete an application form available at: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/staffinfo/academic/approvaltoholdoutsideappointments.

(b) Applicants whose salaries are funded from externally funded research grants or contracts, or who are Principal Investigators (PIs) or Co-Investigators on outside-sponsored projects, must adhere to the terms and conditions stipulated by or agreed with the sponsor and, if necessary, seek written approval from the sponsor[1]. If you are in any doubt, please contact Research Services staff for advice on the terms and conditions of externally funded research grants and contracts held by the University (telephone: Oxford (2)70143).

(c) Applicants must obtain the approval of their direct line manager where relevant.

(d) When the necessary approvals have been obtained from the relevant line manager or sponsor (as appropriate), applicants should submit the completed form to their head of department[2], who will be asked to sign to confirm that he/she is content to approve the outside commitment in the context of the applicant's university duties. The person who signs the forms should be:

- the Head of Department or Faculty Board Chairman; or
- the Head of Division if the applicant is a Head of Department, or the application is for a total of more than 30 days per year; or
- the line manager of the senior officer making the application (where applicable). For the avoidance of doubt, the application should be made to the Vice-Chancellor in respect of each of the Pro-Vice-Chancellors with portfolio, the Heads of Division, the Registrar and Bodley's Librarian. In the case of the Vice-Chancellor, he or she should submit an application to the Chancellor;
- the person at the next higher level of authority if the Head of Department (or equivalent) has an interest in the appointment or activity.

(e) Applicants must ensure that they are familiar with the University's policy and procedure on conflict of interest (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/researchsupport/integrity/conflict). If they have any concerns about potential conflicts implicit in their proposed arrangements they should approach the secretary of the Conflict of Interest Committee (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/researchsupport/integrity/conflict/policy).

(f) If the outside appointment is arranged via Oxford University Consulting (see section 2 below) and approval is granted for the outside appointment, the applicant will enjoy a measure of protection under the University's insurance arrangements (see www.admin.ox.ac.uk/researchsupport/oxonly/contracts/consulting/faqs). If the outside appointment is arranged privately the individual (or the company) will need to hold their own insurance cover (see www.admin.ox.ac.uk/researchsupport/oxonly/contracts/consulting/private).

(2) Oxford University Consulting

The University's wholly owned subsidiary company, Isis Innovation Limited, has a division, Oxford University Consulting (OUC) (www.isis-innovation.com/consulting/index.html), to help members of the University market their expertise to outside bodies, negotiate commercial terms and payment on behalf of individuals, and manage the administration associated with consultancy. OUC offers a professional service for academics and departments throughout the University, which will identify consultancy and related opportunities with local, national and international companies and organisations. Details of this service may be obtained by telephone (Oxford (2)80829) or by email (consulting@isis.ox.ac.uk).

Members of the University choosing to use the services of OUC must still follow the internal procedures for University approval of their outside appointments as outlined in this Guidance Note; OUC will, however, assist with the process on behalf of the individuals concerned. Please see the University's Consulting Policy and Procedures (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/researchsupport/contracts/consulting).

(3) Consultancies within research grant applications and contracts

The holding of a consultancy may be included where appropriate within research grant applications and contracts. Where consultancies are included in this way and provision is made through the payroll to pay staff for such work, the Outside Grants (OG) form should itemise, among the costs of the project, the costs of the consultancy payment (including employer's on-costs). Indirect costs should also be calculated on the total cost of the project, including the fee for the consultancy.

The PI should personally ensure that their Oxford colleague (acting as consultant on the project) understands the conditions under which they are being engaged (eg tasks to be undertaken, due dates, payment, intellectual property provisions, etc). This would normally be done in a meeting between the PI and the consultant (a brief follow-up email exchange to note what was agreed may also be appropriate). Time spent on such consultancies will count towards the 30-day limit.

If a department wishes to make personal payments to a University of Oxford staff member from a research account, these payments must go through the University payroll. Departments should use the Payroll Change Form (stocks are held in each department). The form entitled 'Payment to Academic or Academic-related staff in respect of consultancy and/or services to industry' is no longer in use.

(4) Services to industry and outside bodies

Not all work for outside bodies is governed by a contract with an external sponsor under the University's research grants and contracts procedures. Some is likely to be 'service' work, ie the provision of a service to an external organisation which is not of academic benefit but which makes use of spare capacity in a department (most often specialist facilities/equipment) in return for payment. Such arrangements should nevertheless be covered by an agreement approved by the head of department which is drawn up in consultation with the departmental administrator and (for tax reasons) with the Finance Division. Customers must be made aware of the University's standard conditions of sale and supply (available from the Legal Services Office (LSO)), which must be incorporated into all contracts (subject to any variations required on a case-by-case basis, and drafted or endorsed by the LSO).

A department may well wish to engage Oxford University Consulting to arrange these service agreements with third parties (see www.isis-innovation.com/consulting/index.html).

Where appropriate, a payment may be made through the payroll to individuals for the additional work undertaken in performing the services. It is expected that the head of department will decide on an appropriate fee to be paid to the individual based on the time spent (which again will count towards the 30-day per year limit). In such cases, where an agreement has been made with the University in respect of the service, it is not expected that a further personal consultancy agreement with the academic concerned will be necessary.

(5) Financial arrangements for outside appointments

The University does not generally (except in the case of consultancies for which the information is requested for the annual HE-BCI survey) seek details of remuneration which applicants are to receive in return for outside commitments, but reserves the right to request to be provided with such details in certain circumstances, eg in the light of any potential conflict of interest with the outside commitment. Applicants wishing exceptionally to make a case to spend a total of more than 30 days in any one year on outside commitments will be required to provide details of remuneration.

(6) Monitoring and reporting of outside appointments

(a) Heads of department are responsible, through their departmental administration, for keeping records of the number of days spent on outside commitments by all staff (regardless of staff group) in their departments.

(b) Departments and divisions are responsible for reporting the details of all outside commitments held by staff via the OpenDoor system by the end of September each year.

[1]The Wellcome Trust's grant conditions, for example, include stringent conditions relating to the holding of consultancies and these apply equally to individuals who are in receipt of Wellcome Trust research grants, as well as to those whose salaries are paid from Wellcome Trust grants.

[2]Throughout this document, the term 'head of department' should be taken to include chairman of faculty board.

Council and Main Committees

Planning and Resource Allocation Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The Planning and Resource Allocation Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 16 March.

Establishment of Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund, to cover in part the salary and expenses of the holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic and associated overheads. They incorporate and replace the existing regulations for the Jesus Professor of Celtic, and bring the membership of the electoral board for the Professorship up to date.

Text of Regulations

In Section III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002 concerning academic and other posts (Statutes, 2000, p. 404, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461) delete existing § 43 and substitute as follows:

'§ 43. The Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude a benefaction from Jesus College, Oxford, to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of the holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic and associated overheads. The Professor shall undertake research, lecture and give instruction in Celtic. If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Professor are wholly or partly covered from other sources or there are further funds available, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or the capital of the Fund to support the Professor's research.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Humanities Divisional Board.

5. The Professor shall be elected by an electoral board consisting of:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor, or, if the Principal of Jesus College is Vice-Chancellor, a person appointed by Council;

(2) the Principal of Jesus College, or, if the Principal is unable or unwilling to act, a person appointed by the Governing Body of Jesus College;

(3) a person appointed by the Governing Body of Jesus College;

(4), (5) two persons appointed by Council;

(6) the Head of the Humanities Division, or his or her nominee;

(7) a person appointed by the Board of the Faculty of English;

(8), (9) two persons appointed by the Board of the Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages.

6. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

7. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Professorship.

8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

9. Regulations 1–4 and 6–11 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

10. Subject to regulation 11, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

11. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Notices

Consultative notices

Proposals for Honorary Degrees to be conferred at the Encaenia in 2013, and for Degrees by Diploma

Members of Congregation are encouraged to suggest the names of people on whom such degrees might be conferred. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty, and Encaenia honorary degrees are conferred at the University's annual ceremonial event. When considering possible honorands, the Honorary Degrees Committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1. those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford;

2. those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts;

3. those distinguished in business and industry;

4. those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society;

5. those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford – such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within those categories, the committee will aim to produce a balanced list, which takes account of the international dimension that characterises this University's activities. The committee therefore encourages the nomination of individuals of conspicuous distinction who represent the diversity of human achievement, with particular reference to gender, ethnicity and discipline.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service.

Nominations should be sent on the approved application form, which is available from Mrs C Benton (telephone: (2)80107, email: ceri.benton@admin.ox.ac.uk) or can be downloaded by staff accessing the University website from the Oxford University Network (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/councilsec/committees/hondegs). The completed form should be sent to Mrs C Benton, University Offices, Wellington Square, by 27 April under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the Honorary Degrees Committee, which submits its report to Council at the beginning of Michaelmas term. After discussion, Council will report back to the Honorary Degrees Committee, which will arrive at a list of honorands to put to Congregation.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred may be found in the University Calendar, 2011–12, pp. 545–9.

This year's honorands are:

Baroness (Elizabeth Lydia) Manningham-Buller
Mr David John Moore Cornwell (John le Carré)
Professor Drew Gilpin Faust
Sir Howard Stringer
Professor Charles Margrave Taylor
Dr Henry Joseph Macaulay Barnett
Professor William Daniel Phillips

Text of Regulations

'§ 110. The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund

1. All money or property paid or transferred to the University to be held on the trusts declared in these Regulations will be held by the University, on trust, in a trust fund known as The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain the assets of the Fund as permanent endowment.

3. The University shall apply the income of the Fund exclusively toward the following objects, each of which shall be a "main object" of the Fund (collectively, "the main objects"):

(a) To support in perpetuity the Mission of The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme in the Humanities, which is to fund and otherwise encourage graduate study in the humanities by Ertegun Graduate Scholars, a group of highly qualified students from throughout the world who:

(i) have a plan to enlarge their knowledge,

(ii) have the desire to extend their vision, and

(iii) seek the opportunity to exchange their ideas.

(b) To support in perpetuity the studies of the Ertegun Graduate Scholars only in (i) those fields of the humanities that are covered by the University of Oxford's faculties devoted to the study of Classics (including Classical Archaeology and the study of Latin and ancient Greek), English Language and Literature, Fine Art (excluding studio art) History (including the study of the history of art and the history of architecture), Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics, Medieval and Modern Languages (including the study of French, Spanish, Italian and German), Music, Oriental Studies (including Far Eastern and Middle Eastern Studies and the study of languages including Turkish, Persian, Arabic, and Chinese), Philosophy, and Theology; and (ii) any other fields in the arts and humanities that are covered by other faculties of the University of Oxford if the addition of those fields was approved by the Board of Ertegun Overseers in accordance with Section 4(b) of the Bequest Agreement (as hereinafter defined) prior to the death of the Benefactor (as hereinafter defined).

(c) To ensure in perpetuity that the Ertegun Graduate Scholars meet standards of excellence and are selected in a rigorous and competitive process developed and conducted by a specially designated body, known as the Ertegun Scholarship Selection Committee.

(d) To promote in perpetuity the growth, vitality and high standards of The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme in the Humanities through an actively functioning advisory board, known as the Board of Ertegun Overseers, on which former Ertegun Scholars and/or other persons who are independent of the University hold the majority of seats.

4. In furtherance of the main objects of the Fund set forth in Regulation 3, the University shall establish, maintain and operate The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme in the Humanities, in so far as funded from the income of the Fund, in accordance with the Incorporated Provisions (as hereinafter defined) of that certain contract by and between Ioana "Mica" Ertegun ("the Benefactor") and The Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford, dated January 20, 2012 ("the Bequest Agreement").

5. Section 1(c), Sections 2 through 15, and the relevant provisions of Sections 1(d) and 30 of the Bequest Agreement ("the Incorporated Sections"), together with any definitions set out in other Sections of the Bequest Agreement and any cross-referenced Sections thereof which are necessary for the interpretation of the Incorporated Sections (together with the Incorporated Sections being "the Incorporated Provisions") are incorporated herein as if they were set forth in their entirety in the body of these Regulations. Every reference in these Regulations to "these Regulations" shall mean these Regulations together with the Incorporated Provisions and every reference in the Incorporated Provisions to "this Agreement" shall mean these Regulations.

6. The administration of the Fund and the application of its income in accordance with these Regulations shall be the responsibility of the Humanities Board of the University of Oxford.

7. The University shall have power to pay out of the income of the Fund all reasonable costs of and incidental to the management and administration of the Fund.

8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these Regulations.

9. These Regulations shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford.

10. Subject to Regulations 11 and 12, Council may amend, repeal or add to these Regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford, but no such amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University of Oxford.

11. Any amendment to these Regulations which would amend or have the effect of amending Regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford and must be approved both by Congregation of the University of Oxford and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council. No part of Regulation 3 shall be considered a procedure with respect to the administration of the Fund.

12. For so long as there shall be a Protector serving hereunder, no amendment to these Regulations which would amend or have the effect of amending Regulation 3, Regulation 4, this Regulation 12, or Regulations 13 through 26 or the Incorporated Provisions shall be valid unless first approved in writing by the Protector in the sole discretion of the Protector.

13. The University recognises the intention of the Benefactor that no amendment to Regulation 3 should be sought from or approved by the Protector, Congregation, Her Majesty in Council or any other body having approval rights or powers of amendment of these Regulations unless (a) there shall have first been a cy-près event as specified in Section 62 of the Charities Act 2011, as amended, extended, or re-enacted, or any successor thereto ("the Charities Act") and (b) such amendment is consistent with the principles of cy-près as set forth in the Charities Act.

14. The University further recognises the intention of the Benefactor that no amendment to these Regulations be made unless (i) literal compliance with the provision(s) of these Regulations in respect of which amendment is proposed has become impossible or unlawful or jeopardises the accomplishment of the main objects of the Fund and (ii) such amendment is narrowly tailored to address the circumstances that warrant the amendment.

15. There shall be a Protector, appointed as set out in Regulation 18, and the function of the Protector shall be to procure that due regard is given to the intentions of the Benefactor as expressed in these Regulations. The Protector shall serve in a non-fiduciary capacity and without liability or responsibility for the use, management and disposition of the assets held pursuant to these Regulations or the exercise or non-exercise of the Protector's powers under these Regulations.

16. The Protector shall have the non-exclusive right to seek judicial enforcement in the United Kingdom of the University's obligation to use, manage and dispose of the Fund as provided in these Regulations.

17. The Protector shall be entitled to reimbursement, out of the assets of the Fund, for the expenses properly incurred in connection with the exercise or attempted exercise of the Protector's rights and powers under these Regulations and the Protector's rights and powers under the Bequest Agreement, without regard to the outcome of such exercise or attempted exercise, provided such exercise or attempted exercise was not arbitrary or capricious. This right to reimbursement shall include without limitation reimbursement for reasonable legal fees and disbursements incurred in connection with obtaining legal advice concerning whether or how to exercise the Protector's rights and powers under these Regulations and the Bequest Agreement, even if there shall be no exercise or attempted exercise of such rights and powers.

18. (a) If these Regulations shall be adopted during the lifetime of the Benefactor, the initial Protector shall be the Benefactor, acting directly or by and through her duly authorised attorney (being her attorney-in-fact in the jurisdiction in which the Benefactor is domiciled) (her "duly authorised attorney"). Upon the death of the Benefactor or such earlier date as the Benefactor or her duly authorised attorney shall determine, or upon the adoption of these Regulations if such adoption shall occur after the death of the Benefactor, the Protector shall be the person or persons designated during her lifetime by the Benefactor or by her duly authorised attorney, not to exceed two in number ("the Designated Persons").

(b) The Designated Persons will serve in their capacity as Protector for life or until their earlier resignation or incapacity. Each of the Designated Persons may (whether or not accepting office) designate one person as his or her successor and one person as alternate successor if the first designee for any reason does not commence to serve or serves for a period of less than five (5) years.

(c) Successors designated by the Designated Persons shall on taking office serve for life or until their earlier resignation, removal under Regulation 18(d) or incapacity and shall be the last persons capable of serving as Protector.

(d) Designations under this Regulation 18 must be by written instrument acknowledged before or witnessed by a notary public in the United States or the United Kingdom, the last such unrevoked instrument to control. Such designations must be delivered to the person so designated, with a copy to the University of Oxford's Registrar or the holder of the then-equivalent position within the University of Oxford ("the Registrar"), and will take effect on the effective date therein specified. The revocation of a designation prior to its effective date will take effect either upon the delivery of written notice of revocation to the designee or upon the designation of a different person, with a copy to the Registrar in either event. If any designation of a successor shall take effect prior to the death of the person making the designation, such person (or in the case of the Benefactor, her duly authorised attorney) may remove the successor and designate a different person as successor.

(e) So long as two persons constitute the Protector, such persons must act unanimously in order for the Protector to act. The term "Protector" shall refer to the Protector serving from time to time.

19. For so long as there shall be a Protector serving hereunder, the Protector shall be entitled to ninety (90) days' advance written notice by the University of (a) the submission to Council, Congregation or any other University body or committee of any proposal or request to approve any amendment of these Regulations which amendment requires the approval of the Protector and (b) the submission or application to Her Majesty in Council or any other organ or agency of government, any Court, or any public body with power of amendment of any proposal or request to approve any amendment of these Regulations which amendment requires the approval of the Protector.

20. The Protector may designate one or more persons resident in the United Kingdom and eligible to serve as trustee(s) of the Fund under the laws of the United Kingdom to be "the Standby Trustee(s)" for purposes of these Regulations, such designation(s) to be made by written instrument(s) delivered to the person(s) so designated, with a copy to the Registrar. Each such designation shall become effective upon the designee's execution and delivery to the Protector, with a copy to the Registrar, of an instrument accepting such designation and agreeing to serve as trustee(s) of the Fund on the terms set forth in these Regulations. Each Standby Trustee shall be entitled to a reasonable annual retainer fee, in such sum as the Protector, acting reasonably, may determine, out of the assets of the Fund, for agreeing to serve in his, her or its standby capacity. The Protector may remove any Standby Trustee by the delivery to him, her or it of a written instrument of removal, with a copy to the Registrar.

21. A "Termination Event" will arise if while there is a Protector:

(a) There shall be any application to any Court or other body seeking amendment or approval of an amendment of these Regulations without the Protector having first granted the approval required under Regulation 12, or

(b) The University takes any action that would modify or eliminate the rights and powers of the Protector under these Regulations, or

(c) There shall arise a Termination Event within the meaning of Regulations 20(a) or 20(b) of the Trust Regulations Governing The Ertegun House Endowment Fund or the Trust Regulations Governing The Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence Endowment Fund.

22. If a Termination Event arises, the University shall immediately and automatically cease to be the trustee(s) of the Fund and shall be immediately and automatically divested of the rights and responsibilities as trustee(s) under these Regulations (other than the responsibilities under this Regulation 22). Upon such Termination Event, the Standby Trustee(s) shall immediately and automatically become the trustee(s) of the Fund, all the property of the Fund shall vest in the Standby Trustee(s), and the University shall collect the property of the Fund, together with any property directed to be added to the Fund by reason of such Termination Event under the Trust Regulations Governing The Ertegun House Endowment Fund and The Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence Endowment Fund, and promptly turn all such property over to the Standby Trustee(s). Regulations 9 through 11 shall cease to have effect and the Standby Trustee(s) shall hold the property on trust exclusively in furtherance of the main objects (subject to substitution, by mutual agreement of the Protector and the Standby Trustee(s), of some university in the United Kingdom other than the University of Oxford) and on other terms and conditions mutually agreeable to the Protector and the Standby Trustee(s) and consistent with the Fund's remaining exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales.

23. Notwithstanding Regulation 22, the Protector, in the exercise of sole discretion, may consent ex post facto to the application or action which gave rise to the Termination Event, whereupon (a) the property of the Fund, The Ertegun House Endowment Fund, and The Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence Endowment Fund, as the case may be, shall automatically and immediately vest again in the University, to be held and applied by the University as provided in the respective Regulations governing such funds, as if the Termination Event had not occurred, and (b) the Standby Trustee(s) shall automatically and immediately cease to be the trustee(s) of such Funds and shall promptly turn over to the University all property, if any, received by the Standby Trustee(s) on account of the Termination Event. If a Termination Event arises as a result of any inadvertent act or omission which is capable of remedy and which is remedied within ninety (90) days of the Termination Event, the Protector will exercise discretion in favour of giving consent under this Regulation 23. The Protector's consent, if granted, must be by written instrument delivered to the Registrar and the Standby Trustee(s).

24. (a) No failure or delay by a person to exercise any right or remedy provided under these Regulations or by law shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right or remedy, nor shall it preclude or restrict the further exercise of that or any other right or remedy. No single or partial exercise of such right or remedy shall preclude or restrict the further exercise of that or any other right or remedy.

(b) No consent given under Regulation 23 in respect of an application or act giving rise to one Termination Event shall imply any consent in respect of any other application or act giving rise to any other Termination Event.

25. In these Regulations the term "the University", save where specified as "the University of Oxford", means the University of Oxford as the first trustee and any future trustee or trustees of this settlement.

26. These Regulations and any dispute or claim arising out of or in connection with them shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the law of England and Wales.

§ 111. The Ertegun House Endowment Fund

1. All money or property paid or transferred to the University to be held on the trusts declared in these Regulations will be held by the University, on trust, in a trust fund known as The Ertegun House Endowment Fund ("the Fund") in one of two separate designated sub-funds to be known as The Ertegun House Endowment Sub-Fund for Facilities ("the Facilities Sub-Fund") and The Ertegun House Endowment Sub-Fund for Programming (the "Programming Sub-Fund").

2. The University shall retain the assets of the Fund as permanent endowment.

3. (a) The University shall apply the income of the Facilities Sub-Fund exclusively toward the following objects, each of which shall be a "main object" of the Fund:

(i) To advance education by helping to defray in perpetuity the costs of operating and maintaining (and updating when needed) a well-designed, well-equipped and well-managed non-residential facility at 37A St Giles' in the City of Oxford, United Kingdom, named in perpetuity "The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun House for the Study of the Humanities" and dedicated in perpetuity exclusively for the academic studies and fellowship of those graduate students at the University of Oxford who are in receipt of scholarships through The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme.

(ii) If the building at 37A St Giles' in the City of Oxford, United Kingdom or any successor to it is at any time destroyed or becomes unusable for the objects specified in Regulation 3(a)(i), to accomplish such objects instead by helping to defray the costs of operating and maintaining a facility of comparable size and quality, in the same location or, if such location is no longer usable for this purpose on account of a long-term environmental, political or legal condition that is not within the University's power to alter, in as close a location within the University of Oxford complex as circumstances allow.

(iii) If the objects specified in Regulations 3(a)(i) and 3(a)(ii) cannot be fulfilled, then for the same objects as specified in Regulation 3 of the Trust Regulations Governing The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund, as if the Facilities Sub-Fund were part of The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund.

(b) The University shall apply the income of the Programming Sub-Fund exclusively toward the following objects, each of which shall be a "main object" of the Fund (collectively, together with the objects set forth in Regulation 3(a), "the main objects"):

(i) To advance education by helping to defray in perpetuity the costs of presenting at The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun House for the Study of the Humanities lectures, seminars, screenings, concerts and other educational programmes developed specifically for students at the University of Oxford who are in receipt of scholarships through The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme, and

(ii) If the objects specified in Regulation 3(b)(i) cannot be fulfilled, then for the same objects as specified in Regulation 3 of the Trust Regulations Governing The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund, as if the Programming Sub-Fund were part of The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund.

4. In furtherance of the main objects of the Fund set forth in Regulation 3, the University shall with respect to Ertegun House, in so far as its operations and maintenance, the updating of it, and the programming for it are funded from the income of the Fund, act in accordance with the Incorporated Provisions (as hereinafter defined) of that certain contract by and between Ioana "Mica" Ertegun ("the Benefactor") and The Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford, dated January 20, 2012 ("the Bequest Agreement").

5. Section 16, Section 18, Section 29(a), and the relevant provisions of Sections 1(d) and 30 of the Bequest Agreement ("the Incorporated Sections"), together with any definitions set out in other Sections of the Bequest Agreement and any cross-referenced Sections thereof which are necessary for the interpretation of the Incorporated Sections (together with the Incorporated Sections being "the Incorporated Provisions") are incorporated herein as if they were set forth in their entirety in the body of these Regulations. Every reference in these Regulations to "these Regulations" shall mean these Regulations together with the Incorporated Provisions and every reference in the Incorporated Provisions to "this Agreement" shall mean these Regulations.

6. The administration of the Fund and the application of its income in accordance with these Regulations shall be the responsibility of the Humanities Board of the University of Oxford.

7. The University shall have power to pay out of the income of the Fund all reasonable costs of and incidental to the management and administration of the Fund.

8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these Regulations.

9. These Regulations shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford.

10. Subject to Regulations 11 and 12, Council may amend, repeal or add to these Regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford, but no such amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University of Oxford.

11. Any amendment to these Regulations which would amend or have the effect of amending Regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford and must be approved both by Congregation of the University of Oxford and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council. No part of Regulation 3 shall be considered a procedure with respect to the administration of the Fund.

12. For so long as there shall be a Protector serving hereunder, no amendment to these Regulations which would amend or have the effect of amending Regulation 3, Regulation 4, this Regulation 12, or Regulations 13 through 25 or the Incorporated Provisions shall be valid unless first approved in writing by the Protector in the sole discretion of the Protector.

13. The University recognises the intention of the Benefactor that no amendment to Regulation 3 should be sought from or approved by the Protector, Congregation, Her Majesty in Council or any other body having approval rights or powers of amendment of these Regulations unless (a) there shall have first been a cy-près event as specified in Section 62 of the Charities Act 2011, as amended, extended, or re-enacted, or any successor thereto ("the Charities Act") and (b) such amendment is consistent with the principles of cy-près as set forth in the Charities Act.

14. The University further recognises the intention of the Benefactor that no amendment to these Regulations be made unless (i) literal compliance with the provision(s) of these Regulations in respect of which amendment is proposed has become impossible or unlawful or jeopardises the accomplishment of the main objects of the Fund and (ii) such amendment is narrowly tailored to address the circumstances that warrant the amendment.

15. There shall be a Protector, appointed as set out in Regulation 18, and the function of the Protector shall be to procure that due regard is given to the intentions of the Benefactor as expressed in these Regulations. The Protector shall serve in a non-fiduciary capacity and without liability or responsibility for the use, management and disposition of the assets held pursuant to these Regulations or the exercise or non-exercise of the Protector's powers under these Regulations.

16. The Protector shall have the non-exclusive right to seek judicial enforcement in the United Kingdom of the University's obligation to use, manage and dispose of the Fund as provided in these Regulations.

17. The Protector shall be entitled to reimbursement, out of the assets of the Fund, for the expenses properly incurred in connection with the exercise or attempted exercise of the Protector's rights and powers under these Regulations and the Protector's rights and powers under the Bequest Agreement, without regard to the outcome of such exercise or attempted exercise, provided such exercise or attempted exercise was not arbitrary or capricious. This right to reimbursement shall include without limitation reimbursement for reasonable legal fees and disbursements incurred in connection with obtaining legal advice concerning whether or how to exercise the Protector's rights and powers under these Regulations and the Bequest Agreement, even if there shall be no exercise or attempted exercise of such rights and powers.

18. (a) If these Regulations shall be adopted during the lifetime of the Benefactor, the initial Protector shall be the Benefactor, acting directly or by and through her duly authorised attorney (being her attorney-in-fact in the jurisdiction in which the Benefactor is domiciled) (her "duly authorised attorney"). Upon the death of the Benefactor or such earlier date as the Benefactor or her duly authorised attorney shall determine, or upon the adoption of these Regulations if such adoption shall occur after the death of the Benefactor, the Protector shall be the person or persons designated during her lifetime by the Benefactor or by her duly authorised attorney, not to exceed two in number ("the Designated Persons").

(b) The Designated Persons will serve in their capacity as Protector for life or until their earlier resignation or incapacity. Each of the Designated Persons may (whether or not accepting office) designate one person as his or her successor and one person as alternate successor if the first designee for any reason does not commence to serve or serves for a period of less than five (5) years.

(c) Successors designated by the Designated Persons shall on taking office serve for life or until their earlier resignation, removal under Regulation 18(d) or incapacity and shall be the last persons capable of serving as Protector.

(d) Designations under this Regulation 18 must be by written instrument acknowledged before or witnessed by a notary public in the United States or the United Kingdom, the last such unrevoked instrument to control. Such designations must be delivered to the person so designated, with a copy to the University of Oxford's Registrar or the holder of the then-equivalent position within the University of Oxford ("the Registrar"), and will take effect on the effective date therein specified. The revocation of a designation prior to its effective date will take effect either upon the delivery of written notice of revocation to the designee or upon the designation of a different person, with a copy to the Registrar in either event. If any designation of a successor shall take effect prior to the death of the person making the designation, such person (or in the case of the Benefactor, her duly authorised attorney) may remove the successor and designate a different person as successor.

(e) So long as two persons constitute the Protector, such persons must act unanimously in order for the Protector to act. The term "Protector" shall refer to the Protector serving from time to time.

19. For so long as there shall be a Protector serving hereunder, the Protector shall be entitled to ninety (90) days' advance written notice by the University of (a) the submission to Council, Congregation or any other University body or committee of any proposal or request to approve any amendment of these Regulations which amendment requires the approval of the Protector and (b) the submission or application to Her Majesty in Council or any other organ or agency of government, any Court, or any public body with power of amendment of any proposal or request to approve any amendment of these Regulations which amendment requires the approval of the Protector.

20. A "Termination Event" will arise if while there is a Protector:

(a) There shall be any application to any Court or other body seeking amendment or approval of an amendment of these Regulations without the Protector having first granted the approval required under Regulation 12, or

(b) The University takes any action that would modify or eliminate the rights and powers of the Protector under these Regulations, or

(c) There shall occur a Termination Event within the meaning of the Trust Regulations Governing The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund or the Trust Regulations Governing The Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence Endowment Fund.

21. If a Termination Event arises, the University shall immediately and automatically cease to be the trustee(s) of the Fund and shall be immediately and automatically divested of the rights and responsibilities as trustee(s) under these Regulations (other than the responsibilities under this Regulation 21). Upon such Termination Event the University shall collect the property of the Fund and promptly turn it over to the trustee(s) of the trusts governed by the Trust Regulations Governing The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund ("the Scholarship Trusts"), to be added to and applied as a part of the property held pursuant to the Scholarship Trusts.

22. Notwithstanding Regulation 21, the Protector, in the exercise of sole discretion, may consent ex post facto to the application or action which gave rise to the Termination Event, whereupon the property of the Fund shall automatically and immediately vest again in the University, to be held and applied by the University as provided in these Regulations as if the Termination Event had not occurred. If a Termination Event arises as a result of any inadvertent act or omission which is capable of remedy and which is remedied within ninety (90) days of the Termination Event, the Protector will exercise discretion in favour of giving consent under this Regulation 22. The Protector's consent, if granted, must be by written instrument delivered to the Registrar and the Standby Trustee(s).

23. (a) No failure or delay by a person to exercise any right or remedy provided under these Regulations or by law shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right or remedy, nor shall it preclude or restrict the further exercise of that or any other right or remedy. No single or partial exercise of such right or remedy shall preclude or restrict the further exercise of that or any other right or remedy.

(b) No consent given under Regulation 22 in respect of an application or act giving rise to one Termination Event shall imply any consent in respect of any other application or act giving rise to any other Termination Event.

24. In these Regulations the term "the University", save where specified as "the University of Oxford", means the University of Oxford as the first trustee and any future trustee or trustees of this settlement.

25. These Regulations and any dispute or claim arising out of or in connection with them shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the law of England and Wales.

§ 112. The Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence Endowment Fund

1. All money or property paid or transferred to the University to be held on the trusts declared in these Regulations will be held by the University, on trust, in a trust fund known as The Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence Endowment Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain the assets of the Fund as permanent endowment.

3. The University shall apply the income of the Fund exclusively toward the following objects, each of which shall be a "main object" of the Fund (collectively, "the main objects"):

(a) To advance education by helping defray in perpetuity the costs of compensating and otherwise maintaining a full-time Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence whose function shall be to foster the academic studies and fellowship of the graduate students at the University of Oxford who are in receipt of scholarships through The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme, which Senior Scholar in Residence:

(i) will be selected by a majority of the members of the Board of Ertegun Overseers, after having conferred with the Head of the Division of Humanities,

(ii) will have his or her primary office in Ertegun House, and

(iii) will be charged with:

A. Providing mentorship, academic counselling and other support for those students who receive scholarships through the Programme (the "Ertegun Graduate Scholars");

B. Overseeing the day-to-day operation of the Programme, including the operation and maintenance of Ertegun House;

C. Developing, implementing and overseeing an engaging, relevant, and intellectually challenging programme of lectures, seminars, screenings, concerts and other educational programmes in Ertegun House specifically for the Ertegun Graduate Scholars;

D. Ensuring that Ertegun House operates effectively and efficiently to support the Ertegun Graduate Scholars in the pursuit of their studies.

(b) To advance education by helping defray in perpetuity the costs of compensating and otherwise maintaining a full-time Administrative Assistant for the Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence, which individual shall also function as the Building Manager for Ertegun House.

(c) If the objects specified in Regulations 3(a) and 3(b) cannot be fulfilled, then for the same objects as specified in Regulation 3 of the Trust Regulations Governing The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund, as if the Fund were part of The Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme Endowment Fund.

4. In furtherance of the main objects of the Fund set forth in Regulation 3, the University shall with respect to the Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence and the Administrative Assistant/Building Manager, in so far as funded from the income of the Fund, act and cause the Ertegun Senior Scholar in Residence to act in accordance with the Incorporated Provisions (as hereinafter defined) of that certain contract by and between Ioana "Mica" Ertegun ("the Benefactor") and The Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford, dated January 20, 2012 ("the Bequest Agreement").

5. Sections 20 through 27, Section 29(b), and the relevant provisions of Sections 1(d) and 30 of the Bequest Agreement ("the Incorporated Sections"), together with any definitions set out in other Sections of the Bequest Agreement and any cross-referenced Sections thereof which are necessary for the interpretation of the Incorporated Sections (together with the Incorporated Sections being "the Incorporated Provisions") are incorporated herein as if they were set forth in their entirety in the body of these Regulations. Every reference in these Regulations to "these Regulations" shall mean these Regulations together with the Incorporated Provisions and every reference in the Incorporated Provisions to "this Agreement" shall mean these Regulations.

6. The administration of the Fund and the application of its income in accordance with these Regulations shall be the responsibility of the Humanities Board of the University of Oxford.

7. The University shall have power to pay out of the income of the Fund all reasonable costs of and incidental to the management and administration of the Fund.

8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these Regulations.

9. These Regulations shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford.

10. Subject to Regulations 11 and 12, Council may amend, repeal or add to these Regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford, but no such amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University of Oxford.

11. Any amendment to these Regulations which would amend or have the effect of amending Regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI of the University of Oxford and must be approved both by Congregation of the University of Oxford and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council. No part of Regulation 3 shall be considered a procedure with respect to the administration of the Fund.

12. For so long as there shall be a Protector serving hereunder, no amendment to these Regulations which would amend or have the effect of amending Regulation 3, Regulation 4, this Regulation 12, or Regulations 13 through 25 or the Incorporated Provisions shall be valid unless first approved in writing by the Protector in the sole discretion of the Protector.

13. The University recognises the intention of the Benefactor that no amendment to Regulation 3 should be sought from or approved by the Protector, Congregation, Her Majesty in Council or any other body having approval rights or powers of amendment of these Regulations unless (a) there shall have first been a cy-près event as specified in Section 62 of the Charities Act 2011, as amended, extended, or re-enacted, or any successor thereto ("the Charities Act") and (b) such amendment is consistent with the principles of cy-près as set forth in the Charities Act.

14. The University further recognises the intention of the Benefactor that no amendment to these Regulations be made unless (i) literal compliance with the provision(s) of these Regulations in respect of which amendment is proposed has become impossible or unlawful or jeopardises the accomplishment of the main objects of the Fund and (ii) such amendment is narrowly tailored to address the circumstances that warrant the amendment.

15. There shall be a Protector, appointed as set out in Regulation 18, and the function of the Protector shall be to procure that due regard is given to the intentions of the Benefactor as expressed in these Regulations. The Protector shall serve in a non-fiduciary capacity and without liability or responsibility for the use, management and disposition of the assets held pursuant to these Regulations or the exercise or non-exercise of the Protector's powers under these Regulations.

16. The Protector shall have the non-exclusive right to seek judicial enforcement in the United Kingdom of the University's obligation to use, manage and dispose of the Fund as provided in these Regulations.

