1 Conferment of Honorary Degrees

The Public Orator made the following speeches in presenting the recipients of honorary degrees at the Encaenia on Wednesday, 22 September:

Degree of Doctor of Civil Law

SECRETARY HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON

Nonne et tibi et mihi certum clarumque videtur, Insignissima Vice-Cancellaria, rerum publicarum et loca et tempora turbulente mutata esse? Habet habuitque suas vices forma illa imperii quam 'democratiam' vocamus. Ecce tamen socia fida, femina quae cum causae populari fortiter favet tum meminit sibi olim satis placuisse partes alteras ducesque earum leniores. Quam hodie primum honoramus, haec multa observavit post sedem imperii vel iuxta vel etiam ante eam residens. Et artibus loquendi ac scribendi apposite ad persuadendum usa eloquentia praedita est qualem quivis orator desideret. Quae enim hoc mirabile agmen prima ducit revera 'domina prima' emerita et praesens adest, legum prompte perita, 'e pluribus una'. Ad honores ascendit, domui tamen nil minus quam reipublicae ministrans servivit. Quae in libris eis lepidis de Domo Alba nobis memoravit haec legimus ut illum coetum animalium hominumque pernoscamus qui tum eas aedes candidas colebant. Item eis efficienter consuluit quae aetati tenerae debemus, ut nostri iuvenes vita felicitatis ac salutis cives fruantur; necnon videtur intellexisse quantum valeant, quamdiu prosint nobis, venia et patientia. Uno modo loco, ut puto, alii cuidam, vel potius duabus aliis, etsi insigniter secuta, cedit: sed sicut illa prima quae antecessit, et haec intellegit quomodo legationibus susceptis iura civium solum ita conservanda sint dummodo morum instituta teneantur; ubi enim haec respuuntur, ibi vulgi turbatores imminent, respublica deficit. Ne nos praetereat quod iamdudum Thomas quidam, ipse talem magistratum ingressus, dixit: 'Tanti interdum est potestati repugnare, ut velim ipsam vim repugnantiae in aeternum vivam alamus.'

Praesento senatus columen et sociam, quae 'Voces Animatas' ducit, prolem eorum qui Μεθόδους Ioannis cuiusdam secuti nos monent ut 'omni modo omnia faciamus quae bona possimus', Hilariam Rodham Clinton, Cancellariam Universitatis Reginae Belfastiae, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili.

Paraphrase

It is surely clear, Vice-Chancellor, to You and Me Both, that we cannot deny the political climate changes of our turbulent times. Democracy has had its ups and its downs, but behold now a steadfast ally, a redoubtable Democrat who yet remembers how once she saw virtue in those Liberal Republicans of yesteryear. We start today by honouring one who has witnessed much from behind, beside and before the seat of power. What is more, she is a persuasive writer and speaker, whose rhetoric must be the envy of any orator. For here is the first lady to lead our formidable column, one out of many, a skilled and energetic lawyer, indeed a veritable First Lady Emerita et Praesens. Here is one who has seen high office and has yet served both home and state. Her White House memoirs in those engaging books introduced us to the menagerie, animal and human, that in her time inhabited that gleaming edifice. Witness no less her leadership in protecting children's health and legal rights, and her understanding of the enduring strengths of forbearance and forgiveness. In one respect, I will say, she cedes place of first, indeed even of second, lady in a distinguished succession. But like that first one[1] to whom she must cede, she understands that diplomacy can protect democracy only if important principle is not compromised, and she also knows that disdain for diplomacy can be a symptom of demagoguery, of decline in democracy. Let us remember what this lady's more distant predecessor once wrote: 'The spirit of resistance to government is so valuable on certain occasions that I wish it to be always kept alive.'[2]

I present a Senator, a leader of 'Vital Voices', a descendant of John Wesley's converts who counsel us to 'do all the good we can, by all the means we can', Hillary Rodham Clinton, Chancellor of the Queen's University, Belfast, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

Admission by the Vice-Chancellor

Pro pluribus una, quae nationem tuam defendens praestitisti et factionibus obstitisti infestis, pro moribus humanis propugnatrix, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili honoris causa.

One for many, representative and defender of your country, humanitarian and scourge of anti-democrats, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

PROFESSOR LINDA COLLEY

Censuit nuper scriptor Oxoniensis historiam, per quam rebus praeteritis enucleatis tempora nostra intellegamus futurisque nos offeramus, genus moriturum inter disciplinas minimo beneficio adficere. Quam tamen meram fabulam aspernati cognovimus nos, qui feliciter superfuerimus, historicos nostros insignes cum beneficia afferre tum ante omnes usui nobis esse. Adest erudita quae iam tum clare percepit gravique auctoritate docuit qualia tempora nos participes demerserint hac aetate quam olim molestam, in diem turbidiorem ipsa vocavit. Ex eis quae de hoc regno adhuc unito et de nobis Britannis investigavit, multo melius intelleximus unde orti simus qualesque fuerimus, praecipueque quo tempore nonnulli sunt qui nimis, ut puto, se idcirco crucient, quonam modo gens nostra definienda esse videatur. Ecce contra quae ingenium compositum feliciter praestat; se 'hybridam' vocat, re ipsa tamen animum trigeminum continet, cui tigridis vires coniunxit. Haud mirum est quod consilia consociata facunde approbat, quamvis confusa sit natio nostra. Et quod etiamnunc saepe iuvat poetice cantare, nos 'nunquam servitutis iugum passuros' esse, haec scrutata illustravit, sed etiam, quod interdum incommodum videatur auditu, patefecit Britannos nonnunquam antehac id ipsum iugum acceptum ferre coactos esse. Hoc denique haec femina bene scit, quod nostrorum quidam iam mortuus quondam scripsit, eam quidem historiam vocare oportere quam necesse sit historicis legere. Honoramus igitur hanc cuius opera prorsum legenda esse alii permulti affirmaverunt et studiosi et qui rempublicam capessunt.

Praesento, Vice-Cancellaria, eam quam novisti Britannam excellere gravis auctoritatis, studiosam callidam, ingenio egregio praeditam, quae nos dubios et ea quae de natione dubitamus recte inter condiciones in rectam rationem revocare potest, Lindam Colley, Excellentissimi Ordinis Imperii Britannici Commendatricem, Academiae Britannicae Sociam, apud Universitatem Princetoniensem Professorem, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Paraphrase

On January 1st 2021 an Oxford historian remarked that history, 'which interprets the past to understand the present and confront the future, is the least rewarding discipline for a dying species'. It is, of course, a fiction.[1] We fortunate survivors find our distinguished historians not only rewarding but necessary companions. Here is a scholar who already had clear and persuasive ideas about this century of ours - a 'nasty, increasingly volatile world', as she once put it - and our place in it. Her studies of our still united kingdom and of us Britons tell us much about where we came from and what we have been, and this at a time when some of us worry, I believe immoderately, about our identity. Herself a happy example of composite identity - she calls herself a 'mongrel' but in truth embodies and unites the spirits of Wales, Ireland and Northern England as well as her adoptive American tiger-sanctuary - she argues eloquently for common purpose, however fragmented our nation becomes. Here too is one who has analysed and illuminated the much-loved poetic vow that we would never be slaves, and also revealed some uncomfortable truths of Britons well and truly enslaved in the past. As our honorand knows well, one of our own now departed Souls once wrote that good history should be 'must reading' for historians.[2] But she has been deemed a 'must read' by many others too, from the academy to Downing Street.

Vice-Chancellor, I present to you one you already know as an influential Briton, a clever and original scholar, one who can put us and our anguished identity problems in historical perspective, Linda Colley, CBE, FBA, Professor at Princeton University, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Admission by the Vice-Chancellor

Clius dignissima cultrix, quam praeterita et praesentia, iamque status et leges civitatis vel scriptas vel adhuc scribendas explicantem nos sicut captivi acri animo legimus ut ad futura spectamus, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris honoris causa.

Most worthy votary of Clio, whose words on both past and present, and on constitutions written and as yet unwritten we, your captive audience, keenly read as we confront the future, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

PROFESSOR ANNA DEAVERE SMITH

Homo sum: humani nil a me alienum puto.[1]

Per annales equidem rerum gestarum rationes consideramus; nonne tamen Musis artes agitantibus, et inter eas theatrales, vitam humanam animo attentissimo reputabimus? Quam bene locutus est scriptor ille Romanus et ipse quondam servus. Quae adstat, haec ingenio usa artibusque scribendi vel in scaena agendi vel actores docendi illam reputationem intentissime atque acerrime fovet. Forsitan administrantes nostri Musis auxilio esse debeant, haec tamen institit certe administrationi opus esse Musarum beneficio. Ex verbis revera auditis concepit, prima produxit, nomine appellavit eam societatem qua inaudito ac vivido modo vires vitae cotidianae coniunxit et eas quae in scaena spectatae amplius animantur. Itaque et tempus quoddam prioris 'Coronae' revocamus et urbem eo tempore minus angelicam; tum enim civium summa dissensione iactatorum haec omni cuique parti facultatem dabat ut per suam narrationem vox eorum audiretur. Ceterum si volumus res illius populi memorare - immo his res addamus cuiuscumque nationis - necesse est, ut haec dicit, ita disserere ut voces omnium ordinum, omnium generum, civitatis denique omnium partium et virorum et feminarum recipiantur. Nec tamen narratio per se ipsa sufficit, neque ipsa cognitio. Haec et in scaena et in academia ad agendum provocat. 'Observationibus' eius notatis efficiamus ut non tantum percipiatur sed tandem evertatur id momentum inexorabile quo iuvenes ex ludis in carcerem adducantur. Eadem in studium linguarum scientiae puella incumbebat, omnemque fere linguam discere volebat ut generi hominum beneficio prodesset; hodie tamen praesento eam iam adultam quae idem sane anglica facundia usa efficit, cuius in fabulis plerumque indignatio iam in exordio percipitur, deinde maestitia nobis oblata denique vim veniae vel etiam amoris sentimus, Annam Deavere Smith, apud Universitatem Neo-Eboracensem professorem, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Paraphrase

Yes, to be sure our historians help us make sense of things, but perhaps it is through art and theatre that we may be made to reflect most deeply on the human condition. Well did a Roman playwright, himself a former slave, say 'I am human, so I think every human affair is my concern.' Here beside me is one who has with great urgency and power used her talents as writer, director and actor to nurture such understanding. Whether or not the arts need the help of government, she has stressed that government needs the help of the arts. 'Verbatim' is the name, and the concept, she pioneered, bringing real life and the heightened life of the stage into new creative partnership. Through her we remember another 'Corona' time[1], and a less-than-angelic city[2], when communities fell into violent conflict; but she allowed the words and thoughts of individuals from every quarter to speak through her. To tell the story of her country - but let us so consider any country - she has said that you have to tell it through the voice of many people not just of one race, nor just of one gender. But telling, and understanding, are surely not enough. In her acting and her teaching she gives the call for action. Through her 'Notes from the Field' let us first see, then aspire to redirect, the 'schools to prison pipeline'. When she was a schoolgirl, and an aspiring student of linguistics, she wanted to learn every language and thus make the world a better place, but today

I present to you an adult who can do just that through English alone, one whose plays usually start, as she puts it, 'with outrage, then go through a form of mourning, and then usually end up with love or forgiveness'. Here is Anna Deavere Smith, Professor at New York University, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Admission by the Vice-Chancellor

Melpomene rediviva, quae veras imagines offers ignium multiformium, ex crepusculo novam lucem adducis et ex fortunis hominum nova genera theatralia elicis, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris honoris causa.