17. (b) The Designated Persons will serve in their capacity as Protector for life or until their earlier resignation or incapacity. 21. If a Termination Event arises, the University shall immediately and automatically cease to be the trustee(s) of the Fund and shall be immediately and automatically divested of the rights and responsibilities as trustee(s) under these Regulations (other than the responsibilities under this Regulation 21). 24. In these Regulations the term "the University", save where specified as "the University of Oxford", means the University of Oxford as the first trustee and any future trustee or trustees of this settlement.

25. These Regulations and any dispute or claim arising out of or in connection with them shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the law of England and Wales.'

(b) Establishment of the Scatcherd Scholarships

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the 'Scatcherd Scholarships' for the purpose of providing scholarships to students from Europe to study at the University, and for students at the University to study abroad.

Text of Regulations

'§318. Scatcherd Scholarships

1. The University has received with gratitude a legacy from Mrs Jane Ledig-Rowohlt to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Scatcherd Scholarships Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets (if any) in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards: (a) awarding scholarships to students of British citizenship allowing them to engage in study or research in other countries; and (b) awarding scholarships to citizens of continental Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals with the exception of Turkey.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income and capital, shall be the responsibility of the board of management of the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Scholarship.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Griffiths Memorial Studentship

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal amends the nature of and selection committee for the studentship, and brings the restriction on candidates in line with the Equality Act 2010 by targeting persons who are ordinarily resident in (rather than citizens of) the United Kingdom. In addition, it is proposed to update the mechanics for amending the trust to reflect the University's current practice and the trust's new status as a scheduled trust.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Griffiths Memorial Studentship, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002, pp. 133–59), after Part 71 insert the following new Part 74[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'~~§ 138.~~ Part 74: Jeremy Griffiths Memorial Studentship Fund

74.4. ~~The selection committee for the studentship shall consist of~~

~~(1) the Director of Graduate Studies of the Board of the Faculty of English Language and Literature;~~

Selection of the studentship recipient will be in line with faculty graduate admissions procedures in consultation with the J R R Tolkien Professor of English Literature and Language, the Jeremy Griffiths Professor of Medieval English Palaeography and St Hilda's College, as necessary.

74.5. The studentship shall be tenable at St ~~John's~~ Hilda's College.

74.6. The studentship shall normally be awarded for a period of ~~two~~ one years ~~but~~ and may be renewed for not more than one further year for a student continuing to the MPhil English.

74.7. ~~Holders of the studentship shall be required to submit an annual report to the board of management, and c~~Continued tenure of the award shall depend upon satisfactory progress towards completion of the graduate degree concerned.

74.8. Income not expended in any year shall be carried forward for expenditure in subsequent years.

74.9. Congregation ~~Council~~ shall have power to amend this ~~decree~~ Part from time to time, ~~provided that~~ other than the purposes of the fund, as defined in ~~cll.~~ sections 74.1, 74.3, and 74.5 above~~, shall always be kept in view~~.'

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [date] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal provides for the above Fund to be used to promote the teaching and research of Celtic in the University in the event that, for whatever reason, there is no holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002, pp. 133–59), after Part 71 insert the following new Part 75[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'~~§ 43.~~ Part 75: Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund

75.1. The University receives with gratitude a benefaction from Jesus College, Oxford, to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund ("the Fund").

75.2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

75.3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of the holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic and associated overheads. The Professor shall undertake research, lecture and give instruction in Celtic. If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Professor are wholly or partly covered from other sources or there are further funds available, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or the capital of the Fund to support the Professor's research. Whenever, for whatever reason, there is no holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or the capital of the Fund to promote the teaching and research of Celtic in the University.

75.4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Humanities Divisional Board.

75.5. The Professor shall be elected by an electoral board consisting of:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor, or, if the Principal of Jesus College is Vice-Chancellor, a person appointed by Council;

(2) the Principal of Jesus College, or, if the Principal is unable or unwilling to act, a person appointed by the Governing Body of Jesus College;

(3) a person appointed by the Governing Body of Jesus College;

(4), (5) two persons appointed by Council;

(6) the Head of the Humanities Division, or his or her nominee;

(7) a person appointed by the Board of the Faculty of English;

(8), (9) two persons appointed by the Board of the Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages.

75.6. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending on 30 January 2033 ~~21 years from the date of this regulation~~, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

75.7. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Professorship.

75.8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with ~~these regulations~~ this Part.

75.9. ~~Regulations~~ Sections 75.1–4 and 75.6–11 shall be deemed to be trust provisions under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

75.10. Subject to ~~regulation~~ section 75.11, Council may amend, repeal or add to ~~these regulations~~ this Part in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

75.11. Any amendment to ~~regulation~~ section 75.3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Section III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002, concerning academic and other posts (Statutes, 2000, p. 404, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), delete § 43 and renumber existing §§ 44–394 as §§ 43–393.

Proposals for Honorary Degrees to be conferred at the Encaenia in 2013, and for Degrees by Diploma

Members of Congregation are encouraged to suggest the names of people on whom such degrees might be conferred. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty, and Encaenia honorary degrees are conferred at the University's annual ceremonial event. When considering possible honorands, the Honorary Degrees Committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1. those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford;
2. those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts;
3. those distinguished in business and industry;
4. those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society;
5. those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford – such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within those categories, the committee will aim to produce a balanced list, which takes account of the international dimension that characterises this University's activities. The committee therefore encourages the nomination of individuals of conspicuous distinction who represent the diversity of human achievement, with particular reference to gender, ethnicity and discipline.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service.

Nominations should be sent on the approved application form, which is available from Mrs C Benton (telephone:

(2)80107, email: ceri.benton@admin.ox.ac.uk) or can be downloaded by staff accessing the University website from the Oxford University Network (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/councilsec/committees/hondegs). The completed form should be sent to Mrs C Benton, University Offices, Wellington Square, by 27 April under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the Honorary Degrees Committee, which submits its report to Council at the beginning of Michaelmas term. After discussion, Council will report back to the Honorary Degrees Committee, which will arrive at a list of honorands to put to Congregation.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred may be found in the University Calendar, 2011–12, pp. 545–9.

This year's honorands are:

Baroness (Elizabeth Lydia) Manningham-Buller
Mr David John Moore Cornwell (John le Carré)
Professor Drew Gilpin Faust
Sir Howard Stringer
Professor Charles Margrave Taylor
Dr Henry Joseph Macaulay Barnett
Professor William Daniel Phillips

WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2012 • SUPPLEMENT (1) TO NO. 4983 • VOL 141

Gazette Supplement

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Oration by the demitting Proctors and Assessor

The following Oration was delivered in Congregation on Wednesday, 14 March, by Laurence Whitehead, MA Oxf, Fellow of Nuffield, on demitting office as Senior Proctor.

Senior Proctor: Insignissime Vice-Chancellarie: licetne Anglice loqui?

Vice-Chancellor: Licet.

Senior Proctor: Although I shall present this Oration, it must be understood as a collective production. The two Proctors, together with the Assessor, spent their year together very much as a team working jointly under the watchful eye of an indispensable clerk. For convenience just one of us will read out the text, but this Oration is from all of us.

Like the University it serves, our office has been changing with the times. Long gone are the bulldogs and the policing powers, and between us we no longer display an equally reliable grasp of the Latin tongue. A quite different though equally unfamiliar discourse of OIAs, QAA, JRAMs and top-slices, and impenetrable terms of art like 'the as-earned principle', invade our minds. We have also learnt to say that 'going forward more work needs to be done if we are to move the needle across the piece'. In addition we found ourselves required to flit from one specialised idiom to another, as we progressed from perlustrations to divisional boards, to finance committees, and then ultimately to our demitting Oration. Within the compass of a single year the three of us have glimpsed many lives and sampled an extraordinary range of University activities, some of them still a little archaic (like this one), others ultra-modern, such as the briefing on the latest ideas in architectural theory as they will be applied to the Blavatnik School of Government. As Visitors of the Museums, we have gained privileged access to great cultural events, and as Delegates of the Press we have obtained a bird's-eye view of all the rich and varied publishing projects under consideration. We can request access to improbable nooks and crannies within the system. I personally benefited from a half-day briefing in Madrid on the challenges and inventive responses affecting the large and critical OUP business in Spain, just as back in Oxford I also satisfied my personal curiosity about the workings of the CCTV system when we burrowed into the fortress of the Marshal's control room. Some of our duties are more stressful than others. In hearings before the Student Disciplinary Panel, for example, it can be necessary to master an intricate and detailed charge sheet and to argue a case with quasi-legal precision. But whether the task is a pleasure or a strain, wherever we go we are greeted with a respect and goodwill that rightly accrue to the office rather than the officeholder. The pace of these activities can be intense, and early on in my year I took to answering the question 'what is it like to be a Proctor?' with 'like white-water rafting'.

The contrast with earlier centuries provides a recurrent source of anecdote in proctorial Orations, and I cannot resist adding my grain of sand. In our year there was a brief moment of dissension between the University and the government of the day when we oversaw the congregational debate that resulted in a vote of no confidence in the minister with responsibility for higher education. But it may put that friction into perspective if I remind this assembly of what transpired in this very room in 1647. Parliament had just prohibited the University from making any new appointments to vacant posts or entering into new leases of its property. A board of visitors was despatched for the 'correction of abuses' at the University, and in due course parliament granted that body powers to seize and examine the University's records and to imprison refusers. Despite all these assertions of ministerial authority, however, the University still resisted. I quote from Volume IV of the History of the University (p. 725) as follows:

> But time-wasting and prevarication on the part of the academics, the refusal of University officers (including the Proctors) to give up keys and insignia, and of the Vice-Chancellor and the Registrar to yield seals and books, led to further delays.

As you can see, while certain features of this narrative remain recognisable, in our year the contrasts outweigh the similarities. Nor were we called, like our predecessors in 1683, not only to forbid members of the University from reading censored books, but even to instruct the University Marshal to publicly burn such books in the Bodleian Quadrangle. I am particularly glad that there was no such requirement in my year, since among the books thus incinerated were the founding texts of my own discipline (such as Hobbes's Leviathan), not to mention work by Milton.

All this is, of course, very ancient and well-recorded history. But at a more personal level, my wife recently deposited the correspondence of my father-in-law in the Bodleian, and in the process we found one of the first letters he wrote home, after coming up to read PPE in the autumn of 1936. His November 19th letter reads in part:

> On Tuesday we had the big protest meeting at the Union. I suppose you've heard all about it – the Proctors banned the Peace Council March on Armistice Day – which means that undergraduates haven't the rights of ordinary citizens... The Proctors simply haven't the vestige of a shred of a case. They have put an arbitrary interpretation on 'clubs' in the statutes to cover individuals marching as 'individuals.'

Since more often than not I lost any arguments I was rash enough to engage in with my father-in-law, I am thankful that during my year no protest march posed us with any such dilemma. Indeed, under the current dispensation the rights of students are heavily protected, with appropriate process of redress and appeal where required, and the nearest I have witnessed to the proctorial practices of past centuries was the Junior Proctor sprinting down Banbury Road in hot pursuit of a malefactor engaged in the spraying of tomato ketchup after an examination had finished.

So times have changed, and the University has changed with them. The past decade has been a period of very rapid innovation, not only in proctorial matters but across the entire spectrum of academic policies, priorities and structures. It has been our privilege to observe many facets of this shifting panorama, and even at times to help cross-reference or connect up some of the disparate elements involved. All universities are engaged in the pursuit of multiple potentially conflicting objectives. They have to balance the claims of diverse disciplines; the imperatives of quality teaching (at many different levels) with those of original research; the preservation of traditions with the capacity to innovate; and the expectations of their members with the ever-more insistent external demands of government regulators and of competitor institutions. Oxford is under exceptional pressure to excel along many dimensions at once. Its collegiate structure, its libraries and museums, its medical and business schools, its divisional structure, its multi-national University Press and its diverse funding sources, from research councils to generous donors, all tug it in different directions. Ours is not a simple institution, not a profit-maximising corporation focused heavily on its quarterly trading results, and it is not just a sleepy custodian of past glories either. So the task of balancing, reconciling and choosing between overlapping priorities is extraordinarily demanding. It cannot be left to the forces of custom and inertia, but nor can it be straightforwardly 'managed' from the centre or by any one body. Since the 1990s an elaborate new structure of information gathering, resource channelling, consultation, education and experimentation has been set in place. It is still very much a work in progress, and many of those affected have found it hard to understand or fully internalise. For one year, from our unique vantage point, we have been given the extraordinary opportunity to monitor, observe and, in some places, even advise on this ongoing experiment. Each of us came into office with distinct perspectives and prior understandings. For example, in my case it was agreed that I would 'follow the money' – or try to make sense of, and double-check on, the mysteries behind the University's financial statements. The Junior Proctor specialised in overseeing the education side of University affairs, and the Assessor delved closely into various other aspects of the student experience. Each of us also found ourselves making discoveries in areas we had never expected to learn about. I, for example, found myself immersed in the intricacies of various student sports clubs, the very last topic I would have anticipated. But although it was essential for each of us to specialise it was also necessary for all of us to pool our experiences in order to form a picture of how the University as a whole was evolving.

Happily we can report back that most of what we have observed was quite reassuring. Under intense pressures, and in the midst of upheavals in higher education that are still far from ended, we found many signs of effective adaptations, often quite localised and perhaps 'below the radar'. This is not the place for a detailed checklist, and we might not agree on all the details if we made one. One day we hope that the long-promised review of the North Commission's reforms will indeed provide such an assessment. But our report can only be a snapshot, a sense of the overall direction of movement and how well it measures up to the prospective challenges.

Two key observations emerge. First, much of the internal strength, resilience and adaptability of the University comes from its diverse ecology. Of course there is a need for overall co-ordination and administration, but this is often best when it is collaborative and supportive rather than directive. Out there in the departments, the laboratories, the colleges and the seminar rooms is where the scholarly creativity flourishes. All that talent and imagination is the essence of our institution and enables Oxford to cope with adversity. Business enterprises with focused objectives can flourish and excel, but they also take gambles and run out of road. Oxford's multiple objectives and diverse ecology may not be so agile, but the associated evolutionary adaptability could be the key to our long-term survival and success. Multiple objectives can best be reconciled through the constructive engagement of distributed energies.

Second, while Oxford is competing with many formidable rivals, and needs to measure its strengths and weaknesses against external yardsticks, ours is an institution that should also cherish its autonomy and vigorously defend its self-rule. To borrow intelligently and selectively from the experiences of others is essential. But too much reliance on standardised metrics designed for elsewhere would be misguided, and would in any case be unlikely to achieve the desired effects. Lessons from other institutions – even the Ivy Leagues, even Cambridge – are best incorporated selectively rather than through wholesale imitation. Our internal dynamics cannot simply be over-ridden, and conformity to external guidelines should always be tempered by careful appraisal.

Overall, therefore, we reach a positive conclusion. From our crow's nest we observe a very seaworthy vessel navigating in quite choppy waters, carrying some ancient ballast, but well supported by all hands and capable of learning the use of new instruments where they help keep the ship on course.

Beyond that summary assessment we also need to report more specifically on our own activities during the year. Proctorial responsibilities include ceremonial events, examinations, complaints and discipline as well as our role in scrutinising the running of the University on behalf of Congregation. We rapidly learned that the key to degree conferrals was (a) the confident projection of both the Latin instructions and the occasionally unpronounceable names of supplicants and (b) the need for perfect synchrony in walking and the doffing of caps. At Encaenia, the Public Orator in the person of Richard Jenkyns presented the honorands with his usual good humour and, of course, in elegant Latin. However, prior to the ceremony, it fell to the Junior Proctor to intercept Giorgio Napolitano, the President of Italy, as he headed to the front of the assembling procession in Exeter College, and to direct him to the back of the procession, which he accepted gracefully, despite his surprise as a Head of State.

During our proctorial year, there was a threat of industrial action by University staff in support of their grievances over pensions, and a working party was duly set up to monitor developments. It had to consider what would need to be done if the examiners for a particular subject failed to produce the required examination papers on time. The answer, to our horror, was that since it is the Proctors' responsibility to oversee the entire examination process, it would be up to us to set and mark the appropriate papers in subjects that were way beyond our knowledge and expertise. Luckily the situation never arose.

As you will see from the figures that will be appended to this Oration, the number of complaints received by the Proctors increased sharply from 124 last year to 224 in the present year. The overwhelming majority of these complaints (89%) were related to examination matters, and it is interesting to speculate that one of the reasons for the increase might be due to the widespread use of complaints procedures in GCSE and A-level examinations. Roughly one-third of the examination issues were requests for 'marks checks' which are only forwarded to Chairs of Examiners by the Proctors when there are good reasons for suspecting that there might have been procedural errors or mistakes in recording marks, as could be the case when the mark for one particular paper is substantially out of line with the candidate's other marks. However, it remains true that some colleges forward requests for marks checks where the only basis appears to be that the candidate is disappointed with the mark they have received.

Of more concern this year has been the increase in the number of errors on examination papers, including cases where questions were not set according to the syllabus. One-third of these complaints were upheld. In addition, a further 16 of the 25 complaints about the staging of examinations were upheld. These included situations where the incorrect question paper or the wrong materials were given to candidates. It is inevitable that some errors of this sort will arise, given the very large numbers of candidates and examinations. But more needs to be done to ensure that these errors are minimised.

There were also two cases where incorrect degree classifications were posted. Chairs of Examiners need to be particularly vigilant and to ensure that the correct versions of marks and results spreadsheets are forwarded to the Examination Schools.

Oxford is justifiably proud of its diversity in many respects, but in terms of examining conventions it is not clear that there is justification for the myriad different rules and procedures used by the various subjects. Do there really need to be 20 or more different sets of criteria for being awarded a first? And what determines whether an examiner should choose a 'failing mark' of 15 rather than 16? There are many issues of a similar nature which, by themselves, might not seem particularly important, but in our view the whole question of how we assess examinations, assign marks and decide on degree classes needs to be addressed if we are to prevent the criticism from both within and outwith the University. Education Committee has asked divisions to comment on their present practices. In our view we should be tackling this proactively.

This year has seen the start of the very welcome and long-overdue process of combining the different providers of IT support and facilities to the University – OUCS, Business Services and Projects, and the ICT Support Team – under the direction of the recently appointed Chief Information Officer. The provision of properly integrated IT facilities, from help-desks and WebLearn to the major financial and student support programs, is vital for the University. Most important from the Proctors' point of view will be the replacement of the OSS system that handles student records and examination matters. Much work has been done to ensure that previous mistakes are not repeated. Expectations of a significantly improved and enhanced system are high, and we hope that that this proves to be the case.

There have been some small but significant developments over the last year on IT matters relevant to examinations. We are presently trialling the use of a two-factor authentication process, developed by OUCS in conjunction with the Examination Schools and the Proctors' Office, that will permit the secure deposit of and access to the draft electronic copies of examination papers prepared by examiners and assessors. The traditional way of setting examination questions using paper and memory sticks needs to be brought into the 21st century. The same secure system will also allow examination marks to be transferred between examiners and administrative staff more easily, while at the same time minimising transcription errors. In addition, it should be possible in the coming months for examiners to submit final pdf copies of examination papers directly for printing, thereby eliminating the reproduction problems inherent in the present camera-ready copy process.

The discussion of IT matters inevitably brings us to the issue of plagiarism. Reported incidents may only reflect an uncertain proportion of the underlying total of cases, but it is notable that Oxford accounts for a minute fraction of the national figures as collated by the Independent on Sunday for last year. The good news is that the number of cases of plagiarism has not increased over the past year, but the not-so-good news is that the number of ways that unscrupulous students have attempted to gain an unfair advantage over their fellows by dishonest means has increased. At a less serious level, there are still too many cases of inadequate referencing in projects, theses and dissertations and, in particular, the identification of online sources.
The Proctors have also had to deal with more serious cases, where students have attempted to use the many websites and organisations that offer to write assignments on particular topics. In one instance, a student submitted the questions that were set for a take-home assignment to a number of 'help forums' and, as a consequence, benefited unfairly from the responses elicited.

The Turnitin program that is licensed to the University can help to address some of these problems, although it needs to be appreciated that it is not a 'plagiarism detection' package, and great care needs to be taken when evaluating its output. At present, the University does not have a coherent policy with respect to the use of Turnitin, and it is left to the Proctors to decide whether a particular course is permitted to use it for examination submissions. Should all submitted work be automatically run through Turnitin? Do students need to sign a declaration to allow this to happen? Who should evaluate Turnitin's output? These are issues that have already been addressed in many other UK universities where all material submitted for examination has to be screened in this way.

Although the number of cases of plagiarism has not shown a significant increase, the Proctors have had to deal with an unprecedented number of requests for extensions of time for submitted assignments, many of which only reach the office a couple of days before the deadline. The incoming Proctors may wish to consider whether late requests of this sort, that are not the result of urgent changes of circumstances, should be rejected. The number of unauthorised late submissions has also increased sharply, predominantly from taught masters students. Candidates need to be aware that, unless there are medical or other serious reasons for the late submission, the examiners are given permission to impose academic penalties.

The role of the Proctors in scrutinising the operations of the University's many committees is perhaps the most important of all our responsibilities. It has sometimes been put to us that key committees may be overly dependent on input from a relatively small group of Pro-V-Cs and heads of division. In our experience, however, most University committees are fortified by dedicated elected members of Congregation. If there is a shortcoming it sometimes seems to us that too few individuals in the wider University put themselves forward to play these important roles. There have occasionally been moments when we felt that particular meetings would have benefited from more discussion of strategic issues. Oxford should be aiming to be ahead of the game rather than merely following the practices of other universities or being reactive to the most recent demands of outside bodies. The role of the Proctors in considering complaints is a case in point. Oxford has an almost unique system for dealing with complaints that is based on the principle of independence from academic departments and the University hierarchy. We should not be in a hurry to abandon our own system, which is appreciated and admired by most outsiders, simply because it is not what is done elsewhere.

Turning now to student matters: in last year's White Paper, the government urged us to 'put students at the heart of the system'. Students have always been at the heart of this University, but one of the Assessor's concerns this year has been the particular experience of international students, and especially those whose first language is not English.

To arrive in a foreign country and plunge into Oxford's intense working and social environment is a challenge for every student, and when the language and culture of the country are unfamiliar, the experience is more challenging still. This year, the Assessor has worked with the Director of the Language Centre to improve English language support for students who are not native speakers. The first fruit of this collaboration is a new post at the centre, which will enable it to assess and teach more students the key skills of academic writing and oral presentation in English. Language, however, is not the only challenge for international students, and we welcome the start of a project headed by the Director of International Strategy, to consider the experience of international students in the round, and to develop more effective strategies to support their life and work at Oxford.

The welfare of all students, and the University's welfare provision, occupy much of every Assessor's time. Colleges and the University as a whole make extensive and growing arrangements for students, and college and Student Welfare and Support Services are well connected. Departmental provision is sometimes less developed and links with Student Welfare and Support Services less embedded. This is a matter of concern particularly for graduate students, who may spend more time in their faculty or department than in college. There is room for welfare provision to be better networked around the University, after the model of disabilities advice and provision, where both departments and colleges are aware of their role in making appropriate adjustments for disabilities, and know how the Disability Advisory Service can support them.

Behind our steadily increasing welfare provision lies an important question of principle which the Assessor has begun to explore this year. Most students are at an age to be negotiating the transition from adolescence to adulthood. In many ways they are highly sophisticated, but many have also grown up more protected, and with less experience of the world, than almost any of their predecessors. What is the right level of pastoral support for them? Both colleges and the University currently have a tendency to respond to what may be seen as the 'demands' of 'society' by steadily increasing welfare provision. The implied view of 'society', however, as a monolithic force that cannot be engaged with but only obeyed, is surely not one that any historian or sociologist, linguist or lawyer – or welfare professional – would recognise. Societies consist rather in many competing micro-societies, groups and institutions, all with distinctive cultures. To understand what constitutes appropriate welfare provision in this University, colleges, departments and the University as a whole need to recognise and have confidence in the distinctiveness of our culture, and the place of students within it. Developing such confidence would enable us better to explore what kinds and levels of welfare provision are appropriate in our community, and to enact and communicate them effectively. The Assessor considered this issue this year in triangular discussions with the Welfare Services and the colleges, but there is much still to do.

Questions of culture and the relationship of students with other parts of the University have concerned the Assessor in another context. The government, the media and some students themselves tell us that students today see themselves as consumers of education. The Assessor developed the project 'The idea of a university in the 21st century' – in collaboration with OUSU – to explore what members of the University understand by consumerism in education, and how they evaluate consumerism against alternative models of education in Oxford today. The result has been a vigorous dialogue between students, academic and administrative staff from every division and department of the University, via seminars, an undergraduate debate, Facebook, Twitter and an online questionnaire. Some of the ideas emerging have already been published; others will appear in the next few weeks, and more will be lodged on the University website for the next few months.

This year's Proctors and Assessor took up office just as the University submitted its Agreement with the Office for Fair Access for 2012–13, and questions of access have been one of the Assessor's ongoing interests. Working groups on access and bridging provision have generated a number of proposals which are now under discussion, and we urge the University to be as bold, as creative and as committed to equality of opportunity in developing new access initiatives as it was in drawing up its financial package for OFFA. It is vital that we do everything in our power to level the playing field for talented young people who want to study here – not only, or mainly, because the government requires it of us, but above all because it is the right thing to do.

Once students are here, increasing numbers will need funding support in the years to come. Undergraduates from 2012 will feel the weight of their increased debts. Many graduate students already carry heavy financial burdens, and those burdens are set to increase. In the past two years, through the University's Fees Panel and committees that award scholarships, bursaries and hardship grants, we have seen the fallout of the global financial crisis affecting more and more students. Over the next few years, no fundraising initiative will be more important than increasing the numbers of graduate scholarships to cover fees and living costs, and increasing hardship funds to meet the unexpected extra needs of both graduate students and undergraduates. There is no other way to recruit and retain the best students, regardless of their material circumstances.

The Assessor has an office to herself, whereas the two Proctors spend the year facing each other across a large desk strewn with files that might in principle be assigned to either of them. One day this whole system could founder if the two individuals concerned proved wholly incompatible. But at least in our experience it brought us together to a remarkable extent, and offered us an opportunity to compare our different backgrounds, and to learn from these contrasts. For those of us who study experimental psychology or political behaviour there are many opportunities to live out our theories. For example, is it the individual or the officeholder who is the bearer of authority? For 12 months we drop our personal names and are everywhere addressed through our roles. To help this process along we also dress for these roles. On one dark winter morning the Senior Proctor groped for his shirt, and mistakenly took up his palest pink instead of his official white. Throughout the day he went from event to event feeling he was in a state of permanent blush. Moreover much of the ceremonial and official side of what we do is heavily scripted. Who is this speaking to you today? Is it the regular (answerable – only to himself) academic, or the impersonal bearer of institutional practice and probity? Of course British public life is full of silly costumes and ceremonial roles, but this position has some almost unique features. For example, there are two Proctors, and much of what we do is in tandem. As a Proctor you get a crash course in the true significance of the term 'alter ego'. Just as you can't have one hand clapping, you can't have one Proctor processing. Thus, I can no longer doff my cap at my own volition – we must doff in synchrony and also master the art of co-ordinated walking. The Oxford roots of Lewis Carroll's universal archetypes could hardly be more evident. Had he not witnessed proctorial etiquette could he have invented Tweedledum and Tweedledee?

In principle a great deal of power and privilege is temporarily lodged in the office of the Proctors. They can attend any University meeting, summon any member to help with their enquiries into the proper functioning of the institution, and they are essentially answerable only to the law of the land and the good opinion of the corporate University. That is presumably why their tenure of office is so strictly limited to 364 days, after which, like the Cheshire Cat, only a hoped-for smile at their demitting Oration lingers on. My colleagues at Nuffield include eminent authorities on the ways of the international mafia. They tell me that the same yearly rotation in office prevails at the apex of the 'Ndrangheta, the dreaded Calabrian mafia. The capo criminoso must relinquish all leadership attributes voluntarily at the twelfth month, or he would become an intolerable threat to all his associates. The implicit contract is a matter of honour, but also of institutional and personal survival. The Calabrian equivalent of the OIA stands ready to enforce that contract, and – like their UK counterpart – no-one crosses them with impunity. So you can either step down to applause and live on under the protection of your partners, or – if you showed the slightest sign of wishing to appropriate the powers with which you were temporarily entrusted – you can become a threat to all, in which case you will never enjoy another day of peace with them.

So, for over 700 years, Proctors have always demitted on time, and we are no exception.

So, on the ninth week of Hilary, we say our farewell to these:

Nine Pro-V-Cs
Eight subcommittees
Seven working parties
Six curatorships
Five strategic plans
Four division heads
Three freshmen
Two Proctors' gowns
And one – very gracious – V-C.

Proctorial Year 2011–12

Summary of Complaints Cases

During 2011–12, the Proctors received a total of 224 complaints for investigation under the provisions of Statute IX and the relevant Council regulations, compared with 124 the previous year. In addition, they completed the investigation of a number of complaints carried over from the previous proctorial year. In three of the new cases where the Proctors had prior involvement or other potential conflict of interest, the Vice-Chancellor appointed other members of Congregation to deal with the matter in their place. In summary (totals for previous year are given in brackets):

Taught-course examinations (undergraduate and postgraduate): 197 (105)

Of these new cases, 70 involved a straightforward marks check and led to corrective action in only one instance. The Proctors upheld, in whole or in part, a total of 45 complaints relating to new cases, together with two complaints carried over from the previous year. 22 complaints remain under consideration.

Research student matters: 12 (8)

The Proctors upheld one of these complaints, in addition to three complaints from previous years, and provided appropriate redress. Four of the complaints were not upheld and seven remain under consideration.

Equal Opportunities: 0 (0)

Harassment: 2 (6)

Neither of the new complaints was upheld. One case carried over from the previous year resulted in disciplinary action being taken against the student member concerned.

Maladministration: 2 (2)

Quality of/access to teaching, learning, support facilities: 3 (0)

One completed case was referred for action at college/departmental level. The other two complaints remain under consideration. Some of the examinations-related cases reported elsewhere include representations about matters such as teaching provision and quality of supervision.

Suspension/rustication: 3 (0)

None of these complaints was upheld.

Student Union: 1 (1)

The complaint was upheld and the Student Union agreed to revise a particular procedure.

Other: 4 (2)

Three of these complaints were not upheld and the fourth remains under consideration.

Total new complaints: 224, of which 48 were upheld in whole or in part, along with seven complaints carried forward from the previous year; appropriate redress was provided in each case. 143 complaints were not upheld, were withdrawn or required no further action, and 33 remain under consideration.

Summary of Disciplinary Cases

Information is provided below about the number of cases where disciplinary proceedings took place. Totals for previous year are given in brackets. Where students were accused of more than one breach of the regulations relating to the same incident, the case is reported under the most serious of the allegations. Information is also given about numbers of cases where investigations were carried out but no breach of regulations was alleged by the Proctors, and about numbers of cases still under investigation.

BREACH OF STATUTE XI CODE OF DISCIPLINE

Forgery/falsification of university document and/or dishonest behaviour: 2 (2)

In two cases carried forward from the previous proctorial year the Student Disciplinary Panel expelled two students who had engaged in dishonest behaviour towards the University. An appeal to the Student Appeal Panel by one student member against the decision of the Student Disciplinary Panel was dismissed.

In two cases, the Student Disciplinary Panel directed that students who had engaged in dishonest behaviour towards the University should be rusticated.

(One case remains under investigation.)

Misuse of property (Information Technology facilities): 0 (2)

(In three cases, the Proctors decided to conclude their investigations without invoking disciplinary proceedings.)

Engaging in offensive behaviour or language: 0 (0)

(In one case, the Proctors decided to conclude their investigation without invoking disciplinary proceedings.)

Engaging in activities likely to cause injury or impair safety and/or disorderly behaviour: 3 (3)

In one case, the Student Disciplinary Panel imposed a fine of £250 on a student member and ordered him/her to write a letter of apology to the aggrieved party.

In two cases, the Proctors' Disciplinary Hearing imposed fines of £150 and £80 respectively on the student members concerned.

Inciting or conspiring with other persons to engage in any of the conduct prohibited under the Code of Discipline: 1 (2)

In one case, where a student member obstructed or attempted to obstruct the Proctors in performance of their duties, the Student Disciplinary Panel imposed a fine of £200 and the student was given a formal written warning.

Misappropriation of University property: 0 (0)

Library misuse: 1 (0)

The Student Disciplinary panel imposed a fine of £25 on a student member who passed his/her card to another student for library use.

Damaging/defacing University property: 2 (0)

In one case, the Proctors' Disciplinary Hearing imposed a fine of £150 on a student member who damaged property of the University. In the second case, the Proctors' Disciplinary Hearing ordered a student member who defaced property of the University to pay compensation of £35.50 to the Estates Directorate (which had to rectify the defacement).

(In one case, the Proctors decided that the case could be dealt with more appropriately as a welfare matter, not a disciplinary one. Similarly, the Proctors decided that a further case could be disposed of without invoking disciplinary proceedings.)

BREACH OF RULES COMMITTEE REGULATIONS

Behaviour after examinations: 7 (8)

The Proctors' Disciplinary Hearing considered seven cases and imposed fines as follows : one fine of £100; four of £80 ; one of £50. In one case, the student concerned was found not to have breached the regulations.

(In two cases, the Proctors decided to give informal warnings about the students' future conduct. In four further cases, the Proctors decided to conclude their investigations without invoking disciplinary proceedings).

Immediate Fines: 14 (23)

Fourteen Immediate Fines were imposed: one fine was later withdrawn and the case referred to the University Registrar; eleven of £80; two of £50.

In one of the above cases, a student who appealed to the Student Disciplinary Panel against the imposition of an Immediate Fine had his/her appeal dismissed.

Failure to obtain permission for absence: 0 (0)

(In six cases, where students failed to obtain permission for absence from the University in connection with an overseas sports tour during full term, the Proctors decided to informally warn students about their future conduct.)

BREACH OF THE PROCTORS' DISCIPLINARY REGULATIONS FOR UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS

Academic misconduct (including plagiarism): 8 (7)

In two cases, the Student Disciplinary Panel directed that the Examiners should disregard the particular (plagiarised) work. The candidates were permitted to re-submit particular work under specified conditions.

In one case, the Student Disciplinary Panel directed that the Examiners should award the (plagiarised) work marks of zero and marginal fail, which resulted in the candidate failing the examination. He/she was permitted to re-enter the examination under specified conditions and with a marks penalty.

The Student Disciplinary Panel directed that the Examiners should fail one candidate's (plagiarised) work, which resulted in him/her failing the course. He/she was permitted to re-enter the examination under specified conditions.

In a further case, the Student Disciplinary Panel directed that the Examiners should fail the piece of work concerned, which would result in the candidate failing the course.

In one case, the Student Disciplinary Panel directed that the Examiners should fail a candidate's (plagiarised) work, with the effect that the candidate failed the examination. Further, the candidate was expelled from the University with immediate effect.

In one case, the Student Disciplinary Panel directed that the Examiners should fail the (plagiarised) work. He/she was fined £200 and permitted to re-enter the examination under specified conditions and with a marks penalty.

In a further case, the Student Disciplinary Panel directed that specified work should receive a mark of zero. The candidate was fined £200 and permitted to re-enter the examination under specified conditions.

(In ten cases, where the Proctors were satisfied that candidates did not intentionally or recklessly breach the Proctors' Disciplinary Regulations for University Examinations in respect of work which they submitted for examination, the Proctors decided that the cases could be dealt with more appropriately within the normal academic process.)

(Four cases remain under investigation.)

Unauthorised materials in an examination room: 3 (2)

The Student Disciplinary Panel imposed a fine of £100 on one candidate who took a mobile telephone into an examination room.

The Proctors' Disciplinary Hearing imposed a fine of £40 on one candidate who took a mobile telephone into an examination room.

(One case remains under investigation.)

Total cases where breaches were alleged: 41 (26)

Cases investigated but no breaches alleged: 28

OTHER MATTERS

In four cases, where student members of the University were the subject of police investigations, no proctorial action was taken because either no charges were brought or charges were subsequently dropped.

The Proctors dealt with 309 (208) new cases of students reported by libraries for non-payment of fines and/or non-return of books. Replacement costs recovered for non-returned books: £1,510.47; library fines paid: £4,136.53. Total amount recovered: £5,647.00.

If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise, the legislative proposals and the resolution shall be carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Griffiths Memorial Studentship

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal amends the nature of and selection committee for the studentship, and brings the restriction on candidates in line with the Equality Act 2010 by targeting persons who are ordinarily resident in (rather than citizens of) the United Kingdom. In addition, it is proposed to update the mechanics for amending the trust to reflect the University's current practice and the trust's new status as a scheduled trust.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Griffiths Memorial Studentship, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002, pp. 133–59), after Part 71 insert the following new Part 74[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'~~§ 138.~~ Part 74: Jeremy Griffiths Memorial Studentship Fund

74.1. The University accepts with gratitude from Mr and Mrs John Griffiths a gift of assets to establish a fund in memory of their son, to be known as the Jeremy Griffiths Memorial Studentship Fund.

74.2. The board of management for the fund shall be the Board of the Faculty of English Language and Literature, which shall make regulations concerning the award of the studentship.

74.3. The net income of the fund shall be used, if there is a suitable candidate, to provide a studentship to a ~~citizen of~~ person ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom to study for a taught graduate degree in a field relating to the history of the book in the British Isles before ~~1625~~ 1550 (MSt English (650–1550) or MPhil English).

74.4. ~~The selection committee for the studentship shall consist of~~

~~(1) the Director of Graduate Studies of the Board of the Faculty of English Language and Literature;~~

~~(2) the Reader in Bibliography and Textual Criticism;~~

~~(3) the University Lecturer in Palaeography;~~

~~(4) the J.R.R. Tolkien Professor of English Literature and Language or his or her nominee;~~

~~(5), (6) two persons appointed by the Governing Body of St John's College.~~

Selection of the studentship recipient will be in line with faculty graduate admissions procedures in consultation with the J R R Tolkien Professor of English Literature and Language, the Jeremy Griffiths Professor of Medieval English Palaeography and St Hilda's College, as necessary.

74.5. The studentship shall be tenable at St ~~John's~~ Hilda's College.

74.6. The studentship shall normally be awarded for a period of ~~two~~ one years ~~but~~ and may be renewed for not more than one further year for a student continuing to the MPhil English.

74.7. ~~Holders of the studentship shall be required to submit an annual report to the board of management, and c~~Continued tenure of the award shall depend upon satisfactory progress towards completion of the graduate degree concerned.

74.8. Income not expended in any year shall be carried forward for expenditure in subsequent years.

74.9. Congregation ~~Council~~ shall have power to amend this ~~decree~~ Part from time to time, ~~provided that~~ other than the purposes of the fund, as defined in ~~cll.~~ sections 74.1, 74.3, and 74.5 above~~, shall always be kept in view~~.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p. 645, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), delete § 139 and renumber existing §§ 140–74 as §§ 139–73.

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [date] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal provides for the above Fund to be used to promote the teaching and research of Celtic in the University in the event that, for whatever reason, there is no holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD*, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it,* ENACTS*, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council,* AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002, pp. 133–59), after Part 71 insert the following new Part 75[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'~~§ 43.~~ Part 75: Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund

75.1. The University receives with gratitude a benefaction from Jesus College, Oxford, to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Jesus Professorship of Celtic Endowment Fund ("the Fund").

75.2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

75.3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of the holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic and associated overheads. The Professor shall undertake research, lecture and give instruction in Celtic. If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Professor are wholly or partly covered from other sources or there are further funds available, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or the capital of the Fund to support the Professor's research. Whenever, for whatever reason, there is no holder of the Jesus Professorship of Celtic there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or the capital of the Fund to promote the teaching and research of Celtic in the University.

75.4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Humanities Divisional Board.

75.5. The Professor shall be elected by an electoral board consisting of:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor, or, if the Principal of Jesus College is Vice-Chancellor, a person appointed by Council;

(2) the Principal of Jesus College, or, if the Principal is unable or unwilling to act, a person appointed by the Governing Body of Jesus College;

(3) a person appointed by the Governing Body of Jesus College;

(4), (5) two persons appointed by Council;

(6) the Head of the Humanities Division, or his or her nominee;

(7) a person appointed by the Board of the Faculty of English;

(8), (9) two persons appointed by the Board of the Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages.

75.6. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending on 30 January 2033 ~~21 years from the date of this regulation~~, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

75.7. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Professorship.

75.8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with ~~these regulations~~ this Part.

75.9. ~~Regulations~~ Sections 75.1–4 and 75.6–11 shall be deemed to be trust provisions under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

75.10. Subject to ~~regulation~~ section 75.11, Council may amend, repeal or add to ~~these regulations~~ this Part in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

75.11. Any amendment to ~~regulation~~ section 75.3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Section III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002, concerning academic and other posts (Statutes, 2000, p. 404, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p. 1461), delete § 43 and renumber existing §§ 44–394 as §§ 43–393.

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [date] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

(3) Voting on Resolution authorising expenditure from the Higher Studies Fund

That the University be authorised to expend, from the element of the Higher Studies Fund earmarked for Social Studies, £24,000 spread over three years, to support the research of the new Professor of Economics at All Souls, Professor Mark Armstrong.

[1]The number is subject to the approval of other legislative proposals and may therefore change.

Consultative notices

Proposals for Honorary Degrees to be conferred at the Encaenia in 2013, and for Degrees by Diploma

Members of Congregation are encouraged to suggest the names of people on whom such degrees might be conferred. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty, and Encaenia honorary degrees are conferred at the University's annual ceremonial event. When considering possible honorands, the Honorary Degrees Committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1. those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford;

2. those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts;

3. those distinguished in business and industry;

4. those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society;

5. those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford – such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within those categories, the committee will aim to produce a balanced list, which takes account of the international dimension that characterises this University's activities. The committee therefore encourages the nomination of individuals of conspicuous distinction who represent the diversity of human achievement, with particular reference to gender, ethnicity and discipline.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service.

Nominations should be sent on the approved application form, which is available from Mrs C Benton (telephone: (2)80107, email: ceri.benton@admin.ox.ac.uk) or can be downloaded by staff accessing the University website from the Oxford University Network (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/councilsec/committees/hondegs). The completed form should be sent to Mrs C Benton, University Offices, Wellington Square, by 27 April under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the Honorary Degrees Committee, which submits its report to Council at the beginning of Michaelmas term. After discussion, Council will report back to the Honorary Degrees Committee, which will arrive at a list of honorands to put to Congregation.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred may be found in the University Calendar, 2011–12, pp. 545–9.

This year's honorands are:

- Baroness (Elizabeth Lydia) Manningham-Buller
- Mr David John Moore Cornwell (John le Carré)
- Professor Drew Gilpin Faust
- Sir Howard Stringer
- Professor Charles Margrave Taylor
- Dr Henry Joseph Macaulay Barnett
- Professor William Daniel Phillips

Curators of the University Libraries
The Bodleian Libraries: Annual Report August 2010–July 2011

Introduction

The year to 31 July 2011 has been one of the most remarkable in the Bodleian Libraries' 400-year history. At the beginning of the year the initial steps in the upheavals accompanying the metamorphosis in the libraries' estate and services had been taken, but the libraries – and in particular the central Bodleian Library – were functioning much as they had done for decades. By the end of the year almost every aspect had been radically transformed: the new repository at Swindon had opened and was well on the way to being filled; staff, books and furnishings had gone from the New Bodleian Library; the Old Bodleian Library and Radcliffe Camera had been rejuvenated by the opening of the Gladstone Link; and a new Integrated Library System was in place. All of these transformations were interconnected and hiatuses in one could easily have impinged upon the progress of the others, but by the end of the year this had been achieved at breakneck pace with barely any interruption in services, setting a new benchmark for libraries worldwide.

At the same time new services and projects were initiated and significant collections were acquired. Fundraising activities continued, and the libraries were fortunate enough to benefit from the kindness of many donors; and this was done in the face of the financial exigencies resulting from recession, and the requirement to make savings so that the libraries could play their part in meeting the challenges resulting from the downturn in the global economy.

This has been a very stimulating year with a roster of achievement in which anyone should take pride. As Bodley's Librarian I am enormously pleased to be able to present this report, and to pay tribute to the commitment, efficiency and enterprise of the staff of the Bodleian Libraries who have accomplished so unprecedented a success.

Sarah E Thomas
Bodley's Librarian

Transformation

Book Storage Facility

At the start of the year the new Book Storage Facility (BSF) at South Marston, on the edge of Swindon, was nearing completion, and was handed over to the libraries on time and within budget on 6 September 2010. In the preceding weeks the libraries' Estates Projects office had been closely involved in the completion and subsequent fit-out of the facility: some 500,000 archival storage trays were procured, a detailed planogram for book storage produced and contracts placed for the supply of the BSF's fleet of high-level order pickers. The collection processing areas were designed, equipped and set up. By the end of October 2010 the furniture and IT had been installed, 38 agency staff trained, and the first book from the Oxford collections ingested.

The opening of the Book Storage Facility, under the supervision of Boyd Rodger, signalled the start of an intensive period of activity whose main focus was the requirement to vacate the New Bodleian by 31 July 2011 so that work on its redevelopment as the Weston Library could begin. The Book Storage Facility, in which all the material is stored in a regulated warehouse environment which maintains a constant temperature and humidity level consistent with the standards required under British Standard BS5454, was the key enabler in the libraries' overall academic strategy.

Throughout the period, the Ingest Project Team at the facility helped to maintain the flow of books going into the warehouse, adapting staffing levels flexibly to meet requirements (for example, by putting on a second shift in February 2011). This stage of the ingest was completed on 29 July 2011, at which time over 5.3 million items had been ingested, an average of almost 140,000 items every week.

The retrieval service supplying items from the Book Storage Facility to readers went live on 8 November 2010. The Ingest Project Team supported the early stages of the service, until in April 2011 recruitment to the permanent Operations Team started.

During this start-up year the book delivery service from the BSF has significantly evolved. It started as a once-a-day service because of the low volume of material stored in the warehouse. By August the two operational teams were established and offering a service from 7 am to 10 pm (Monday to Friday). They retrieve items at 7 am, 10 am, 2 pm, 5 pm and 7.30 pm. This has reduced delivery times by five hours and supports two scheduled deliveries from the BSF to Oxford at 7 am and 12.30 pm.

Book moves

The speed with which books and other materials were moved into the Book Storage Facility could not have been achieved without herculean efforts from the Bookmoving Team led by Bruce Wainwright. Their work had begun the previous year with the move of Special Collections material from the New Bodleian into a temporary home specially prepared for them in the Radcliffe Science Library, and during the year the team had to deal with a variety of moves additional to the main decant of more than 3 million items from the New Bodleian.

The first of the additional moves was the transfer of the Official Papers collection (and its staff) to an area made available in the basement of the Bodleian Law Library, and the opening of a new reading room on the ground floor of the St Cross Building. Over 2,500 metres of material were moved, ten new reader places made available and wireless installed as well as power for laptops and a computer for consultation. The new service officially opened in October 2010.

The Official Papers collection was moved from the Underground Bookstore beneath the lawn of the Radcliffe Camera, which was being emptied in preparation for the construction of the Gladstone Link. The whole Underground Bookstore work involved moving out 15,777 linear metres of material over 66 working days and later refilling the space recreated as the Gladstone Link with 4,008 linear metres of high-use material in shelfmark order in 23 working days.

The main task, of course, was to empty the New Bodleian Library mainly to the Book Storage Facility but also involving some consequential moves for material transferred to the smaller libraries. The move involved 10,671 drawers of maps, representing over 1.2 million sheet maps and 84,831 linear metres of bound and loose-leaf materials, ranging from books no more than two inches high to bound volumes of broadsheet newspapers.

Barcoding

All the material moved to the Book Storage Facility had to be barcoded before ingest by the Inventory Control Team led by Michael Williams. Barcoding began in March 2010 but the pace of work quickened during the year as the team worked to ensure that the book movers always had material available for moving. Teams of yellow-jacketed barcoders – many of them students supplementing their income – swarmed over the bookstacks like bees in a hive. Not only were the collections barcoded, but in the process legal deposit material was identified wherever possible: this allowed a substantial saving to be made on the VAT arising from the building costs of the facility.

Technically the most challenging element of the process was the matching up of the barcoded items with their records in the catalogue, and the accurate recording of their relocation as they moved to the facility; the complexity of the relationships between books on shelves and records in the catalogue was even greater than had been imagined, and the team constantly devised new workflows and methods to keep the process on track for completion in July 2011. Monographs were barcoded using software designed and built by the OLIS team. The extensive periodical collections proved quite challenging and a variety of barcoding techniques was introduced to accommodate the differences in arrangement of the collections and the level of cataloguing. The most difficult cases were escalated for specialist attention in order to associate the barcode correctly with an entry in the library catalogue. To the end of July 2011, 452,515 items received this attention, including the addition of 43,141 basic catalogue records for books which had no record previously.

At the same time as emptying the New Bodleian, the Inventory Control Team tackled the barcoding of almost 2 million items temporarily housed (for want of space in the libraries) in a salt mine in Cheshire. By undertaking to vacate the mine by the end of June 2011 the libraries realised a substantial saving in storage costs; so every day a 40-tonne lorry left the salt mine carrying 1,000 boxes of books, and every day these were barcoded and the following day sent to the Book Storage Facility. A total of 52 kilometres – 145,000 boxes – of books was processed.

The Team also found 4,541 items which had previously been mis-shelved or reported as missing.

Book Storage Facility Information System (BSFIS)

The Book Storage Facility is constructed on the Very Narrow Aisle (VNA) principle with 12-metre-high shelving reached by ascending vehicles known as high-level order pickers. All the contents are identified by barcodes – hence the need for the Inventory Control Project – and locations and movements are tracked by the warehouse management system, known as the Book Storage Facility Information System (BSFIS). The BSFIS is based on software from a US vendor Generation Fifth Applications (GFA). The software manages all book-related operations within the BSF including ingest, retrieval and re-file. The BSFIS holds the location of every item placed in the BSF, matching each barcoded item to the tray in which it is housed, and each tray to a unique shelf address among the 97,500 shelves within the BSF.

One of the key interfaces is that between the BSFIS and OLIS, the Library Management System, to ensure that books can be found when ordered. Every night, information was passed from OLIS to BSFIS about material released by the barcoders after barcoding and the resolution of escalated problems. Hard on the heels of the barcoding, the Bookmoves Team transferred to the material to the BSF for ingest. Close cooperation between the Inventory Control and BSFIS teams – including stationing Inventory Control team staff at the BSF itself – resolved problems arising when barcoded items arriving at the Book Storage Facility could not immediately be matched with the BSFIS's files of expected items. Given the rapid speed of the process, maintaining control over the resolution of NOFs ('not-on-files') was a crucial element requiring the close cooperation of a number of teams, in order to keep the whole process on track.

Following the ingest of material from the New Bodleian and Deepstore, the BSFIS held the location of over 5.3 million items.

Integrated Library System

A complicating factor in the development of BSFIS was that, at the same time as the installation of the BSFIS, the libraries' Integrated Library System, OLIS, was being replaced by a new system, which uses the Aleph product from Ex Libris, in a process scheduled for implementation in July 2011. This entailed writing programs for BSFIS to communicate with both old and new systems. Because of the close interconnection between the warehouse and library management systems, both projects – BSFIS and ILS replacement – were managed by Business Applications Development Manager Andrew Bonnie.

The implementation project lasted 18 months, culminating in the launch as planned in July. The team worked extremely hard, in conjunction with the University's ICT Support Team, to recover from a major failure of the outgoing system just four days before the planned migration; Aleph is configured to avert the dangers posed by the risk of such failures. The implementation included the successful migration of 7.2 million bibliographic records, more than 13 million item records and 92,000 patron records from the old system. Preparation for the change included training for over 460 members of staff and putting in place the configuration for more than 90 libraries.

The new ILS provides a fully supported platform for the library's core operations, including enhanced cataloguing options through the provision of full Unicode support, greater integration with SOLO ('Search Oxford Libraries Online' – the readers' interface to the catalogue) and a simplified approach to the management of closed-stack requests.

A major upgrade of the software underlying SOLO was introduced for Michaelmas term 2010. It included many functional enhancements. Oxford has enjoyed a partnership with the software vendor, Ex Libris, in the development of Primo Central, a product that enables our readers to search rapidly a massive, cross-disciplinary database of 400 million articles from within SOLO. In addition, through a benefaction from the philanthropist Zvi Meitar, we have been able to incorporate the bX Recommender service, allowing readers to see patterns of usage by scholars worldwide of the material they are consulting, and enrichment data (such as tables of contents) for our records, both of which improve considerably the searching and user experience of SOLO.

Staff relocation

The safe removal of 3.5 million items from the New Library over nine months may be the attention-grabbing achievement, but the relocation of over 200 staff from the building in the same period was no less challenging. The majority of staff relocated to the administration block at Osney, which itself underwent a number of alterations to accommodate its new tenants. The whole of the Collections and Resource Description department moved during September 2010, and much of the Conservation and Collection Care department followed shortly thereafter. A number of smaller departments – Imaging Services, Publications and some curatorial and reader services staff – also moved. Some Conservation and Collection Care staff moved into the Clarendon Building, as did over a dozen curatorial staff. Music and Maps staff (and the reading room collections) were moved into Duke Humfrey's Library, where space was available consequent upon the provision of Special Collections facilities for readers in the Radcliffe Science Library. Other curatorial staff moved into the Old Bodleian Library. Facilities Management staff were also split between Osney and the central Bodleian site, reflecting their changing responsibilities in relation to the libraries' estate.

New Bodleian Library

The redevelopment of the New Bodleian Library into the Weston Library opening in 2015, designed by Wilkinson Eyre Architects, has three aims: to create high-quality storage for the libraries' valuable special collections, which include the rare and unique manuscripts, books and maps that the Bodleian preserves for the international world of scholarship; to develop the libraries' space for the support of advanced research; and to expand public access to its great treasures through new exhibition galleries and other facilities. Throughout the year, Estates Projects worked closely with the Design Team working through RIBA Stage E and part of Stage F. Estates Projects managed the final clearance of the building's furniture and equipment and the strip-out of fittings ahead of handover. The main and demolition contractors were appointed. All heritage furniture was inventoried and moved into storage, and at the same time support was given to the Inventory Control and Bookmoving Teams.

In March the libraries were pleased to announce a $3 million donation by Charles and George David in memory of their father, Charles Wendell David, who attended Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar and went on to careers in the United States as a medieval historian and pioneering university librarian. The donation will be marked by naming the New Bodleian 'penthouse' reading room in his honour.

On 29 July a celebratory party was held in the former PPE reading room to celebrate the successful emptying of the New Bodleian Library. Bodley's Librarian was formally piped from the building carrying the final item to be removed: the manuscript of Jane Austen's The Watsons, acquired just two weeks previously. The building was officially handed to the contractors on 1 August 2011.

Direct access and the Gladstone Link

One element of the academic strategy lay in making more material directly available to readers. This was achieved by remodelling the Underground Bookstore – built 100 years ago to accommodate the libraries' first high-density mobile shelving, as conceived by none other than William Gladstone – to form a new reader space, the Gladstone Link, with some 120 seats and provision for approximately 270,000 items on open access. This roughly doubled the open-shelf provision on the central Bodleian site to around 500,000. The items included high-use material selected on the basis of previous use by readers, and the most recent (three–four years') intake of academic material not already placed elsewhere on open shelves. This new open-access area contributed to the Library's strategy of keeping high-use material in Oxford and lesser-used material at the Book Storage Facility in Swindon.

The opportunity was taken to offer a new kind of study space for readers, with furniture of various styles, shapes, sizes and heights, and including a group study area. The Gladstone Link provides a study environment contrasting with the more formal reading rooms in the Old Bodleian Library and Radcliffe Camera. At the same time it respects the industrial heritage of the original space and retains a proportion of the Gladstone-designed bookshelves. It opened in July 2011 (with a formal ceremony later in the year) and has been enthusiastically welcomed by readers.

The Gladstone Link was a major element in the Underground Bookstore/Old Bodleian project but not the only one. An important aim was to improve the accessibility of the Link itself and the surrounding areas. To this end two book hoists were installed, between the basement and main levels of the Gladstone Link, and a platform lift was installed between the main level of the Gladstone Link and the Lower Radcliffe Camera Reading Room to facilitate book movement and shelving and to assist with access to the Radcliffe Camera for people whose mobility is impaired. A new staircase was designed around this lift, replacing a very steep stairwell.

The tunnel that links the Old Bodleian Library and Radcliffe Camera was refurbished and opened up to readers; it now provides a vibrant passage between the two buildings. The opening of the tunnel was a key aspect of the policy of encouraging more freedom of movement for readers within the secure perimeter of the buildings. At the Old Library end of the tunnel a new lift was installed in the shaft formerly occupied by the book conveyor in the north-west corner of the Library. For the first time in its history, the Library can offer access to wheelchair users and greatly improved access for anyone who cannot easily manage stairs. In addition the lift is used for book deliveries to the Old Library reading rooms and for moving books around within the building. As part of the work to install the new lift, the ground floor of the Old Bodleian Library was remodelled to improve the coat and bag storage provision for readers including new clear-fronted lockers, and a disabled toilet provided on the ground floor for readers and visitors attending events. Previously the only such provision had been in the New Bodleian Library. In addition the first- and second- floor landings in the northwest corner were remodelled: the first-floor landing now includes a dedicated storage area for book trolleys and deliveries, while the second-floor landing has been left clear as a breakout area so that readers can enjoy the beautiful views of Oxford from this space. Remodelling the second-floor landing also revealed a section of the Upper Reading Room frieze that had previously been obscured by masonry partitions.

The Old Schools Quadrangle was repaved (using existing paving where possible) as part of the project. Not only was the historic space in need of repair but an etching from 1675 shows the threshold of various doors of the Quadrangle as level with the ground. Restoring and relevelling the Quadrangle allowed the Bodleian to offer level access at four major doorways, enabling the removal of several ramps and improving access for people with impaired mobility. Last but not least, a Tea Room for readers (with separate area for staff) was created in the Schola Grammaticae et Historiae in the Quadrangle's northeast corner. This is a facility that readers have often requested when surveyed about the library.

The outcome has been the creation of more flexible and more accessible spaces, and new facilities for readers.

Just-in-Time

Throughout the period of book and staff moves, remodelling buildings and their allied services, and the introduction of new IT systems, staff continued to offer a first-rate service to readers. In addition to coping with changes themselves, they had to guide readers through the changes and did so with good humour, patience and professionalism.

In addition a new service was introduced, the 'Just-in-Time' Project, which was established and developed in October and November 2010 to supply readers with materials made temporarily inaccessible as a result of book moves and estates projects. The aim was that, during barcoding, book moves and BSF ingest procedures, most material would be inaccessible for no more than three weeks, and the Just-in-Time team's task was to find substitutes for the 5% of materials unavailable at any moment in time, if these were requested. Clear procedures, workflows and hierarchies of alternate sources were developed for the operation of the service: between October 2010 and July 2011, 3,580 requests were dealt with by the service, 90% of them successfully resolving the problems.

The essential role of the college libraries in supporting the Just-in-Time initiative deserves to be acknowledged here.

The service was extended to cover all offsite materials made inaccessible during the ILS migration to Aleph, in addition to those involved in book moves. A web-based request form and a range of alternative sources were developed for use during this period. Additional staff were recruited from across the Bodleian Libraries to assist with the service, and carried out preliminary work on requests and supported the core team during peak periods. 481 requests were received during the migration period, of which 99.6% were resolved successfully.

During the migration a new service was introduced – on the SOLO home page a 'live help' box using Meebo was introduced during core hours, allowing readers to ask questions directly of library staff and receive an online answer in real time. The service was at first only intended to run during the migration and the initial period of operation of the new ILS, while readers became familiar with the new system; but it was so instantly popular and received such strongly positive feedback that the service has been retained as a permanent addition to the libraries' range of reader support facilities.

Responding to our users

While the enormous upheavals were in progress, staff continued to provide undiminished services to readers and introduced several initiatives.

Science and Medicine

The Plant Sciences and Zoology printed resources were made more easily available by reclassification and incorporation of unique titles into the Radcliffe Science Library single sequence, locating books in the Lankester Room and periodicals in upper reading rooms. The Radcliffe Science Library continued to monitor physical space usage by use of the Sentry security system and conducted an analysis of needs to survey the usage of printed collections at the library.

The Radcliffe Science Library has acquired Kindles for loan to readers and during the year it purchased additional relevant book content for them. In addition, the range of e-readers available was increased by the introduction of loanable iPads with preloaded e-book content and apps.

The Health Care Libraries created online tutorials on topics such as finding the evidence and how to access NHS online resources, in response to students' needs and schedules.

Social Sciences

The Bodleian Law Library created 35 separate guides to resources and collections covering 16 jurisdictions and 16 legal subjects. In addition, five guides to the various Official Papers collections were also produced. The Library works in close cooperation with the Law Faculty, and members of the Law Library were the recipients of the Bodleian Libraries Teaching and Learning Award 2011.

The Sainsbury Library at the Saïd Business School secured the installation of a digital wall-mounted flatscreen monitor behind the information desk with a looping PowerPoint presentation which displays information to orient users to the library environment, both physically and by signposting them to our online presence. The library took part in a school-initiated exercise resulting in a revised platform of services covering both the Park End Street users and those staff and participants located at its Egrove executive education campus. As a result, induction programs delivered to Executive Education course participants have been a significant and exciting addition to the service and information delivery work of the staff of the library.

The Bodleian Education Library introduced sessions integrated into academic programmes, for all students, covering: literature searching for assignments; managing references; working with the literature for theses; and systematic review training. For Master's and DPhil students, the librarian also ran a range of joint seminars and workshops with the Director of Graduate Studies, to train students in topics such as doing the literature review and avoiding plagiarism and a series of Dissertation Skills Workshops for all Master's students. All sessions are now listed in academic timetables and course handbooks, making them an integral part of the academic programme. The library increased its online training through its suite of information skills tutorials on WebLearn: six video tutorials were provided, with accompanying tutorials to practise the skills. The library continued to work to digitise eligible core reading list materials, funded by the Department of Education.

The Latin American Centre Library made good progress with a project to reduce duplicated and unused stock to provide a relevant and focused working collection.

The Tylor Library for Social and Cultural Anthropology produced a new Anthropology subject guide and the library's first full website to enhance its online presence; and work started on converting the library classification scheme from home-grown to Library of Congress, in consultation with academic staff.

At the end of Trinity term, the Social Science Library organised and hosted a new event, 'Social Science Showcase' (branded as 'Sssh…'). Of the initial 30 students who signed up using an online booking form, 19 graduates presented posters, representing research from nine departments in the Social Sciences Division. Professor Roger Goodman, Head of the Social Sciences Division, gave a speech to welcome participants in which he highlighted the crucial relationship between the library and the research it supports. Afterwards he wrote:

> I thought the SSD Sssh was a fabulous event … I genuinely cannot remember the last time I felt such a buzz around a group of graduates. It was quite different from most poster sessions … because displays were not limited to a single discipline but spanned the whole of the social sciences. It certainly opened my eyes to the quality and diversity of the work of our students and I have no doubt that it opened the eyes of many of the students too.

Divisional emphasis on research methods and transferable skills was well supported by the library's Graduate Search Clinics programme, a set of ten sessions designed to support interdisciplinary research and develop effective searching skills. Workshops included: 'Turning a research question into an effective search strategy'; 'Newspapers and analysis: tools for researching global affairs'; and 'Resources for researching public policy'. The library also offered hands-on workshops embedded in the department's curriculum.

The library joined the Bodleian Libraries' website, creating a new set of pages in time for the beginning of Michaelmas term 2010. A key part of the new site comprises a growing set of 'How do I…?' links, providing quick answers to frequently asked questions. The library also created 13 subject-based online guides for research resources using the new LibGuides software; RSS feeds keep the LibGuides refreshed with relevant newsfeeds and new scholarly papers. The library also joined Facebook; during the year, 149 people tagged that they 'liked' the site.

Humanities

The English Faculty Library provides a substantial programme of information skills training for English undergraduates, closely tailored to particular elements of the syllabus; the Deputy Librarian, Kerry Webb, received one of the Bodleian Libraries awards for the support of teaching and learning for her wide-ranging work in support of readers, colleagues and trainees. In addition the library introduced the use of LibraryThing to produce user-friendly Web 2.0-based accessions lists.

Historians are now able to be alerted to new publications on a historical period or country, thanks to the use of Virtual New Books Display for newly received history books in both the History Faculty Library and the Bodleian, covering both relevant legal deposit and purchased intake, including e-book purchases (www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/history/collections/acquisitions).

The new Wellcome Unit for the History of Medicine Library website went live in March 2011. It now follows the Bodleian Libraries' model and is much more extensive than the previous webpage. Accompanying it is a number of other applications to keep people updated with news, events and new resources: a blog, a Twitter page, a Delicious page for bookmarked websites and a LibraryThing account for new books. These have helped promote the library and formed links with other institutions particularly in the UK and US.

The Vere Harmsworth Library Librarian set up a new blog focusing on the resources available for US Studies at Oxford. This blog is intended to help support readers at the VHL in locating and using resources in the library's collections and online, and complements the online guides to resources available via the Bodleian Libraries' LibGuides platform. The blog can be viewed at http://vhlresources.blogspot.com.

In the Taylor Institution Library from April onwards work was under way to prepare the teaching collection for the first stage of phase one of the Taylor Institution Capital Project which will provide major improvements for the library's users.

Following the development of the Bodleian Korean library collections in 2009, including the acquisition of over 3,000 monographs and an important collection of books and reproduced manuscripts from the Kyujanggak Royal Library, Minh Chung at the Bodleian Oriental Institute Library initiated a project to promote the rich Korean collections of the Bodleian Libraries and the University museums, which will be supported in 2011–12 by a grant from the Cultural Heritage Administration of the Republic of Korea for the promotion of Korean cultural artefacts.

The Bodleian Oriental Institute Library moved to year-round Saturday opening and extended evening opening hours. Readers welcomed the increased access to the collection and also the consolidation of the Oriental material from the New Bodleian Reading Room.

Bodleian Reader Services

Staff in the Bodleian Reader Services Department were heavily and directly involved in many aspects of the transformation of the central site during the year under review, in particular maintaining the book service as the main stack was emptied and the Book Storage Facility filled; relocating dozens of staff; and surmounting the disruptions in the Radcliffe Camera, Underground Bookstore and Old Bodleian Library during their refurbishment.

The department piloted Sunday opening of the Radcliffe Camera during Hilary and Trinity terms and this was extremely well received with good take-up and feedback. Opening hours offered were 11 am–5 pm to tie in with Historic Venues' opening of the site and also some other Bodleian Libraries opening hours.

Special Collections

Many of the activities of Special Collections revolved around the care of the collections during the emptying of the New Bodleian Library. The Maps and Music Sections relocated to Duke Humfrey's Library; they and other sections of Special Collections had to devise new methods of handling materials ordered from the Book Storage Facility, for which online catalogue records were either absent or insufficient.

The Maps Section also brought to a successful conclusion to the AHRC-funded 'Linguistic Geographies' project, delivering both a website on the Gough Map (www.goughmap.org), and 'The Language of Maps', a three-day colloquium held at the Bodleian in June 2011 attracting 60 delegates from nine countries.

March 2011 saw the launch of the JISC-funded online catalogue of the Bodleian and Cambridge collections of Islamic manuscripts, Fihrist. This provides brief descriptions of some 5,000 Arabic texts, which were formerly only accessible via a card catalogue in the Special Collections Reading Room. Further funding from JISC has allowed the catalogue to be expanded to include manuscript descriptions from six other libraries, including the British Library and SOAS.

The John Johnson Collection website was totally rewritten, including the posting of hundreds of new indexes, checked and/or created by volunteers.

The Bodleian Library of Commonwealth and African Studies at Rhodes House created new LibGuides for African (http://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/african-studies) and Commonwealth (http://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/commonwealth-studies) Studies.

General reader services

The new series of online readers' guides, LibGuides, was launched at the start of the year and further developed during the year as a single point of entry for readers looking for guidance on subject resources and information skills. The site (http://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk) currently provides 176 guides covering over 70 subject areas plus guidance on bibliometrics, referencing and plagiarism and other information skills. Many guides also include online tutorials. The range of subjects and skills covered will continue to expand during 2011–12.

Attendance at undergraduate induction was improved by the development of a new database to streamline the timetabling with colleges. It has simplified arrangements for joint schools and PPE students by ensuring that they can learn about all the libraries that they need to use at a single session.

The libraries welcomed visitors coming to faculty and college open days, as well as the usual large group of UNIQ (formerly Sutton Trust) summer-school students in July for whom the staff provided induction and support with writing their essays.

The Admissions Office admitted over 11,000 readers during the year; its initial briefings about the use of library services, disposition of reading rooms and ordering arrangements changed constantly as the year progressed, in response to the transformative activities which dominated the year. A database manager was appointed to manage the admissions and access control databases, improving our capacity to support the current systems and working towards innovative improvements in line with University demands and expectations.

A new Print, Copy and Scan service (PCAS) was introduced across the Bodleian Libraries on 9 August 2010. This gave library users access to a range of new services, including printing from laptops, scanning, colour copies, online accounts, discounted duplex and print jobs that can be collected from any photocopier in any of the Bodleian Libraries. The libraries' fleet of copiers was largely replaced at this time so that readers have a common experience no matter where they are. By the end of the year over 16,000 accounts had been opened; readers have welcomed the new reprographic services available to them.

The second phase of the PILLOT Inter-library Loan project saw the implementation of an improved web interface and online payment.

The Accessible Resources Acquisition and Creation Unit provided materials in alternative formats to 14 students, a 50% increase from the previous year. There was also an increase of 20% in the number of disabled readers requiring special adjustments when using the Bodleian Libraries and its collections: 81 readers were eligible for them.

The Systems and Electronic Resources Service appointed a permanent member of staff devoted to the management of the large collection of databases throughout the Bodleian Libraries. Improvements were made this year to the Library Card and User Education databases, allowing us to improve services to new and existing readers; and to the Libstats database thus improving the collection of organisational statistics and our understanding of usage.

Widening access

Exhibitions

At the start of the year the exhibition ' "My wit was always working": John Aubrey and the development of experimental science' was still running. The exhibition examined the intellectual world of the English seventeenth-century scientific and cultural figure, John Aubrey (1626–97), one of the founding fellows of the Royal Society of London with a broad and deep range of scholarly interests, from the study of ancient megaliths to the creation of a new artificial language.

The Bodleian's winter exhibition 'Shelley's ghost: reshaping the image of a literary family' ran from December 2010 to March 2011. Spanning three generations of literary figures, the exhibition charted the history of a family blessed with genius but marred by tragedy, showcasing letters, literary manuscripts, rare printed books and pamphlets, portraits and relics, including Shelley's own notebooks, a letter of John Keats, William Godwin's diary and the original manuscripts of Mary Shelley's Frankenstein. The exhibition featured treasures lent by the Pforzheimer Collection of the New York Public Library, many of which had never been on public display in the UK. The exhibition has since travelled to the Wordsworth Museum at Dove Cottage in Grasmere, and will be shown at the New York Public Library in 2012. It was complemented by a major online exhibition, of which more below.

The summer exhibition 'Manifold greatness: Oxford and the making of the King James Bible' celebrated the Bible's quatercentenary, and examined the events and conditions that led to and shaped this translation enterprise, specifically showcasing the contribution of the Oxford translation committees, of which notable members were John Rainolds (President of Corpus Christi), Henry Savile (Warden of Merton) and Miles Smith (Corpus Christi and Brasenose). This was also complemented by an online version, and in addition the libraries' first mobile app, for iPhone, iPad and Android. Lunchtime lectures were presented for both exhibitions.

The exhibition was organised by the Bodleian Libraries in association with the Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington, DC where some items went on display at the Folger's related exhibition in autumn 2011.

The Proscholium exhibition case again hosted a series of short displays, starting and ending the year with displays linked to the performances by the Globe on Tour: 'Childhood innocence: Shakespeare for children' to accompany A Midsummer Night's Dream in 2010 and 'Love poetry by Shakespeare and his contemporaries' to accompany As You Like It in 2011. Between them came ' "Armed with the king's letter": John Leland and the monastic libraries of England'; 'The very best people in the kingdom: the Harcourts of Nuneham Park'; 'Alfred Bestall: illustrator of Rupert Bear'; 'Bent Juel-Jensen, Munificent Friend of the Bodleian Library'; 'Cultural revolution in Berlin: Jews in the Age of Enlightenment'; 'Piers Plowman: visions of Heaven, Hell and Middle Earth' (to coincide with the International Piers Plowman Society conference); and 'Linguistic geographies: three centuries of language, script and cartography in the Gough map of Great Britain'.

During the course of the year the Vere Harmsworth Library held exhibitions in support of events at the Rothermere American Institute and the wider University. In September 2010, an exhibition of interesting items from the collections was set up for the University's Alumni Weekend; in March 2011, a selection of material from the Philip and Rosamund Davies US Elections Campaigns Archive was exhibited in support of a conference on Political Marketing; and in May 2011, to tie in with the Annual Esmond Harmsworth Lecture in American Literature, RAI Fellow Dr Sally Bayley helped staff to curate an exhibition placing Marilynne Robinson's work in the wider American literary context.