Melpomene's mirror of many fires, who draw new dawn from twilight and new forms of theatre from the affairs of all humans, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

BARONESS RUTH LISTER OF BURTERSETT

Sunt tamen qui vocati se promptos praebeant. Ex agmine succedit femina animo ac manu prompta, quae sedecim annos sociis adiuncta vel etiam praeposita ad egestatem pro iuventute nostra debellandam egregie emersit; quod poeta Romanus scripsit haec ita probatum sensit ut pauci modo potuerant. Ea temperantia quam austero nomine appellatam iactaverunt duces nostri, haec monuit ut nos una conixi ad prosperitatem publicam uteremur. Num tamen aeque omnes tali oneri subiecti sunt? Hodie non praecepta tradere sed officia laudare mihi oratori, saltem Latine loquenti, propositum est; at haec honoranda multa quidem de morum nostrorum, de iurum statu animadvertere potest, neque haec omnino laetos nos audire decet. Ut quae apud academiam agat, scit quomodo ad res definiendas enitamur - paupertatem dico et aequalitatem et humani generis sexus discrimina, et civitatis salutem - et apud conscriptos ordinis superioris et singularis satis bene scit principes nostros et quae edicunt sanciuntque lege interrogare. Ne dubitemus quin hoc Thomae illi, quem super revocavi, cordi esset. Sed ante omnia nostra interest hanc honorare quae pro iustitia, pro iuribus aequis, ut ita dicamus, propugnat; iam nunc enim studiosius operam dare volumus quo illi liberalius discipuli educantur quorum iamdudum virtutibus adeo obstat res angusta domi ut adhuc etiam cohibiti coerceantur. Legite sultis et quae haec de civibus scripsit, quales simus et quaenam munera nobis iniungantur, etiamque qualesnam ei sint, et qualia eis debeantur, quibus ianua nostra aliquando clausa videatur. Anna enim nostra veris verbis fabularum suarum monet ut hoc rogemus: Quid? Quod tua refert, idem praetermittendum?

Praesento doctorem insignem, scriptorem, vocem rerum publicarum viventem, Margot Ruth Alinam, Baronissam lister de Burtersett, Excellentissimi Ordinis Imperii Britannici Commendatricem, Academiae Britannicae sociam, apud Universitatem Loughburgensem professorem, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Paraphrase

And the call to action has been answered by some. 'No easy matter is it, anywhere, for a man to rise when poverty stands in the way of his merits,' says another Roman poet, and here next in our line is a woman who for sixteen years first served and then led our Child Poverty Action Group, knowing this truth as few others have. 'Austerity', as she sees it, should surely mean some collective effort in which we all pull together in the common good, but we can hardly pretend that the burden has been equally distributed. The orator's purpose here, at least in Latin, is not to preach but to praise, but this honorand has much to tell us about the state of human rights in our nation, and much that should cause us some discomfort. As an academic she knows how to look for definitions - of poverty, of equality, of gender, citizenship and welfare - and as a member of our curious Upper House she knows how to hold our government to account for its words and actions; we may be sure that Thomas Jefferson would approve. But above all let us honour one who fights for social justice especially while we strengthen our efforts at this University to promote the education of those able students who for long have faced formidable barriers that stand in the way of mobility and progress. Read also, and digest, what she tells us of the nature and obligations of citizenship - our own identity and our duties, but further than this the identity and the rights of those often apparently excluded. As Anna Deavere Smith's 'verbatim theatre' bids us ask, 'How can you mind your business at something you need to make your business?'

I present a distinguished teacher, writer and active political voice, Margot Ruth Aline Lister, Baroness Lister of Burtersett, CBE, FBA, Professor Emerita of Loughborough University, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Admission by the Vice-Chancellor

Vitae communis investigatrix diligens, quae magistratus nostros scrutata interrogat et ad iustitiam pro civibus petendam eos et nos provocas, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris honoris causa.

Rigorous social scientist, effective interrogator and critic of our officers of state, who urge them and us to seek social justice, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

JEANETTE WINTERSON

Auctorem nunc produco quae ex verbis solutis vere veniustiora texit, quae cognovit parvulos omnes ad unum divinitus inclinatos esse ad beate vivendum, nostri contra esse docere quomodo in miseria versari possimus. Edixit illam aetatem sermone atque litteris feliciter fructam res humanas ad meliora posse educere. Sed cuique nostrum his artibus recte uso vitae velut materiem latiorem extendere licere. Fabulis vel carminibus vel disputationibus lectis tantum abesse ut nobis solum facta appareant. Immo mente atque animo imaginibus adhibitis ad veritatem intellegendam nos adduci; ubi felicissime fabulis excogitetur, ibidem vera maxima quidem inveniri. Haec a primis annis sermone ipso ducente viae longae se commisit, iam parvula a versione regis Iacobi scripturae sanctae profecta; neque unquam sermonis ipsius neque narrationum delectatio eam deseruit - verba enim, ut dicit, fabularum modo militanti usui sunt modo amanti. Nos etiam, cum mira huius librorum arte fruimur, in ea transimus quae elaborata elicit, ubi extra cotidiana parumper commoremur. Oxoniae studiosa ubique libros mirata invenit adesse et, quod etiam magis placuit, animadvertit nil opus esse, si quis ex improviso advenisset, libro statim abdito. Oxoniae eam denuo salutantes atque honorantes haud scio an diceremus illos mores adhuc teneri, nobisque adhuc dari libere legere et scribere, aliique alium libere colloquentem audire. Certe illas opes sentimus quae ex libris huius aperiantur; posthac tamen aliis etiam fructibus hac scribente datis, nil timendum est ne mox desinamus tali alimento foveri.

Hanc igitur praesento quae fabulis scribendis velut regiones affectuum et motuum animi conceptas parit, Jeanette Winterson, Excellentissimi Ordinis Imperii Britannici Commendatricem, apud Universitatem Mancuniensem professorem, ud admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Paraphrase

I now introduce a writer, a poet in prose, who knows that children - indeed all children - are predisposed to be happy; it is we who teach them how to be depressed. And she knows that through the experience of literature and language young people may change the world for the better. But art, in her words, presents for all of us an opportunity to stretch the ordinary material and fabric of life. In reading fiction, poetry and philosophy we find so much more than information, she tells us. Through the inventive imagination we may find truth, for 'the greatest truth', as she insists, 'is in the most feigning.' Her own path in life has been a long adventure in language starting from the King James Bible of her youth, and a continuing delight in words - they can be both weapons and love affairs, she says - and the stories they can tell. In reading her highly crafted books we find for ourselves that place that she wants to create - a place outside the confines of our daily lives. Oxford was for her younger self a place not only full of books but one where, when someone knocks on the door, you need not hide your book under the pillow. Welcoming her back here, and honouring her, may we tell her that it is still such a place, where we freely read, write, speak, and listen? Certainly, it is a place where many of us sense that buried treasure that lies at the heart of so many of her books - but we know that these are 'not the only fruits', for in her case we have no imminent 'sense of an ending'.

I present an author who sees, and creates, in fiction a place of feeling and passion, Jeanette Winterson CBE, graduate of St Catherine's College and Professor at the University of Manchester, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Admission by the Vice-Chancellor

Verborum et imaginum creatrix, quae rerum fictarum veritatem et litterarum veras vires praebuisti, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris honoris causa.

Conjurer of words and ideas, who show us the truth of fiction and the Power of the Book, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Degree of Doctor of Science

PROFESSOR DAME SALLY DAVIES

...crescunt animalia quaedam minuta, quae non possunt oculi consequi... [1]

Cui poeta quidam noster olim assensit; sed investigatores haec consecuti ita clare dispexerunt ut pro certo habeamus parvula non semper omnino diligenda esse. Iampridem enim, ut haec honoranda admonet, hoc observavit maximus ille Ludovicus, quod quantumvis in timorem haec minutula multiplicata nos obnoxios coniciunt, tantundem hoc solacio nobis oportet esse, quod disciplinae nostrae non semper hostibus huius generis cedere cogentur. Quam spem tamen etsi trimuviri olim insignes erexerunt, simul monuit primus eorum ne mirifica quidem medicamenta in aeternum valere posse. Haec enim quae bacteria vocamus cum minuscula sint tum callide ac constanter militant - ita saltem similia videntur eis quae apud nos 'viri' nomine fruuntur - ut nunquam nisi sollertia adhibita munimenta eorum refracturi simus. Ecce incurrit investigatrix artis medicinae perita, quae moleculas falcatas victrix debellavit, quae ingenio ac verbis usa ad hostes gravissimos exsuperandos nobis subvenit. Sicut temporibus ac locis mutantibus obstamus ita cum has moleculas hostiles repugnamus, prospere quidem gerentes, ut dicit, nova pericula solemus allectare. Attamen et officiis functa et peritia scienter freta haec advertit nos omnes una cum peritis nitentes minis huic orbi imminentibus posse obsistere. Ceterum pericula ubique adstantia respicientes et nos et eos qui res nostras regunt, quippe qui sciamus quid iam accidat, animo firmo ac vigilanti obviam ire debebimus. Scilicet hac ducente collegae et discipuli Cantabrigienses semper clarius percipient summi momenti esse salutem ipsorum et reipublicae et populorum omnium, nec quicquam inter bona nostra pluris esse pendendum.

Praesentatam accipe, quaeso, inter fidicines violam, medicam insignem, publici consilii atque administrandorum auctorem, veram denique doctorem, Sally Davies, Honorabilissimi Ordinis de Balneo Magnae Crucis Dominam Commendatricem, Regiae Societatis sodalem, apud Universitatem Cantabrigiensem Collegii Trinitatis Magistrum, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia.