Library materials were lent to a number of British and overseas institutions during the year, and one of the libraries' engrossments of Magna Carta was exhibited in San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Events

For the fourth year running Oxford Playhouse and the Bodleian Libraries hosted Shakespeare's Globe on Tour in the contemporary setting of the Old Schools Quadrangle. The play for 2011 was As You Like It and was sold out weeks in advance, with returns being some of the hottest tickets in town. Accompanying the performances were a series of well-attended introductory talks offered by members of the Faculty of English and a display of Shakespeareana from the Bodleian's collections.

The Bodleian's lunchtime lecture programme was expanded to include six lectures on themes in the exhibition 'Shelley's ghost: reshaping the image of a literary family'. Speakers were drawn from London, Warwick, Durham and Newcastle as well as from the University. The talks were free, open to members of the public and, from the attendances, proved to be a welcome addition to the libraries' outreach activities.

The Bodleian Library is now a well-established venue for the Oxford Literary Festival. This year the libraries hosted six entertaining lectures, including 'The future of the Bodleian Libraries' by Bodley's Librarian; 'Prime ministerial lives and letters', in which a stellar line-up of panellists (D R Thorpe, Philip Ziegler, Kenneth Morgan and Vernon Bogdanor) selected material from the Bodleian's own collections and explored what they revealed about the prime ministers; 'The postcard books' by Tom Phillips, who captivated his audience with his deliberations on photo-postcards, thematically arranged by the artist; and 'Illustrating empire: images from the John Johnson Collection' by Ashley Jackson and staff member David Tomkins, who considered some of the themes (emigration and settlement, exploration and knowledge) encountered in studying the Empire, using a selection of evocative illustrations from the Bodleian's John Johnson Collection of Printed Ephemera.

The masterclasses programme, showing original material from the library collections, presented seminars in four categories of Special Collections: literary manuscripts, medieval manuscripts, modern political papers and printed books. Reports of these classes are posted on the Special Collections blog, The Conveyor (http://theconveyor.wordpress.com).

Two one-day symposia, 'The gathered text' in September 2010 and 'The place of bindings' in June 2011, examined the history contained in the structures of books.

Four visiting researchers (www.bodley.ox.ac.uk/csb/fellowships.htm) were attached to the Centre for the Study of the Book this year. They conducted research on Thomas Bodley's correspondence at the time of the library's founding; Yiddish printing in Prague during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries; eighteenth-century British antiquarians in the Middle East; and radio design and marketing between the wars. Reports of these visits are published in the Bodleian Library Record.

One of the research fellows, Professor Peter Scott (University of Reading) delivered the inaugural Douglas Byrne Marconi Lecture on 1 March 2011 on the subject of 'Radio manufacturing between the wars'. An interview conducted by Jim Bennett (Museum of the History of Science) with Professor Scott can be downloaded from the museum's website (http://rss.oucs.ox.ac.uk/oxitems/generatersstwo2.php?channel_name=histmus/general-audio&destination=poau), while the lecture itself can be downloaded from the museum's location on 'Podcasts from the University of Oxford' at http://podcasts.ox.ac.uk/#histmus-unit.

Together with Professor Frellesvig of the Oriental Institute, the Bodleian Japanese Library organised a successful kuzushi -ji workshop held at the Oriental Institute from 29 June to 1 July. Held under the expert guidance of Professor Yuichiro Imanishi, Director of the National Institute of Japanese Literature, the workshop was the first to be organised as part of the three-year NIJL European kuzushi-ji workshop project, supported by the European Association of Japanese Resource Specialists. The goal of the workshop was to gain practical knowledge of and first-hand experience in the reading of kuzushi-ji (Japanese old-style writing) of the pre-modern period. The workshop received the enthusiastic response of its thirty participants, consisting of scholars, librarians, curators and graduate students from the UK, Europe and North America.

Communications

The libraries' website continued to develop, thanks in part to the generous support of Dr Leonard Polonsky. His donation supported the appointment of a web developer, and also underpinned the expansion of our capacity to mount online exhibitions. The two major exhibitions of the year each had online versions, accompanied by additional material such as videos, commentaries, blogs, podcasts and activities for children. 'Manifold greatness' also saw the launch of the Bodleian's first app for mobile devices, available for iPhones, iPads and Androids.

The Communications section worked hard to promote the work of the libraries throughout the year, starting with the opening of the Book Storage Facility, which was reported worldwide and even reached the Wall Street Journal. The major acquisitions, exhibitions and benefactions were promoted: news of the acquisition of the John Le Carré archives and Jane Austen's manuscript for The Watsons attracted particular attention. In-house designs underpinned the BSF opening (for which commemorative posters, pop-up invitations and printed notepads were produced) and many other events through the year.

Publications

The libraries published 15 titles in the year, including The First English Dictionary of Slang, 1699, which received wide review coverage (including the Wall Street Journal) and Manifold Greatness: the Making of the King James Bible to accompany the libraries' exhibition. The latter proved the most successful title to date with sales of around 4,000 copies. In general, sales increased over the previous year by 34%.

Public engagement

The Bodleian Libraries usually ask readers not to write in books, but at the beginning of August visitors were encouraged to grab a pen and write inside a large wooden book: 'The Big Book', a public art installation on display in the Clarendon Quadrangle. The sculpture, named 'Imagine', was made from wood and canvas pages by Oxford artist Diana Bell and stood 2.2m high. Visitors were invited to write about their imaginations in the book.

The Old Bodleian Library participated in the now annual Christmas Light Night when museums, theatres and galleries throw open their doors to the public for a one-off late-night celebration of the arrival of the Christmas season. The Oxford Girls' Choir and musicians from the Oxfordshire County Music Service provided entertainment for the 1,800 visitors who took the opportunity to view the historic spaces and to buy their Christmas cards and gifts in the Bodleian Shop. The shop itself invested in its infrastructure, a step necessitated by the closure of the New Bodleian Library, the former operational base for the department. This development and investment puts Retail Operations in a position to grow and expand, thereby giving a substantially higher financial contribution back to the libraries.

The Old Bodleian Library was granted a licence to celebrate wedding ceremonies in January 2011, and enquiries and bookings for weddings and receptions have consequently risen. An electronic point of sale system was introduced for tours, providing better financial controls and more efficient and streamlined processes; customers now receive a tour ticket as well as a receipt. Gross income from tours, corporate hire and filming rose just under 10% over the previous year in 2010/11. The library was assessed incognito by VisitEngland's independent assessors and on 10 June was awarded the status of a VisitEngland Quality Assured Attraction.

In May 2010 two items from the Bodleian collections were inscribed onto the UK UNESCO Memory of the World Register. The Gough Map, dated to the fourteenth century, is the most important and most enigmatic cartographic representation of Great Britain from the medieval period. It is the earliest surviving route map of Britain, and the earliest surviving map depicting Britain with a recognisable coastline, and depicts over 600 towns and villages. The Cura Pastoralis (Pastoral Care), King Alfred's translation from the Latin of Gregory the Great, is a manuscript book dating from around 890 and is the earliest surviving book written entirely in the English language. It is the only surviving book which can be linked directly with King Alfred. The Memory of the World Register is a catalogue of documentary heritage of national significance and outstanding value. Country-level Memory of the World Registers exist around the globe, complementing the International Register.

Content and service provision

Collection building

The Bodleian Libraries were able to acquire several important new electronic resources this year. Existing online collections were expanded with the addition of State Papers Part II: the Tudors, 1509–1603: State Papers (Foreign) and additional content in Mass Observation and FBIS (Foreign Broadcast Information Service). The subscription to ProQuest Dissertations and Abstracts was upgraded to include the full text of many Humanities and Social Science dissertations.

For Latin American studies two new databases, PRISMA (Publicaciones y Revistas Sociales y Humanísticas) and HAPI (Hispanic American Periodicals Index), were trialled and acquired after positive feedback from both academics and students.

There were additional literary collections, including 'Perdita Manuscripts: Women Writers 1500–1700' and 'African Writers Series', being all the books published in the Heinemann series of that name from 1962 to 2003. The purchase of 'Early European Books 2: Italian' expanded the libraries' extensive online holdings of early books. The papers of some of the American founding fathers (Washington, Jefferson, John Adams, Hamilton, Madison (and Dolley Madison)) added to the growing collection of online resources on American history.

The Sainsbury Library negotiated University-wide access to a number of databases that were previously available only to the Business School, thus securing greater value for the Oxford research community at large.

There were several significant additions to digital newspaper subscriptions during the year. Among them were the newspaper archives of The Spectator (1828–2000), Times of India (1838–2002), Financial Times (1888–2007), Latin American Newspapers (1805–1922) and Izvestiia (1917–2010) – the Bodleian was the first UK library to acquire this, thanks to the John Simmons trust fund. Through a generous donation made via the History Faculty, the libraries were able to purchase access to the archives of two African-American newspapers in December – the Pittsburgh Courier (1911–2002) and the New York Amsterdam News (1922–1993). With the Chicago Defender, to which we already had access, Oxford is the only institution in Western Europe to have access to the archives of three major African-American newspapers.

The Music Faculty Library's collection of opera CDs was greatly enriched by a major donation of over 1,000 recordings received from the estate of the late Robert Oresko. The collection contains multiple performances of a large number of operas, including many live and historic recordings, allowing for comparison of interpretations in a way which has hitherto not been possible. Their research value was immediately recognised by members of the Music Faculty. While full cataloguing of the collection remains a longer-term goal, access to the new recordings is possible through a fully searchable spreadsheet, containing basic details, which is available through the library's webpages.

During the year the libraries bought books destined for the Mr Po Chung Personal Development Collection. This is a lending collection housed within the Gladstone Link, purchased with the generosity of Mr Po Chung for students, researchers and staff to borrow as part of the first lending collection in the Central Bodleian Library.

The TRADA (Timber Research and Development Association) Library, previously held at Buckinghamshire New University, was transferred to the Radcliffe Science Library, which retained the unique titles in the collection.

In a unique arrangement the Bodleian Libraries and Deutsches Literaturarchiv in Marbach jointly purchased a collection of letters by Franz Kafka – the first time that a literary archive had been purchased jointly by two institutions in different countries with the intention to share access and scholarly activities. The letters became part of the existing major Kafka archives already held by the Bodleian and Marbach.

In rather different vein, John le Carré (David John Moor Cornwell), one of the world's most celebrated authors, offered his literary archive to the libraries with the intention that they should become its permanent home. Le Carré said, 'I am delighted to be able to do this. Oxford was Smiley's spiritual home, as it is mine.'

The libraries acquired at auction the autograph draft manuscript of the last major Austen manuscript to have been in private hands, Jane Austen's unfinished novel The Watsons. The acquisition, which cost in excess of £1 million, was made possible with a substantial grant (£894,700) from the National Heritage Memorial Fund. Other generous funders included the Friends of the National Libraries, the Friends of the Bodleian, Jane Austen's House Museum (Jane Austen Memorial Trust).

Again with support from the National Heritage Memorial Fund, the libraries acquired the archive of former Conservative prime minister Sir Edward Heath (1916–2005), comprising almost 1,000 boxes and including a rich and diverse collection of papers from his time in office and in the shadow cabinet, as well as personal papers from his time as an undergraduate at Balliol, revealing his active role in student politics during the 1930s.

The composer Philip Cannon donated his music manuscripts and related material to the Bodleian Libraries. In celebration, his Te Deum was sung during the service of Matins at Christ Church Cathedral on Sunday, 23 January 2011.

The University Archives took delivery of a substantial body of records from the Medical School, 1920s–2000s, being the first records of the school to be transferred to the Archives. They comprise personal files of clinical students; minutes and related papers of committees of the Medical School and Medicine Faculty Board; correspondence of the school and division; and other records including indexes of students and photographs.

381 early or rare books were acquired by purchase or gift during the year, many through the continuing support of the Friends of the Bodleian.

Digitisation

The Blockbooks digital collection project site (http://digital.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/blockbooks_home) went live in 2010; it displays blockbooks and printed images from the earliest period of printing, the mid-fifteenth to the sixteenth century.

The Cultures of Knowledge project released an alpha version of the Early Modern Letters Online (EMLO) demonstrator site to a select audience. The EMLO site, designed in collaboration with the English and History Faculties, will be the final product of the Cultures of Knowledge project and provide a means of interconnecting interdisciplinary research in seventeenth-century intellectual history.

The Universities of Michigan and Oxford, with the financial support of over 70 libraries worldwide, have since 1998 been creating accurately keyboarded and SGML/XML encoded text editions for a significant portion of ProQuest's Early English Books Online corpus. Known as the EEBO–Text Creation Partnership (EEBO–TCP), this cooperative academic initiative is producing legible and searchable encoded texts that link to corresponding page images in EEBO. During the year over 7,500 books were encoded and added to the EEBO–TCP corpus, representing over 320,000 pages or 81 million words. There has been a marked increase in usage of this valued resource, partly assisted by the increase in use of the TCP-enhanced tables of contents. Moreover the Bodleian Libraries secured a £1 million award from JISC Collections to make available a further 43,500 early printed texts as part of the project.

This year also saw the completion of a multi-year project to scan, on behalf of the US Holocaust Memorial Museum, the archives of the Society for the Protection of Science and Learning, 1933–87. The archive comprises over 6,000 items relating to the history of the organisation.

Thanks to the generosity and vision of Dr Leonard Polonsky, the libraries were able to offer to digitise a number of Oxford DPhil theses. The response from authors was extremely positive, and staff have been contacting authors to identify theses to be digitised which will be deposited in ORA, the Oxford University Research Archive.

The progress of the repository of the Saïd Business School's research output, named EUREKA and created and managed by the Sainsbury Library, reached a critical watershed when the link between the School's EUREKA research repository and ORA was established, enabling the automatic flow of EUREKA entries into the University's repository. This has added around 700 entries to ORA, and concerted effort is now being directed by both the Sainsbury Library and the school's Research Office to further populate the repositories as part of an overall initiative towards readiness for the upcoming Research Excellence Framework exercise.

The Bodleian Libraries reached agreement during the year with Read and Note (readandnote.com) to enhance access to the libraries' exceptional digital collection, in particular materials derived from the Oxford–Google digitisation project and other e-book publications. The initiative will transform the ability to access digitised books and other forms of content, allowing users to read, annotate, extract and share comments across online, mobile and tablet platforms. The Systems and E-Resource Service wrote sophisticated scripts to produce pdf files from the raw data, and work began to put the delivery infrastructure in place.

Protecting the collections

The Conservation Team played an essential part in the correct specification of the new Weston library building plans, not just the conservation laboratory space but also exhibition and book storage areas. As the Book Storage Facility came into use, the team introduced a programme of training and specification of correct handling procedures, protection of items in transit, and the implementation of a specialist courier transport team for the safe move of Special Collections items between our dispersed locations.

A new online service for requesting conservation treatments increased confidence and satisfaction in the service as well as increasing productivity, allowing for more efficient use of all staff members' time.

The glass negatives and lantern slides in the Anti-Slavery Society collection were rehoused in archival boxes; this was funded by donations received at Duke Humfrey's Night 2010.

Collection management

The last year saw the inception of an innovative pilot project, 'What's the score at the Bodleian', to investigate a cost-effective approach to increasing access to music scores from the Bodleian's collections, to be achieved by a combination of rapid digitisation and the creation of descriptive metadata through crowd-sourcing. Following receipt of a grant from Google, around 4,000 items of sheet music (mostly Victorian piano music intended for domestic consumption) have been digitised and a platform is under development by Zooniverse, world leaders in crowd-sourcing technology, which will enable members of the public to contribute descriptions of the digitised scores.

Originally developed as part of the Oxford Cambridge Islamic Manuscripts Catalogue Online, Fihrist (www.fihrist.org.uk) became the national union catalogue of Islamic manuscripts. It now contains the Islamic holdings of seven different UK libraries, including the British Library.

The first stage of development of DataBank, the Bodleian Libraries' archival store for research data, was completed. Collaboration with the British Library means that it is now possible to assign DOIs (Digital Object Identifiers) to research datasets in DataBank. Development is continuing on this key strategic service.

New servers were installed to increase the stability of ORA (Oxford University Research Archive) and the service has been re-launched with a top level URL (http://ora.ox.ac.uk) which is indicative of ORA's importance as a central service provided by the Bodleian Libraries for the collegiate University. During this year, the content of ORA doubled as the service was synchronised with existing Oxford faculty repositories.

The Mellon-funded Music and Maps Catalogues two-year project began; this will see the conversion of approximately 500,000 catalogue records, ensuring that all the collections destined for the Weston Library in 2015 will be accessible via SOLO.

Cataloguing of the Latin American Centre Library's extensive collection of grey literature began during Michaelmas 2010.

The move to Osney allowed staff of Collections and Resource Description to be integrated into a more cohesive team, and enabled a more streamlined movement of materials throughout the department.

After the difficulties attendant upon the move of the Agency for the Legal Deposit Libraries to Edinburgh, the year saw a significant improvement in service, resulting in the deposit of a huge influx of academic titles from major publishers at the start of 2011. The Agency continues with a programme of publisher engagement which is bearing fruit.

A grant from the Wellcome Trust allowed the libraries to commence cataloguing the papers of Sir Walter Bodmer, and the establishment of a project titled 'Saving Oxford Medicine', with the support of the Medical Sciences Division, to survey and collect the papers of eminent Oxford medics. Work also began on the sorting and cataloguing on SOLO of the library of the United Society for the Propagation of the Gospel (USPG) which to date has only been accessible via a card catalogue. This has also allowed de-duplication of the collection.

A total revision of the display of the John Johnson online catalogue resulted in the introduction of new features include searching (as well as browsing), thumbnails alongside display records, and links from individual records to the ProQuest project resources.

Estate

Radcliffe Observatory Quarter

Plans were developed in consultation with the relevant faculties for the move of the Philosophy and Theology Faculty Libraries from their current sites. Further detailed planning will continue through 2011/12 and the new integrated library will open at the Radcliffe Infirmary in September 2012. It will continue to serve its current constituencies, but will also provide a library service for humanities research groups and humanities graduates based in the building, as well as for other departments as they move to the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter. The move will open up the collections for full access to readers with mobility impairments, and offers the opportunity to improve opening hours.

Changes

The Health Care Libraries made substantial headway in projects to reduce the footprint of the Cairns Library while updating and improving physical library spaces for users. The libraries also vacated space in two departmental libraries, Plant Sciences and Zoology.

Out of the public eye, the Old Sawmill at Nuneham Courtenay, used for storage, was also vacated, saving further costs.

The Sackler Library made significant progress in its long battle with escalating energy costs incurred by its air-conditioned environment. The year saw an overall reduction of 26.6% in total energy use, achieved with the advice and assistance from colleagues in Conservation and Collection Care as well as the Oxford University Estates Directorate. This translated into a modest 3.5% reduction in expenditure after allowing for the steep rises in gas and electricity unit costs, but the trend at year-end is encouraging and points to further significant savings.

The Radcliffe Science Library created additional group study spaces within the Library and finalised the plans and timetable for the refurbishment of the former Hooke Library space to provide new subject support services (consultations by appointment) for advanced students and academic and research staff.

The English Faculty's IT Training Room moved to a new room in space formerly used as the Law Library's graduate work space. The new room was up and running in time for Law postgraduate library induction at the end of September and English undergraduate library induction the following week.

The Estates Projects Office was involved in a number of small projects including the re-shelving of the ground floor of the Bodleian Law Library and the installation of the new benefactors' plaque in the Old Bodleian Library and the Mallinckrodt Crest at the south entrance to the Old Schools Quadrangle.

The three-year project to restore the eighteenth-century windows in the dome of the Radcliffe Camera was completed. The project saw the historic and often engraved glass removed from the frames and the installation of temporary replacements while the originals were restored and finally replaced in their exact original positions. There was also opportunity to inspect the amazing timber construction of the roof between the inner plaster and outer lead domes and experience the highly memorable view from the cupola.

Through several phases of change, the transport system underlying the book service metamorphosed into one which handles more than twice as much library material and covers an additional 2,000 miles per month. This was achieved with minimal inconvenience for librarians and the least possible delay in getting material to our readers. Facilities Management and IT support staff were also instrumental in ensuring that staff members were moved around or into the Osney One building and successfully settled in. The contractors for the Underground Bookstore/ Old Bodleian project drew heavily on Facilities Management's knowledge of these complex buildings to maintain access, safety and security throughout. This knowledge was also invaluable in dealing with the student occupation of the Radcliffe Camera over three days in November 2010, when Facilities Management staff, together with other volunteer libraries staff, also maintained a 24-hour presence in the building throughout the occupation.

Staff talent

Human resources and staff development

Librarianship is a complex profession involving a variety of specialist skills, and it is important to support the staff and develop their competencies, especially in a time of radical change of the kind experienced over the year in review. The Human Resources section implemented a career-coaching programme and launched information on the staff intranet covering skills profiles, career paths, CILIP chartership, identification of management and leadership potential, guidance for managers on nurturing staff through career paths and guidance on skills planning.

All staff whose roles were coming to an end as the New Bodleian and its book service closed were successfully redeployed. The section also piloted the implementation of the University's online recruitment job application process.

For the first time Health and Safety committees received progress reports from project managers – an essential development in the light of the impact which the major projects had on the year's activities. In addition, a new online display screen equipment assessment programme was implemented in a number of departments, allowing more efficient, consistent and timely assessments.

In all, Staff Development provided 226 events with a total attendance of 2,729. 57 staff development funding applications for courses and conferences were approved, 17 of which were at overseas venues.

Staff changes

Senior staff joining during the year included David Bartlett, James Francis, Jill Gravestock and Abraham Hauer in the Systems and E-Resource Service, while Christine Madsen, who joined the section in 2009, was appointed R&D Project Manager. Janet Phillips was appointed to Publications, Dan Q to Communications, Arthur Green to Conservation and Collection Care and Alasdair Watson to Special Collections as curator for Arabic and Persian collections in succession to Colin Wakefield, who retired after 42 years' distinguished service in that post. Other senior staff to leave were Susan Miles, retiring after 33 years, latterly as Head of Resource Description; Anne Flavell after 32 years in Cataloguing and Nigel James after the same period as a stalwart of the Map Room; Michael Athanson was appointed Deputy Map Librarian and Geo-spatial Data Specialist in his place. Simon Lawson retired from the Indian Institute Library after 29 years and Roger Mills from his post as Bio-sciences Librarian, after many years as the distinguished custodian of the Plant Sciences Library, again totalling 29 years. Amanda Peters retired as Librarian-in-charge of the Taylor Institution Library after 26 years' service, starting in the Foreign Accessions section of the Bodleian. Margaret Robb retired as Head of Social Science Libraries after a varied 22-year career which began in the then Libraries Automation Service, and Dana Josephson retired from his post with responsibility for exhibitions.

JoAnne Sparks, Assistant Director, Research and Learning Services, left at the end of 2010 to take up a post as Director of Information Services for the Scholarly Information and Research portfolio at Griffith University.

Other staff retiring after long service in the libraries included Carole Menzies, the longest-serving employee, after 45 years first in the Slavonic Reading Room of the Bodleian and for the last five years in the Taylor–Bodleian Slavonic and Modern Greek Library; Mary Rees from the Map Room; Angeline Tack from Conservation and Collection Care; Jane Skinner from Reader Services; Penny Roberts from the Radcliffe Science Library; Alistair Fraser from Reader Services; and Roger Shilcock from the Sackler Library, though he will be better known to many from his long service in the Taylor Modern Languages Faculty Library.

Staff in the libraries were saddened to learn of the death in November 2010 of Julian Roberts, Keeper of Printed Books from 1974 and Deputy Librarian from 1986 until his retirement in 1997. The obituary notice in The Times (17 November 2010) noted 'his erudition, his enthusiasm and his intellectual generosity to others'.

Leadership

Curators

The Curators of the University Libraries provided unstinting support throughout the year. While the continuing progress on the various major capital projects was welcomed, Curators expressed their concern at the continuing and increasing pressure on the materials budget, whether this was as a result of overall budget reductions required by the University, or rising prices. Their contributions to consideration of the costs of electronic journals and the libraries' relations with and support of college libraries were invaluable. They provided a much needed end-user perspective on the complexities of the introduction of legal deposit for electronic materials, which was the subject of a consultation at the end of 2010.

Library Management

Upon the departure of the Assistant Director, Research and Learning Services, the opportunity was taken to review senior management roles; a new structure was put in place and was in the course of being implemented at the end of the year. Richard Ovenden was designated Deputy Librarian, with responsibility for Special Collections, most of the departments formerly under Research and Learning Services, and a new Enterprise Units Department subsuming those parts of the libraries engaged in trading. Catriona Cannon (Assistant Director, Collections and Resource Description) was designated Associate Director, with additional responsibility for Conservation and Collection Care and for the Book Storage Facility, as well as for the Inventory Control and Bookmoves projects. Laura How, Head of Administration and Finance, took on additional responsibility for Estates and for Facilities Management. A new post of Associate Director, Digital Library Programmes and Information Technologies, was created to take responsibility for the Systems and Electronic Resources Service, renamed Bodleian Digital Library Systems and Services. The post will be filled in the forthcoming year.

Crucial to the successful prosecution of the interlinked major projects was the creation in March 2010, and the continuation throughout the year, of the Bod Squad, at which all the project leaders and key staff met weekly to exchange information, report on progress and identify the tasks for the coming week, at the same time flagging risks and problems for resolution.

Finance

The libraries' regular budget for the year was £36.66 million, and expenditure matched the budget (excluding allowable additional expenditure of £166,000 on staff departures under the Oxford Mobility Incentive Scheme). This figure included £573,000 of savings required by the University, being the first year of a three-year exercise which is intended to reduce costs by £1.787 million overall (8.4%) within the libraries.

When the costs of the major projects such as barcoding, book moving and ingest to the Book Storage Facility are included, the total sum that passed through the libraries' accounts during the year was £45 million.

£8.792 million was spent on library materials during the year, with just under £3 million of this being funded by trust fund and donation income. The University-funded library materials budget was £5.551 million; expenditure was on target with the budget. The rising cost of journals continued to be a matter of significant concern.

In 2010–11 nearly £420,000 in research funding was awarded to the Systems and E-Research Service, and the department participated in projects that brought in over £2.85 million to the University.

Development

The 2010/11 financial year resulted in new gifts and pledges in the Campaign for the University of Oxford for the Bodleian totalling £6,850,778 from philanthropic and external grant-making sources. Fundraising for the Weston Library reached £67 million, which, with the addition of a £3.9 million pledge as security against future fundraising successes, brought the amount raised to 90% of the total project costs. The $3 million donation by Charles and George David in memory of Charles Wendell David, naming the New Bodleian 'penthouse' reading room in his honour, has been noted already in this report. £1 million was pledged by Dr Seng Tee Lee to name an exhibition gallery in the Weston Library, and gifts to name the seminar rooms and the staff and readers' café were received from the Headley Trust and the Tedworth Charitable Trust.

Funds to endow the Alfred Brendel Curator of Music and the Chinese Studies Librarian were secured. The announcement was made at a celebration concert in the fifteenth-century Divinity School at which Alfred Brendel read his poetry and his son, Adrian Brendel, gave a cello recital.

A generous donation was made by Chinese philanthropist Dr Chung Kin-Kwok to endow the position of the Chinese Studies Librarian at the Bodleian, therefore securing the future of this important post. Dr Chung's gift also offers support for the digitisation of some of the Chinese collections at the Bodleian. Funding was received for the cataloguing of the Chinese pre-modern collection (£262,000).

An additional £1 million was received from JISC to support making the full text of early English books searchable.

The Bodleian was able to make several significant acquisitions through the support of a number of donors including the National Heritage Memorial Fund, enabling the acquisition of the archive of Edward Heath, Kafka's Letters to Ottla archive, and Jane Austen's unfinished manuscript, The Watsons.

An innovation during the year was the first 'Duke Humfrey's Night', at which guests were invited to support the acquisition or conservation of a number of recent or older acquisitions, on display in Duke Humfrey's Library, by pledges large and small. The event succeeded well beyond expectations, raising over £80,000, and will be repeated in coming years.

Collaboration

Libraries cannot stand in magnificent isolation but prosper from their engagement with both individual scholars and with institutional partners. The joint acquisition of the Kafka letters with Deutsches Literaturarchiv in Marbach has already been noted. In addition the Bodleian Libraries were delighted to announce a new partnership with the Bibliotheca Apostolica Vaticana (BAV) in a project to share library skills and promote research. The partnership, to be managed by the Centre for the Study of the Book at the Bodleian, will see both libraries working together to pool their expertise and resources, with the aim of promoting understanding of their outstanding collections of early books and manuscripts. Academics and library curators will exchange annual visits to share research and professional skills in the study of early books and manuscripts. Collaboration on projects promoting access to library materials, particularly digitisation, will be encouraged. The details of the agreement were still being finalised at the end of the year.

In collaboration with 25 other research libraries from 11 countries, work began to expose the libraries' public domain digitised content via Europeana (www.europeana.eu) – this will include several hundred thousand digital images, and metadata for all the items scanned under the Google Books agreement.

The libraries continued to contribute catalogue records to the COPAC catalogue of UK research libraries as well as the OCLC Worldcat database. The Bodleian Japanese Library contributed to the development of the UK Japanese Union Catalogue (consisting of 237,000 records from 12 libraries in Britain) and the European Union Catalogue of Japanese Books (consisting of over 413,000 records for 30 libraries in 8 countries). Librarian Izumi Tytler has been heavily involved in the projects, sharing her skills with colleagues nationwide.

The libraries contributed to the Pirus2 project (www.cranfieldlibrary.cranfield.ac.uk/pirus2/tiki-index.php), working with MIMAS, Cranfield, COUNTER, OUP and others to specify standards, protocols, an infrastructure and an economic model for the recording, reporting and consolidation of online usage of individual articles hosted by repositories, publishers and other entities.

The libraries also contributed to the UK Research Reserve of collaborative holdings of lesser-used material by UK research libraries: the English Faculty Library made a substantial contribution of 30 older journals, all duplicates of Bodleian Library holdings.

Many initiatives involved collaboration with other University departments. The Medieval Libraries of Great Britain (MLGB3) project (www.history.ox.ac.uk/research/projects/MLGB3.htm) was completed successfully in collaboration with the History Faculty and awarded a four-year continuation grant by the Mellon Foundation. The project aims to bring together complementary fragments of the remains of medieval British libraries and catalogues into a central online resource.

The libraries were a partner in the successful bid for the JISC-funded Dataflow project (www.dataflow.ox.ac.uk) which will be carried out in collaboration with David Shotton and his team in Zoology. It will include the development of virtualised cloud-based research management services building on the libraries' data repository Databank to serve the 'long tail' of research datasets of small to moderate size.

The libraries also worked on IMPAcT (http://impact.orient.ox.ac.uk), a five-year ERC-funded project with the Oriental Institute which will make accessible thirteenth- to sixteenth-century Islamic intellectual history, and provided specialist advice on metadata and long-term digital preservation to the EIDCSR (http://eidcsr.oucs.ox.ac.uk) and Sudamih (http://sudamih.oucs.ox.ac.uk) research data management projects which were managed by Oxford University Computing Services (OUCS). A further collaboration with OUCS was the development of series of hands-on workshops for all University research students under the 'Research Skills Toolkit' rubric. The workshops will be trialled in October 2011 before roll-out in 2012.

(2) The representative shall be nominated as agreed between the student body and the board from amongst the student representatives on the academic committees of the Department for Continuing Education.

(3) More than one representative may be nominated under the provisions of (2) above, in which case the representatives shall decide between them which one shall attend any given meeting of the board.

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 11 May.

(a) Establishment of Department of Physics Prize Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the 'Department of Physics Prize Fund' for the purpose of awarding prizes and/or bursaries to students studying or undertaking research at the Department of Physics. It is intended that by resolution of Council, as trustee, under the Charities Act 2011, the Arthur William Scott Fund, David Ryan Memorial Fund, Johnson Memorial Prizes Fund and John Thresher Memorial Prize Fund shall be transferred and administered as part of this new fund (see 'Notices' section below, p 471). Once the existing regulations of the aforementioned funds have been transferred to the new Department of Physics Prize Fund, the existing regulations will serve no further purpose and shall therefore be deleted.

Text of Regulations

'§ 283. Department of Physics Prize Fund

1. Ten pounds and such further money or property as may be paid or transferred to be held by the University on the same trusts shall be held together as part of the Department of Physics Prize Fund ("the Fund"), which shall be held on the trusts declared in this regulation.

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund (if any), towards awarding prizes and/or bursaries to students studying or undertaking research at the Department of Physics.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Physics Management Committee, which may make and amend Standing Orders consistent with these regulations governing the administration of the Fund and the application of its income.

5. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund and the management and administration of the Fund.

6. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

7. Subject to regulation 8, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

8. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(b) Establishment of Department of Physics Special Lecture Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the 'Department of Physics Special Lecture Fund' for the purpose of advancing teaching and research at, or in connection with, the Department of Physics, with emphasis on the provision of special lectures. It is intended that by resolution of Council, as trustee, under the Charities Act 2011, the Simon Cherwell Memorial Lecturer Fund and Halley Lecturer on Astronomy and Terrestrial Magnetism Fund will be transferred and administered as part of this new fund (see 'Notices' section below, p 471). Once the existing regulations of the aforementioned funds have been transferred to the new Department of Physics Special Lecture Fund, the existing regulations will serve no further purpose and shall therefore be deleted.

8. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(c) Establishment of English Language and Literature Prize Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the 'Faculty of English Language and Literature Prize Fund' for the purpose of awarding prizes to candidates who have shown academic excellence in courses offered by the Faculty of English Language and Literature.

It is intended that by resolution of Council, as trustee, under the Charities Act 2011, the Oldham Shakespeare Prize Fund, English Poem on a Sacred Subject Fund, Lord Alfred Douglas Memorial Prize Fund, Matthew Arnold Memorial Prize Fund, Passmore Edwards Prize Fund and Shelley Mills Prize Fund shall be transferred and administered as part of this new fund (see 'Notices' section below, p 471). It is also intended that half of the Beddington Prizes Fund and the Newdigate Prize Fund shall be administered as part of this new fund, with the other half being administered by the Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages and University College respectively.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002 concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p 629, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol 132, p 1461), insert new § 106 as follows, and renumber existing §§ 106–78 as §§ 107–79:

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: deputy chairmen of Council

Explanatory Note

In 2010, Council established a Governance Working Group to make proposals on how to take forward the remaining recommendations of the Audit and Scrutiny Committee's Governance Report (online at www.ox.ac.uk/governance), one of which proposed the appointment of an external chairman of Council. The Group reported to Council in June and recommended, inter alia, that rather than making changes to the chairmanship of Council, arrangements should be put in place for two deputy chairs of Council to be appointed for a defined period, being a Pro-Vice-Chancellor to chair Council should the Vice-Chancellor be unable to do so for reasons other than a conflict of interest, and an external member of Council to chair Council for those agenda items where the Vice-Chancellor had a conflict of interest. The following legislative proposal, approved by Council, implements that recommendation.

WHEREAS it is expedient to establish two deputy chairmen of Council, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

1 In Statute VI concerning Council (Supplement (1) to the Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002, as amended), delete sections 6 and 7 and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'6. Council may, but is not obliged to, co-opt up to three members of Congregation as additional members of Council, one of whom may serve as a deputy chairman of Council under section 7 (4)(a)(ii) below.

7. (1) The Vice-Chancellor, or~~, in his or her absence, a member of Council deputed by the Vice-Chancellor,~~ a Pro-Vice-Chancellor appointed as chairman under section 10 (3) below, shall normally take the chair at ~~all~~ meetings of Council.

(2) In the event that the person under sub-section (1) above cannot or should not act as chairman, a member of Council serving as deputy chairman shall take the chair.

(3) The chairman shall ~~and~~ have a second or casting vote in the event of equality of voting.

(4) (a) Council may appoint up to two deputy chairmen:

(i) an external member of Council, appointed under section 4 (7)–(10) above, who shall take the chair for the discussion of items of business in which the chairman of the Council meeting has a conflict of interest;

(ii) a Pro-Vice-Chancellor, appointed under regulation 9 of Council Regulations 21 of 2002, who shall take the chair when the chairman cannot or should not act as chairman for reasons other than a conflict of interest.

(b) In the absence of the appropriate deputy chairman appointed under (a) above at a meeting, the Vice-Chancellor or the Pro-Vice-Chancellor appointed as chairman of Council under section 10 (3) shall have discretion to appoint an alternate.

(5) The appointment of a deputy chairman under sub-section (4) above shall be made on the recommendation of the Vice-Chancellor or the Pro-Vice-Chancellor appointed as chairman of Council under section 10 (3).

(6) Where a person is appointed as deputy chairman under sub-section (4)(a)(ii) above who is not a member of Council when appointed, that person shall thereupon become a co-opted member of Council and shall remain a member of Council for as long as he or she remains a deputy chairman.

(7) Each deputy chairman shall hold office for a period of up to four years and shall be eligible for reappointment.

(8) Each deputy chairman may exercise all the functions of the chairman at any meeting when the chairman cannot or should not act.'

2 Ibid., delete section 8 (3) and substitute:

'(3) (a) Members of Council co-opted under section 6 may serve for a period of up to four years and shall be eligible to serve for a second consecutive period of up four years.

(b) The term of a person whose co-optation is made expressly subject to an appointment under section 7 (4)(a)(ii) will expire on the appointment of a deputy chairman who is not when appointed a member of Council.'

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposals: Scatcherd Scholarships

(i) Scatcherd Science Scholarships, for the support of graduate study in science

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal amends the name and the board of management of the Scatcherd Scholarships for the support of graduate study in science and brings the restriction on candidates in line with the Equality Act 2010 by targeting persons who are ordinarily resident in (rather than those from, which implies and has historically be construed as citizens of) a number of European countries. In addition, it is proposed to update the mechanics for amending the trust to reflect the University's current practice and the trust's new status as a scheduled trust.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Scatcherd Scholarships, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002, pp 133–59), after Part 71 insert the following new Part 72[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'~~§ 318.~~ Part 72: Scatcherd Science Scholarships

72.1. The University accepts from the Trustee of the Campaign for Oxford Trust Fund the sum of £621,000, made possible by an extremely generous benefaction from Mrs Jane Ledig-Rowohlt, to establish a fund, the net income of which shall be applied in the funding of Scatcherd Science Scholarships for the support of graduate study in science.

72.2. ~~The fund shall be administered by the International Committee.~~ The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the board of management of the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund.

72.3. The scholarships shall be awarded to persons ~~from~~ ordinarily resident in any European country (other than the UK or Turkey but including Russia and all other countries to the west of the Urals) to enable them to study for a graduate degree of the University in a science subject (including mathematics and medicine). The ~~committee~~ board of management shall endeavour to ensure that at any one time one of the scholarships shall be held by a person ~~from~~ ordinarily resident in a country outside the European Union.

72.4. Any income not spent in any year shall be carried forward for expenditure in subsequent years.

72.5. Congregation ~~Council~~ shall have power to alter this ~~decree~~ Part from time to time, ~~provided that~~ other than the main object of the fund, as defined in ~~clause 1~~ section 72.1 above~~, is always kept in view~~.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p 720, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p 1461), delete § 318 and renumber existing §§ 319–95 as §§ 318–94.

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [date] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

(ii) Scatcherd Scholarships, for students undertaking any course of study at Oxford, and Oxford students studying in other countries

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal, concerning the Scatcherd Scholarships for students undertaking any course of study at Oxford, and Oxford students studying in other countries, brings the restriction on candidates in line with the Equality Act 2010 by targeting persons who are ordinarily resident in (rather than citizens of) a number of European countries.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Scatcherd Scholarships, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002, pp 133–59), after Part 72 insert the following new Part 73[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'~~§319.~~ Part 73: Scatcherd Scholarships

73.1. The University has received with gratitude a legacy from Mrs Jane Ledig-Rowohlt to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Scatcherd Scholarship Fund ("the Fund").

73.2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets (if any) in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

73.3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards: (i) awarding scholarships to students of Oxford University ~~of British citizenship~~ allowing them to engage in study or research in other countries; and (ii) awarding scholarships to ~~citizens of~~ students ordinarily resident in a nation of continental Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals with the exception of Turkey.

73.4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income and capital, shall be the responsibility of the board of management of the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund.

73.5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending on 27 February 2033 ~~21 years from the date of this regulation~~, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

73.6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Scholarship

73.7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

73.8. ~~Regulations~~ Sections 73.1–73.10 shall be deemed to be trust ~~Regulations~~ provisions under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

73.9. Subject to ~~regulation~~ section 73.10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these ~~regulations~~ provisions in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

73.10. Any amendment to ~~regulation~~ section 73.3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p 720, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol 132, p 1461), delete § 319 and renumber existing §§ 320–395 as §§ 319–394.

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [date] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

Review of Regent's Park College by Permanent Private Halls Supervisory Committee

The Permanent Private Halls (PPH) Supervisory Committee, which is a sub-committee of the Education Committee, has regulatory, monitoring and reporting functions in relation to the Permanent Private Halls. As part of an ongoing process in which each hall is to be reviewed in turn over a period of six years, the committee is to conduct a review of Regent's Park College during Trinity term 2012. The review will focus on issues coming within the PPH Supervisory Committee's terms of reference. These were recently revised and published, together with Regulations for the PPHs, in the Gazette of 12 January 2012, p 233.

The PPH Supervisory Committee would welcome for its review written comments on any matters falling within its terms of reference. Written comments should be sent to the Secretary to the Supervisory Committee, Dr Michael Redley, Education Policy Support Section, University Offices, Wellington Square, Oxford OX1 2JD (email: michael.redley@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 16 May.

Consultation on proposed changes to the University of Oxford Staff Pension Scheme

Members of the University of Oxford Staff Pension Scheme (OSPS), and members of support staff who are not members but who are eligible to join, are being consulted on proposed changes to the OSPS pension scheme.

The proposals under consideration have been put forward by the OSPS Review Group established by Council and follow extensive consultation with the OSPS Trustees, the staff representatives of the major trades unions representing OSPS members (Unison and Unite) and the Joint Committee with University Support Staff.

In addition to the University, there are a number of colleges and other associated University bodies who are employers in the scheme. College interests have been represented in the Review Group. As required by statutory regulations, the University, colleges and other employers are each conducting separate but parallel consultations of their staff.

The consultation period is running from 20 April to 19 June 2012. After consideration of the views put forward during the consultation, the Review Group will make final, formal recommendations to the employers, Trustees and trades unions over the summer with a view to implementation on 1 January 2013.

Details of the proposals and the consultation may be found at: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/end/retirement/ospsconsult.

Task Force on Academic Employment

The task force has completed its work and has been discharged. Its final report on academic duties and other issues was published as a supplement to the Gazette on 25 January. Council has endorsed the recommendations in this report, which will now be taken forward through the permanent committee structures of the collegiate University. The Personnel Committee has issued a consultative paper (published at www.ox.ac.uk/gazette/academic_employment) on the matters covered by the task force's final report, and individual academics are invited to respond to this by emailing jeremy.whiteley@admin.ox.ac.uk by 2 July.

Full details of the work of the task force, and link to its previous proposals on merit pay and titles which were adopted by Congregation in 2010, may be found at www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/staffinfo/academic/taskforceonacademicemployment.

Gazette Supplement

Rules Committee Regulations 1 of 2012

In accordance with Statute XI (Part A, section 4) and Council Regulations 42 of 2002, the Rules Committee has agreed that the following regulations shall be in force for the year beginning on 1 October 2012.

Part 1: Clubs, Societies, and Publications

1.1. Student members of the University who form a club or society, or an organisation for whatever purpose (including one for the publication of a journal, newspaper, or magazine, whether in hard copy or electronic format), and who wish to use the name and/or Arms of the University in its title or the word 'Oxford' in the title of a journal, newspaper, or magazine, shall:

(1) register with the Proctors;

(2) obtain the consent of the Vice-Chancellor; and

(3) sign the University's standard form of trademark licence.

1.2. The Vice-Chancellor will not consider applications for consent until the club, society, or organisation has been registered with the Proctors for two consecutive terms, and consent may be withdrawn as he or she thinks fit. Any consent granted by the Vice-Chancellor shall be withheld or withdrawn if the registration of the club, society, or organisation concerned lapses or is withdrawn or withheld by the Proctors.

1.3. A club, society, or organisation which does not wish to use the name of the University in its title may also register with the Proctors if it conforms with regulations 1.10–1.12 below.

1.4. The Proctors may not unreasonably withhold or withdraw registration.

1.5. (1) Failure to comply with these regulations may result in the club, society, or organisation being deregistered and/or fined an amount not exceeding £500 by the Proctors.

(2) These regulations shall also apply to any club, society, or organisation not currently registered with the Proctors but which has been so registered during any of the preceding three terms.

1.6. No member of the governing committee of a club, society, or organisation shall in organising an event or function, or otherwise, encourage or incite a breach of Statute XI or any regulation made under it.

1.7. (1) Each club, society, or organisation which registers with the Proctors shall be designated, as the Proctors see fit, to be:

(a) a non-sports club, society, or organisation ('non-sports club'); or

(b) a club, society, or organisation for sport ('sports club'); or

(c) an organisation for the publication of a journal, newspaper, or magazine, whether in hard copy or electronic format ('publication').

(2) Each such non-sports club and publication shall register with the Proctors through the Clerk to the Proctors, and each such sports club shall register with the Proctors through the Head of the Sports Department.

(3) In this regulation, 'non-sports club', 'sports club', and 'publication' mean the members of the club, society, or organisation concerned.

1.8. Each club, society or organisation which registers with the Proctors shall be entitled to apply to Oxford University Computing Services ('OUCS') to use Information Technology ('IT') facilities (eg email and web publication) in the name of the club, society or organisation. Where relevant facilities are allocated by OUCS it shall be the responsibility of the club, society or organisation concerned to:

(1) designate not more than one person entitled to a University email account (as defined by OUCS rules) to act as its IT Officer, whose duties shall include liaising with OUCS about the use of facilities allocated and passing on to his or her successor in office all records (in whatever format held) relating to the use of the facilities allocated;

(2) designate one of its members (who shall be either a student member or, exceptionally, a member of Congregation: and who may be but need not necessarily be, the same as its IT Officer) as its principal Webmaster, whose duties shall include maintaining an awareness of the University Guidelines for Web Information Providers and coordinating and regulating access to the web facilities used by the club, society or organisation;

(3) comply with regulations relating to the use of IT facilities provided by OUCS and with the guidelines published from time to time by OUCS for the use of IT facilities by student clubs, societies and organisations (including those guidelines relating to the operation of electronic mailing lists);

(4) ensure that all designated persons responsible for the IT resources of the club, society or organisation are competent to deal with the requirements of this section, and where necessary undertake training under the guidance of OUCS.

1.9 Each student organisation registering with the Proctors shall include in its constitution a clause affirming that its activities will be conducted in accordance with the following University policies and codes of practice in force from time to time: Integrated Equality Policy, Code of Practice on Harassment and Bullying, and Code of Practice on Freedom of Speech.

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 18 May.

Establishment of Thalmann Scholarship Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Thalmann Scholarship Fund to provide scholarship assistance to students studying at the University. The gift was received in 1992, but, due to an oversight at the time, a trust regulation was not created to record the terms of the trust. The opportunity is now being taken to correct this.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002 (Statutes, 2000, p 731, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol 132, p 1461), concerning trusts, insert new § 352 as follows, and renumber existing §§ 352–396 as §§ 353–396:

'§ 352. Thalmann Scholarship Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude a substantial legacy from René Hugo Thalmann to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Thalmann Scholarship Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund (if any) which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards scholarships for students studying at the University and meeting such criteria as the administrators of the Fund from time to time shall see fit.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income and capital, shall be the responsibility of the Board of Management of the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund (a broad purpose fund within the University of Oxford Development Trust Fund).

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Scholarships.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Congregation 7 May

This content has been removed as it contains personal information protected under the Data Protection Act.

Congregation 15 May 2 pm

¶ Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on 7 May, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they intend to oppose or amend any of the legislative proposals below (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise, the legislative proposals shall be carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: deputy chairmen of Council

Explanatory Note

In 2010, Council established a Governance Working Group to make proposals on how to take forward the remaining recommendations of the Audit and Scrutiny Committee's Governance Report (online at www.ox.ac.uk/governance), one of which proposed the appointment of an external chairman of Council. The Group reported to Council in June and recommended, inter alia, that rather than making changes to the chairmanship of Council, arrangements should be put in place for two deputy chairs of Council to be appointed for a defined period, being a Pro-Vice-Chancellor to chair Council should the Vice-Chancellor be unable to do so for reasons other than a conflict of interest, and an external member of Council to chair Council for those agenda items where the Vice-Chancellor had a conflict of interest. The following legislative proposal, approved by Council, implements that recommendation.

WHEREAS it is expedient to establish two deputy chairmen of Council, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

1 In Statute VI concerning Council (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002, as amended), delete sections 6 and 7 and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'6. Council may, but is not obliged to, co-opt up to three members of Congregation as additional members of Council, one of whom may serve as a deputy chairman of Council under section 7 (4)(a)(ii) below.

7. (1) The Vice-Chancellor, or~~, in his or her absence, a member of Council deputed by the Vice-Chancellor,~~ a Pro-Vice-Chancellor appointed as chairman under section 10 (3) below, shall normally take the chair at ~~all~~ meetings of Council.

(2) In the event that the person under sub-section (1) above cannot or should not act as chairman, a member of Council serving as deputy chairman shall take the chair.

(3) The chairman shall ~~and~~ have a second or casting vote in the event of equality of voting.

(4) (a) Council may appoint up to two deputy chairmen:

(i) an external member of Council, appointed under section 4 (7)-(10) above, who shall take the chair for the discussion of items of business in which the chairman of the Council meeting has a conflict of interest;

(ii) a Pro-Vice-Chancellor, appointed under regulation 9 of Council Regulations 21 of 2002, who shall take the chair when the chairman cannot or should not act as chairman for reasons other than a conflict of interest.

(b) In the absence of the appropriate deputy chairman appointed under (a) above at a meeting, the Vice-Chancellor or the Pro-Vice-Chancellor appointed as chairman of Council under section 10 (3) shall have discretion to appoint an alternate.

(5) The appointment of a deputy chairman under sub-section (4) above shall be made on the recommendation of the Vice-Chancellor or the Pro-Vice-Chancellor appointed as chairman of Council under section 10 (3).

(6) Where a person is appointed as deputy chairman under sub-section (4)(a)(ii) above who is not a member of Council when appointed, that person shall thereupon become a co-opted member of Council and shall remain a member of Council for as long as he or she remains a deputy chairman.

(7) Each deputy chairman shall hold office for a period of up to four years and shall be eligible for reappointment.

(8) Each deputy chairman may exercise all the functions of the chairman at any meeting when the chairman cannot or should not act.'

2 Ibid., delete section 8 (3) and substitute:

'(3) (a) Members of Council co-opted under section 6 may serve for a period of up to four years and shall be eligible to serve for a second consecutive period of up four years.

(b) The term of a person whose co-optation is made expressly subject to an appointment under section 7 (4)(a)(ii) will expire on the appointment of a deputy chairman who is not when appointed a member of Council.'.

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposals: Scatcherd Scholarships

(i) Scatcherd Science Scholarships, for the support of graduate study in science

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal amends the name and the board of management of the Scatcherd Scholarships for the support of graduate study in science and brings the restriction on candidates in line with the Equality Act 2010 by targeting persons who are ordinarily resident in (rather than those from, which implies and has historically be construed as citizens of) a number of European countries. In addition, it is proposed to update the mechanics for amending the trust to reflect the University's current practice and the trust's new status as a scheduled trust.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Scatcherd Scholarships, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002, pp 133–59), after Part 71 insert the following new Part 72[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'~~§ 318.~~ Part 72: Scatcherd Science Scholarships

72.1. The University accepts from the Trustee of the Campaign for Oxford Trust Fund the sum of £621,000, made possible by an extremely generous benefaction from Mrs Jane Ledig-Rowohlt, to establish a fund, the net income of which shall be applied in the funding of Scatcherd Science Scholarships for the support of graduate study in science.

72.2. ~~The fund shall be administered by the International Committee.~~ The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the board of management of the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund.

72.3. The scholarships shall be awarded to persons ~~from~~ ordinarily resident in any European country (other than the UK or Turkey but including Russia and all other countries to the west of the Urals) to enable them to study for a graduate degree of the University in a science subject (including mathematics and medicine). The ~~committee~~ board of management shall endeavour to ensure that at any one time one of the scholarships shall be held by a person ~~from~~ ordinarily resident in a country outside the European Union.

72.4. Any income not spent in any year shall be carried forward for expenditure in subsequent years.

72.5. Congregation ~~Council~~ shall have power to alter this ~~decree~~ Part from time to time, ~~provided that~~ other than the main object of the fund, as defined in ~~clause 1~~ section 72.1 above~~, is always kept in view~~.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p 720, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol. 132, p 1461), delete § 318 and renumber existing §§ 319–95 as §§ 318–94.

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [date] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

(ii) Scatcherd Scholarships, for students undertaking any course of study at Oxford, and Oxford students studying in other countries

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal, concerning the Scatcherd Scholarships for students undertaking any course of study at Oxford, and Oxford students studying in other countries, brings the restriction on candidates in line with the Equality Act 2010 by targeting persons who are ordinarily resident in (rather than citizens of) a number of European countries.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Scatcherd Scholarships, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

'~~§319.~~ Part 73: Scatcherd Scholarships

73.1. The University has received with gratitude a legacy from Mrs Jane Ledig-Rowohlt to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Scatcherd Scholarship Fund ("the Fund").

73.2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets (if any) in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

73.3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards: (i) awarding scholarships to students of Oxford University ~~of British citizenship~~ allowing them to engage in study or research in other countries; and (ii) awarding scholarships to ~~citizens of~~ students ordinarily resident in a nation of continental Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals with the exception of Turkey.

73.4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income and capital, shall be the responsibility of the board of management of the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund.

73.5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending on 27 February 2033 ~~21 years from the date of this regulation~~, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

73.6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Scholarship.

73.7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

73.8. ~~Regulations~~ Sections 73.1–73.10 shall be deemed to be trust ~~Regulations~~ provisions under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

73.9. Subject to ~~regulation~~ section 73.10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

[1]The number is subject to the approval of other legislative proposals and may therefore change.

Notices

73.10. Any amendment to ~~regulation~~ section 73.3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p 720, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol 132, p 1461), delete § 319 and renumber existing §§ 320–394 as §§ 319–393.

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [date] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

Van Houten Fund

The Van Houten Bequest is a fund left by the late M Van Houten in the 1950s to be used 'for the benefit of the University in such ways as the Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, and Council shall see fit'. The Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, Council and PRAC agreed in 2005 to delegate responsibility to the Registrar to approve grants subject to a regular report to be made to Council on the decisions taken.

Bids are now being invited for grants from this fund to be used to support projects that do not form part of the normal day-to-day operations of a department and which would not easily be funded from other regular sources. Examples of recent recipients include:

- the UAS Conference 2011
- the Vice-Chancellor's Civic Awards 2011
- purchase of a grand piano for the Holywell Music Room.

Grants to internal applicants are usually in the region of £8,000–£20,000, either given as a one-off payment or spread over one to three years. Grants are also available to organisations external to the University; in such cases, the amounts awarded are usually lower and there is a cap on the total amount of funding provided to external organisations of £30,000 in this financial year.

The guidelines by which bids are assessed are as follows:

1) Bids for grants will be assessed according to the breadth of the benefit to the University offered by the project in question, the strategic importance of the project to the University and the availability of funds. Only in exceptional circumstances will a grant be awarded in respect of a project which benefits a single department.

2) Grants will not ordinarily be awarded for purposes for which other trust fund (or similar) support exists within the University; for example, the funding of academic scholarships, regardless of whether or not the alternative fund(s) in question are in a position to fund the expenditure proposed.

3) Grants will not ordinarily be awarded in respect of costs for which a department might reasonably be expected to hold a budget.

4) Grants will not ordinarily be agreed in respect of recurrent activities except to provide:

(a) seed funding to support an activity in its first one to three years; or

(b) bridging support for one year only where a source of funding is lost and the department/faculty in question is confident that an alternative can be found for the following year.

5) Grants will not ordinarily cover the full cost of a project. Departments will be expected to make some contribution, or to use the grant secured by the Van Houten Fund to assist in securing other funding (including external funding).

6) The extent to which funds may be awarded to external organisations each financial year shall be subject to an upper limit, to be set by the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee and reviewed on an annual basis.[1]

Bids for funding should take the form of a written submission outlining the amount requested, what the use of the grant would be, the benefit that would be conferred to the University, approximate costings, timescales, details of other funding secured and any other relevant information. The bids will be considered by the Registrar as a gathered field. Bids should be sent to the secretary of the fund, Mrs Adrienne Lingard, by 25 May.

The most recent invitation to bid, in December 2011, attracted 22 applications and resulted in support for two University projects, the online Science Portal and the Harcourt Arboretum Wildlife Hide, and two local organisations, KEEN (Kids Enjoy Exercise Now) and Jacari.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs Lingard: telephone Oxford (6)11627, email adrienne.lingard@admin.ox.ac.uk or at the University Offices, Wellington Square, Oxford, OX1 2JD. The next invitation to bid is scheduled to be sent out in October 2012.

[1]For the financial year 2011–12, GPC has approved a limit on total external funding of £30,000.

Council and Main Committees

Council of the University

Changes in Regulations

Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 8 June.

(a) General Purposes Committee

Explanatory Note

Following the General Purposes Committee's review of its operations and effectiveness, these changes amend the committee's terms of reference to reflect more accurately the role of the committee. The principal changes are as follows: (i) the committee is now expressly responsible for considering matters that do not fall wholly within the remit of other committees and, in particular, for advising Council on matters of a reputational or ethical nature which are of material significance; and (ii) the committee may now co-opt up to two members, subject to the approval of Council on each occasion. Other amendments have been made for clarity.

Text of Regulations

In Part 3 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002 concerning the General Purposes Committee of Council (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4634, 16 October 2002, p 228, as amended on 23 March 2006, 21 September 2006, 15 October 2009 and 6 May 2010 and with effect from 8 May 2003 and 7 February 2007), delete existing regulations 3.2–3.4 and substitute new regulations 3.2–3.6 below (new text underlined):

'3.2. Subject to the approval of Council on each occasion, the committee may co-opt up to two additional members for such periods as the committee shall deem appropriate.

3.3. In appointing the members at regulation 3.1 (10)–(12) and 3.2 above, Council shall always ensure that there is within the total membership of the committee an appropriate balance across the academic activities of the various divisions, and between the divisions and the non-divisional constituency as reasonably practicable.

3.4 The committee shall be responsible for considering matters of significance which do not fall wholly within the remits of the other committees of Council.

3.5 In particular, the committee shall:

(1) advise Council on matters of a reputational or ethical nature which are of material significance and do not fall wholly within the remits of the other committees of Council;

(2) keep under review:

(a) the University's compliance with legislation and regulatory requirements;

(b) policies in respect of issues or activities which are University-wide;

(c) procedures for identifying and managing risks across the University's activities;

(d) the governance and performance of the University's subsidiary companies;

(e) the University's relationships with external bodies;

(f) the public understanding of the aims and activities of the University;

(3) subject to regulation 3.6, advise Council and its other committees on the establishment of new University legislation and on amendments to existing legislation;

(4) make recommendations to Council on appointments by Council to University committees, bearing in mind the gender balance on such committees and in general having regard to the appropriate representation of the various interests within the collegiate University;

(5) allocate statutory posts to a college or society and approve changes to such allocations or associations, on behalf of Council.

3.6. The committee shall have power to make, amend and repeal regulations concerning any of the following matters, on condition that it shall bring forward to Council for decision any case which it considers to raise particular difficulties:

(1) the establishment of a new trust or other special fund for grants, lectures, prizes, the support of a statutory post, fellowships, scholarships, collections, or similar matters, and any changes in existing regulations governing such funds (in cases in which the making of such provisions by regulation is permissible in law);

(2) the removal of anomalies in existing regulations, and the making of consequential amendments to existing regulations which have been overlooked in earlier legislation;

(3) changes in the allocation of a statutory post to a college or society, in cases in which a regulation is necessary.'

(b) Student Number Planning Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee and the Education Committee

Explanatory Note

The following change disbands the Student Number Planning Subcommittee. The subcommittee was established in 2008 with a remit to maintain an overview of the current and future size and shape of Oxford's student body. In Trinity term 2011, Council agreed the establishment of a full joint subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, the Education Committee and the Conference of Colleges to consider student number planning. This was a recommendation arising from the Strategic Plan Review and Implementation Group's report on the size and shape of the collegiate University. Conference welcomed the proposal. The new subcommittee will take on the remit of the former Student Number Planning Subcommittee within its terms of reference.

Text of Regulations

Repeal Part 34 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002 concerning the Student Number Planning Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee and the Education Committee (made by Council on 26 June 2008 with effect from 1 October 2008, Gazette, Vol 138, p 1294) and renumber existing Parts 35–37 as 34–36.

¶ Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on 4 June, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they intend to oppose or amend either of the legislative proposals at 1 and 2 or the resolution at 3 below (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise, the legislative proposals and the resolution shall be carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute XIII: Fitness to Study

Explanatory Note

The Fitness to Study legislation below aims to provide a common framework across departments/faculties and colleges for dealing with cases where questions arise as to whether a student is fit to study or return to study after a period of leave on account of medical, psychological or emotional problems. It is recognised that college procedures work well in the vast majority of cases and that the Fitness to Study legislation would be used in a limited number of cases. The legislation establishes a set of procedures to deal with the small number of serious and difficult fitness to study cases and will be applied only after normal college or department/faculty procedures have, in the reasonable view of the relevant college or department/faculty, been followed appropriately. A new body, the Fitness to Study Panel, is proposed to which colleges, departments and faculties may refer such cases. The outcome of the Fitness to Study Panel's deliberations will be a decision on behalf of the University and a recommendation to the relevant college which will be based on academic judgment informed by medical, legal and other expert opinion. Such decisions/recommendations will combine a proper regard for the welfare of the student with recognition of the demanding academic requirements of Oxford degree courses. The underlying principle is to provide a coordinated mechanism for resolving the small number of cases that have not been resolved by the usual means in colleges and/or departments/faculties, thereby reducing the risk of both the inequitable treatment of students and successful appeals to the Office of the Independent Adjudicator or the courts. Further information on the operation of the Fitness to Study Panel can be found at www.ox.ac.uk/gazette/fitness_to_study.

WHEREAS it is expedient to establish a Fitness to Study Panel, THE UNIVERSITY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS.

'PART B: FITNESS TO STUDY

5. This Part makes provision for the establishment of a Fitness to Study Panel to determine matters concerning a student's fitness to study.

6. For the purposes of this Part:

(1) "fitness to study" shall mean:

(a) a student's fitness:

(i) to commence a distinct course of academic study; or

(ii) to continue with his/her current course of academic study; or

(iii) to return to his/her current or another course of academic study; and

(b) his/her ability to meet:

(i) the reasonable academic requirements of the course or programme; and

(ii) the reasonable social and behavioural requirements of a student member (whether resident in college or not) without his/her physical, mental, emotional or psychological health or state having an unacceptably deleterious impact upon the health, safety and/or welfare of the student and/or other students and/or University or college staff (not withstanding adjustments required by law);

(2) "current course of academic study" shall mean the undergraduate or graduate course for which the student is currently registered, and the syllabus of and other requirements for that course as provided for in the Statutes and Regulations currently in force and applicable in the academic year in issue;

(3) an undergraduate or graduate course of study shall be determined according to the designation agreed by the Education Committee of Council and thus defined in its Examination Regulations.

7. There shall be established a Fitness to Study Panel ("the Panel") to consider issues relating to a student's fitness to study referred to it by a college, a faculty or department of the University, the Proctors, the Student Disciplinary Panel, or the Student Appeal Panel. The Panel shall decide such issues for the University and shall be able to make recommendations to a college.

8. The Panel shall only consider a student's fitness to study where all other normal procedures (whether at college or University level) have been exhausted or are inappropriate.

9. Council shall make regulations prescribing:

(1) the constitution and membership of the Panel;

(2) the appropriate procedure for referring matters relating to a student's fitness to study to the Panel;

(3) the procedure which the Panel shall follow when considering matters referred to it;

(4) the factors which the Panel shall take into account when considering and/or determining matters referred to it;

(8) such other matters as Council thinks fit.

10. (1) The Panel shall not consider:

(a) matters relating to a student's academic underperformance or conduct save to the extent to which they are relevant to the student's fitness to study; or

(b) matters giving rise to fitness to practise considerations.

(2) The matters under sub-section 1 above shall be dealt with in accordance with the relevant procedures set out in the statutes and regulations of the University and the relevant college.

11. If a student who faces disciplinary proceedings is referred to the Panel, the disciplinary proceedings shall be suspended pending the Panel's consideration of the student's fitness to study.'

2 This Statute shall be effective from 1 October 2012.

The paragraph numbering above is subject to the approval of the legislative proposal at (2) below.

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved

1 Delete Council Regulations 1 of 2007 concerning the Medical Board made under Section 26 of Statute XIII and substitute the following as Council Regulations 1 of 2012.

'Council Regulations 1 of 2012

Regulations for the Student Fitness to Study Panel

Part 1: General

1.1. These regulations are made under section 9 of Statute Xlll.

1.2. In these regulations:

(1) the term "colleges" shall mean colleges, societies, Permanent Private Halls, and other institutions designated by Council by regulation as being permitted to present student members for matriculation;

(2) "the student" shall mean the student member whose fitness to study has been referred to the Fitness to Study Panel for consideration;

(3) "the Panel" shall mean the Student Fitness to Study Panel.

(4) a "primary referring body" shall mean, in the case of an undergraduate student, the college of the student concerned, and in the case of a graduate student, the faculty or department of the student concerned; a "secondary referring body" shall mean, in the case of an undergraduate student, the faculty or department of the student concerned, and in the case of a graduate student, the college of the student concerned.

Part 2: Membership

2.1. There shall be eight members of the Panel, four of whom shall be appointed by Council and four by the Conference of Colleges, all of whom shall be members of Congregation. Members shall hold office for four years and at the expiry of that term shall be eligible for re-appointment.

2.2. One of the four members appointed by Council and one of the four members appointed by the Conference of Colleges ("the appointing bodies") shall be designated, in each case by agreement between the appointing bodies, to serve as Chair or Vice-Chair of the Panel. The term of office shall be four years, to include two years as Vice-Chair. This is provided always that no person may hold office as Chair or Vice-Chair of the Panel ("the offices") without also being a member of the Panel and that at any given time one of the offices must be occupied by a member of the Panel appointed by Council and the other by a member of the Panel appointed by the Conference of Colleges. Provided that each of these conditions is adhered to, the Chair and Vice-Chair may serve one additional four-year term of office (two years as Vice-Chair and two years as Chair) by agreement between the appointing bodies.

2.3. The Chair of the Panel shall be responsible for the general administration of the business of the Panel and for such other tasks as are specified in these regulations. The Chair of the Panel may delegate to the Vice-Chair such matters falling within the scope of these responsibilities as he or she shall determine.

2.4. In the event of the resignation of any member of the Panel before the end of his/her four-year term of office, whichever of Council or the Conference of Colleges appointed the resigning member shall appoint a replacement to serve for the remainder of the term concerned. At the expiry of that remainder, the replacement member shall be eligible for re-appointment under regulation 2.1 as if they had initially held office for four years.

2.5. Council and the Conference of Colleges shall by agreement appoint a person to serve as Secretary to the Panel ("the Secretary"). The Secretary shall be responsible for the organisation of the Panel's work but shall not be a member of the Panel or participate or vote in its proceedings.

Part 3: Powers

3.1. The Panel shall consider only such cases referred to it by:

(1) (a) a primary referring body;

(b) a secondary referring body which has first consulted with the relevant primary referring body and the latter has indicated that it does not see a reason itself to make a referral but has no objection to the secondary referring body doing so; or:

(c) a secondary referring body falling within the ambit of regulation 3.2;

(2) (a) the Proctors;

(b) the Student Disciplinary Panel;

(c) the Student Appeal Panel;

where under the relevant statute or regulation there are powers to suspend hearings until such a view is sought.

3.2. Where a secondary referring body has first consulted with the relevant primary referring body and the latter has refused to make a referral, the secondary referring body nonetheless has the right, irrespective of the view of the primary referring body, to ask the Chair of the Panel to review the matter. In such cases, the Chair of the Panel must request and, if such are received, consider representations from the primary and secondary referring bodies, and shall determine in the light of such representations whether the case should be referred to the Panel for consideration. In the event of a positive determination, the Panel shall consider the case.

3.3. Notwithstanding regulation 3.1, the Panel may consider only such cases concerning the fitness to study of a named student as fall within the relevant referring body's jurisdiction and provided always that it is reasonably satisfied that any other reasonable recourse or mechanism available, either under the governing primary, secondary or other rules of the relevant referring body or under the statutes and regulations, has first been followed.

3.4. Notwithstanding regulations 3.1 and 3.2, the Chair of the Panel shall be entitled to rule that a case which has been referred should not be further considered by the Panel on the basis that it falls outside the Panel's jurisdiction as defined in these Regulations.

3.5. (1) The Panel shall make determinations in respect of a student's fitness to study on behalf of the University and make such recommendations to referring bodies as it shall consider necessary and proportionate, given the factors specified in regulation 3.8. Decisions and recommendations may include but are not limited to the following:

(a) a decision or recommendation that a student is not fit to study in accordance with section 6 of Statute XIII;

(b) a decision or recommendation that the student is fit to study in accordance with section 6 of Statute Xlll;

(c) a decision or recommendation that the student's continued access to University and college facilities and premises be subject to certain conditions;

(d) a decision or recommendation that a student's access to University and college premises and facilities be suspended for a specific, or for an indefinite, period;

(e) a recommendation that the matter is dealt with by the college under procedures determined by the college.

(2) The Panel shall seek the views of the student's college and department/faculty before making a decision or recommendation under paragraph (1) above.

(3) The decision of the Panel shall be final and marks the completion of the University's procedure concerning fitness to study.

3.6. Notwithstanding regulation 3.5, the Panel may refer back for resolution to the primary or secondary referring body, as appropriate, any case which it believes may best be resolved by that referring body's own internal processes.

3.7. Notwithstanding regulation 3.5, the Chair of the Panel may, in cases of demonstrable and serious urgency, recommend after discussion with the primary referring body that such interim measures be adopted as are necessary and proportionate until such a time as the case may be determined by the Panel.

3.8. In considering a case the Panel (or, in the case of regulations 3.4 and 3.7, the Chair of the Panel) shall:

(1) apply the definition of "fitness to study" set out in section 6 of Statute Xlll;

(2) be entitled to employ or to draw upon suitably qualified expert advice, including expert medical, psychiatric and legal advice;

(3) have due regard to the obligations of the University and the student's college under equality legislation and the duty to make reasonable adjustments.

3.9. In accordance with section 11 of Statute XIII, if a student who faces disciplinary proceedings under the University's procedures is referred to the Panel, the disciplinary proceedings shall be suspended pending the Panel's consideration of the student's fitness to study and shall recommence automatically if it is the decision of the Panel under regulation 3.5 that the student is fit to study.

3.10. (1) In circumstances where a student's condition or conduct gives rise to a need for immediate action, the Proctors shall have power to suspend that student pending consideration by the Panel of his/her fitness to study.

(2) Each suspension under paragraph (1) above shall be reviewed by the Proctors at least every 21 days.

3.11. Any information received by the Panel or the Proctors in respect of matters concerning a student's fitness to study shall be regarded as strictly confidential and any person or body dealing with such information shall have due regard to the duty of confidentiality attaching to the information concerned.

Part 4: Sittings

4.1. Where a case is referred to the Panel and is not excluded by the Chair under regulation 3.4, the Chair and Vice-Chair shall designate three members of the Panel (one of whom may be either the Chair or Vice-Chair) to hear the case and make a decision or recommendations or references back under regulations 3.5 or 3.6. One such member shall always be drawn from those appointed by Council and one from those appointed by the Conference of Colleges under regulation 2.1. The third member shall be drawn from those appointed by the Conference of Colleges in cases concerning undergraduate students and from those appointed by Council in the case of graduate students. Members of the Panel shall not have had prior involvement with the particular student's case.

4.2. The Chair shall direct the procedure for the hearing and the Secretary shall be responsible for making such arrangements as are necessary for each hearing.

4.3. The Panel shall be bound in all its hearings by the rules of natural justice (and in so far as they differ, by the rules of procedural fairness).

4.4. The Panel may commission expert opinion and ask the student concerned to attend a consultation with the expert appointed.

4.5. The student shall be entitled to make representation to the Panel and may call witnesses in support of such representation. They may at all times be accompanied to hearings by a person of their choice but will be expected to answer questions put to them, even if another person acts as their advocate.

4.6. Refusal or any failure to attend the hearing by the student, their witnesses or the person chosen to accompany the student, and any refusal or failure by the student to attend a consultation under regulation 4.4, shall not necessarily invalidate the proceedings. The Panel will consider whether an adjournment would in such circumstances be appropriate but has the right under such circumstances to proceed with the hearing.

Part 5: Hearings of the Panel

5.1. Hearings shall be conducted in private in accordance with guidance and procedures approved by the Student Health and Welfare Subcommittee of the Education Committee and shall have due regard to the principles of natural justice.

5.2. The student shall be notified of the date of the hearing and shall normally be given a minimum of 10 working days' notice.