Paraphrase

'The microbe,' said an Oxford poet of a bygone age, 'is so very small you cannot make him out at all.' But scientists have made him out all too clearly, and have seen that small is not always beautiful. Long ago, as our honorand reminds us, the great Pasteur observed: 'If it is a terrifying thought that life is at the mercy of the multiplication of these minute bodies, it is a consoling hope that science will not always remain powerless before such enemies.'[1] But such hope, so signally reaffirmed by Fleming, Florey and Chain, carried a warning from the first of that Oxford trio, that even wonder-drugs might come to be ineffective. For all their minuteness, bacteria are cunning and steadfast tacticians - this much at least they have in common with viruses - and human ingenuity will always be needed to break their defences. Here is a researcher and clinician, a tested warrior against the sickle cell, who has used both intellect and persuasion to assist our struggle with formidable foes; antimicrobial resistance, she tells us, is like climate change in that we are victims of our own success. Nevertheless, as public officer and scientific authority she has counselled us that with action on the part of scientists and of every one of us, we can confront the global threat. But in the face of danger we and our governments must react vigilantly and decisively when we 'know what is happening' in the world around us. We may be sure that Cambridge students and colleagues will be increasingly appreciative of their own health, and that of public and the world, as the most precious of human assets.

I present a violist, a doctor, a guide in public and government policy, a true educator, Sally Davies, Dame Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, Fellow of the Royal Society, Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Admission by the Vice-Chancellor

Sure-aimed adjutant of Apollo's musical and healing arts, voice of reason and hope in medical and educational progress, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

The Public Orator delivered the Creweian Oration:

Vice-Chancellor: Licet.

Public Orator: Gaudeamus igitur!

Wundor is tó secganne
hú mihtig god manna cynne þurh sídne sefan snyttru bryttað
eard ond eorlscipe· hé áh ealra geweald.

Who will deny me this interpretation of our Vice-Chancellor's generous licentia? For here our native hero Beowulf is reminded by a foreigner of the ways of good fortune; long may we treasure such words, and long may we be mindful of our need to deserve them. We may read them transformed, 'Englished', as we once used to say, by an Irishman and European, one of our recent Professors of Poetry, Seamus Heaney : 'It is a great wonder How Almighty God in his magnificence / Favours our race with rank and scope / And the gift of wisdom; / His sway is wide.' But I urge us all to read on - for a most judicious Old English caution - out with you notebooks, for the lines are those following 1724.

Here, then, we find ourselves, by the grace of all our gods, reduced in numbers but not in spirit, to honour our guests and record our thanks to those who have remembered us, believed in us, trusted us, and in that trust supported our endeavours. It is the 352nd year of the Sheldonian Theatre, and something like that of the Creweian Oration itself. Our ceremony has emerged from the mothballs. Last year your orator was unable to stand, or rise, above these strange fasces of the Proctor's Box to pose his risky request to the Chancellor. Among so many other sadnesses of that year we were deprived of the company of these our distinguish honorandae - note the proud and unapologetic Latin feminine plural - who were to help us celebrate another Sheldonian anniversary, namely the hundredth year since women first collected degrees in this fine building.

It is a centenary we may mention with somewhat muted pride if we consider, as I believe we should, that many women had, by all reasonable criteria, already qualified in this University for the degrees they were not formally awarded until that year. I pass over in silence - well, in near silence, as I think a wider context is interesting and instructive - the fact that on January 17th this year the Magic Circle (admittedly not an Oxford Faculty) celebrated another centenary, namely that of the first sawing in half of a woman, an illusion as iconic, according to the present-day President of the Circle, as pulling a rabbit out of a hat. I quote him: 'For every person who thought it was great that women were getting the vote there were other people who thought it great that a woman was being put in a box and sawn in half.'

In what I hope is a more constructive, restorative spirit, we welcome our honorands in another year in which gender is noticed in many arenas and forums - forgive me, I mean fora, neuter plural - not least the international and the epidemiological. As a joint male-female-authored article in the Guardian delicately put it not so long ago, 'Plenty of countries with male leaders have also done well. But few with female leaders have done badly.'

Now one of our recent honorands, Dame Mary Beard, has advised us all not to be so 'fixated' on Oxford, or Cambridge for that matter. I take this on the chin, and I acknowledge without any reserve that there are other places, while I remain happy to be where I am. Meanwhile our own reporting of our University's concerns and achievements has often fallen into the broad and stark classification: 'COVID-19' and 'Beyond COVID'. Just after my last Creweian Oration was printed, we heard that our own Leverhulme Centre for Demographic Science had conducted an exhaustive study and confirmed the effectiveness of face coverings in reducing virus transmission and protecting ourselves and each other. Since then, satisfyingly prominent among those of our researchers who were distinguished in the New Year and Birthday Honours lists over the last year were leaders of teams that helped to tackle the pandemic and its ravages; their names are legion, and as true leaders they have been quick to point out that their teams contained numerous brilliant and heroic members whose honours are yet to come.

We are also delighted that five of our colleagues in divers fields have this year been elected Fellows of the British Academy, and six as Fellows of the Royal Society; and we heartily congratulate Sir Roger Penrose on his Nobel Prize for Physics. I would set him and his life's work, in stark contrast, alongside a press statement I have been shown, which reports the findings of a study on the history of our Earth, conducted by our Mathematical Ecology Research Group. 'New Oxford University research,' states the report, 'suggests that is quite unlikely that intelligent life exists in the University.' Caveat lector.

Mathematics is indeed wonderful, as was clear from the student broadsheet, Cherwell, which has taken a very reasonable interest in the ontology of the Cecil Rhodes statue. Last year, defying the advice of my 'sensitivity reader' (I believe the student newspapers have their own such advisers), I advised that whatever of Cecil Rhodes' actions and achievements may be lauded or deplored, we must acknowledge his function in 're-enlivening the High Street', and we may recognise his ongoing obligation to focus our minds on improving both our knowledge of history and our record of equal opportunities for all. That will be a legacy 'more enduring than bronze', as a Roman poet once said, and one that 'will not wholly die'.

Opinions are still regularly solicited and clearly voiced, and Cherwell's report informed us on May 28th that 'of the 982 members of the general public who submitted their views, 996 were opposed to moving the statue.' I have read, incidentally, that in Rhodes' bedroom, which was left unchanged for a time after he died, there was a copy of the Meditations of Marcus Aurelius. One passage at least was marked, and it read: 'Take care always to remember that you are a Roman... Have a care that you are not too much of a Caesar.' Outside, says a biographical essay, stretched the heroic landscape of Capetown, with its Roman pines.

Now gradually we reacquaint ourselves with what we fondly remember as 'normality', cautiously masking our faces, our fears and griefs, and with these our happy expressions as we note that in our preferred sources we are again ranked number one in the world. We have many reasons to give thanks, and many persons and foundations to receive our thanks, both in Oxford and in the world that laps up more and more urgently against the walls of the ivory tower, the world with which it is our business to engage. As always, Nathaniel Crewe, one-time Rector and all-time friend of Lincoln College and its students, bids us note and praise the generosity of our benefactors.

Let me, then, start with some of the most obvious areas of health and welfare. The Huo Family Foundation has enabled us to establish a Coronavirus Research Fund in the Medical Sciences Division and a programme at the Oxford Internet Institute. Lest COVID should eclipse all other concerns, I may add that the second of these grants has been awarded for the next three years to support the institute's team that conducts studies into the effect of social media and gaming use on adolescent wellbeing. Meanwhile a major donation from the Peter Bennett Foundation will establish the Bennett Institute for Applied Data Science, with the aim of improving use of data, evidence and digital tools in healthcare and policy. The foundation itself was formed in 2013 to promote equity and reduce poverty through direct donations and institutional support. Working in Hong Kong, China and South East Asia, the foundation supports NGOs and other organisations in health, education and welfare in countries of greatest need.

The Kavli Foundation is no more fixated upon Oxford than the Huo or the Bennett. There were already four Kavli Institutes in flourishing existence, conducting research in astrophysics, nanoscience, neuroscience and theoretical physics. But in its twentieth year the foundation has chosen Oxford for its fifth, a new Kavli Institute for NanoScience, where collaborative and 'cross-pollinating' work will be done in structural biology, biochemistry, pathology, chemistry, physics, physiology and engineering. Many scientists will, openly or confidentially, admit that the greatest motivator of all for productive research is the sheer excitement of the work, but it is clear that institutes such as these will aim to strengthen the connection between science and society.

Laymen like me are used to seeing nanoscience described as 'thinking big, working small'. Not quite so small are the viruses and microbial pests of a kind that perhaps Varro and Belloc intuited in their respective former ages. But they are small enough to demand meticulous attention. Dame Sally Davies will, I trust, rejoice with us in the munificence of INEOS, and the establishment of the Ineos Oxford Institute, which will create collaborative links across the sciences to focus on drug discovery for humans and animals, and raise awareness and promote responsible use of antimicrobial drugs. The institute will also contribute to research on the type and extent of drug-resistant microbes across the world and will seek to attract and train very bright minds in science to tackle this 'silent pandemic', as it has been called.

Bright minds. Well, what better moment to introduce some that we have with us here at the start of their careers. Each year our four University divisions are invited to submit a selection of names from their longer lists of stellar students. Happily now we see those from 2020 as well as this year. Their names and prizes are listed in your booklets, but I feel I cannot just leave it at that. As I looked admiringly at the rich and international array of surnames of those coming to join us today, they seemed to fall nicely into two (almost) Latin hexameters, for which I must assume the Vice-Chancellor's second licence. So now, arise, and hear our congratulations,

Henderson et Szelogowski, Godard, Ayyar, Wolstenholme, Durston, Krishnan et Mayer-Jacquelin, Stapleton et Canas Correia!

You may now sit down and relax, though I know that comfort cannot have been uppermost in the mind of our revered Sheldonian architect. More modern buildings tend to show different priorities. Our newest college has been of considerable interest to all of us, and my own interest has been partly linguistic. When asked how to Latinise its earlier, preliminary name of 'Parks College' I naturally thought of Paradise - Parks and Paradise being in the ancient world often closely related in word and concept. The 'College on Parks Road', or rather 'on Paradise Way' became 'Reuben College' last year, following the Reuben Family's and the Reuben Foundation's magnificent core endowment. The new baby is a boy, for Reuben is Hebrew from 'Behold, a boy!' The formal name of the college will thus show a happy alliance of Rome and Jerusalem. But there is now more to say, for in a further donation this year the Reuben Foundation has enabled the construction of an accommodation block on Winchester Road, and, at the back of its gardens, a Reuben Graduate Centre.

While our No. 10 classicist, taking a much-needed break from his Homeric studies, turned to Rome and remembered Cicero's assertion that 'the health of the people should be the supreme law', one of our theologians said in a Thought for the Day that 'lockdown' was not only a law, but a state of mind. It was indeed a state of mind at one time pining for the outside world and its fresh bluebells, such as those around Barnard Castle. George Orwell commented in his wartime essay 'The Lion and the Unicorn' that, after the battle of Waterloo, the opening battles of all subsequent wars have been lost on the playing-fields of Eton. I have it on some authority that one battle broke out some decades ago in the Junior Common Room of Exeter College, in which the contemporary undergraduates, ancient historian Cummings and Hancock - PPE man with a great future behind him - first squared up to each other. History, however rewritten - and is it not, in a sense, the job of historians to do so? - tells us of the mutual destructions of war; though some wars have been worth the fighting. But I believe the sentence immediately following Orwell's Etonian observation is less often remembered. It is as follows: 'One of the dominant facts in English life during the past three quarters of a century has been the decay of ability in the ruling class.'

I am not sure - nor, as far as I can tell, is anyone else - who first commented that making predictions is especially difficult about the future, though I feel almost sure that someone will soon tell me, rightly or wrongly. But some of our serious fears for the future seem well grounded on evidence and experience. And I dare say that sustainable finance will be a requirement for any alleviation of our greatest fears about our environment and about social and economic conditions around the world. That is surely an assumption underlying the establishment of a senior academic post in sustainable finance in our Social Sciences Division, based at the Smith School of Enterprise and the Environment within the School of Geography and the Environment. It is, I am told, the first such endowed post at any major university anywhere, and we owe its establishment to an endowment from Bank Lombard Odier. We are also deeply grateful to Alan and Gill Gray Philanthropies for financing a new programme at the Oxford Martin School to identify how international development can deliver meaningful work and livelihoods for all citizens. The programme - I quote here what seems eminently quotable from our excellent engines of publicity - 'aims to reframe development away from the preoccupation with aggregate growth and focus on shared prosperity in the face of global challenges including climate change, technological advancement and demographic shifts. It will also provide an agenda for action in the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic, which has severely derailed the development agenda.'

We aim to be good at anniversaries. One of the most important of our own I have already mentioned, though it was in fact last year's, and, as I write (this was indeed on Saturday the 11th) I know that we join our American friends and colleagues in heartfelt remembrance of the events of that September day 20 years ago. I pass respectfully over this year's centennial of the Communist Party of China, though I join those who congratulate it on discovering the acceptable face of capitalism. I had better not dwell on the 300th year of the South Sea Bubble and, regretfully, I must do no more than nod at the 75th birthday of my childhood hero Dennis the Menace. But I must draw attention to two more. The 400th of our ancient Botanic Garden was celebrated by a multinational meeting of health ministers to mark the end of the G-7 Health Ministers' Meeting here in Oxford. The bluebell season was over, but trees were planted, notably 10 Japanese cherry blossoms, one for each minister. In Japan these trees are sometimes seen as a metaphor for the transience of human life, beautiful and fleeting, while the Botanic Garden into which they have been planted started its own life, perhaps more optimistically, as a place where medical students from the University were taught how to identify medicinal plants. We may thus reflect on our losses especially through the last 18 months, and at the same time on our hopes and thanks for remedies, healing and protection.

And so to the septicentenary of the death of Dante Alighieri, whose life and works we are about celebrate in various programmes you may see described on the TORCH website. One or two friends of mine in Italy are even prepared to make him an Oxford man, though it seems hard to trace our influence on him; his influence on us is a different matter. Not so long ago we were told by a European leader, who perhaps had relevant personal knowledge, that there was a special place in Hell for some of us in Britain. I find it sometimes a little odd and perverse that the Inferno seems to exert more of a pull-factor than does Paradise, but although I have no special expertise I feel sure that there are special places in that happier realm - maybe even somewhere in the fourth sphere (notebooks out again) - for many of our friends and colleagues and Honorary Fellows who passed away over the last 12 months.

I call to mind Roger Hood, Edward Mortimer and William St Clair of All Souls; Malcolm Green and Donald Harris of Balliol; John Davies and Richard Totterman, Brasenose; Chris Butler, Peter Matthews, David Buckingham, Jack Ellis Paton, Jan Morris, Sir Brian Urquhart and The Rt Hon Lord Robert Armstrong of Christ Church; Robert Guy, Corpus Christi; Sir James Gowans, Ian Michael, Peter Sleight, Cyril Mango, Dominic Donnelly and The Revd Graham Shaw of Exeter; Clark Brundin, former President of Templeton College, and David Millard, Gerald Truscott Warner, Jennie Turner and Godfrey Hodgson of Green Templeton; Ann McDermid Mann, Sandy Stewart and Yvonne Pye of Harris Manchester; Lord Ashburton, Gerald Stone and John Torrance of Hertford; Michael Woolfson, Clark Brundin, Victor Wood, Peter Esnouf, Tony Downs, Anthony Pilkington and Michael Fenwick, Fellows of Jesus; Angus Hawkins of Keble; Chris Day of Kellogg; Jane Day, Susan Reynolds, Elizabeth Mackenzie and Alain Viala of Lady Margaret Hall; Lincoln's Michael Furmston, David Kenning, David Cornwell (also known as John le Carré) and Sir James Gowans; Frederick R Whatley and Gordon Claridge of Magdalen; Mansfield's former Principal Donald Sykes and former Bursar Allan Dodd; J Peter Neary and Jim Coulton of Merton; David Raeburn of New College; Thomas Symons of Oriel; Peter Neumann, Allen Hill and Bill Frankland of the Queen's College; Ann Waswo, David Washbrook, Geoffrey Elliott and Nemir Kirdar of St Antony's; William Miller and Philip Morsberger, St Edmund Hall; Margaret Christie, Jane Minto (also known as Jane Struthers), Jane Mellanby, Mary Wagley, Dame Fiona Caldicott and Toni Morrison, all of St Hilda's; Patrick John Fitzgerald, Trinity; Marcus Banks and Bryan Sykes, Wolfson; The Rt Revd Alec Graham, Raymond Franklin and Francis John Lamport of Worcester. Though there will be omissions of names that I have not received, I thank our Heads of Houses for the names I do have. And to all our late lamented colleagues: Lux perpetua luceat eis.

My colleague Bodley's Librarian has turned part of his attention to book-burning, that is to say, to the frequent and multifarious episodes of the destruction of humanity's written records - what some might call attempted erasures of history. The good guys in these histories have often been the librarians themselves, who heroically saved and preserved books and manuscripts, often at great, even mortal, risk to themselves. We owe them much, but we in our own various disciplines we can play some role too, and resist what seems to me a rising call to 'erase' books that may have connections, through authorship or otherwise, with persons and agencies who are no longer the flavour of the day.

On that note, or at least a consonant one, surely the adding of names, like that of information, will in the long run tell us more about history than their removal. The history of our distinguished chair in German studies enters a new phase at a time when German language studies are clearly under threat in universities across Europe, and many departments have closed in the UK in the last ten years. Not for the first time, this University is greatly indebted to the Dieter Schwarz Stiftung; in 2018 the foundation made a generous donation in support of students of German here, and this year it has securely endowed what was from 1907 the Taylor Chair, and henceforth becomes the Schwarz-Taylor Chair of the German Language and Literature.

Difficulty, we must never tire of saying, should be one of the greatest pull-factors for well-motivated students.

Oh God! How long is art,
Our life how short!

says the student Wagner to the immortal Goethe's Professor Faust, who seems at this point less troubled by the contrast.

Oh God! How long is art,
Our life how short! With earnest zeal
Still as I ply the critic's task, I feel
A strange oppression both of head and heart.
The very means how hardly are they won,
By which we to the fountains rise!

Come to Oxford, young Wagner, and your efforts will be fostered, redoubled, and amply rewarded. The English translation, by the way, is that of the Liverpool-born Anna Swanwick, fine scholar, translator and feminist. Do look her up; hers is one of the important names in the foundation and early history of our Somerville College. We may feel some retrospective jealousy of the University of Aberdeen, for I believe it was there alone that she was awarded her honorary doctorate.

Immortality, I admit, is a difficult subject to speak of with any authority, unless you are a poet. But there are glimpses of it in some of our museums, which continue to look after, and instruct us about, their collections while increasingly addressing the question of what belongs where. Mr Hiroaki Shikanai and Mrs Atsuko Shikanai seem happy for the Ashmolean to continue to look after its splendid Japanese holdings - happy enough, in fact, to safeguard them through their generosity and vision. They have, say my sources, ensured that Japan shall always be at the heart of the museum, recognised through the naming of the Shikanai Galleries, dedicated to Japan from 1600 to the present day. I also urge you to visit the exhibition the Shikanais have sponsored, 'TOKYO: Art and Photography', which has been equally and unequivocally praised by those twin pillars of our world order, the Guardian and the Telegraph.

In his last years in exile Dante received a Latin letter from his friend the Public Orator of the University of Bologna. The letter urged the poet to turn back from Italian, to write about more weighty subjects than those that had been his recent concerns, and be a proper poet, i.e. a Latin poet. Dante cleverly replied in near-perfect Vergilian Latin to explain why he could not comply. His last poetic words thus appear to have been in Latin, but his magnum opus, the Divine Comedy, was in the vernacular, or something like it. To return for a last moment to Paradise, Vice-Chancellor, may Dante speak in Italian?

La gloria di colui che tutto move
Per l'universo penetra, e risplende
In una parte più, e meno altrove.

And without any sense of fixation I give you the translation of Oxford's Dorothy Sayers and Barbara Reynolds of Cambridge, University College, London and Nottingham.

The glory of him who moves all things so'er
Impenetrates the universe, and bright
The splendor burns, more here and lesser there.

We have often felt, and praised, the beauty of our buildings and our grounds and gardens, in which I think God's glory is particularly present and manifest. But our lifeblood is of course in our men and women, our teachers, researchers, students and administrators. And our lifeblood is mixed. And part of the mix comes from those who have fled from tyranny and chaos elsewhere and found peace, freedom and opportunity in our country. I owe my existence to one such immigrant, my father, who escaped from oppression and found here what he first thought was a political paradise, though later he came to question this assessment.

We are now to welcome, I hope, many more newcomers. Some who come to our shores may one day become football or tennis stars, entrepreneurs, even political leaders to restore George Orwell's confidence, if perchance he may be sitting somewhere and looking down or up at us. And some will be excellent students and academics and contribute to our University's future life and prosperity. I suppose we do not need to be told it, but it was nicely put by St Paul (or someone else whom we now call Paul) in his letter to an Israelite community now simply known to us as the 'Hebrews'. In that letter the writer seems to acknowledge a time-honoured tradition in recommending hospitality. As the Vulgate puts it, charitas fraternitatis maneat in vobis. et hospitalitatem nolite oblivisci, per hanc enim latuerunt quidam angelis hospitio receptis. 'Let mutual love continue. Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for by doing that some have entertained angels without knowing it.' (Heb. 13.1,2.) Well, Amen to that!