5.3. The student shall be given reasonable notice, and wherever reasonably possible a minimum of 10 working days' notice, of the matters to be considered by the Panel.

5.4. The referring body should normally provide to the Panel in advance of the hearing the papers that it wishes the Panel to consider in evidence. A copy of such papers is at the same time normally to be provided to the student except to the extent that the Panel, informed by expert guidance, is of the view that any matter under consideration, if known to the student, could have an unacceptably deleterious impact on the student or on others.

5.5. Where expert opinion is required, the Panel will adjourn until such time as the opinion has been obtained.

5.6. The hearing shall commence with private discussions of the Panel to clarify matters of process only.

5.7. The student and an accompanying person (if any) shall be called to appear before the Panel. The student and any accompanying person may normally be present for the duration of the hearing until such time(s) as s/he is asked to withdraw so as to enable the Panel to come to its decision.

5.8. The Chair of the Panel shall outline the detail which the Panel has been convened to consider and ensure that the student understands the nature of the matters under consideration.

5.9. A statement shall be requested from the student about the matters under consideration upon which the Panel shall be entitled to question the student. Any failure by the student to provide such a statement shall not necessarily invalidate the proceedings.

5.10. Witnesses or external advisors (of which the Panel and the student have been notified in advance) shall be called in the following order: those called by the Panel followed by those called by the student. Each witness or external advisor shall be requested to make an oral statement or to confirm the contents of a previously provided written statement. They shall be questioned by the Panel and may be questioned by the student or accompanying person. Witnesses or external advisors shall withdraw from the hearing after questioning.

5.11. The student and accompanying person shall withdraw to enable the Panel to consider its decisions and recommendations.

5.12. The decisions and recommendations of the Panel shall be confirmed in writing to the student and to the referring bodies by the Secretary, normally within 10 working days of the hearing.

Part 6: Annual Report

6.1. The Panel shall provide an annual report on its activities, making recommendations as appropriate, to the Student Health and Welfare Subcommittee of the Education Committee.'

2 These regulations shall be effective from 1 October 2012.

Candidate statement:

The University is a diverse organisation that faces challenges from many directions. Our core activities are teaching and research. Maintaining excellence in these, despite the numerous other demands on our attention, is crucial to continuing success. Specifically I believe that success will come through supporting individuals and teams of colleagues to have the freedom, time and resources they need to pursue world class research and innovative teaching. I have held positions both inside and beyond the university that I believe prepare me well for service on the Council. I was elected Chairman of Physics and led one of the largest departments in the University for five years. I have served on Research Councils, I have Chaired the Board of Directors of two international Observatories and for the last two years I have been President of the Royal Astronomical Society. Through these roles I have firsthand experience of priority setting with limited resources, and taking the lead in promoting academic research beyond the confines of academe. The University is fortunate in having access to resources from donors and OUP in addition to student fees, HEFCE and Research Council funding. Marshalling those resources to best serve researchers and scholars is the crucial role of Council and one I look forward to participating in.

H C Watkins, Exeter, Faculty of Clinical Medicine

Candidate statement:

We live in difficult times, and it is essential that the Divisions find opportunities to work together. As your representative for both the Medical (MSD) and Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Divisions, my goal will be to ensure that we have a voice in support of our activities in the highest levels of the University. There is much work to be done at the interfaces of our disciplines, and it is in such areas that we often train our students and postdoctoral fellows. I have demonstrated ability to work with both the MSD and MPLS Divisions in numerous areas linking with external funding partners and Research Councils. The Oxford Cancer Imaging Centre of which I am Principal Investigator has brought in millions of pounds of research support, and brings together researchers from Chemistry, Mathematics and Engineering with many researchers across the MSD and NHS Trust. I ensured that 40% of the funds raised for the Imaging Centre went to support trainees, the vast majority of them working across Divisions. The Particle Therapy Cancer Research Institute, which I helped found, brings together researchers in the MSD with Physics and Computing from MPLS. Foundations that we build in hard times will allow us to build mighty edifices for teaching and research when times improve. The interests of MSD and MPLS are so closely entwined that it is essential that we be effectively represented on Council. I would be honoured to take on this role with your support.

Council and Main Committees

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 15 June.

(a) Establishment of Professor of Motor Neuron Biology Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish 'The Professor of Motor Neuron Biology Fund' to be used towards the salary and expenses of the Professorship, associated overheads, and, as appropriate, in support of the Professor's research.

Text of Regulations

In Sect III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002 concerning academic and other posts (Statutes, 2000, p 472, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol 132, p 1461), insert new § 229 as follows and renumber existing §§ 229–326 as §§ 230–327:

'§ 229. Professor of Motor Neuron Biology Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude sums from The Motor Neurone Disease Association and The Spinal Muscular Atrophy (SMA) Trust to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Professor of Motor Neuron Biology Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets (if any) in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of the Professor of Motor Neuron Biology and associated overheads. The Professor shall undertake research, lecture and teach in motor neuron biology and diseases including Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis and Spinal Muscular Atrophy (SMA). If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Professor are wholly or partly covered from other sources or there are further funds available, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or capital of the Fund to support the Professor's research.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Medical Sciences Divisional Board.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Professorship.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(b) Sanjaya Lall Visiting Professor in Business and Development

2. The University shall apply the income and capital of the Fund towards the salary and associated costs of the Visiting Professorship.

3. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its capital and income, shall be the responsibility of the ~~Executive~~ Social Sciences Divisional Board ~~of the Saïd Business School~~.

4. The Sanjaya Lall Visiting Professor in Business and Development shall lecture and give instruction in business and development.

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute XIII: Fitness to Study

Explanatory Note

The Fitness to Study legislation below aims to provide a common framework across departments/faculties and colleges for dealing with cases where questions arise as to whether a student is fit to study or return to study after a period of leave on account of medical, psychological or emotional problems. It is recognised that college procedures work well in the vast majority of cases and that the Fitness to Study legislation would be used in a limited number of cases. The legislation establishes a set of procedures to deal with the small number of serious and difficult fitness to study cases and will be applied only after normal college or department/faculty procedures have, in the reasonable view of the relevant college or department/faculty, been followed appropriately. A new body, the Fitness to Study Panel, is proposed to which colleges, departments and faculties may refer such cases. The outcome of the Fitness to Study Panel's deliberations will be a decision on behalf of the University and a recommendation to the relevant college which will be based on academic judgment informed by medical, legal and other expert opinion. Such decisions/recommendations will combine a proper regard for the welfare of the student with recognition of the demanding academic requirements of Oxford degree courses. The underlying principle is to provide a co-ordinated mechanism for resolving the small number of cases that have not been resolved by the usual means in colleges and/or departments/faculties, thereby reducing the risk of both the inequitable treatment of students and successful appeals to the Office of the Independent Adjudicator or the courts. Further information on the operation of the Fitness to Study Panel can be found at www.ox.ac.uk/gazette/fitness_to_study.

WHEREAS it is expedient to establish a Fitness to Study Panel, THE UNIVERSITY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS.

'PART B: FITNESS TO STUDY

5. This Part makes provision for the establishment of a Fitness to Study Panel to determine matters concerning a student's fitness to study.

6. For the purposes of this Part:

(1) 'fitness to study' shall mean:

(a) a student's fitness:

(i) to commence a distinct course of academic study; or

(ii) to continue with his/her current course of academic study; or

(iii) to return to his/her current or another course of academic study; and

(b) his/her ability to meet:

(i) the reasonable academic requirements of the course or programme; and

(ii) the reasonable social and behavioural requirements of a student member (whether resident in college or not) without his/her physical, mental, emotional or psychological health or state having an unacceptably deleterious impact upon the health, safety and/or welfare of the student and/or other students and/or University or college staff (not withstanding adjustments required by law);

(2) 'Current course of academic study' shall mean the undergraduate or graduate course for which the student is currently registered, and the syllabus of and other requirements for that course as provided for in the Statutes and Regulations currently in force and applicable in the academic year in issue;

(3) An undergraduate or graduate course of study shall be determined according to the designation agreed by the Education Committee of Council and thus defined in its Examination Regulations.

7. There shall be established a Fitness to Study Panel ("the Panel") to consider issues relating to a student's fitness to study referred to it by a college, a faculty or department of the University, the Proctors, the Student Disciplinary Panel, or the Student Appeal Panel. The Panel shall decide such issues for the University and shall be able to make recommendations to a college.

8. The Panel shall only consider a student's fitness to study where all other normal procedures (whether at college or University level) have been exhausted or are inappropriate.

9. Council shall make regulations prescribing:

(1) the constitution and membership of the Panel;

(2) the appropriate procedure for referring matters relating to a student's fitness to study to the Panel;

(3) the procedure which the Panel shall follow when considering matters referred to it;

(4) the factors which the Panel shall take into account when considering and/or determining matters referred to it;

(5) the Panel's powers;

(6) the Proctors' authority to suspend a student;

(7) the body responsible for the regular review of the regulations made under this section; and

(8) such other matters as Council thinks fit.

10. (1) The Panel shall not consider:

(a) matters relating to a student's academic underperformance or conduct save to the extent to which they are relevant to the student's fitness to study; or

(b) matters giving rise to fitness to practise considerations.

(2) The matters under sub-section 1 above shall be dealt with in accordance with the relevant procedures set out in the statutes and regulations of the University and the relevant college.

11. If a student who faces disciplinary proceedings is referred to the Panel, the disciplinary proceedings shall be suspended pending the Panel's consideration of the student's fitness to study.'

2 This Statute shall be effective from 1 October 2012.

The paragraph numbering above is subject to the approval of the legislative proposal at (2) below.

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved

1 Delete Council Regulations 1 of 2007 concerning the Medical Board made under Section 26 of Statute XIII and substitute the following as Council Regulations 1 of 2012.

'Council Regulations 1 of 2012

Part 1: General

1.1. These regulations are made under section 9 of Statute Xlll.

1.2. In these regulations:

(1) the term "colleges" shall mean colleges, societies, Permanent Private Halls, and other institutions designated by Council by regulation as being permitted to present student members for matriculation;

(2) "the student" shall mean the student member whose fitness to study has been referred to the Fitness to Study Panel for consideration;

(3) "the Panel" shall mean the Student Fitness to Study Panel.

(4) a "primary referring body" shall mean, in the case of an undergraduate student, the college of the student concerned, and in the case of a graduate student, the faculty or department of the student concerned; a "secondary referring body" shall mean, in the case of an undergraduate student, the faculty or department of the student concerned, and in the case of a graduate student, the college of the student concerned.

Part 2: Membership

2.1. There shall be eight members of the Panel, four of whom shall be appointed by Council and four by the Conference of Colleges, all of whom shall be members of Congregation. Members shall hold office for four years and at the expiry of that term shall be eligible for re-appointment.

2.2. One of the four members appointed by Council and one of the four members appointed by the Conference of Colleges ("the appointing bodies") shall be designated, in each case by agreement between the appointing bodies, to serve as Chair or Vice-Chair of the Panel. The term of office shall be four years, to include two years as Vice-Chair. This is provided always that no person may hold office as Chair or Vice-Chair of the Panel ("the offices") without also being a member of the Panel and that at any given time one of the offices must be occupied by a member of the Panel appointed by Council and the other by a member of the Panel appointed by the Conference of Colleges. Provided that each of these conditions is adhered to, the Chair and Vice-Chair may serve one additional four-year term of office (two years as Vice-Chair and two years as Chair) by agreement between the appointing bodies.

2.3. The Chair of the Panel shall be responsible for the general administration of the business of the Panel and for such other tasks as are specified in these regulations. The Chair of the Panel may delegate to the Vice-Chair such matters falling within the scope of these responsibilities as he or she shall determine.

2.4. In the event of the resignation of any member of the Panel before the end of his/her four-year term of office, whichever of Council or the Conference of Colleges appointed the resigning member shall appoint a replacement to serve for the remainder of the term concerned. At the expiry of that remainder, the replacement member shall be eligible for re-appointment under regulation 2.1 as if they had initially held office for four years.

2.5. Council and the Conference of Colleges shall by agreement appoint a person to serve as Secretary to the Panel ("the Secretary"). The Secretary shall be responsible for the organisation of the Panel's work but shall not be a member of the Panel or participate or vote in its proceedings.

Part 3: Powers

3.1. The Panel shall consider only such cases referred to it by:

(1) (a) a primary referring body;

(b) a secondary referring body which has first consulted with the relevant primary referring body and the latter has indicated that it does not see a reason itself to make a referral but has no objection to the secondary referring body doing so; or:

(c) a secondary referring body falling within the ambit of regulation 3.2.

(2) (a) the Proctors;

(b) the Student Disciplinary Panel;

(c) the Student Appeal Panel;

where under the relevant statute or regulation there are powers to suspend hearings until such a view is sought.

3.2. Where a secondary referring body has first consulted with the relevant primary referring body and the latter has refused to make a referral, the secondary referring body nonetheless has the right, irrespective of the view of the primary referring body, to ask the Chair of the Panel to review the matter. In such cases, the Chair of the Panel must request and, if such are received, consider representations from the primary and secondary referring bodies, and shall determine in the light of such representations whether the case should be referred to the Panel for consideration. In the event of a positive determination, the Panel shall consider the case.

3.3. Notwithstanding regulation 3.1, the Panel may consider only such cases concerning the fitness to study of a named student as fall within the relevant referring body's jurisdiction and provided always that it is reasonably satisfied that any other reasonable recourse or mechanism available, either under the governing primary, secondary or other rules of the relevant referring body or under the statutes and regulations, has first been followed.

3.4. Notwithstanding regulations 3.1 and 3.2, the Chair of the Panel shall be entitled to rule that a case which has been referred should not be further considered by the Panel on the basis that it falls outside the Panel's jurisdiction as defined in these Regulations.

3.5. (1) The Panel shall make determinations in respect of a student's fitness to study on behalf of the University and make such recommendations to referring bodies as it shall consider necessary and proportionate, given the factors specified in regulation 3.8. Decisions and recommendations may include but are not limited to the following:

(a) a decision or recommendation that a student is not fit to study in accordance with section 6 of Statute XIII;

(b) a decision or recommendation that the student is fit to study in accordance with section 6 of Statute Xlll;

(c) a decision or recommendation that the student's continued access to University and college facilities and premises be subject to certain conditions;

(d) a decision or recommendation that a student's access to University and college premises and facilities be suspended for a specific, or for an indefinite, period;

(e) a recommendation that the matter is dealt with by the college under procedures determined by the college.

(2) The Panel shall seek the views of the student's college and department/faculty before making a decision or recommendation under paragraph (1) above.

(3) The decision of the Panel shall be final and marks the completion of the University's procedure concerning fitness to study.

3.6. Notwithstanding regulation 3.5, the Panel may refer back for resolution to the primary or secondary referring body, as appropriate, any case which it believes may best be resolved by that referring body's own internal processes.

3.7. Notwithstanding regulation 3.5, the Chair of the Panel may, in cases of demonstrable and serious urgency, recommend after discussion with the primary referring body that such interim measures be adopted as are necessary and proportionate until such a time as the case may be determined by the Panel.

3.8. In considering a case the Panel (or, in the case of regulations 3.4 and 3.7, the Chair of the Panel) shall:

(1) apply the definition of 'fitness to study' set out in section 6 of Statute Xlll;

(2) be entitled to employ or to draw upon suitably qualified expert advice, including expert medical, psychiatric and legal advice;

(3) have due regard to the obligations of the University and the student's college under equality legislation and the duty to make reasonable adjustments.

3.9. In accordance with section 11 of Statute XIII, if a student who faces disciplinary proceedings under the University's procedures is referred to the Panel, the disciplinary proceedings shall be suspended pending the Panel's consideration of the student's fitness to study and shall recommence automatically if it is the decision of the Panel under regulation 3.5 that the student is fit to study.

3.10. (1) In circumstances where a student's condition or conduct gives rise to a need for immediate action, the Proctors shall have power to suspend that student pending consideration by the Panel of his/her fitness to study.

(2) Each suspension under paragraph (1) above shall be reviewed by the Proctors at least every 21 days.

3.11. Any information received by the Panel or the Proctors in respect of matters concerning a student's fitness to study shall be regarded as strictly confidential and any person or body dealing with such information shall have due regard to the duty of confidentiality attaching to the information concerned.

Part 4: Sittings

4.1. Where a case is referred to the Panel and is not excluded by the Chair under regulation 3.4, the Chair and Vice-Chair shall designate three members of the Panel (one of whom may be either the Chair or Vice-Chair) to hear the case and make a decision or recommendations or references back under regulations 3.5 or 3.6. One such member shall always be drawn from those appointed by Council and one from those appointed by the Conference of Colleges under regulation 2.1. The third member shall be drawn from those appointed by the Conference of Colleges in cases concerning undergraduate students and from those appointed by Council in the case of graduate students. Members of the Panel shall not have had prior involvement with the particular student's case.

4.2. The Chair shall direct the procedure for the hearing and the Secretary shall be responsible for making such arrangements as are necessary for each hearing.

4.3. The Panel shall be bound in all its hearings by the rules of natural justice (and in so far as they differ, by the rules of procedural fairness).

4.4. The Panel may commission expert opinion and ask the student concerned to attend a consultation with the expert appointed.

4.5. The student shall be entitled to make representation to the Panel and may call witnesses in support of such representation. They may at all times be accompanied to hearings by a person of their choice but will be expected to answer questions put to them, even if another person acts as their advocate.

4.6. Refusal or any failure to attend the hearing by the student, their witnesses or the person chosen to accompany the student, and any refusal or failure by the student to attend a consultation under regulation 4.4, shall not necessarily invalidate the proceedings. The Panel will consider whether an adjournment would in such circumstances be appropriate but has the right under such circumstances to proceed with the hearing.

Part 5: Hearings of the Panel

5.1. Hearings shall be conducted in private in accordance with guidance and procedures approved by the Student Health and Welfare Subcommittee of the Education Committee and shall have due regard to the principles of natural justice.

5.2. The student shall be notified of the date of the hearing and shall normally be given a minimum of 10 working days' notice.

5.3. The student shall be given reasonable notice, and wherever reasonably possible a minimum of 10 working days' notice, of the matters to be considered by the Panel.

5.4. The referring body should normally provide to the Panel in advance of the hearing the papers that it wishes the Panel to consider in evidence. A copy of such papers is at the same time normally to be provided to the student except to the extent that the Panel, informed by expert guidance, is of the view that any matter under consideration, if known to the student, could have an unacceptably deleterious impact on the student or on others.

5.5. Where expert opinion is required, the Panel will adjourn until such time as the opinion has been obtained.

5.6. The hearing shall commence with private discussions of the Panel to clarify matters of process only.

5.7. The student and an accompanying person (if any) shall be called to appear before the Panel. The student and any accompanying person may normally be present for the duration of the hearing until such time(s) as s/he is asked to withdraw so as to enable the Panel to come to its decision.

5.8. The Chair of the Panel shall outline the detail which the Panel has been convened to consider and ensure that the student understands the nature of the matters under consideration.

5.9. A statement shall be requested from the student about the matters under consideration upon which the Panel shall be entitled to question the student. Any failure by the student to provide such a statement shall not necessarily invalidate the proceedings.

5.10. Witnesses or external advisors (of which the Panel and the student have been notified in advance) shall be called in the following order: those called by the Panel followed by those called by the student. Each witness or external advisor shall be requested to make an oral statement or to confirm the contents of a previously provided written statement. They shall be questioned by the Panel and may be questioned by the student or accompanying person. Witnesses or external advisors shall withdraw from the hearing after questioning.

5.11. The student and accompanying person shall withdraw to enable the Panel to consider its decisions and recommendations.

5.12. The decisions and recommendations of the Panel shall be confirmed in writing to the student and to the referring bodies by the Secretary, normally within 10 working days of the hearing.

Part 6: Annual Report

6.1. The Panel shall provide an annual report on its activities, making recommendations as appropriate, to the Student Health and Welfare Subcommittee of the Education Committee.'

2 These regulations shall be effective from 1 October 2012.

R Wade-Martins, Christ Church, Faculty of Physiological Sciences

Candidate statement:

The University is a diverse organisation that faces challenges from many directions. Our core activities are teaching and research. Maintaining excellence in these, despite the numerous other demands on our attention, is crucial to continuing success. Specifically I believe that success will come through supporting individuals and teams of colleagues to have the freedom, time and resources they need to pursue world class research and innovative teaching. I have held positions both inside and beyond the university that I believe prepare me well for service on the Council. I was elected Chairman of Physics and led one of the largest departments in the University for five years. I have served on Research Councils, I have Chaired the Board of Directors of two international Observatories and for the last two years I have been President of the Royal Astronomical Society. Through these roles I have firsthand experience of priority setting with limited resources, and taking the lead in promoting academic research beyond the confines of academe. The University is fortunate in having access to resources from donors and OUP in addition to student fees, HEFCE and Research Council funding. Marshalling those resources to best serve researchers and scholars is the crucial role of Council and one I look forward to participating in.

W Gillies McKenna, BSc Edin, PhD MD Albert Einstein, Fellow of Wolfson, Faculty of Clinical Medicine

Nominated by:

Sir John Bell, Christ Church, Faculty of Clinical Medicine
A M Cooper-Sarkar, St Hilda's, Faculty of Physics
P K Maini, St John's, Faculty of Mathematics

C J Schofield, Hertford, Faculty of Chemistry
T P Softley, Merton, Faculty of Chemistry
L Tarassenko, St John's, Faculty of Engineering Science
H C Watkins, Exeter, Faculty of Clinical Medicine

Candidate statement:

We live in difficult times, and it is essential that the Divisions find opportunities to work together. As your representative for both the Medical (MSD) and Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Divisions, my goal will be to ensure that we have a voice in support of our activities in the highest levels of the University. There is much work to be done at the interfaces of our disciplines, and it is in such areas that we often train our students and postdoctoral fellows. I have demonstrated ability to work with both the MSD and MPLS Divisions in numerous areas linking with external funding partners and Research Councils. The Oxford Cancer Imaging Centre of which I am Principal Investigator has brought in millions of pounds of research support, and brings together researchers from Chemistry, Mathematics and Engineering with many researchers across the MSD and NHS Trust. I ensured that 40% of the funds raised for the Imaging Centre went to support trainees, the vast majority of them working across Divisions. The Particle Therapy Cancer Research Institute, which I helped found, brings together researchers in the MSD with Physics and Computing from MPLS. Foundations that we build in hard times will allow us to build mighty edifices for teaching and research when times improve. The interests of MSD and MPLS are so closely entwined that it is essential that we be effectively represented on Council. I would be honoured to take on this role with your support.

Candidate statement:

The University is a diverse organisation that faces challenges from many directions. Our core activities are teaching and research. Maintaining excellence in these, despite the numerous other demands on our attention, is crucial to continuing success. Specifically I believe that success will come through supporting individuals and teams of colleagues to have the freedom, time and resources they need to pursue world class research and innovative teaching. I have held positions both inside and beyond the university that I believe prepare me well for service on the Council. I was elected Chairman of Physics and led one of the largest departments in the University for five years. I have served on Research Councils, I have Chaired the Board of Directors of two international Observatories and for the last two years I have been President of the Royal Astronomical Society. Through these roles I have firsthand experience of priority setting with limited resources, and taking the lead in promoting academic research beyond the confines of academe. The University is fortunate in having access to resources from donors and OUP in addition to student fees, HEFCE and Research Council funding. Marshalling those resources to best serve researchers and scholars is the crucial role of Council and one I look forward to participating in.

Candidate statement:

We live in difficult times, and it is essential that the Divisions find opportunities to work together. As your representative for both the Medical (MSD) and Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Divisions, my goal will be to ensure that we have a voice in support of our activities in the highest levels of the University. There is much work to be done at the interfaces of our disciplines, and it is in such areas that we often train our students and postdoctoral fellows. I have demonstrated ability to work with both the MSD and MPLS Divisions in numerous areas linking with external funding partners and Research Councils. The Oxford Cancer Imaging Centre of which I am Principal Investigator has brought in millions of pounds of research support, and brings together researchers from Chemistry, Mathematics and Engineering with many researchers across the MSD and NHS Trust. I ensured that 40% of the funds raised for the Imaging Centre went to support trainees, the vast majority of them working across Divisions. The Particle Therapy Cancer Research Institute, which I helped found, brings together researchers in the MSD with Physics and Computing from MPLS. Foundations that we build in hard times will allow us to build mighty edifices for teaching and research when times improve. The interests of MSD and MPLS are so closely entwined that it is essential that we be effectively represented on Council. I would be honoured to take on this role with your support.

Dyslexia Research Study

I'm looking for participants with dyslexia to take part in a short research study. It consists of taking a high dose of omega-3 supplements for 28 days. The purpose of the study is to compare the effects of an omega-3 supplemented diet compared to a normal diet on a series of computer and paper-based tests, which take no longer than 2 hours in total (one hour at the start of the month, one hour at the end). There is evidence to suggest that omega-3 is deficient in people with dyslexia, and there is emerging evidence that supplementing with omega-3 can help to improve deficits in dyslexia. You will be reimbursed for your time (around £10). For more information please email me at rachel.hulatt@oriel.ox.ac.uk.

George Eastman Visiting Professor 2015–6

The University invites expressions of interest in the George Eastman Visiting Professorship in the academic year 2015–6 from citizens of the United States, in a branch of university study within the Medical Sciences or the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences. Like previous holders of this distinguished chair, the new visiting professor will be eminent in teaching and/or research.

Information about the constituent units of the Medical Sciences Division and the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division at Oxford may be found at www.ox.ac.uk/divisions/index.html.

The Visiting Professor is normally resident in Oxford for one academic year and is required to deliver 24 lectures or classes during that time. In parallel with holding the chair, the Professor will be elected to a Professorial Fellowship at Balliol College. Eastman House, the official residence of the Professor, is provided rent-free. A professorial stipend is payable for the year, and the University meets the reasonable cost of the Professor's return air fare from the United States.

Enquiries from prospective candidates should be addressed by email to professorships@admin.ox.ac.uk. Candidates will be asked to seek nomination by another individual through one of the constituent units of the relevant Oxford division, and to supply a CV/list of publications and the names of three referees. The closing date for nominations is 1 October 2012.

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates, who are under-represented in academic posts in Oxford.

General Purposes Committee of Council

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council (GPC) has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 29 June.

Establishment of Helene T A M La Rue Scholarship Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Helene T A M La Rue Scholarship Fund in support of the academic fees and maintenance expenses of junior members of St Cross College studying Music, with preference being given to those whose academic research concerns the musical collections of the University of Oxford. GPC, on behalf of Council, approved these regulations on 30 January 2012, subject to: (i) the passing of a resolution by Council for the purposes of the Charities Act 1993 to broaden the objects of the trust fund supporting the scheme; and (ii) the acceptance of such resolution by the Charity Commission. Council passed such a resolution on 13 February 2012 (see 'Notices' section of Gazette of 1 March 2012, p 355), and the Charity Commission has confirmed that it is satisfied that that resolution meets the requirements of the 1993 Act, and that it will be effective on 27 May 2012. Both conditions therefore having been met, these regulations may now come into effect.

Text of Regulations

'§ 201. Helene T A M La Rue Scholarship Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude a legacy from Helene T A M La Rue to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Helene T A M La Rue Scholarship Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of that part of the Fund (if any) that is not part of the original legacy or otherwise designated as Permanent Endowment, towards:

(a) payment in whole or in part of the academic fees and maintenance expenses of one or more junior members of St Cross College, who shall be designated La Rue scholars, who are studying Music, with a preference being given to those whose academic research concerns the musical collections of the University of Oxford;

(b) if no suitable candidate for an award is available in any academic year in which the trustee, acting by the Fund's board of management, had intended to make such an award, the payment of the total amount of the funds which the board of management had intended to disburse in that year to the Principal and Fellows of Lady Margaret Hall, to be used for the purpose of supporting the studies of the junior members of Lady Margaret Hall; and

(c) hosting of a dinner in St Cross College for all current and former La Rue Scholars and for such other members of the University and the general public as the board of management shall see fit to invite.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of a board of management comprising of:

(1) the Master of St Cross College or his or her designate;

(2) the Chair of the Board of the Faculty of Music or his or her designate;

(3) the Principal of Lady Margaret Hall or his or her designate;

(4) one Fellow of St Cross College who shall be chosen in accordance with such procedures as the Governing Body of St Cross College shall establish; and

(5) as chair of the board, Clare La Rue and after her death, some such person as she shall have designated.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Scholarship.

Congregation

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

2 These regulations shall be effective from 27 May 2012.

Dyslexia Research Study

I'm looking for participants with dyslexia to take part in a short research study. It consists of taking a high dose of omega-3 supplements for 28 days. The purpose of the study is to compare the effects of an omega-3 supplemented diet compared to a normal diet on a series of computer and paper-based tests, which take no longer than 2 hours in total (1 hour at the start of the month, 1 hour at the end). There is evidence to suggest that omega-3 is deficient in people with dyslexia, and there is emerging evidence that supplementing with omega-3 can help to improve deficits in dyslexia. You will be reimbursed for your time (around £10). For more information please email me at rachel.hulatt@oriel.ox.ac.uk.

Gazette Supplement

Encaenia 2012

Congregation 20 June

1 Conferment of Honorary Degrees

The Public Orator made the following speeches in presenting the recipients of Honorary Degrees at the Encaenia held in the Sheldonian Theatre on Wednesday, 20 June:

Degree of Doctor of Civil Law

DAW AUNG SAN SUU KYI
Chairman of the National League for Democracy, Burma, and member of the Burmese parliament

Quid multa? Hodie enim agmen honorandorum ducit femina cuius apud nos praesentia verbis facundius loquitur. Tubis pompa plausu eam honestamus; quae magnificentia nihil valeret nisi signum esset spei atque admirationis in pectoribus nostris funditus conditae. Hoc igitur ei dicimus: 'Necesse est ut in conspectu permultorum huc regrediaris; at non obliviscimur te simul ad antiquos lares et ad urbem memoriae plenam redire. Hic studuisti, hic amicos paravisti, hic iuventutis gaudia cognovisti, hic uxor et mater vitam umbratilem egisti donec amor patriae ardorque libertatis vindicandae domum te vocaverunt; sed coniugem filiolosque dilectissimos relinquere cogebaris, ita ut reditus ad locum natalem in exsilium quoddam converteretur. Multos per annos solitudinem vix tolerabilem sustulisti, patientiam atque fortitudinem paene incredibilem praebuisti. Maxima nunc laetitia te rursus Oxoniae versatam salutamus; tuo in animo qui affectus misceantur, nescimus, nec decet amplius exquirere. Hoc tamen adfirmamus: silentium tuum clarius strepitu forensi et armorum clangore sonuit; in tenebris tantis parvula tua lucerna orbem terrarum illuminavit; tranquillitas tua mundum commovit. Intellegimus igitur nos in hoc theatro sedentes simul velut in theatro cunctarum gentium fabulam spectare cuius finis adhuc maneat incertus. Quare in praesenti exspectamus speramus oramus.'

Praesento stellam orientalem, fulgidum magni populi lumen, Aung San Suu Kyi, Collegii Sancti Hugonis alumnam, Collegiorum Sancti Hugonis et Sancti Antoni sociam honoris causa adscriptam, Praemio Nobeliano nobilitatam, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili.

Admission by the Chancellor

Libertatis propugnatrix invicta, quae exemplum fortitudinis tuis civibus totique orbi terrarum praebuisti, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili honoris causa.

Paraphrase

There is little need of words; for today the line of honorands is led by one whose presence among us speaks more eloquently than any language. We honour her with trumpets, procession and applause, but all this magnificence would mean nothing were it not the outward expression of the hope and admiration deep within us. This we say to her: 'Of necessity, your return here is a public event, observed by many eyes, but we do not forget that you are also coming back to your old home and to a city full of memories. Here you studied and formed friendships, here you knew the delights of youth, here as a wife and mother you lived a quiet domestic life, until your love of country and passion for the cause of freedom summoned you back; but you were forced to leave behind a beloved husband and children, so that your return to your native land was made into a kind of exile. For many years you bore the burden of isolation, displaying patience and endurance to a degree not easily imagined. We hail you with joy as you appear in Oxford once more; as for yourself, we do not know what mixture of emotions you feel, and it would be impertinent to intrude on them. But this we declare: your silence has sounded louder than the jabber of politics and the clang of military power; out of deep darkness your little lamp has shone across the planet; your stillness has moved the world. Sitting in this theatre, we are conscious that we are also spectators of a drama played in the theatre of the nations, one whose ending is as yet unsure. And so for now we wait and hope and pray.'

I present a star shining in the east, the light of her countrymen, Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, graduate of St Hugh's College, honorary fellow of St Hugh's and St Antony's Colleges, Nobel Laureate, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

Chancellor

Unbowed champion of liberty, who have given your people and the whole world an example of courage and endurance, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

BARONESS (ELIZABETH LYDIA) MANNINGHAM-BULLER
Former Director General of the Security Service

Saepenumero homines nostris Encaeniis celebravimus qui res in conspectu omnium gesserunt, et in hoc saeculo, cum nuntii per interrete ut virus velocissime feruntur, difficillimum est a vita privata oculos vulgi arcere; atqui feminam hodie produco quae eo nota est quod ignota. Vergilius, cum Aenean sub terram duxisset, deos inferorum umbrasque silentes ita obsecravit:

> sit mihi fas audita loqui, sit numine vestro > pandere res alta terra et caligine mersas.

Mihimet, qui ne res audivi quidem, vel maius obstat impedimentum. Itaque librum consului cui Quis Ille inscribitur, ubi speravi eam aliquid de se dixisse, sed βοῦς ἐπὶ γλώσσηι μέγας βέβηκεν. Hoc tamen adfirmare ausim: nemo nunc in hoc theatro sedet quin beneficium opera eius et labore receperit. M Cicero 'salus populi' inquit 'suprema lex esto'; salutem nostram haec, ut ita dicam, pro virili parte defendit. Rude iam donata, propter merita senator designata est; et cum primam sententiam apud patres dixisset, prudentes et brevitatem orationis laudaverunt et sagacitatem. Illo enim tempore magistratus homines coniurationis suspectos in carcere per longius volebant tenere; quibus haec restitit. Ita se et securitatis populi et libertatis propugnatricem praebuit. Multas sane res gessit quas nescimus; unam saltem e caligine in lucem proferre possum: ubi otium habet, fit upilio; oves diligenter ut olim cives tuetur, neque a stercore et fimo abhorret. Sed cum saepe negotiis publicis in urbem adhuc vocetur, arieti ardor aliquando est continendus.

Praesento tenacem civitatis custodem, Elizabetham Lydiam Baronissam Manningham-Buller, Excellentissimi Ordinis de Balneo Dominam Commendatricem, Vigiliae Occultae quondam gubernatricem, Aulae Dominae Margaretae et alumnam et sociam honoris causa adscriptam, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili.

Admission by the Chancellor

Dux fortis et constans, quae ab hostibus atrocissimis rempublicam servavisti, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili honoris causa.

Paraphrase

On these occasions we have often enough celebrated eminences whose careers have been conducted in open view, and these days, when gossip can quickly go viral on the internet, it is hard indeed for people to keep their private lives out of the public eye; and yet today I present a lady who is famous for being unknown. When Virgil leads his hero below ground into the realm of the dead, he utters a prayer to the gods of the lower regions and the silent shades, asking that he be allowed to speak what he has heard and to reveal things sunk deep in the earth and darkness. I, who have not heard things at all, face a yet greater obstacle. So I have consulted Who's Who, in the hope that she might have said something about herself there, but 'a big ox has sat on [her] tongue' (Aeschylus, Agamemnon, 36–7 [ie 'I must keep quiet']). Still, I venture to assert this: there is no one sitting in this theatre now who has not benefited from her labours. Cicero laid down that the people's safety should be the highest law, and she has guarded our safety, as the Romans might have said, manfully. Once she had retired, her qualities earned her a peerage, and her maiden speech in the House of Lords was hailed alike for its brevity and its good sense. At that time the government was proposing to extend the period in which terrorist suspects could be kept in custody, and she argued against them, proving herself to be a champion of liberty as well as security. We are bound to be in ignorance about much of what she has done, but there is one matter which I am able to bring to light out of that deep darkness. When she has time free, she turns into a shepherd; she watches over her flock with the diligence that she previously devoted to watching over us, and mucks in with a will. But since she is still frequently summoned to town by the call of public service, the ram is quite often required to postpone his enthusiasm.