Voting on a Resolution approving the conferment of an Honorary Degree

Explanatory Note

In June 2020, Maurice Keeble-Smith retired having completed 40 years of service with the Department of Engineering Science. He joined the Department in 1979, became deputy head of the Staff Student Workshop in 1993 and was promoted to head in 2003. Working in this role until his retirement, he made a huge contribution to the department, teaching undergraduates key technical skills in civil and mechanical engineering, sharing his expert knowledge and supporting academics, postdoctoral researchers and postgraduate students in the workshop.

Text of Resolution

That the conferment of the Degree of Master of Arts, honoris causa, upon Maurice Keeble-Smith be approved.

If the resolution is approved, the degree will be conferred at a ceremony next term.

Consultative Notices

Appointment of the next Vice-Chancellor

CONSULTATION

The Nominating Committee for the Vice-Chancellorship has begun the process of selecting the next Vice-Chancellor. The committee will report to Council by the end of this academic year with a recommendation that a named individual be appointed to take up the role in late 2023 when the term of the current Vice-Chancellor, Professor Louise Richardson, comes to an end. As is usual, the process of appointing her successor has begun now to ensure that the next postholder is in a position to take up the role for Michaelmas term 2023. Further details about the committee are available on its website at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/nominating-committee-for-the-vice-chancellorship.

REQUEST FOR COMMENTS

As part of the recruitment process, the committee is interested in hearing from any member of the University community with views about the role of Vice-Chancellor, or about the qualities required of potential candidates for the role. The committee is therefore seeking views on the following question:

> 'What are your thoughts on the nature of the role of the Vice-Chancellor, and on the background and qualities required of potential candidates for the role, given the likely challenges of the coming decade?'

If you would like to submit your views for consideration by the committee you can do so by emailing the Chancellor, as Chair of the Committee, at chancellor@admin.ox.ac.uk, by the end of October. All emails will be received in confidence, and members of the committee will receive only anonymised feedback.

The nomination period for the elections below will close at 4pm on 28 October. For further information, please contact elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Committees reporting to Council or one of its main committees

AUDIT AND SCRUTINY COMMITTEE

- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being a member of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, who shall not serve on Council or on any committee which in the view of Council has mainline executive authority within the University, or hold any office in the University or any college which involves executive authority, to serve until the start of HT 2025 [vice Dr Anne Edwards]

The terms of reference and membership of this body are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-8-audit-and-scrutiny-committee. For further information, please contact the Secretary (douglas.thornton@admin.ox.ac.uk).

CURATORS OF THE SHELDONIAN THEATRE

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2023 [vice Dr Andrew Fairweather-Tall]

The terms of reference and membership of this body are set out at: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-2-of-2004#collapse1425991. For further information, please contact the Secretary (john.weston@admin.ox.ac.uk or tom.mitchell@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Other Committees and University Bodies

POOL FOR CONSTITUTING PANELS UNDER STATUTE XII

- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies to represent the Division of Medical Sciences, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of HT 2025 [vice Liz Barnes-Moss]
- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies, not necessarily representing any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Timothy Power]

It is expected that candidates for election to represent the Division of Medical Social Sciences will also be members of the Division of Medical Sciences. Candidates for election to represent Congregation as a whole (ie in a non-divisional capacity) need only be a member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies. However, please note that a candidate may not be nominated to more than one constituency on the same committee at the same time. For further information, please see the eligibility and amendments to nominations sections at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation. Statute XII applies to: (a) professors, readers and associate professors or lecturers; (b) any employee of the University who is a member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV. In Statute XII, any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom the statute applies (Statute XII, Section 3 (1) and (2) (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board)). College staff are not covered by Statute XII as colleges have their own statutes. The exception is college staff at Kellogg, St Cross and Reuben, which follow the University's statutes. Any staff holding joint appointments will, however, be covered by Statute XII in respect of their University contract of employment and duties. Members of the Pool will be chosen by lot to serve on a number of Panels under Statute XII (ie Redundancy Panel (Section 14 (6)), Staff Employment Review Panel (Section 35) and University Appeal Panel (Section 52 (2))) and may also be expected to chair a Panel. Each member of the Pool will be required to attend appropriate training, including on equality and diversity, before serving on a Panel. Nominations from BME staff, from men and from academic and research staff are particularly encouraged. For further information, please contact the Secretary (kathryn.fairhurstjones@admin.ox.ac.uk).

For further information, please contact the Secretary (charlotte.vinnicombe@law.ox.ac.uk).

Notes

Electronic elections

The elections on 25 November will be conducted electronically.

Nominations

Hard copies of nomination forms will not be processed. Completed nomination forms should be sent as an email attachment to the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 4pm on 28 October. At least one nomination in respect of each candidate must be made on an official nomination form (https://governance.

admin.ox.ac.uk/nomination-forms). Please ensure that the nominators listed in section D are also copied into the email when the nomination form is submitted, as this will act as verification of the nomination in lieu of supplying original signatures.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate statements

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday, 10 November, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will be published in the Gazette dated 11 November. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 25 November.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 28 October. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice- Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of HT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Further information

For further information, please contact the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

It is expected that candidates for election to represent the Division of Medical Social Sciences will also be members of the Division of Medical Sciences. However, please note that a candidate may not be nominated to more than one constituency on the same committee at the same time. For further information, please see the eligibility and amendments to nominations sections at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation. Statute XII applies to: (a) professors, readers and associate professors or lecturers; (b) any employee of the University who is a member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV. In Statute XII, any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom the statute applies (Statute XII, Section 3 (1) and (2) (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board)). College staff are not covered by Statute XII as colleges have their own statutes. The exception is college staff at Kellogg, St Cross and Reuben, which follow the University's statutes. Any staff holding joint appointments will, however, be covered by Statute XII in respect of their University contract of employment and duties. Members of the Pool will be chosen by lot to serve on a number of Panels under Statute XII (ie Redundancy Panel (Section 14 (6)), Staff Employment Review Panel (Section 35) and University Appeal Panel (Section 52 (2))) and may also be expected to chair a Panel. Each member of the Pool will be required to attend appropriate training, including on equality and diversity, before serving on a Panel. Nominations admin.ox.ac.uk/nomination-forms). Please ensure that the nominators listed in section D are also copied into the email when the nomination form is submitted, as this will act as verification of the nomination in lieu of supplying original signatures.

Hard copies of nomination forms will not be processed. Completed nomination forms should be sent as an email attachment to the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 4pm on 28 October. At least one nomination in respect of each candidate must be made on an official nomination form (https://governance.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate statements

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday, 10 November, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will be published in the Gazette dated 11 November. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 25 November.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 28 October. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice- Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of HT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Vice-Chancellor's Oration 2021

Colleagues, thank you for attending this meeting of Congregation and for making time to hear my annual reflections on the past year and the prospects for the year to come. It is a particular pleasure to see each of you in three dimensions and I'm happy to say that you all look great!

Introduction

My family are fans of Lord of the Rings. I've been reminded lately of the exchange between Frodo and Gandalf when the young hobbit says that he wishes he had not seen these times and Gandalf replies, in effect: 'So do we all. But the question is: What do we do with them?' As we look back on all we have done these past 18 months, I would like to begin by saluting the heroic efforts of everyone in this community during the pandemic. I couldn't be more conscious of the time you have given, the dedication, resilience, adaptability and ingenuity you have displayed. This has been another extraordinary year. From those on the front line of vaccine research, putting in days and nights in the laboratory, to those shouldering the burden of online teaching while home-schooling young children; from those supporting students' mental health to those keeping our buildings clean, warm, welcoming spaces in which to learn and to socialise: I recognise that whatever you do, this year has demanded a great deal from you. Thank you - one and all.

I also want to acknowledge that probably, despite what I hope has been a restorative summer, many of you will be tired. As they say of parenting, so of pandemics: the first two years are the hardest! There is anxiety to contend with. Sleepless nights. The need rapidly to learn new skills. Although, like parenting, pandemics do get easier... often, just when you think you have established a routine, something changes. So we need now, more than ever, to be kind to one another and to ourselves, as we approach a new academic year. To recognise that each individual has faced challenges particular to their situation, often unseen by others. As we begin to unmask, it is appropriate that we also give ourselves space to think about what has been hidden or suppressed during the crisis, and allow for a period of emotional release, of reflection and readjustment.

Nonetheless, it is also true that in rising to meet a new challenge, you grow. I firmly believe that this University has grown in important ways during this crisis, ways that will positively influence our behaviour and our priorities from now on. Ralph Waldo Emerson observed that 'The health of the eye seems to demand a horizon. We are never tired, so long as we can see far enough.' Now, as we begin to have time to look to the future - I would like to speak not only about all we have achieved in the past year but to invite you to dream. To feel free to imagine the University we would like to be in ten, twenty, fifty years' time. What innovations would you like to see? What changes would you like to bring about? Now is the time to lift our eyes to the horizon and look ahead.

COVID-19: Adapting and Thriving

Firstly, however, I will say a little about how well teaching and education generally have gone in the year just past. I would like to pay tribute to students - who have overwhelmingly behaved responsibly, with grace and fortitude - and lecturers and tutors, who proved remarkably flexible and adept at creating online content and teaching remotely, while preserving elements of in-person and hybrid education. So much for the idea that old dogs can't learn new tricks. Oxford, the oldest of British universities, learned new tricks almost daily during this academic year.

A good example comes from one of our most venerable institutions, the Bodleian Library. The library closed its doors on 17 March 2020 but kept the University reading by expanding its digital services. Students and staff received online inductions and the Bodleian iSkills training programme also moved online, giving students and researchers access to research training and workshops.

The Bodleian expanded the hours of its Live Chat service and had responded to almost 7,000 enquiries by March 2021. Additionally, it became the first UK member of the HathiTrust partnership, a major digital repository giving access to around 14 million titles, with an additional 1.5 million copyrighted titles through the Emergency Temporary Access Scheme.

Other aspects of our work pivoted equally nimbly to online platforms. From careers advice to student support, to alumni events: we changed the format of our engagement and discovered the advantages of digital communication, not least its ability to bring together people in different places with minimal carbon emissions. A Digital Education Review is currently taking place to consider how we can build on our progress in the future.