I present a tenacious guardian of the nation, Elizabeth Lydia Baroness Manningham-Buller, DCB, formerly Director General of the Security Service, graduate and honorary fellow of Lady Margaret Hall, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

Admission by the Chancellor

Strong and steadfast leader, who have preserved the nation from savage enemies, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

Degree of Doctor of Letters

Author

In obscuram silvam iterum est eundum. Ecce enim vir ut Democritus ille Iunior paucis notus paucioribus ignotus; nam licet verum eius nomen non multi agnoscant, cognomen ignorat fere nemo. Famam autem non solum propter libros ipsos bene meruit sed quia id genus narrationis quod colit non paulum mutaverit. Apud Graecos et Romanos fabulae commenticiae haud multi aestimabantur: litterarum existimatores de eis silebant; Tacitus, cum vitam Petronii breviter exponeret, de Satyricis nihil dixit. Recentioris aetatis docti fabulas oratione soluta compositas multo magis laudaverunt; eos tamen qui de occultis arcanorum exploratoribus scribebant adhuc censorio supercilio conspicabantur. Hic vir, dum iuvenis est, libellum de nece inter generosos perpetrata illo stilo quo excellebat Agatha nostra exaravit; quod lepido sane calamo est exsecutus. Sed cum primum de exploratore illo a frigore reverso scripsisset, omnes novum sidus in caelum ascendisse viderunt. Non enim viros pulcherrimam quamque facile allicientes vestituque grandi alea ludentes depingit; immo fraudem dolos homines velut in caeno et tenebris errantes repraesentat. Praeterea cum argumento fabulae lectores arrigit, tum loca tam vivide describit ut nos oculis auribus naribus ea sentire videamur.

In alio libro 'Sunt senes,' inquit, 'qui Oxoniam regressi credunt ipsos lapides sibi de sua iuventute loqui.' Addit Georgium Smiley, eum qui primas partes in suis libris non raro agit, aliter credidisse. Quidquid ipse de urbe nostra iudicat, magna liberalitate chartas in scriniis suis conditas Bibliothecae Bodleianae dedit; quare non solum bonum scriptorem sed bonum etiam amicum hodie salutamus.

Admission by the Chancellor

Scriptor ingeniosissime, qui lectores simul delectas et commoves, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris honoris causa.

Paraphrase

Again I must plunge into the dark wood, since here is a man to whom could be applied the words from Robert Burton's epitaph in Christ Church Cathedral: paucis notus paucioribus ignotus [known to few, unknown to fewer]. For though not many people may recognise his real name, his nom de plume is familiar to almost everybody. He has earned his fame not only from his books in themselves but because he has substantially changed the nature of the genre in which he writes. In classical antiquity novels were not highly regarded: the critics say nothing about them, and when Tacitus wrote his short sketch of Petronius, he failed to mention the Satyricon. In more recent times prose fiction has not lacked critical esteem, but the writers of spy stories continued to be rather looked down upon. Among our honorand's early works is a tale of murder among posh people in the manner that Agatha Christie made her own; and indeed it was deftly done. But when he published The Spy Who Came in from the Cold, everyone realised that there was a new kind of star in the firmament. Not for him heroes who casually seduce beautiful women and play the casino in dinner jackets; instead he depicts deceit, treachery and characters stumbling through dirt and gloom. What is more, he combines gripping plots with so vivid an evocation of places that we seem to see, hear and smell them.

In Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy he writes, 'There are old men who go back to Oxford and find their youth beckoning to them from the stones.' He adds that George Smiley (the leading role in several of his books) was not among them. Whatever his own feelings about this city, he has most generously donated his papers to the Bodleian Library; and so today we hail not only a fine writer but a good friend.

I present a most skilful weaver of tales, David John Moore Cornwell, alias John le Carré, graduate and honorary fellow of Lincoln College, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Admission by the Chancellor

Ingenious novelist, who both entertain and disturb your readers, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

PROFESSOR DREW GILPIN FAUST
President of Harvard University and historian of the American Civil War and the American South

Qui de rebus Americanis scribet, plerumque victorias imperium semper auctum prosperitatem fere in annum crescentem persequetur. Sed abhinc centum quinquaginta annis hanc felicitatem interrupit bellum civile, et exterae gentes caedem et vastationem populumque potentem

maesti obstupefactique viderunt. Feminam nunc produco cuius maiores per multa saecula clarissimum locum sua in patria occupaverunt: proavus senator creatus est; atavus ingentis nominis in theologia potitus; ipsa in latifundiis eius regionis e qua magna illa seditio erupit est educata. Anno salutis MCMXCVII librum de matribus inventionis (ut dicit) edidit. Erant iam qui vitis mulierum septentrionalem Americae partem habitantium studuerant; haec tamen feminas amplioris ordinis in meridionali regione natas – quas antehac docti aliquantum praetermiserant – perscrutari maluit. Acuto calamo aerumnas earum descripsit quae ante bellum omnia famulis commiserant, nunc necessitate coactae laborabant pueros educabant vulneratos fovebant. In celeberrimo e libris suis, cui titulus Haec Doloris Respublica, nec κλέα ἀνδρῶν nec viros μάχην ἐς κυδιάνειραν ruentes sed angorem cruciatus tormenta describit. In hoc enim bello nova armorum genera stragem in immensum auxerunt, quam nova ars photographica acerbissime monstrabat, ita ut mors, ut putat, pectora omnium Americanorum funditus inquietaret. Quas res sermone non tumido sed eloquenti exposuit.

Ad laetiora transeo. Hanc enim ob hoc quoque honestamus, quod prima e sexu muliebri ad summum munus in vetustissima suae patriae universitate ascenderit. Protinus magnae eam difficultates ibi circumsteterunt, divitiis haud paulum imminutis. Atqui nosmet (da veniam quaeso, domina) sane gauderemus talibus angustiis pressi. In tempore hoc incerto ducem se et custodem universitatis sagacem praebuit; ipsius domum Cantabrigiae custodit Clio canis, quae omnes praeter dominum et dominam dicitur momordisse. Mentem ipsius animumque Musae et Clio et Melpomene afflatu suo inspirant.

The historian of the USA can for the most part expect to tell a tale of victories, a continual enlargement of power, and prosperity increasing almost by the day. But a century and a half ago civil war broke into this happy condition, and the world in horror and dismay watched killing and devastation and 'people strong… whose conquering swords their own breasts launcht' (Lucan, tr Marlowe). The lady whom I now present is descended from forebears who have played a distinguished part in their country's history across the years: a great-grandfather was a senator; a remoter ancestor was the famous theologian Jonathan Edwards; and she herself was brought up on those broad acres which gave rise to the Confederate secession. In 1997 she published Mothers of Invention. The women of the northern United States had already been the object of research; she for her part gave her attention to the upper-class ladies of the south, whom scholarship had largely overlooked. She gave a telling account of the travails of women who before the war had left everything to their slaves but now found themselves forced to face physical toil, bring up their children, and nurse the wounded. In her most famous book, This Republic of Suffering, she described not the valiant deeds and glorious battles familiar from epic poetry but misery, pain and anguish. In this war new kinds of weaponry vastly increased the scale of the slaughter, which was in turn pitilessly exposed by the new art of photography, so that death, as she argues, became central to the American experience. She tells the story in measured but eloquent language.

On a more cheerful note, we also honour her as the first woman to head her nation's oldest university. Immediately she had to confront a crisis, on account of the sharp fall in its endowment. (I hope she will forgive the reflection that we would be thrilled to be crushed by poverty like hers.) In tough times she has proved herself a shrewd leader and guardian; her own home in Cambridge is guarded by Clio, a dog named from the Muse of History, who is said to have bitten everyone except her owners. The Muses of History and Tragedy combine to inspire her own work.

I present a humane historian, a tireless guide of her university, Catharine Drew Gilpin Faust, President of Harvard University, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Penetrating mistress of the craft of history, who have advanced learning alike in your books and by your actions, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

SIR HOWARD STRINGER
Chairman of Sony Corporation

Iaponicorum industriae sollertiae artificio quis laudem recuset? Haud facile imaginem photographicam facere vel orbem phonographicum audire possis nisi machinis eorum utaris. Qui autem suam αὐταρκείαν diligenter servaverunt, neque exterarum gentium auxilium requirere videntur. Hodie tamen virum honestamus qui illa claustra refregit et in societate Iaponica ad summum fastigium ascendit. Inter Cambrenses natus, populum animosum atque eloquentem nec nimia verecundia impeditum, in Anglia educatus, tum Oxoniam venit, ubi historiae studuit magistrumque suum (o si sic omnes) maximi dicitur aestimavisse. Mox adhuc iuvenis ad Americam perrexit, ubi multos per annos apud societatem televisificam operatus est et multa ibi praemia recepit.

Quare si totum aetatis cursum illo modo degere maluisset, successu haud parvo fructus esset; sed novos campos explorare avebat, novas laureas mereri. Itaque in mercatorum tabularium se contulit, quo in loco adeo floruit ut societatis suae dux primo in America tum toto orbe terrarum fieret. Multi quidem illo tempore naufragium fecerunt; hic vir ut bonus navis rector suos per saxa et tempestates sollerter advexit.

Quamquam modo in Asia modo in America longa per tempora habitavit, patriae non oblitus est domumque in comitatu nostro Oxoniensi possidet. Ludum seriis miscere novit neque ei est monendum ut in loco studium lucri ponat. Libros colligit, arte cinematographica maxime delectatur, de fortunis athletarum Cambrensium ardenter exquirit. Optimus convivator, Oxonienses Oxoniaeque fautores Novi Eboraci et in California magnifico hospitio accepit. Cui nunc et grates offerimus et laudationem.

Praesento virum commercii peritissimum, verum universitatis nostrae amicum, Howard Stringer, equitem auratum, societatis Sony gubernatorem, Collegii Mertonensis et alumnum et socium honoris causa adscriptum, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Who could fail to admire the industry, skill and ingenuity of the Japanese? One can hardly take a photograph or listen to a disc without using their manufactures. They have a strong sense of self-sufficiency, and seem to feel no need to turn to any other country for support. Today, though, we honour a man who has broken through that barrier and risen to the very top of a Japanese company. He was born in Wales, among an eloquent, spirited people, not lacking in self-confidence, and schooled in England, after which he read history at Oxford, where he is said to have acquired a deep admiration for his tutor (an attitude which one would wish to be universal). Still in his early twenties he moved to America, where he worked in broadcasting for many years, winning a number of awards; so if he had chosen to continue on that path for his whole career, his achievement would have been large; but he was keen to explore new fields and win new laurels. Accordingly, he turned himself into a businessman, with such success that he came to head his company first in America and then worldwide. It was a time when many firms were shipwrecked, but this expert helmsman guided his ship dexterously through rocks and tempest.

Despite long periods of residence in Asia and America, he has not forgotten his native land, and indeed keeps a home in our own county of Oxfordshire. He knows how to relax as well as work, and has no need of Horace's advice to his friend to put aside the pursuit of profit for a while. He collects books, is passionate about the cinema, and takes a keen interest in Welsh sport. He is also renowned as a host, and has entertained our alumni and other supporters magnificently in New York and Los Angeles. We now offer him our gratitude and this expression of praise.

I present a most skilful businessman, a true friend of this University, Sir Howard Stringer, Chairman of the Sony Corporation, graduate and honorary fellow of Merton College, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Admission by the Chancellor

Shrewd man of affairs, who have successfully borne the weight of a great enterprise in testing times, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

PROFESSOR CHARLES MARGRAVE TAYLOR
Philosopher

Sunt qui existiment philosophiam in republica gubernanda paulum valere; ita Cicero Catonem reprehendit quia sententiam tamquam in Platonis πολιτείαι diceret, non ut homo inter homines. Putant alii philosophos res solum explicuisse nec satis contendisse ut eas meliores redderent. Virum autem nunc produco cuius exemplo et hos et illos confutare possis. Ubi praemium Rhodesianum adeptus primum apud nos studuit, philosophorum Oxoniensium doctrina in magna orbis terrarum parte praevalebat; qui credebant si verborum significationem recte interpretarentur, rerum quoque naturam fore ut intellegerent. Quos haudquaquam neglegebat, sed rationem eorum ad alias quaestiones adhibere malebat. Constat inter doctos eum studium τῶν πολιτικῶν, quod illi forsitan aliquantulo fastidio intuerentur, dignum atque etiam iucundum rursus reddidisse. Nam cum scit res perdifficiles et perobscuras lucido sermone explanare, tum ea quae pectora humana in imis medullis commovent vult perscrutari; quare de more atque cultu de civitate de omnibus denique per quae 'inter se mortales mutua vivunt' copioso sermone disputavit. Multos post annos Professor Chicheleanus creatus huc iterum se contulit, sed amor patriae maior erat quam ut diu apud nos maneret. Dixit Cicero, ubi de legibus disserebat, sibi atque omnibus municipibus duas esse patrias, unam naturae, alteram civitatis; simili modo hic vir, Quebeciae alumnus, modos examinavit quibus cives ibi Francogalli pietatem erga avos pariter et rempublicam praestent. Adde quod hic, et θεωρητικῆς et πρακτικῆς διανοίας magister, ter vel quater suffragia populi petivit, quam rem solum non optime gessit. Sed vocem, etsi non in parliamento sonuit, in Canada aliisque terris intento animo auscultant plurimi.

Praesento philosophum prudentem et fervidum, Carolum Margrave Taylor, Excellentissimi Ordinis Canadae comitem, Academiae Britannicae socium, Collegii Balliolensis et alumnum et socium honoris causa adscriptum, Collegii Omnium Animarum socium bis electum, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Sapientiae et humanitatis exemplum, tu qui humani generis societatem summo ingenii acumine descripsisti, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris honoris causa.

Paraphrase

There is a view that philosophy is of little value in the public sphere; Cicero criticised Cato for arguing as though he were in Plato's Republic rather than the real world. Others complain that philosophers have merely interpreted the world, instead of striving to make it better. But I now present a man whose career can refute both these judgements. When he first arrived here as a Rhodes Scholar, Oxford Philosophy was dominant in English-speaking countries. This school emphasised the interpretation of language: an exact analysis of words was the road to understanding the world. Our honorand, for his part, respected this approach, but his particular interest was in applying it to other kinds of question. His colleagues agree that he made political philosophy, which was perhaps a little looked down upon in the heyday of the analytic philosophers, seem respectable again and even fun. He has the gift for clarifying abstruse and obscure subjects, but he is also concerned to investigate those matters which stir deep human emotions; accordingly, he has written extensively about culture and community and the various ways in which, as Lucretius has it, 'men live in interchange one with another'. After many years' absence he returned here as Chichele Professor of Economic and Social Theory, but he was too much of a patriot to stay long. Cicero observed in his treatise on laws that he and other provincial Italians had two loyalties, one of birth, the other of citizenship; in similar spirit this son of Quebec has weighed the means by which his French compatriots can express both an ancestral and a national identity. A master of both theoretical and practical wisdom, he has stood for parliament three or four times, the only part of his career that has not met with complete success. But although his voice has not sounded in the House, many indeed are those who listen to it intently, in Canada and abroad.

I present a philosopher both judicious and passionate, Charles Margrave Taylor, CC, FBA, graduate and honorary fellow of Balliol College, twice elected a fellow of All Souls College, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

DR HENRY JOSEPH MACAULAY BARNETT
Neurologist

Apoplexis ictum quis non timet? Nemo sane est quin amicos vel cognatos habeat illa peste adflictos vel sit ipse percussus. Recte igitur humani generis amicus vocatur qui, ut hic quem videtis, rationem eius arcendae invenerit. Iterum hominem e Canadensibus clarissimum produco; at hic Novi Castelli in septentrionalibus nostrae patriae partibus natus est. Festive dicit domum natalem antea lupanar fuisse; pater tamen erat sacerdos et episcopus creatus trans Oceanum cum suis migravit. Ipse tirocinio completo ad Britanniam reversus aliquod tempus apud nos Oxonienses studuit, tum domum rursus petivit. Magnam ibi famam propter multa praeclare reperta mox nactus est. Causam cuiusdam generis apoplexis, quam docti antea debilitati cordis affinxerant, venis coartatis attribuendam esse monstravit. Cum conlegis hic primus probavit medicamentum iam ad parvos morbos leniendos adhibitum arterias quoque protegere aliquantum valere. At cum hoc, utile sane et salutare, neque apoplexin nec dementiam omnino prohibere posset, alios modos morbi sanandi quaesivit, comperitque si venae in cervice sitae velut tubuli illuvie obstructi detergerentur, sanguine ad cerebrum facilius fluente multo minus fore morbi accessionis periculum. Praeterea doctos docuit quomodo corpora hominum forte temere selectorum scrutati aestimare possent utrum senio an sanguinis densitate an ea dulcedinis repugnantia quam διαβήτην vocant maxime periclitaretur. Quare ab omnibus princeps eorum habetur neurologorum qui causas apoplexis exquirunt. Ruris amoenitatum amator, avium observator intentissimus, avus proavusque diligens et dilectus, otium optime meritum nunc in agresti regione Ontarionis agit; sed cruda viro viridisque senectus.

Praesento Hippocratis antistitem insignissimum, Henricum Iosephum Macaulay Barnett, Excellentissimi Ordinis Canadae comitem, Institutionis Robartsianae conditorem et quondam rectorem, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia.

Stroke is a cause of universal anxiety, for there is surely no one who does not have friends or family who have been assailed by its ravages or maybe suffered attack himself. So anyone who, like the man whom you now see before you, has found ways of preventing it is rightly hailed as a friend of the human race. Once more I present one of Canada's most distinguished citizens; this one, though, was born in the north of our own country, at Newcastle upon Tyne. He is amused by the thought that the building in which he was born was formerly a house of ill repute; however, his own father was a clergyman, whose appointment as a bishop took him and his family across the Atlantic. The son came back to England after finishing his training and worked for a time here in Oxford before returning home again. There his many discoveries soon made him a legend. He demonstrated that some strokes which had previously been attributed to cardiac events were actually brought about by narrowing of the arteries. He and his colleagues were the first to prove that the humble aspirin could not only serve to soothe minor discomforts but could also provide the arterial system with a measure of protection. But useful though this pill might be, it could not prevent stroke or dementia; so he sought further for a cure and found that if the carotid arteries, like blocked drains, could be cleared out, blood would flow more freely to the brain and combat the risk of attack. He also taught the scientific community how the use of randomised trials could show the relative risk impact of such factors as age, blood pressure or diabetes. Accordingly, he is by general consent the world's leading stroke neurologist. A nature lover and a passionate bird watcher, a loving and beloved grandfather and great-grandfather, he now enjoys a well earned retirement in rural Ontario, but to adapt Virgil,

PROFESSOR WILLIAM DANIEL PHILLIPS
Physicist

Lucretius, quem moles et machina mundi tanto amore cepit, semina rerum perpetuum contrudi dissolvi eiecta recedi nullo denique tempore in eodem loco remorari docuit. Et recte. Hoc enim rerum naturae studiosi nostra aetate reppererunt: vaporis corpuscula minima, si in eo tepore exstant quo nostris in aedibus frui solemus, non minus velociter quam sonus continuo moventur. Nemo antea hos motus satis cohibere poterat; hic tamen quem nunc produco atomos luminis radiis oppugnavit et vi magnetis spirisque ferreis velut in plagam coegit. Sed cum plaga ipsa non adeo valeat ut atomos diu retineat, vigor earum proprius immodico frigore est supprimendus. Quod tanta peritia hic fecit ut paene ad extremum gelationis gradum pervenerit qui naturae foederibus conceditur. Itaque per eum stat ut docti nunc melius sciant quibus modis semina luminis et materiei inter se mutuo agant; ut melius intelligant quae vis sit in vaporibus si frigidissimi sint facti; fortasse ut machinas construere possint ad temporis intervalla per atomos vel exactius metienda.

Ipse eam alacritatem praebet quam in corpusculis repressit. Constat inter omnes eum, licet multis iam honoribus cumulatus sit, se semper comem lenem humanum praebuisse; nullum in eo fastum, nullam esse superbiam. Dicunt amici puerili quadam voluptate arcanis naturae studere; haudquaquam sane ei opus est ut illo Domini Nostri praecepto moneatur, 'Nisi efficiamini sicut parvuli, non intrabitis in regnum caelorum.' In hoc autem a Lucretio dissentit: Deum in rerum natura percipit, et contra homines scientiam naturalem religioni repugnare adfirmantes disputavit.

Praesento molecularum domitorem et frenatorem, naturae rerum indagatorem sollertissimum, Gulielmum Danielem Phillips, apud Universitatem Marylandianam professorem, apud Balliolenses quondam professorem Eastmanianum, praemio Nobeliano nobilitatum, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia.

Admission by the Chancellor

Parvarum rerum domine magne, cuius conspectum corpuscula vel minutissima evadere nequeunt, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia honoris causa.

Paraphrase

Lucretius, a man enchanted by the idea that the universe is an enormous machine, held that the basic constituents of matter are ceaselessly active – colliding, separating, thrust apart. Modern science has confirmed this picture; indeed the molecules of gases at room temperature are in constant motion at approximately the speed of sound. No one had found a way of calming them down, until the man whom I now present bombarded them with laser beams and used a coil with a magnetic field to trap them. Such a trap, however, is too weak to hold the atoms within it for long, unless their innate vitality is restrained by extreme cold. Our honorand managed this with such success that he came very close to absolute zero. His work has taught scientists a better knowledge of the interplay between the components of light and matter; it has led to a better understanding of the behaviour of gases at extremely low temperatures; and it may lead to the design of atomic clocks even more precise than those which exist at present.

In person, he displays the liveliness which he has forbidden to his molecules. Everyone agrees that for all the honours with which he has been laden, he remains gentle, friendly and approachable, with no airs and graces about him. His friends say that he retains a childlike delight in doing physics; evidently he has no need to be warned by the gospel saying, 'Except ye become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.' Indeed, he differs from Lucretius in this, that he sees God in nature, and he has taken part in the debate about science and religion, arguing against those who hold the two to be incompatible.

I present a man who has tamed and controlled molecules, a most skilled investigator of nature, William Daniel Phillips, Professor at the University of Maryland, former Eastman Visiting Professor at Balliol College, Nobel Laureate, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Admission by the Chancellor

Great master of little things, whose eye even the tiniest particles cannot escape, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

2 Encaenia

The Public Orator delivered the following Oration 'in commemoration of the Benefactors of the University according to the intention of the Right Honourable Nathaniel, Lord Crewe, Bishop of Durham'.

Orator: Honoratissime Domine Cancellarie, licetne anglice loqui?

Chancellor: Licet.

Orator:

Thank you, sir. I know it's showing off, but I like to demonstrate that I can do English too. First, though, a word of ancient Greek. 'Encaenia' means 'renewals'. This is the day on which we look back on the past with gratitude, at the present with pleasure though, I trust, without complacency, and at the future with hope. We are a very old university, but we are also new. At this time each year we think of the fresh young shoots constantly springing from our ancient soil, richly fertilised as it is by old decaying organic matter, well rotted. I see some of it before me today. This is also the time when we honour a small number of people who have achieved high distinction in various fields – usually a judicious mixture of Oxonians (to suggest that we do a respectable job of educating people) and the rest of the world (to suggest that our outlook is global). We invite them for the date of Encaenia, and occasionally, if that is impossible for them, we ask them back the next year. I regret to report that one of today's graduates has kept us waiting nineteen years. Well, it has been worth the wait. All honorands of course are equal, but none of them will mind my adding on this occasion that some are more equal than others. This is a special day for us. But as I have already indicated in a learned language, there is really no need for words. I shall keep on saying that. Welcome, Daw Suu – welcome back.

The motto 'never apologise, never explain' has sometimes been attributed to an Oxford don, indeed to a Balliol man, not altogether surprisingly. And indeed the relentlessly hearty tone of this oration usually leaves no room for hesitation or uncertainty. But I have to confess that I made a mistake last year, when I implied that Mr David Willetts was educated at Cambridge. He is, of course, a Christ Church man, and like most of those who govern us read PPE. A junior member of the oratorical research team has been disciplined. Clearly I should apologise to someone, but I am not quite sure to whom. When I admitted my error to one of our high functionaries, the reply was, 'Oh, we thought you were referring to the Vice-Chancellor.' Worse and worse: I shall never be a Pro-Vice-Chancellor now. Eager to ingratiate myself, I have googled 'Oxford Vice-Chancellor inspirational' – a million results. 'Vice-Chancellor honours inspirational teachers' – ah well. Of course, if you get rid of the Vice-Chancellor, you do much better: google 'Oxford inspirational' on its own, and the results exceed 7,000,000. We would expect no less. The news story referred to one of the happiest events of the year, when we celebrated schoolteachers, nominated by their former pupils, for their work in transforming young lives, and all of us tutors were reminded that we have exacting standards to live up to.

Among the 7,000,000 reasons for being inspired by Oxford is the quality of our students. We have had a splendid gift from BP plc for student support and for the BP Professor of Economics. Deservedly, there has been much publicity for the munificent donation by Mrs Mica Ertegun to establish Ertegun House and the Mica and Ahmet Ertegun Graduate Scholarship Programme in the Humanities. This year two prize-winners from each of the divisions have been singled out for recognition today; their names are in your programme books, and some of them have been rounded up and corralled below the Chancellor. I ask them to stand now to receive the tribute of your applause. Another sign of our intellectual vitality is the extraordinary range of subjects appearing in the lecture lists. It seems to have been an especially good year for Friedrich Nietzsche, though I was not myself present when representatives of The Journal of Nietzsche Studies, Nietzsche-Studien, New Nietzsche Studies, Estudios Nietzsche, Nietzscheforschungen, Quadernos Nietzsche, and The Nietzsche News Center gathered in this city to hear a lecture entitled 'Do we need a new Nietzsche journal?' – my nomination for the shortest lecture of the year.

The visitor of University College, Oriel and Christ Church has marked sixty years in these offices, and the nation has celebrated her, damp but enthusiastic. Once consequence of this jubilee year is that I have learnt about the privileged bodies. There are 27 bodies which have the privilege of presenting a loyal address to the sovereign and hearing a reply from the sovereign's own lips. The University of Oxford stands second in this line of precedence, with only the Church of England ahead of it. This University may have been founded by King Alfred – or so we have sometimes claimed in our more rhapsodical moments – but the church was founded by Jesus Christ; so we gracefully defer. The privileged bodies have exercised their right four times in the present Queen's reign, at her accession and at each of the three jubilees. Accordingly, a Budget Rent-a-Van containing the Vice-Chancellor, Proctors and assorted University worthies set out from Wellington Square for Buckingham Palace one sunny day in March. As we swept into the Palace forecourt, we could see a mass of tourist cameras pointed at us, and it may be that even now in Shanghai or San Francisco a family is clustering round the video to watch the arrival of the state rent-a-van, with the legend www.budget.com proudly emblazoned on its side. Better that, I suppose, than www.conspicuousexpenditure.com. As for the ceremony itself, Her Majesty sat serenely for an hour while a succession of dignitaries, from the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Mayor of Maidenhead, told her that she was absolutely wonderful in every possible way, and I thought I could cope with a good deal of that myself.

The one politician present was Mr Johnson of Balliol, representing the Greater London Authority. He assured the Queen that London had always been foremost in its loyalty to the Crown. I'm not sure about that. I seem to remember that there was some awkwardness in the 1640s, and Oxford had to step in. A couple of months later, in the local elections the nation swung against the government. The one exception was in the capital, where the prospect of losing an Oxonian as mayor was more than Londoners could face. Meanwhile, this University, like others, was exercised when Mr Osborne of Magdalen proposed in his budget to limit higher-rate tax relief on charitable giving. The Deputy Prime Minister explained that the change was needed because rich people 'living literally on another galaxy' were not paying British taxes. Sounds fair enough to me. But then Mr Clegg is a Cambridge man – literally from another planet. Of course, once Mr Osborne learnt that his alma mater disapproved of his plans, he dropped them right away.

Two more of us have made a small contribution to the jubilee. Professor Nick Mayhew, Keeper of the Heberden Coin Room, served on the committee selecting the commemorative coinage, and I was myself consulted on a Latin motto proposed for it. Accentuating the positive as always, I was able to report that the word 'et', 'and', was correct. The other words were not. I was then asked for my own suggestions, the shortest of which now appears on the £5 piece, and I now know that I have written two words that will endure – a pity it is not more than two. The words, imagined as spoken by the Queen, are 'Dilecta regno', 'I reign beloved.' The events of this month have surely justified that claim. I am hoping, once again, if not for a knighthood, then at least for a special mention in the impact section of the REF – on which Wikipedia can provide reliable guidance as on so much else. You may have noticed the statement that precedes some of its entries: 'This article may contain original research. Please improve it… Statements consisting only in original research may be removed.' That's the spirit.

Let's keep positive. We came second in the boat race. I would not revert to that vexing day but for the performance of the Isis eight, which achieved the fastest time by a reserve crew and the third fastest recorded by any crew on the Tideway – a remarkable feat. But naturally it is the academic achievements that we value most. This year we have won the Queen's Anniversary Prize for the eighth time – more often than any other university. On this occasion the award went to WildCRU, the Wildlife Conservation Research Unit. Our website marked this success with pictures of various endangered species – the gibbon, the Bornean clouded leopard, and the Ethiopian wolf – and the unit's director, Professor David Macdonald, who was shown with a broad smile and a cheetah beside him. The cheetah is smiling too; so Professor Macdonald may be an endangered species himself. Meanwhile, naturalists in the Philippines have succeeded in photographing the Mindoro warty pig, one of the world's shyest animals. It must be the warts. Honestly, we hardly noticed.

The Times Good University Guide has ranked us in first place for the eleventh year in succession. In other league tables we bob up and down a bit. Now this oration is nothing if it is not educative, and I have pointed out before that the essence of academic judgement is to select from the mass of material before one. Last year the spotlight fell on the QS World Rankings, which gave our humanities the number one slot, this year on the Times Higher Education World Rankings, which have put us first for Medicine, overtaking some American institution. Overall, they ranked us the best university in Europe. We can hope for our medical research to get even better, as the Mathilda and Terence Kennedy Institute of Rheumatology Trust has made a magnificent gift for the Kennedy Institute of Rheumatology research building and core funding for the next ten years. Since rheumatology is the subject, we can sincerely say, in the words that newlyweds use in their thank-you letters, that this is a gift that we shall value more and more as the years go by.

Lord Franks, I believe, has hitherto been the only person to head two Oxford colleges, and the Second World War came between these appointments. No such catastrophe has marked Mr Andrew Dilnot's progress from St Hugh's to Nuffield, where he will succeed Professor Steve Nickell; Dame Elish Angiolini will be his own successor. Professor Paul Langford will retire from Lincoln, Lord Macdonald of River Glaven will follow Sir Neil Chalmers at Wadham, and Professor Werner Jeanrond will take over from Dom Felix Stephens at St Benet's. Professor Margaret Snowling will be Sir Michael Scholar's successor at St John's. Professor Snowling is an expert on reading disability and St John's say that she is just what they need. It is noticeable how much older heads of societies are at the time of appointment than they used to be. Indeed, we are always anxious to avoid ageism: the University Museum of Natural History has welcomed its latest resident, a hominid 1.9 million years old, and more cautiously, Wellington Square has added two years to the retirement age. At the New Year, Professors Geoffrey Hill and Diarmaid MacCulloch were knighted, Professor Lionel Tarassenko received a CBE and Professor Robert Walker an MBE. In the Birthday Honours Professor Lorna Casselton has been awarded a CBE and Professor Ann Buchanan an MBE. Professor Casselton's research is on the sexual development of fungi, but this family-friendly oration is able to reveal no more. The British Academy has elected seven of us to its fellowship – Professors John Baines, Cécile Fabre, Andrew Hurrell, Laura Marcus, Lyndal Roper and Jeremy Waldron and Dr Ruth Harris – while Professors Dominic Joyce and Ian Walmsley have become fellows of the Royal Society. We congratulate them all.

As always, I call to mind those friends and colleagues who have died in the past year, among whom were John Bailey, Fellow of All Souls, Giles Barber, Fellow of Linacre, Sir Zelman Cowen, Provost of Oriel, Robin Denniston, Student of Christ Church, Ursula Dronke, Fellow of Linacre, Sir Michael Dummett, Fellow of New College, Keith Gore, Fellow of Worcester, David Grahame-Smith, Fellow of Corpus Christi, Joseph Hatton, Fellow of Exeter, Richard Hawkins, Fellow of Keble, Christopher Jones, Fellow of St Peter's, Patricia Kean, Fellow of Lady Margaret Hall, Frank Parkin, Fellow of Magdalen, Siegbert Prawer, Fellow of Queen's, Steven Rawlings, Fellow of St Peter's, Bede Rundle, Fellow of Trinity, James Urmson, Fellow of Corpus Christi, and Bryan Warren, Fellow of Linacre. Requiescant in pace et in aeternum luceat eis Dominus Illuminatio Mea.

A few of these names are known to the wider world; each of them means something special to someone here today. I learnt something about the use of memory a little while ago, when I visited East Moreton in Dorset. Lawrence of Arabia – Colonel Lawrence of Jesus and All Souls – is buried in the village cemetery, and a few visitors each day come to see his tomb. But in the church there is a memorial of another kind: an engraved glass window, designed by Sir Laurence Whistler of Balliol, placed in tribute to a pilot killed in the Second World War. It shows his crashed Spitfire and the house that he shared with the wife to whom he was so briefly married. But there is no name, and like other visitors to the church, I do not know who he was. It is an expression of love, both public and hidden. There is no attempt to guard a name from time's oblivion: the act of devotion is enough. And so it shall be with us. Today we think with thankfulness on all who have served this University, past and present, known and unknown. We too shall be forgotten, almost all of us, but memory itself and the habit of gratitude abide.

This is an especially memorable day. After all, it may be – just possibly – the day on which classical Latin prose has achieved its biggest live audience ever. Cicero can eat his heart out.

Laudian manuscripts

On 18 June, Council approved modifications to the above Charity by the passing of a resolution for the purposes of section 275 of the Charities Act 2011 ("the Act"). The approval of Council and the resolution passed for the purposes of the Act shall be effective 15 days after the date of publication of this notice unless written notice of a resolution, signed by at least 20 members of Congregation and calling upon Council to withhold such approval and such resolution, has been given to the Registrar by noon on 2 July. The full text of the resolution is set out below.

Council agreed to:

(i) note that the gross income of the trust over the Laudian manuscripts (the "Charity") in its last financial year did not exceed £10,000, that the Charity does not hold any designated land and is not a company or other body corporate, and that therefore s275 of the Charities Act 2011 applies to the Charity;

(ii) resolve for the purposes of s275 of the Charities Act 2011 that the trusts of the Charity should be modified as described in the paragraph headed "Modifications" below, Council being satisfied that:

(a) it is expedient in the interests of the Charity for the purposes in question to be replaced; and

(b) so far as is reasonably practicable, the new purposes consist of or include purposes that are similar in character to those that are to be replaced;

(iii) resolve that the modifications be notified to the University Gazette and provided that no objections are received from Congregation by noon on the 11th day following the publication of such notice in the Gazette, resolve that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Charity Commission on or after the 15th day following the publication of such notice in the Gazette together with a statement of the University's reasons for passing it. If the Charity Commission requires further steps to be taken the Registrar is authorised to take such steps as are necessary.

Modifications

'Hos Libros Amoris mei testes, uestrae fidei committo in Bibliotheca reponendos, hac conditione, ut nunquam inde extrahantur, uel mutuo cuipiam dentur sub quocunque praetextu, nisi solum ut typis mandentur, et sic publici et juris et utilitatis fiant...'

['I commit these books, witnesses of my love, to your trust to be placed in the Library, on this condition, that they may never be extracted from there or given in exchange to anyone under any pretext whatsoever, except only to be committed to type and thus to be made public both of right and utility...'] shall be modified by the addition of a new exception as follows:

'except to be lent or relocated for the purposes of public exhibition, any such loan or relocation and its terms having been approved by the Curators of the University Libraries at the University of Oxford, and thus to be made available for the benefit of the public'.

Iris Murdoch Appeal Fund

On 18 June, Council approved modifications to the above Fund by the passing of a resolution for the purposes of sections 275 and 281 of the Charities Act 2011 ("the Act"). The approval of Council and the resolution passed for the purposes of the Act shall be effective 15 days after the date of publication of this notice unless written notice of a resolution, signed by at least 20 members of Congregation and calling upon Council to withhold such approval and such resolution, has been given to the Registrar by noon on 2 July. The full text of the resolution is set out below.

Council agreed to:

(i) note that the gross income of the trust over the Iris Murdoch Appeal Fund ("the Fund") in its last financial year did not exceed £10,000, that the Fund does not hold any designated land and is not a company or other body corporate, and that therefore s275 of the Charities Act 2011 applies to the Fund;

(ii) resolve for the purposes of s275 of the Charities Act 2011 that the trusts of the Fund should be modified as described in the paragraph headed "Modifications" below, Council being satisfied that:

(a) it is expedient in the interests of the Fund for the purposes in question to be replaced; and

(b) so far as is reasonably practicable, the new purposes consist of or include purposes that are similar in character to those that are to be replaced;

(iii) resolve that the modifications be notified to the University Gazette and provided that no objections are received from Congregation by noon on the 11th day following the publication of such notice in the Gazette, resolve that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Charity Commission on or after the 15th day following the publication of such notice in the Gazette together with a statement of the University's reasons for passing it. If the Charity Commission requires further steps to be taken the Registrar is authorised to take such steps as are necessary;

(iv) note that the gross income of the trust over the Fund in its last financial year did not exceed £1,000, that the Fund is not a company or other body corporate, and that therefore s281 of the Charities Act 2011 applies to the Fund;

(v) resolve for the purposes of s281 of the Charities Act 2011 that the whole Fund ought to be freed from the restrictions with respect to expenditure of capital that apply to it, Council being satisfied that the purposes set out in the trusts to which the Fund is subject could be carried out more effectively if the capital of the Fund could be expended as well as the income accruing to it, rather than just such income.