There were challenges, too, of course. We responded by dedicating resources to those who needed them most. We established student and staff hardship funds to which colleagues, donors and the University contributed. We formed a Mental Health Taskforce to consider the immediate needs of students in the pandemic. We introduced a range of targeted measures to ensure students were not unfairly disadvantaged by the pandemic, both at individual and cohort level. A Transition Support Package will be launched this term to help our students adapt to academic life after the pandemic.

As you know, a number of central governance groups were set up under the University's Crisis Management Framework to coordinate the University's emergency response to COVID-19. The result has been an unprecedented level of new interaction and cooperation across the collegiate University – in effect, a One Oxford approach. The key, for me, about the Emergency Response Team was that it worked exceptionally well because of collaboration between members of different colleges, different disciplines, different departments and divisions. The lead committee, the Silver Group, was fast, flexible, considered, collegial, decisive, and open in its working.

Our pandemic response showed the strength both of our individual collegiate and our shared University structures. Colleges did everything they do best, caring for students as individual members of a small, tightly knit community. University groups were able to take action that kept pace with fast-moving external events, adapting policy and research to collective needs. This integrated model bodes well for the future.

As we return to our offices, and evaluate how we managed during lockdowns, we will examine how we work and, through the New Ways of Working Framework, will generate insights on how we can optimize our productivity while maximizing our individual flexibility. There were many silver linings to this pandemic and it is critical that we don't lose sight of them as we return to some semblance of normalcy.

Financial Update

I would now like to turn to the financial update. The headline here is that we are in a positive financial position, which is much stronger than we anticipated last year, when we had to plan for worst-case scenarios. It was at first feared that the overall cost of this pandemic to our University would be in the region of £90 million. In July 2020, Council approved an operating budget for the 2020/21 year, planning for an overall deficit of almost £38 million, which would have been funded by drawing on the University's cash reserves. In fact, however, student numbers did not fall as widely anticipated. As a result, the University's financial position is better than expected. There has been no need to draw on our reserves in 2020/21, but we may need to do so in 2021/22. We are still operating a 'COVID' budget with a Minor Capital Plan half its normal size.

From the beginning we were absolutely determined that we would protect all existing jobs and salaries and that we would finance any deficit by cost-controls where possible on buildings maintenance and instituting a temporary hiring freeze. We would not put any staff or student services on the line, cancel new projects, or make contingent scholars and staff bear the cost of financial uncertainty associated with the pandemic. I am convinced that this was the right approach, both ethically and practically. We have treated the pandemic as an opportunity for timely investment in technology, in health and safety, in new research facilities and staff accommodation, in access measures, and in adopting the Oxford Living Wage for staff. All of these investments in people and infrastructure will continue to pay off beyond the pandemic, as part of our long-term vision.

Philanthropic Support

This year has also seen an upsurge in charitable giving to the University. We brought in £236 million in new gifts, our second highest ever: a veritable fountain of philanthropy that will allow Oxford to flourish in the future. Among many notable individual gifts, we received £100 million from Sir Jim Ratcliffe and Ineos, to create a new Institute for anti-microbial research. The Ineos Oxford Institute, launched last January, will rapidly advance research, education and collaboration in the field of antibiotic resistance. Antibiotic-resistant bacteria are growing, and spreading at alarming rates, leading the WHO to declare anti-microbial resistance one of the top 10 global public health threats facing humanity. It is estimated that 700,000 people die each year as a result of drug-resistant diseases, with this number predicted to increase to over 10 million deaths per year by 2050. Our new Institute is thus poised to address a challenge of whose urgency many are as yet unaware, potentially saving millions of lives. The IOI will create collaborative, cross-disciplinary links across the sciences and will link the Departments of Chemistry and Zoology in the new Life and Mind Building, which is currently under construction.

There are other examples of extraordinary generosity, not all of which I can mention here, but all of which deserve our heartfelt appreciation. Oxford's vaccine research and development has been further boosted by the endowment of Professor Sarah Gilbert's Chair in Vaccinology by the Saïd family and Professor Adrian Hill's chair by the Mittal family. A Kavli Foundation grant will create a Kavli Institute for NanoScience Discovery, while the Peter Bennett Foundation gift for the Bennett Institute for Applied Data Science will pioneer improvements in the use of data, evidence and digital tools in healthcare and policy. The Taylor Chair of German Language and Literature has been permanently endowed thanks to a donation from the Dieter Schwarz Foundation. This is a particular boost since German language studies are currently under threat in universities across Europe, with many departments of German having closed in the UK in the last ten years. Following a munificent gift of £80 million in support of Reuben College last year, the Reuben Foundation has provided further support for the college this year and will expand support for undergraduate bursaries.

We have received verbal commitments from the UK government and private individuals of £200 million, to establish a new Pandemic Sciences Centre under the directorship of Professor Peter Horby. As you know, in response to the pandemic, the University mobilised its extensive scientific capabilities across multiple disciplines, applying its experience with epidemic infections, and partnering with academic peers, industry, public health agencies, health systems, and governments. The Pandemic Sciences Centre will harness this expertise to unite disciplines and sectors to tackle complex problems; increase global access to essential science capabilities and interventions; and build agile, equitable partnerships and technologies that can respond to pandemic threats anywhere and at any time. Working with colleagues across a pandemic sciences network, it will become our very own bomb disposal unit, ready to anticipate and defuse the next viral explosion.

Vaccine Research

Few people across the globe are unaware of the triumph that has been the Oxford AstraZeneca vaccine created by the Jenner Institute and the Oxford Vaccine Group led by Professors Gilbert, Hill and Pollard and their extraordinary team of researchers, volunteers and supporters. This vaccine, on which work only began in January 2020, has now been approved and licensed for use in more than 170 countries and is being manufactured in 20 countries. More than a billion doses have been distributed with the goal of 2 billion by the end of this year. The number of lives that will be saved and ameliorated by this vaccine is incalculable; it is certainly one of the fastest, most effective interventions in global health that has ever been mounted.

This extraordinary achievement has involved multiple contributions. Oxford's extensive existing national and international partnerships were a significant factor in the development of the vaccine at lightning speed.

We also had the knowledge and experience to set up a global vaccine trial, which recruited more than 24,000 participants to ensure that results were valid for all regions of the world and for different ethnic groups. Our unique structure meant that we were poised rapidly to deploy a core Oxford team of more than 280 staff who worked with thousands of colleagues at trial sites across the UK and in Brazil, South Africa and Kenya. Early doses of vaccine were manufactured here in Oxford at our Clinical BioManufacturing Facility before we joined forces with an external manufacturer in Italy to provide the doses needed for a trial on a scale, and with an impact, we had never experienced before.

Crucially, the University entered into a partnership with AstraZeneca to ensure that large quantities of vaccine could be produced for both UK and international use and that it would be distributed on a not-for-profit basis in perpetuity in the developing world and for the duration of the pandemic elsewhere. I want to stress the extraordinarily, indeed stunningly, humane and enlightened nature of that commitment. I do not think that AstraZeneca has received anything like the credit it deserves in the Press and in the public mind for this decision. These billion doses of a life-saving vaccine have been produced and delivered to the world at cost. Not for profit. This is how we transform the world for the better, forever, for everyone. Truly, as Virgil said, 'sic itur ad astra': this is how one journeys to the stars. Although, in truth, at times it has felt more like the RAF motto amended: 'per ardua ad Astra(Zeneca)'. In any crisis, there are profiteers, who make a fast buck out of a desperate situation. Through valuing people over profit, AstraZeneca and the Oxford vaccine will assuredly find themselves on the right side of the balance sheet of history.

As many of you will know, Oxford's contribution during the pandemic has gone much further than vaccine creation, embracing every facet of the crisis. The large-scale RECOVERY trial, led by Professors Peter Horby and Martin Landray, to test potential COVID-19 treatments, also got rapidly under way, resulting in several existing drugs, including the cheap and readily available dexamethasone, as well as tocilizumab, being approved for treatment. Between July and December 2020, dexamethasone is estimated to have saved around 12,000 lives in the UK and 650,000 globally. Other divisions across Oxford have been analysing variants of the virus and created rapid COVID tests. The Blavatnik School has been collecting information on different governments' varying policy responses to create a 'Risk of Openness Index' to help countries decide when it is safe to open. Social scientists have been exploring vaccine hesitancy and attitudes to vaccine passports. Colleagues have also been studying the mental health impact of lockdowns on children and the impact of the pandemic on poverty and inequality. Now that we have flattened the curve of infection, we must address how to flatten the steep curve of inequality exacerbated by the crisis, both nationally and globally.

Other Highlights of Science Research

Research on COVID-19 does not exist in a vacuum. It has been made possible by the broad and varied context of research that is only possible in a university setting. Oxford teams have been responsible for a malaria vaccine that in 2021 was shown to have high-level efficacy of 77%. In July, Professor Tomáš Hanke at the Jenner started Phase one clinical trials of an HIV vaccine while the Oxford Vaccine Group has launched trials of a plague vaccine. The Jenner currently has new vaccines targeting seven pandemic threats in development based on the ChAdOx vector technology. These are exciting developments, with potential to transform millions of lives.

Meanwhile, we have stepped up research into the most significant challenge now facing humanity: climate change. Many of our colleagues are working to ensure the success of COP26. The Smith School is the national hub for CO_2RE, the CO_2 removal hub. Colleagues in the Smith School are also working with the UN to map the world's green recovery spending and analyse the potential environmental impact. Our Environmental Change Institute is the lead partner in a project assessing the role of climate change in extreme weather events. In June this year, a new technology developed by Oxford researchers in partnership with the European Space Agency piloted the detection of flood events from space. Last November, the Oxford Net Zero Initiative was launched, drawing on the University's world-leading expertise in climate science and policy to address the critical issue of how to reach global 'net zero' in time to halt global heating.

STEM and FLOWER: The Vital Importance of the Arts and Humanities

While we could not be more proud of our scientists, who have forever interred the notion that the Fens is the place at which to pursue science, I want to emphasize in this Oration that we are equally proud of Oxford's continued contribution to the Arts and Humanities. Our Humanities departments have consistently come top of the subject tables in various university rankings in recent years – we came top for Arts and Humanities in the latest QS World University Rankings.

It seems especially important at this time to re-state the infinite value of the Arts and Humanities, because we are living through a period when they are frequently depreciated. Universities are threatened with a future in which public funds will support only students taking degrees related to science and technology. There is talk (much of it from MPs themselves privileged to be raised on a rich educational diet of arts and social sciences) of arts degrees being 'worth less' when the high costs of university tuition are computed against the graduate salary students can, on average, expect to earn. The implication of this grimly utilitarian rhetoric is that the arts are luxuries. As a society, we cannot afford them. The needs of the individual and the community are better served by learning that leads more directly to financial reward.

In fact, the creative sector does make big money. The creative economy is estimated to contribute a net value of more than £101 billion to Britain's GDP. Despite bookshops being closed, British people bought a record 200 million books in 2020. It is vital to the economic health of the sector that diverse talent is not lost because the most gifted young writers, actors, musicians, artists, historians and linguists of the future never found their calling – or lived in the wrong postcode to be able to respond.

When we demean the arts, we stand to lose something more profound. The Humanities may have been reconceived as a business. But it remains their true business to make us reconceive our humanity. As the late, great, Seamus Heaney so eloquently argued, 'poetry and the arts… fortify your inner life… Listening together and knowing things together… is what a culture is.' In the uniquely stressful period of the pandemic, it is creativity and communication that have sustained us.

So I say: yes, we need STEM subjects. But, to follow the organic metaphor through, we also need FLOWER subjects. Film and Fashion Design and Fine Art. Law, Languages and Literatures. Oratory and Opera. World History, Ethics and Epistemology and Religion. We need to stay open to cross-pollination – as a society that is more than its economy. And as a University that seeks to create new dialogues between different sectors, cultures and viewpoints, where all forms of knowledge, investigation and imagination can bloom.

This dialogue is essential to the vision of the Stephen Schwarzman Centre for the Humanities, whose progress - I'm delighted to say - has forged ahead in spite of the pandemic. The building is on track to open in 2025. The Humanities Cultural Programme held a successful series of online cultural events during the pandemic, which were watched more than 85,000 times. Oxford scholars in the Humanities have given hundreds of hours of their time to create free content during the pandemic: public lectures on history; poetry workshops; exhibitions; music. They have helped make sense of the pandemic from all angles and encouraged us to think beyond it. Among other initiatives, the Faculty of Classics seized the opportunity of distance learning to support the teaching of Latin to over 500 pupils in state schools with the Classical Conversations series. As the philosopher Martha Nussbaum, drawing on Socrates, has argued: 'Democracy needs the Humanities': to nurture critically astute, empathetic, and politically engaged citizens.

Rankings

Times have changed since the Chancellor of the University, Harold Macmillan, responded to the announcement of the Robbins Committee by saying: 'What's the point of having a commission? Everyone knows that Oxford is better than anywhere else.' Nevertheless, this has been another year in which our international ranking as a university continued to rise to even headier levels of acclaim. In the QS World University Rankings, Oxford moved up from fifth place to second place in the 2022 list, just behind MIT. It remains the highest-ranked university in the United Kingdom and in the world outside the United States of America. We were named University of the Year by The Times in 2021 in recognition of our work on access and on the vaccine; we were awarded first place in the Guardian university rankings of 2021 and 2022, and, for the 6th consecutive year, number 1 in the Times Higher Education World University rankings. This is an extraordinary collective achievement that affirms our status as Britain's leading university across the board.

Honours

It has also been a year of well-deserved national and international honours for many of our staff. There are so many that I cannot name all the recipients individually. Seven members of the University were recognised in the New Year's Honours List and fourteen in the Queen's Birthday Honours list for 2021, including key members of our research response to COVID-19. Six of our scientists have joined the Royal Society as Fellows, five were elected to fellowship of the British Academy and eleven to the Academy of Medical Sciences. Dr Samson Kambalu, Associate Professor of Fine Art in the Ruskin School, won a place on the Fourth Plinth in Trafalgar Square for his sculpture 'Antelope', following a public vote in which more than 17,000 people voted. Meanwhile, four of our early career scholars were awarded £100,000 Philip Leverhulme Prizes for work that has already had an 'international impact' and eight post-doctoral fellowships were awarded to Oxford academics by the British Academy. I congratulate you all.

Economic Impact

Perhaps the most dramatic indicator this year of the impact of the University of Oxford as a whole came in a startling report produced by London Economics in July, which estimated the total impact of the University's activities on the UK economy in 2018-19 to be £15.7 billion, with 40% of this economic impact occurring outside the South East. This figure demonstrates that, for every £1 invested in Oxford, research and innovation generates more than £10 for the UK economy.

While such figures represent only one way of considering the ultimately inestimable value of what we do, these numbers are a raw index of the power of your work, as researchers, teachers, and communicators, to benefit society, locally, regionally, nationally and internationally.

Access and Diversity

I am delighted to say that we have continued to make great strides in widening undergraduate and postgraduate access this year and I am determined that this is one area where we will continue to move forward. Access must become so deeply embedded in Oxford's DNA that it is part of everything we do.

The proportion of incoming UK students from state schools stands at 68%. The proportion of incoming undergraduates from the least advantaged backgrounds is 20%, up from 18.8% last year and making progress towards our target of 25% by 2023. We do not yet have figures for ethnicity for incoming students but the proportion of students identifying as Black and Minority Ethnic rose to 23.6% in this year's class. Our intake of Black British undergraduates has almost trebled in the past four years.

Applications for graduate study increased 18% to reach almost 40,000 applications. Within this there has been a dramatic 53% increase in applicants from Black British or mixed Black backgrounds applying for postgraduate study. We believe this is a result of the introduction of our Black Academic Futures Scholarships. This programme was announced last year as part of our efforts to address underrepresentation of Black British students at postgraduate level. Sixteen PGR students were offered places in the inaugural cohort, receiving full funding along with induction and other on-course support during their studies. Thanks to generous funding support from across the collegiate University, we will be expanding the scheme to support both PGT and PGR courses for 2022 entrants.

We intend to support a new generation of students of colour not only through dedicated scholarships at both undergraduate and graduate level, but also through a visible commitment to diversity and representation at all levels of the University. This month, we welcome Professor Brenda Stevenson who starts as the Hillary Rodham Clinton Chair of Women's History, and Dr Meleisa Ono-George who starts as Associate Professor of Black British History.

This time last year I announced the creation of a Race Equality Task Force. The members of the Task Force, drawn from all across the University, have been working since Michaelmas term, focusing their discussions in several different work-streams and bringing in external expertise. They have produced a consultation document setting out principles, priorities and recommendations. All members of the community - students and staff alike - are invited to respond to the consultation, after which the Task Force will present a set of recommendations to Council. I invite each and every one of you to engage with this consultation.

Sustainability

The pandemic caused us all to change our behaviour to protect our grandparents. The climate crisis requires us to change our behaviour to protect our grandchildren. Despite the challenges of the pandemic, we have successfully launched our new Environmental Sustainability Strategy, committing the University to achieving net zero carbon and biodiversity net gain by 2035. We have, moreover, created a new University committee, the Environmental Sustainability Subcommittee, to embed sustainability in the University's high-level governance and decision-making and to oversee and direct progress on delivering the strategy. Key environmental information, focusing on our greenhouse gas emissions and impact on biodiversity, will now be included in the University's Annual Review, to enable us to track our progress on delivering the strategy over time.

This year's events - of record-breaking temperatures, catastrophic forest fires and floods - have heightened awareness that humanity can no longer behave like Nero, fiddling while the biome burns. Moving from Nero to Net Zero will, however, take courage, resources and imagination. Oxford is determined to lead in this shared endeavour, on which the future of all nations and peoples, and all living creatures depends.

Innovation

The wonderful thing about our University is that it is like a tidal pool: with each vibrant new intake of students, it becomes a new place with a new community of inhabitants, who can remake Oxford afresh. As the poet Keith Douglas wrote of Oxford:

This then is the city... of beginning,
Ideas, trials, pardonable follies,
The lightness, seriousness and sorrow of youth.
And the city of the old, looking for truth.

Oxford has a long and proud history of innovation. We created the first university library in England, in 1327, and opened the first public museum in the country, in 1677. Oxford men founded two religions: John Wesley and Methodism and John Wycliffe and the Lollards. Oxford graduates founded two American states, Pennsylvania and Georgia, and organizations ranging from the African National Congress - Pixley Seme - to the Samaritans, Chad Varah.

In the 14th century John of Gaddesden authored the earliest surviving medical textbook. 400 years ago this year we established the Botanic Garden, to support medical research. In the 17th century Thomas Willis was celebrated for his innovations in dissections and mapping the brain, while Robert Hooke was the inventor of microscopy. In the 20th century, Oxford women such as Vera Brittain, Winifred Holtby and Dorothy L. Sayers led new approaches to feminism, pacifism and the detective novel. More recently Oxford has graduated brilliant entrepreneurs like Anne-Marie Imafidon, who founded Stemettes, a social enterprise inspiring thousands of young women across Europe to study STEM subjects.

Oxford researchers pioneered the invention of lithium-ion batteries, of the kind you carry in your phone and laptop and which will probably in the future power your car. We also pioneered satellite meteorology, with infrared remote sensing to track the earth's land and sea temperatures, detect forest fires, and the hole in the ozone layer - innovations that couldn't be more relevant to meeting the challenges of today's environmental crisis.

Our COVID vaccine development has showcased the fact that innovative collaboration between industry, academia, and government is crucial in finding solutions to global challenges. In addition to partnerships with AstraZeneca and Ineos, we are producing ground-breaking diabetes research with Novo Nordisk, pioneering sustainable aviation solutions with Rolls-Royce, and using cutting-edge research to enhance public engagement with the National Trust. We have also just announced a partnership with Podium Analytics to create Oxpod, the UK's first Institute for the study of Youth Sport Medicine and Technology, with the goal of reducing youth sport injuries.

Oxford University Innovation has had a record-breaking year, with 31 companies created. Through OUI, the University has now created over 270 companies, including 200 spinouts - more than any other UK university. Our business research income is the largest of all British HEIs and continues to grow: this year's income was £180 million. Investors continue to back Oxford's innovation growth: over £1 billion was invested into Oxford's companies over the past year. Our support for innovation spans the Humanities and Social Sciences as well as Life and Physical Sciences. We are also creating an increasing number of new companies with social purpose including tackling homelessness and fighting poverty.

We work closely with OSI (recently renamed Oxford Science Enterprises) to help our researchers accelerate translation of their research into patient, societal, industrial and economic impact. Just last week we witnessed the highly successful IPO of Oxford Nanopore, an Oxford spinout specializing in handheld and desktop DNA and RNA sequencing. It is valued at almost £5 billion.

We can do even more. As you know, I have entered the penultimate year of my tenure as your Vice-Chancellor. Now I am going to pause for a moment. I would like you to think during that moment: if you could take a single year, what innovations would you make? What would you like to see at Oxford that has never been seen before; what would you like to change? Who would you collaborate with? Perhaps they are sitting near you now. What funding or other support might it take to build the castle in the air that is now vivid in your own imagination? I hope that after this Oration, as blood begins to circulate again in bodies that have sat for too long on hard wooden benches, you will share these ideas and that they will circulate back to me. I am eager to hear them.