Modifications

The trusts of the Fund shall be modified by replacing all or any part of the purposes of the Fund with the following purpose:

"to support research in old age psychiatry".

Host families sought

Magna Carta College, private international business school in Oxford. Host families needed. Good-quality host families required for summer courses in Oxford. Mainly international students (over 18 years), with stays of between 1 and 3 weeks. Students have a full activity timetable, so normal host family rules apply. Contact: rosita.cataldo@btinternet.com.

Participants sought

I'm looking for participants with dyslexia to take part in a short research study. It consists of taking a high dose of omega-3 supplements for 28 days. The purpose of the study is to compare the effects of an omega-3 supplemented diet compared to a normal diet on a series of computer and paper-based tests, which take no longer than 2 hours in total (1 hour at the start of the month, 1 hour at the end). There is evidence to suggest that omega-3 is deficient in people with dyslexia, and there is emerging evidence that supplementing with omega-3 can help to improve deficits in dyslexia. You will be reimbursed for your time (around £10). For more information please email me at rachel.hulatt@oriel.ox.ac.uk.

Collaborative learning in young people: we are currently recruiting participants for a study of how young people may learn from one another. To participate, your child must be male, 10–12 or 14–16 years old, and able to find a friend (from the same age group) who can come along to the Department of Experimental Psychology. The task is simple but fun; and both children will be reimbursed (£20 each). Please visit http://redd.psy.ox.ac.uk for further information.

Oxford Harmonic Society concludes its 90th anniversary season on a high note with Haydn's Creation on 30 June in the Sheldonian Theatre. Tickets available on the door or from Oxford Playhouse (01865 305305, www.oxfordplayhouse.com/TicketsOxford). See www.oxfordharmonicsoc.org for more information.

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 13 July.

(a) Establishment of Broadbent Junior Research Fellowship in American History Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the Broadbent Junior Research Fellowship in American History Fund, to be used towards the salary and expenses of the holder of the Fellowship and associated overheads.

Text of Regulations

In Sect III of Council Regulations 24 of 2002 concerning academic and other posts (Statutes, 2000, p 435, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol 132, p 1461), insert new § 128 as follows and renumber existing §§ 128–326 as §§ 129–327:

'§ 128. Broadbent Junior Research Fellowship in American History Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude the sums from the Broadbent Family Foundation to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Broadbent Junior Research Fellowship in American History Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the salary and expenses of the holder of the Broadbent Junior Research Fellowship in American History and associated overheads. The Fellow shall undertake research on a topic or topics in American History from 1600 onwards. If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Fellow are wholly or partly covered from other sources or there are further funds available, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or capital of the Fund to support the Fellow's research.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Executive Committee of the Rothermere American Institute.

5. The Fellow shall be appointed by a committee appointed by the Executive Committee of the Rothermere American Institute.

6. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

7. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the Fellowship.

8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

9. Regulations 1–4 and 6–11 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

10. Subject to regulation 11, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

11. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(b) Establishment of David Walton Memorial Fund

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the David Walton Memorial Fund in support of graduate scholarships at the Department of Economics, with preference being given to students entering their final year of registration for the DPhil in Economics and undertaking research in the field of macroeconomics or finance.

Text of Regulations

'§ 372. David Walton Memorial Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude sums given in memory of David Walton to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the David Walton Memorial Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards graduate scholarships at the Department of Economics, with preference being given in the first instance to students entering their final year of registration for the DPhil in Economics and undertaking research in the field of macroeconomics or finance.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Economics Departmental Board.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund and the scholarships.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(c) Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund

Explanatory Note

These changes reflect Council's approval of the scheme of operation for the Graduate Scholarship Matched Fund, specifically the use of the Board of Management of the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund as the Board of Management of the Graduate Scholarship Matched Fund, with the addition to the Board membership of the Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Development and External Affairs). This addition to the membership of the Board of Management is recommended in order to reflect the key relationship between the fundraising strategy for graduate scholarships and the management of funds within the Oxford Graduate Scholarship Fund.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002, concerning trusts (Statutes, 2000, p 644, as redesignated as regulations by Decree (5) of 11 July 2002, Gazette, Vol 132, p 1461), in § 270 delete existing regulation 6 and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'6. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of a Board of Management comprising:

(1) Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Education), or his or her nominee, who shall be chairman;

(2) Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Development and External Affairs);

~~(2)–(5)~~(3)–(6) the chairmen of the Education Committees (or their equivalent) of each division;

~~(6)~~(7) the chairman of the Graduate Admissions Committee;

Research participants sought

I'm looking for participants with dyslexia to take part in a short research study. It consists of taking a high dose of omega-3 supplements for 28 days. The purpose of the study is to compare the effects of an omega-3 supplemented diet compared to a normal diet on a series of computer and paper-based tests, which take no longer than 2 hours in total (1 hour at the start of the month, 1 hour at the end). There is evidence to suggest that omega-3 is deficient in people with dyslexia, and there is emerging evidence that supplementing with omega-3 can help to improve deficits in dyslexia. You will be reimbursed for your time (around £10). For more information please email me at rachel.hulatt@oriel.ox.ac.uk.

Collaborative learning in young people: we are currently recruiting participants for a study of how young people may learn from one another. To participate, your child must be male, 10–12 or 14–16 years old, and able to find a friend (from the same age group) who can come along to the Department of Experimental Psychology. The task is simple but fun; and both children will be reimbursed (£20 each). Please visit http://redd.psy.ox.ac.uk for further information.

Would you be willing to help us make our research relevant to over 60s? We are looking for a group of adults over 60 years of age to help shape future research in the field of psychology. We are adapting many of our tasks and measures for use with older adults and we want to make sure the changes we make are relevant. If you have an hour or two to spare and would be willing to help, please contact cha@psych.ox.ac.uk or phone Erin Drazich on 01865 613197.

(b) Trust fund consolidations

Explanatory Note

On 23 April, Council passed resolutions for the purposes of the Charities Act 2011 to consolidate trust funds held by the Department of Physics and the Faculty of English Language and Literature respectively (see 'Notices' section of the Gazette of 26 April 2012, p 471). Council's approval was subject to the acceptance of those resolutions by the Charity Commission. The Charity Commission has confirmed that it is satisfied that the resolutions meet the requirements of the 2011 Act, and that they will be effective on 14 July 2012. That condition therefore having been met, these changes repeal regulations for the individual trust funds concerned. Legislative proposals to repeal the parts of the Schedule to the Statutes concerning the Newdigate Prize Fund, the Oldham Shakespeare Prize Fund and the English Poem on a Sacred Subject Fund will be brought forward in due course.

Research participants sought

Collaborative learning in young people: we are currently recruiting participants for a study of how young people may learn from one another. To participate, your child must be male, 10–12 or 14–16 years old, and able to find a friend (from the same age group) who can come along to the Department of Experimental Psychology. The task is simple but fun; and both children will be reimbursed (£20 each). Please visit http://redd.psy.ox.ac.uk for further information.

Would you be willing to help us make our research relevant to over 60s? We are looking for a group of adults over 60 years of age to help shape future research in the field of psychology. We are adapting many of our tasks and measures for use with older adults and we want to make sure the changes we make are relevant. If you have an hour or two to spare and would be willing to help, please contact cha@psych.ox.ac.uk or phone Erin Drazich on 01865 613197.

Do you care for someone who uses telecare equipment at home? The AKTIVE project is trying to find out how telecare – including pendant alarms, motion sensors and fall detectors – affects older people and those who care for them. We are holding two discussion groups in July and August in Oxfordshire Resource and Wellbeing Centres with unpaid carers to find out what it's like to care for an older person and whether telecare makes an impact. If you have experience of telecare equipment, we would like to hear from you. We will provide a free lunch, a gift of £20 to each carer who attends and also provide replacement care. If you think you can tell us about your experiences of care and telecare, please contact our research team on: 01865 612816/ kate.hamblin@ageing.ox.ac.uk.

Council and Main Committees

Council of the University

Changes in Regulations

Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 3 August.

(a) Audit and Scrutiny Committee

Explanatory Note

The changes below restructure and rephrase the regulations (for clarity), deal with gaps in the existing legislation, and specify the Committee's role more precisely and accurately in respect of certain of its activities. The definition of scrutiny has been reframed, in part to remove the reference to inquiry or investigation into 'risks of failure', as the examination of activities that might be at risk of failure is one of the principal functions of internal audit. Congregation retains its ability to request both audit reviews and scrutiny reviews.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 15 of 2002 (made by Council on 26 June 2002, as amended on 8 May 2003, 1 June 2006, 21 January 2010, 18 March 2010, 23 September 2010, 9 December 2010 (date of effect 1 January 2011) and 13 October 2011 (date of effect 1 January 2012)), delete existing Part 8 and substitute:

'8.1. The Audit and Scrutiny Committee shall consist of:

(1) an external member of Council appointed by Council who shall not be a member of any other body or hold any position, which in the view of Council involves executive authority within the University, who shall chair the committee;

(2)–(5) four external persons appointed by Council, at least two of whom shall have experience at a senior level in the non-public sector and all of whom shall bring relevant expertise to the working of the committee;

(6) a Head of House appointed by the Conference of Colleges;

(7) one member of Congregation elected by Congregation from among members of the faculties in the Divisions of Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences and of Medical Sciences who shall not serve on Council or on any committee which in the view of Council has mainline executive authority within the University, or hold any office in the University or any college which involves executive authority;

(8) one member of Congregation elected by Congregation from among members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and Social Sciences who shall not serve on Council or on any committee which in the view of Council has mainline executive authority within the University, or hold any office in the University or any college which involves executive authority;

(9) one member of Congregation, not necessarily being a member of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation who shall not serve on Council or on any committee which in the view of Council has mainline executive authority within the University, or hold any office in the University or any college which involves executive authority.

8.2. The Director of Finance, the Registrar and the internal auditors shall normally be in attendance at the meetings of the committee; other individuals, including representatives from the external auditors, will be invited to attend as appropriate.

8.3. No member of the committee may at the same time also be a member of the Finance Committee or the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee.

8.4. All members of the committee shall serve for four years and shall be eligible for reappointment for one further and final period of four years.

8.5. The quorum for the committee shall be not less than four members of the committee, of whom at least one shall be a member appointed under 8.1(1)–(5) above.

8.6. The committee shall expect to receive full co-operation from all staff and students of the University in relation to all aspects of the committee's activity.

8.7. The committee shall provide independent assurance to assist Council in fulfilling Council's responsibilities for ensuring the adequacy and effectiveness of risk management; financial control; governance; economy, efficiency and effectiveness (value for money); and data quality assurance across the University's activities. In particular, the committee shall:

(1) request to Council that any matter, which in the view of the committee merits special and immediate consideration, be brought to Congregation's attention at any time during the academic year;

(2) be entitled to place on the agenda of Council for discussion any matter which the committee deems it appropriate and necessary for Council to consider. The minute of any matter discussed by Council in this way shall be promptly reported to the committee;

(3) be entitled to discuss any matters its members may wish to raise, in the absence of University officers and/or the external and internal auditors;

(4) in respect of the University's external audit arrangements:

(a) consider and recommend to Council annually the appointment of the external auditors, the audit fee, the provision of non-audit services by the external auditors and any questions of resignation or dismissal of the external auditors;

(b) monitor annually the performance and effectiveness of external auditors, including any matters affecting their objectivity, and make recommendations to Council concerning their reappointment, where appropriate;

(c) agree with the external auditors, before the audit begins, the nature and scope of the audit;

(d) discuss with the external auditors problems and reservations arising from the interim and final audits, including a review of the management letter incorporating management responses;

(f) receive and consider requests for internal audit reviews submitted by twenty or more members of Congregation via the Proctors;

(g) save in respect of any report that the committee considers requires immediate reference to Council, publish on the Oxford intranet within one month of acceptance by the committee the executive summary of each internal audit report, including of those reports produced under regulation 8.7(5)(f) or alternatively a summary of why such a requested report was considered unnecessary;

(h) make available for consultation by any member of Congregation by arrangement with the secretary of the committee the full text of any internal audit report for which the executive summary has been published under regulation 8.7(5)(g);

(6) in respect of the University's external and internal audit arrangements:

(a) undertake audit reviews, including project reviews, at the request of Council;

(b) monitor the implementation of agreed audit-based recommendations;

(c) discuss within the committee any matters the external or internal auditors wish to raise, in the absence of University officers where necessary;

(d) satisfy itself that, where non-audit services are provided by the external or internal auditors at the request of the University, the objectivity of the external or internal audit service (as appropriate) has not been affected by the extent or nature of that additional work;

(e) promote co-ordination between the internal and external auditors;

(7) in the presence of the external auditors, review, and report to Council on, the draft annual financial statements from an audit perspective, including the external audit opinion, the statement of members' responsibilities, the statement of internal control and any relevant issue raised in the external auditors' management letter, in accordance with HEFCE's Accounts Directions;

(c) Regulations relating to the use of Information Technology Facilities

Explanatory Note

The changes below reflect the fact that Business Services Provision (BSP), Information and Communications Technology Committee (ICTC) and Oxford University Computing Services (OUCS) have been brought together in a single organisation entitled IT Services.

Text of Regulations

1 In ICTC Regulations 1 of 2002 (made by the ICTC on 6 June 2002, approved by Council on 24 July 2002, and as amended on 2 October 2003, 23 October 2003, 16 February 2006, 1 June 2006 and 3 June 2010) delete existing regulation 5 and substitute (deleted text scored through, new text underlined):

'5. (1) Persons may make use of university facilities only with proper authorisation.

(2) 'Proper authorisation' in this context means prior authorisation by the appropriate officer, who shall be the ~~Director, Computing Systems and Services (OUCS)~~Chief Information Officer or his or her nominated deputy in the case of services under the supervision of ~~OUCS~~IT Services (ITS), or the nominated college or departmental officer in the case of services provided by a college or department.

(3) Any authorisation is subject to compliance with the University's statutes and regulations, including these regulations, and will be considered to be terminated by any breach or attempted breach of these regulations.'

2 Ibid, delete existing regulations 11–12 and substitute:

'11. Any person responsible for the administration of any university or college computer or network system, or otherwise having access to data on such a system, shall comply with the provisions of the 'Statement of IT Security and Privacy Policy'~~,~~ ~~as published by the ICT Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee~~.

12. Users shall at all times endeavour to comply with policies and guidance issued from time to time by ~~OUCS~~ITS ~~by the ICT Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee~~ to assist with the management and efficient use of the University's ICT facilities.'

3 Ibid, delete existing regulation 13 and substitute:

'13. Connection of any computer, whether college, departmental or privately owned, to the university network is subject to the following additional conditions:

(1) (a) Computers connected to the university network may use only network identifiers which follow the University's naming convention, and are registered with ~~OUCS~~ITS.

(b) The University's Trade Mark and Domain Name Policy specifies, inter alia, that all university activities (other than those within OUP's remit) should be presented within the ox.ac.uk domain. Any exception to this requires authorisation as defined in that Policy.

(2) (a) Owners and administrators of computers connected to the university network are responsible for ensuring their security against unauthorised access, participation in 'denial of service' attacks, etc. In particular they are responsible for ensuring that anti-virus software is installed and regularly updated, and that rules and guidelines on security and anti-virus policy, as issued from time to time by ~~the ICT Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee~~ITS, are followed.

(b) The University may temporarily bar access to any computer or sub-network that appears to pose a danger to the security or integrity of any system or network, either within or outside Oxford, or which, through a security breach, may bring disrepute to the University.

(3) (a) Providers of any service must take all reasonable steps to ensure that that service does not cause an excessive amount of traffic on the University's internal network or its external network links.

(b) The University may bar access at any time to computers which appear to cause unreasonable consumption of network resources.

(4) (a) Hosting Web pages on computers connected to the university network is permitted subject to the knowledge and consent of the department or college responsible for the local resources, but providers of any such Web pages must endeavour to comply with guidelines published by ~~OUCS~~ITS or other relevant authorities.

(b) It is not permitted to offer commercial services through Web pages supported through the university network, or to provide 'home-page' facilities for any commercial organisation, except with the permission of the ~~Director, Computing Systems and Services (OUCS)~~Chief Information Officer (ITS); this permission may require the payment of a licence fee.

(5) Use of file-sharing technology and participation in distributed file-sharing networks may be subject to additional regulation and restriction in order to prevent excessive use of university network resources, or the use of those resources for purposes unconnected with the University. If a user has any reason to suppose that an application employs peer-to-peer (p2p) or other file-sharing technology, they should seek the advice of the IT officer responsible for the college or departmental network on which they propose to use the software.

(6) (a) No computer connected to the university network may be used to give any person who is not a member or employee of the University or its colleges access to any network services outside the department or college where that computer is situated.

(b) Certain exceptions may be made, for example, for members of other UK universities, official visitors to a department or college, or those paying a licence fee.

(c) Areas of doubt should be discussed with the Head of ~~Networks and Telecommunications at OUCS~~ITS.

(7) Providing external access to University network resources for use as part of any shared activity or project is permitted only if authorised by the ~~ICT Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee~~IT Committee (ITC), and will be subject to any conditions that it may specify.

(8) If any computer connected to the network or a sub-network does not comply with the requirements of this section, it may be disconnected immediately by the Network Administrator or any other member of staff duly authorised by the head of the college, section or department concerned.'

4 In Rules Committee Regulations 1 of 2011 (published on 17 March 2011), delete existing regulation 1.8 and substitute:

'1.8. Each club, society or organisation which registers with the Proctors shall be entitled to apply to ~~Oxford University Computing Services ('OUCS')~~IT Services (ITS) to use Information Technology ('IT') facilities (eg email and Web publication) in the name of the club, society or organisation. Where relevant facilities are allocated by ~~OUCS~~ITS, it shall be the responsibility of the club, society or organisation concerned to:

(1) designate not more than one person entitled to a university email account (as defined by ~~OUCS~~ITS rules) to act as its IT Officer, whose duties shall include liaising with ~~OUCS~~ITS about the use of facilities allocated and passing on to his or her successor in office all records (in whatever format held) relating to the use of the facilities allocated;

(2) designate one of its members (who shall be either a student member or, exceptionally, a member of Congregation: and who may be, but need not necessarily be, the same as its IT Officer) as its principal Web-master, whose duties shall include maintaining an awareness of the University Guidelines for Web Information Providers and coordinating and regulating access to the web facilities used by the club, society or organisation;

(3) comply with regulations relating to the use of IT facilities provided by ~~OUCS~~ITS and with the guidelines published from time to time by ~~OUCS~~ITS for the use of IT facilities by student clubs, societies and organisations (including those guidelines relating to the operation of electronic mailing lists);

(4) ensure that all designated persons responsible for the IT resources of the club, society or organisation are competent to deal with the requirements of this section, and where necessary undertake training under the guidance of ~~OUCS~~ITS.'

(d) Regulations relating to Academic Dress

Explanatory Note

The following changes have been agreed by Council. They remove any reference to gender from the regulations, in response to concerns from Oxford University Student Union that the existing regulations did not serve the interests of transgender students.

Text of Regulations

'5. All members of the University are required to wear academic dress with subfusc clothing (and candidates who are not members of the University are required to wear formal clothing) when attending any university examination, ie a dark suit with dark socks, or a dark skirt with black stockings or trousers with dark socks and an optional dark coat; black shoes; plain white collared shirt; a black tie or white bow tie.

~~Men. A dark suit and socks, black shoes, a white bow tie, and plain white shirt and collar.~~

~~Women. A dark skirt or trousers, a white blouse, black tie, black stockings and shoes, and, if desired, a dark coat.~~

Candidates serving in HM Forces are permitted to wear uniform together with a gown. (The uniform cap is worn in the street and carried when indoors.)'

(e) Income grants from the College Contributions Fund

Explanatory Note

This regulation authorises the income grants which Council, on the recommendation of the College Contributions Committee, has decided to make out of the accumulated balance of the College Contributions Fund. The sums listed are maxima; the payment of the grant, and the precise sum payable, in each subsequent year are dependent on the success with which each college has met certain conditions laid down by Council on the recommendation of the College Contributions Committee.

Text of Regulation

The following amounts shall be paid as income grants to the college named in each case under the provisions of section 6 of Statute XV (approved with effect from 8 April 2009, Gazette, p 932, 23 April 2009), for application in the year shown:

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 3 August.

Establishment of Fund for Research in Old Age Psychiatry

Explanatory Note

These regulations establish the 'Fund for Research in Old Age Psychiatry'.

Text of Regulations

In Part 2 of Council Regulations 25 of 2002 concerning trusts, insert new § 289 as follows and renumber existing §§ 289–396 as §§ 290–397:

'§ 289. Fund for Research in Old Age Psychiatry

1. The University receives with gratitude the sum of £500,000 from the H D H Wills 1965 Charitable Trust to be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Fund For Research In Old Age Psychiatry ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund (if any) which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (1) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (2) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards research in old age psychiatry.

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Medical Sciences Divisional Board.

Congregation

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. Regulations 1–10 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

10. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Douglas Byrne Marconi Fund

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal amends the name of the above Fund and the Fellowship which it endows in recognition of the recent legacy gift from Gordon Bussey. The opportunity is also being taken to simplify the administrative arrangements for the Fund.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Douglas Byrne Marconi Fund, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002), after Part 76 insert the following new Part 77[1] (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'Part 77:~~§ 51. Douglas~~ Byrne Bussey Marconi Fund

2 This regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation on [9 October 2012] is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

[1] The number is subject to the approval of other legislative proposals and may therefore change.

(3) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Prendergast Fund

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal brings the restriction on candidates eligible for assistance from the above Fund in line with the Equality Act 2010 by removing criteria which can only be met by Roman Catholic men and by targeting persons who are ordinarily resident in (rather than born in, with parents who are citizens of) the Republic of Ireland.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Prendergast Fund, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In Part 47 of the Schedule to the University Statutes (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002) delete section 47.1 and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'47.1. The bequest of the residue of the estate of Dr J S Prendergast shall be used:

~~(1) for the creation of two bursaries to be held by members of the Order of St Benedict belonging to Glenstal Abbey, Murroe, County Limerick, while they pursue their studies at St Benet's Hall, the maximum value of such bursaries to be set by the board of management for the bequest at its discretion; and~~

~~(2)~~ to assist persons ~~born~~ordinarily resident in the Republic of Ireland ~~whose parents are citizens of the Republic of Ireland~~ to proceed to the University for the purpose of either taking their degrees or undergoing postgraduate courses.'

(4) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute I: definition of the terms 'person' and 'member' in the context of committee membership

Explanatory Note

These changes define 'person' and 'member' as an internal member of the University, in the context of committee membership. Prior to this change, the terms 'person' and 'member' have commonly been understood to apply to internal members of the University in the context of committee membership but until now, that understanding was not underpinned by any legislative provision to that effect; that omission is now addressed by means of the changes to Statute I below.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define the meaning of the terms 'person' and 'member' in the context of committee membership, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In section 6 of Statute I (approved with effect from 1 October 2002, as amended on 10 February 2010 and 12 October 2011 (date of effect 1 January 2012), Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4633, 9 October 2002; Vol 140, p 748, 18 March 2010; Vol 143, p 98, 27 October 2011), insert new paragraph (11) and renumber existing paragraphs (11)–(12) as (12)–(13).

'(11) Unless otherwise specified, 'person' or 'member' means the resident holder of a teaching, research, or administrative post in the University or in any college, society, or Permanent Private Hall;'.

(5) Voting on changes to Congregation Regulations 3 of 2002: entry of names for degree ceremonies

Explanatory Note

From the start of Michaelmas term 2012, students completing their degree in or after Trinity term 2013 will receive an invitation to a degree ceremony, conditional on the candidates satisfying examiners. Taught course students will receive the invitation at the start of their final year of study. Research students will receive their invitation once they have been granted leave to supplicate. The first invitations to degree ceremonies will therefore be issued in early November 2012. Colleges will therefore no longer enter names of candidates for degrees fifteen days before a degree day in the way described in the current regulations (part 3, Entry of Names). The revised regulations conform to the processes agreed by Council in Trinity term 2011, and more recently by Education Committee in Hilary term 2012. They have been revised in consultation with a working group of ten colleges.

Text of Regulations

Under the heading for Part 3 of Congregation Regulations 3 of 2002 concerning degree ceremonies (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4612, 13 February 2002, Vol 132, p 776, as amended on 11 February 2003, 11 March 2003, 2 November 2004, 11 October 2005, 13 June 2006, 12 October 2010, 22 March 2011 and 12 October 2011), delete existing regulations 3.1–3.3 and substitute (inserted text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'Degree days

3.1. In Hilary Term each year the Vice-Chancellor shall determine, and the Registrar shall forthwith publish in the University Gazette, the dates of the degree ceremonies to be held in the next academic year but one, except that the Vice-Chancellor may, in the exercise of his or her powers under regulation 1.2 of the Regulations for the Conduct of Business in Congregation, subsequently determine that one or more additional degree ceremonies shall be held in the year concerned. The Degree Conferrals Office shall agree with each college, society, Permanent Private Hall, or other designated institution the dates at which their candidates will be presented. In the event that agreement cannot be reached, the Vice-Chancellor shall make the final adjudication.

3.2. Degrees conferred at any meeting of Congregation summoned by the Vice-Chancellor between the end of Trinity Term and the beginning of Michaelmas Term shall be reckoned for all purposes as if conferred on the last day of the preceding Trinity Term.

Entry of Names

For degrees conferred in or before June 2013

3.3. The names of candidates for degrees shall be entered at the University Offices, not later than noon of the fifteenth day before the degree day, by some person deputed by the college, society, hall, or other designated institution to which they belong; and entry shall be subject to the following conditions:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor shall have power for some reasonable cause to dispense from the provisions of these regulations;

(2) once a candidate's name has been entered, if he or she is eligible to be admitted to the degree(s) concerned he or she may not withdraw from the ceremony and shall be so admitted to the degree(s) concerned whether in person or in absence;

(3) candidates who being qualified at the time have nevertheless failed to have their names so entered on the fifteenth day before the degree day shall be at liberty to have them entered in the prescribed manner not later than 5 pm on the day preceding the degree day on payment of a late fee, as determined from time to time by the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee~~Fees Policy Group~~ and set out in Appendix 1 of the Examination Regulations, in addition to any degree fee;

(4) candidates who have become qualified for their degree by passing an examination on any of the fifteen days preceding the degree day may have their names entered in the prescribed manner not later than 5 pm on the day preceding the degree day, but such candidates shall not pay any additional late fee;

(5) a candidate shall be admitted in person to not more than one degree at each ceremony (normally the superior of the degrees for which he or she has been given leave to supplicate) but may be admitted in absence at the same ceremony to any other degree(s) for which he or she has been given leave to supplicate.

For degrees conferred after June 2013

3.3. The names of candidates for degrees will be confirmed by the Degree Conferrals Office through the degree ceremonies booking system no later than fifteen days before the degree day, and shall be subject to the following conditions:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor shall have power for some reasonable cause to dispense from the provisions of these regulations;

(2) if a candidate is eligible to be admitted to the degree(s) concerned, he or she may not withdraw from the ceremony during the fifteen day period before the degree day, and shall be admitted to the degree(s) concerned, either in person or in absence;

(3) a candidate shall be admitted in person to not more than one degree at each ceremony (normally the superior of the degrees for which he or she has been given leave to supplicate) but may be admitted in absence at the same ceremony to any other degree(s) for which he or she has been given leave to supplicate.'

(6) Voting on changes to Congregation Regulations 3 of 2002: degree ceremony attendance

Explanatory Note

These changes provide for occasions when a candidate is admitted to a degree in absentia and makes a case to attend a subsequent degree ceremony in person.

Text of Regulations

In Part 3 of Congregation Regulations 3 of 2002 concerning the conduct of ceremonies in Congregation, and certain other ceremonies (Supplement (1) to Gazette No 4612, 13 February 2002, Vol 132, p 776, as amended on 11 February 2003, 11 March 2003, 2 November 2004, 11 October 2005, 13 June 2006, 12 October 2010, 22 March 2011 and 12 October 2011), delete existing regulation 3.4 and substitute (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'3.4. ~~The Registrar shall ascertain whether each candidate is entitled to supplicate for the degree.~~ If a candidate who failed to attend a degree ceremony and consequently was admitted to a degree in absentia wishes to graduate in person at a future ceremony, an application may be made to the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors (via the Degree Conferrals Office) for the award of the degree(s) to be set aside in certain exceptional circumstances. If approved, the candidate may then be admitted to the same degree(s) in accordance with regulation 3.3 (above). If a degree certificate relating to the graduation in absentia has already been issued, it must be returned with the application.'

(7) Question

G P Tapsell, Fellow of Lady Margaret Hall, and R Lewis, Fellow of St Hugh's, to ask Council:

'Given that radical and potentially irreversible changes are taking place in Oxford's historic libraries, notably the Old Library and Radcliffe Camera, what steps will Council take to do as the Resolution of Congregation of May 2005 required, and procure "that the Curators of the University Libraries present to Congregation a full report on their plans for reorganisation of the University's libraries in the short, medium and long-term"; and will it present this report as a Green Paper to Congregation early in Michaelmas Term?'

The following reply to the above question has been approved by Council:

Council notes that the question raises the important issues of consultation and communication between the Curators of the University Libraries and Congregation, which are especially necessary in times of rapid changes in provision.

The last five years have seen a period of unprecedented change in libraries worldwide as a result of the transformations of the information age. The Bodleian Libraries themselves are undergoing significant change while at the same time they have reduced their dependence on University and HEFCE funding.

Council notes that the Curators already undertake considerable consultation on important decisions regarding library strategy, and that it is always possible to improve the means and processes by which such consultation takes place.

It notes also that Curators of the University Libraries review and approve policy and strategic plans for the Bodleian Libraries and encourage consultation on policies at the local and University level. Council notes also that the Curators have provided regular updates on the strategic direction and implementation of changes in the library, based on consultation with academic staff and students. (The most recent of these updates can be found at www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/notices/updates-strategic-direction-bodleian-libraries, along with responses to the 2005 Resolution.)

The Curators of the University Libraries will provide a report on the short-term plans for the libraries in Michaelmas term 2012. Bodley's Librarian is organising a series of meetings in the coming weeks for members of Congregation to learn about and contribute to the Bodleian's plans. Since many people are likely to be away during the Long Vacation, there will also be town meetings and small group sessions scheduled at the beginning of Michaelmas term.

The Curators are also currently undertaking a number of actions that will inform the next revision of the Libraries strategy affecting the medium- and long-term plans. Among these are two key activities.

First, a joint working group of the Humanities Division and the Bodleian has initiated consideration of the Humanities Library provision in the context of changes in planning for the ROQ site. The working group will consult and discuss widely in Michaelmas and Hilary terms.

Second, work is underway to renew the strategic aims for the Libraries in alignment with the revision of the University Strategic Plan. Key stakeholders from the academic staff across all divisions, students and other readers have already been consulted, and this will result in a draft Libraries plan, upon which wider consultation across library users, including Congregation, will take place in Michaelmas term.

Curators will provide a paper to Council on progress on these strategic planning activities in Michaelmas term, and a full report on long-term plans following the consultations that will take place in 2012/13.

One of the key roles of the Curators is the assurance of good communications with all members of the collegiate University, as well as with other Library users. Clearly, the question and other letters from members of the University community to the Curators show that more and different forms of communication are required. Consequently,

Notices

Curators will review their communications strategies during Michaelmas term. They will include in this communications plan further opportunities for members of Congregation to contribute to the development of library strategies and priorities. Council has asked the Curators of the University Libraries to submit a report on their revised communications plan following their meeting in 7th week of Michaelmas term.

By these actions, the Curators of the University Libraries will provide short-, medium- and long-term reports on the plans of the University Libraries in the coming academic year, and they will also undertake to develop a communications plan that will provide effective and timely information on library policy development and strategic direction. Consultation with users of the University Libraries is a critical element in the development of policy and strategy and readers are encouraged to contribute to this process over the vacation and during Michaelmas term in the ways outlined above.

Note on procedures in Congregation

¶ Business in Congregation is conducted in accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (www.admin.ox.ac.uk/statutes/regulations/529-122.shtml). A printout of these regulations, or of any statute or other regulations, is available from the Council Secretariat on request. A member of Congregation seeking advice on questions relating to its procedures, other than elections, should contact Mrs C Benton at the University Offices, Wellington Square (telephone: (2)80107; email: ceri.benton@admin.ox.ac.uk); questions relating to elections should be directed to the Elections Officer, Ms S L Stacey (telephone: (2)80463, email: elections.office@ox.ac.uk).

Oxford Open Doors

Can you spare a few hours over the weekend of 8–9 September to volunteer at this year's Oxford Open Doors?

Oxford Open Doors is a free annual celebration of all that makes Oxford distinct and is organised by Oxford Preservation Trust in partnership with the University. The Trust is looking for volunteers to welcome local people to beautiful, fascinating and unusual venues as they explore and enjoy the city. Last year 60,000 visits were recorded to over 185 venues, and around 45 University departments and colleges are expected to take part this year.

For further information about volunteering please contact Sarah Fenton (s.fenton@oxfordpreservation.org.uk) or download the volunteer form on the Oxford Preservation Trust website (www.oxfordpreservation.org.uk) and email it to Sarah.

Oxford Learning Institute

TRAINING FOR ADMISSIONS INTERVIEWING

The Oxford Learning Institute will offer the following training opportunities to those responsible for leading or assisting with undergraduate admissions interviewing in:

- A tutored online course, for those who expect to take a leading role in admissions interviewing, will be available from 1 August to 30 November (with new enrolments being taken until 23 November).
- A non-tutored online course, for those assisting with admissions (eg graduate student 'helpers' or note takers) and experienced tutors who need an update, will be available from 1 August to 14 December.
- Admissions interviewing practice, a half-day session (noon–4 pm) for new interviewers who have completed the tutored online course, will be offered twice: on 26 September and 16 November.

The collegiate University expects all those involved in interviewing candidates for admission to receive appropriate briefings on the process. The compulsory element of these briefings for new staff is in the form of an online course which takes about six hours to complete. New appointees may complete the online course before arriving in Oxford, if they wish to do so.

Practice interviews are also offered as an optional extra learning opportunity. To qualify to take part in practice interviews, participants must complete the online course by a deadline three weeks beforehand.

We advise all teaching staff in colleges who have not been involved in interviewing or have not previously taken this course to ask senior colleagues whether they will be expected to interview this year and should therefore enrol. Departmental teaching staff may also wish to seek advice from line managers or mentors on whether they are likely to receive an invitation to be involved in admissions this year. Many who do not have a formal college association are nonetheless frequently invited to take part in college admissions processes because of their specific disciplinary expertise.

To book on to any of the above courses please go to the Learning Institute website at www.learning.ox.ac.uk/admissions and follow the links to the course you want. The webpage provides further information but if more is required, please telephone Kathryn Black on (2)86825.

Research participants sought

Collaborative learning in young people: we are currently recruiting participants for a study of how young people may learn from one another. To participate, your child must be male, 10–12 or 14–16 years old, and able to find a friend (from the same age group) who can come along to the Department of Experimental Psychology. The task is simple but fun; and both children will be reimbursed (£20 each). Please visit http://redd.psy.ox.ac.uk for further information.

Would you be willing to help us make our research relevant to over 60s? We are looking for a group of adults over 60 years of age to help shape future research in the field of psychology. We are adapting many of our tasks and measures for use with older adults and we want to make sure the changes we make are relevant. If you have an hour or two to spare and would be willing to help, please contact cha@psych.ox.ac.uk or phone Erin Drazich on 01865 613197.

Do you care for someone who uses telecare equipment at home? The AKTIVE project is trying to find out how telecare – including pendant alarms, motion sensors and fall detectors – affects older people and those who care for them. We are holding two discussion groups in July and August in Oxfordshire Resource and Wellbeing Centres with unpaid carers to find out what it's like to care for an older person and whether telecare makes an impact. If you have experience of telecare equipment, we would like to hear from you. We will provide a free lunch, a gift of £20 to each carer who attends and also provide replacement care. If you think you can tell us about your experiences of care and telecare, please contact our research team on: 01865 612816/kate.hamblin@ageing.ox.ac.uk.