Future Plans

Having invited you to think about future plans I thought I'd outline some of mine; ideas and plans in various stages of gestation that, with colleagues, I've been working on for some years and that I hope to see embedded during my time here. The first I've already mentioned: the Pandemic Sciences Centre. We have an opportunity to leverage the global interest in and admiration for our work by creating a Pandemic Sciences Centre that will be a magnet for academics who wish to come together to ensure that the world is never again brought to its knees by a pandemic. A comprehensive university is the ideal home for such a centre as we can harness the talents of the social sciences and humanities to work alongside medics and scientists from across the globe and across the disciplines.

Continuing Education

Another field of opportunity I see ahead of us is continuing education. Again we have a proud history on which to build. Oxford Extension was established in 1878. In the 1880s and beyond it held lectures from Cornwall to Lancashire. These were short affordable courses intended 'to offer a citizen education to the great masses of the working people' in civics, public health, philosophy, history, literature, law and politics. Audiences in Oldham and Hebden Bridge routinely approached 1,000 per course. Two-thirds of the participants were women, at a time when women could not yet attain degrees.

The challenges of the past eighteen months are sometimes referred to as 'unprecedented'. One precedent may be the challenge Britain faced after the devastation of World War One. A Ministry of Reconstruction was established, whose Committee on Adult Education was chaired by the Master of Balliol. The Committee's landmark 1919 Report argued that lifelong learning would be vital for the economy, for society, and for democracy. It detailed the leading role played by Oxford's 'University Extension' courses, successfully calling on other universities to follow suit. A century later, the Centenary Commission on Adult Education was again chaired by the Master of Balliol, Dame Helen Ghosh. Its 2019 Report argued that lifelong learning remains of vital - indeed growing - importance. It called on all universities to contribute to this vital national effort. We have heeded that call.

Over the past ten years our Department for Continuing Education has seen student enrolments increase by 50%, to well over 20,000 a year - from day schools to doctorates. We intend to develop a more holistic access agenda, with increased emphasis on mature learners from non-traditional backgrounds who have a range of prior qualifications and experience. We can further develop digital education based on the University's research and scholarship. In both respects, Oxford can seek to widen worldwide access to the University to all who have the potential to benefit from it. We have a fabulous opportunity to reimagine what we mean by access to an Oxford education, using technology to remain true to the original mission but within a global, digitally enabled framework.

Begbroke

You will remember that two years ago I announced a partnership with Legal & General to enable us to build more academic space and, crucially, affordable staff housing. We are beginning to see the fruits of this partnership in the construction of the Life and Mind Building and the proposed renovations in Court Place Gardens. We have just submitted a planning application for Phase 1 of the project at Begbroke. This will double the size of our existing Science Park and provide much-needed research lab and spin-out space. The target completion date, subject to planning, is 2024. By then we will be well advanced in our plans for Phase 2, utilizing the entire 188 hectare site. The plans envision 1,950 homes - over 800 of which will be subsidized accommodation for University staff - a primary school, community centre, recreation facilities and further innovation space. Our vision is to create a unique innovation district built with sustainability at its core: benefiting our graduate students, staff and the local community.

Warneford

Our plans in Warneford are at an earlier stage, but the concept is enormously exciting. I hope we can advance it in my remaining time here. As many of you will know, the Warneford is the oldest psychiatric hospital still in use in the UK. The idea we have discussed with Oxford Health and a potential donor involves building a new 21st-century psychiatric hospital; housing all our scholars and practitioners of psychiatry and related areas in an adjacent building; and building a college for our medical and other students, all on the same site. All three developments should work harmoniously together. The plan would be to knock down the high walls (metaphorically, that is, the walls are listed) that once hid these patients from the world and to open up the site in every sense, bringing students and researchers in and creating synergies with our nearby Medical Sciences Division. We envision this once-forbidding site becoming welcoming and well connected: a beacon for good practice in mental health.

California

Finally, and least far advanced, is an opportunity that has emerged in California. We have been soliciting ideas across the University for the past two years on ways in which we might turn a potential gift of prime academic space and an endowment to our strategic advantage by extending and accelerating our research into global problems, by facilitating collaboration with surrounding universities and West Coast industries, and establishing an inspiring facility on the Pacific Rim. This would be a daring, blue-skies undertaking that invites us to dream on a large scale and consider, free of constraint, how we can best use our research expertise to face the future, before it faces us. I welcome your thoughts.

One Oxford

As I move toward the close of this Oration, I would like now to turn to the topic of unity.

Inter-college rivalries used to be part of the fabric of Oxford's male-dominated culture of raids and skirmishes, pranks and escapades. In the 19th century, students of St John's stole bricks from the foundations of Keble College, to prevent building work advancing. In the 1960s, Balliol students turfed the Junior Common Room of Trinity College, so that surprised undergraduates stepped onto an indoor lawn complete with daffodils. More problematically, in the early years of the 21st century, Pembroke students painted a Christ Church cow pink. Although these kinds of college rivalries are now usually confined to the sports field and the Norrington Table, the culture of colleges behaving as self-contained entities, which act primarily in their individual interests, has been persistent.

Our response to the pandemic, however, has shown how productive we can be, and how fast and decisive, yet open and accountable, when we collaborate and act as One Oxford. If there is one lesson the global politics of the last few decades can teach us, it is that division is easily stoked. Nationalism is on the rise and a concomitant withdrawal from global concords and international organisations. We have seen polarization of opinion on key issues, from Brexit to vaccine passports. Social media thrives on acrimony and the triggering of negative emotion: smears, sneers and jeers.

Oxford academics are, alas, not immune to these attacks or to the 'culture wars' that seek to harness difference of background or culture and foster antipathy between different social groups, or individuals holding opposing views. It saddens me to see early career researchers fearing for their reputations, or mature academics embroiled in disputes, as a result of engaging in public debate. I have constantly been reminded this year of the difficulty of maintaining tolerance and civility in a public realm where, particularly in politics and the media, the climate around speech and individual viewpoints is becoming ever more hostile and extreme. I have been reminded that, while I can - and will - defend colleagues' right to free speech to my own last breath, the University cannot fully protect them from the consequences of expressing their views.

In response to external pressure toward division and dis-integration, it is more important than it has ever been that Oxford models a different way of being in the world. A focus on international collaboration. On free speech but also the power of listening, of intellectual generosity and respect for others, whatever their background or beliefs. On global responses to global issues. Instead of walls, we need to build bridges. This habit of mutual respect, civility, tolerance, collaboration and seeking unity of purpose despite our diverse views starts with us as a university. When we act as One Oxford, we model the practice we want to prosper, showing ourselves to be bigger than our differences.

I am deeply proud of this University and of all who are part of it. No university has done more to find solutions during the COVID crisis; no university has done better in negotiating it and thriving despite it. We have not merely weathered this storm; we have chased it, studied it, and found the means to shelter millions from its impact.

As the intensity of a storm begins to diminish, the light has a different quality: often it seems sharper and clearer. As the pandemic recedes in the UK, I believe that our vision for the future will gain new clarity and focus from what we have endured and how we have adapted. There is a freshness now to so much of what we once took for granted. I hope that as we commence this Michaelmas term, with the scrunch of fallen leaves underfoot and the enticing smell of new books, the sight of an undergraduate gown billowing around a bicycle as it rounds the corner of Broad Street, we can begin to rediscover the joy of social encounter. Of meeting colleagues for coffee; of spending time in the shared space of our beautiful buildings; of seeing students on the river and the sports field, seeing them act, and dance, and sing. I wish you a new academic year of renewed optimism, of fresh experiences, and innovative thought. Good luck, God speed, and as they say where I come from; 'Go n'eirigh an bother libh.' (May the road rise with you.)

Louise Richardson

Explanatory Note

In June 2020, Maurice Keeble-Smith retired having completed 40 years of service with the Department of Engineering Science. He joined the Department in 1979, became deputy head of the Staff Student Workshop in 1993 and was promoted to head in 2003. Working in this role until his retirement, he made a huge contribution to the department, teaching undergraduates key technical skills in civil and mechanical engineering, sharing his expert knowledge and supporting academics, postdoctoral researchers and postgraduate students in the workshop.

Text of Resolution

That the conferment of the Degree of Master of Arts, honoris causa, upon Maurice Keeble-Smith be approved.

Meeting arrangements

The meeting of Congregation is cancelled. The sole business comprises questions to which no opposition has been notified and in respect of which no request for adjournment has been received, and the Vice-Chancellor will accordingly declare the resolution carried without a meeting under the provisions of Sect 7 (1) of Statute VI. The degree will be conferred at a ceremony next term.

External Membership of Council

INVITATION TO CONGREGATION TO SUBMIT NOMINATIONS FOR CONSIDERATION

Procedure for election of external members of Council

In March 2020 members of Congregation were invited to submit nominations for two external members of Council, resulting in the appointment of Wendy Becker in August 2020. Due to COVID the recruitment of a second external member was postponed but has now been restarted.

We now have an opportunity for an external member to join the University's Council and chair the University's Audit and Scrutiny Committee. It is a highly rewarding opportunity to contribute to the strategy and governance of the University, working closely with the senior leadership of the University at an important point in its development. The appointment is for a term of four years, extendable for a further four years.

Council is the University's executive governing body. It has up to 28 members, including up to 5 external members. An external member is 'a person who is not the resident holder of a teaching, research or administrative post in the University or in any college, society or Permanent Private Hall'.

Council is responsible for the academic policy and strategic direction of the University, its administration and the management of its finances and property. New members will be in good company and more information, including details of current members, is available on Council's website: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/council.

Due to the length of time for which the process was paused, members of Congregation are now invited to submit any further nominations of individuals with a strong personal commitment to higher education and to the values, aims and objectives of Oxford as a collegiate University (ie the University and its colleges). Nominations can be made on a form available at https://governance.web.ox.ac.uk/council/how-do-i or from Rebecca Thomas, Planning & Council Secretariat (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk, 01865 280317). The Nominations Committee understands that nominations may be made without any communication by the nominator with the nominee; nominators should indicate on the nominations form if any informal communication has taken place. The committee will act in accordance with Part 26 of Council Regulation 15 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-26-nominations-committee), considering the nominations received and contacting nominees as appropriate.

The committee will select from nominees using the criteria below and applying principles of equality and diversity. Being mindful of these principles, and in recognition of the need for Council to support and represent a diverse University community, the committee particularly welcomes nominations of women and of black and minority ethnic candidates, who are under-represented on Council. This is embodied in the equality objective adopted by Council in July 2021, to ensure that University decision-making and governance structures are representative of the University community.

The closing date for nominations is Friday 12 November.

Criteria for external members of Council

All members of Council have a strong personal commitment to higher education and to the vision of Oxford as a collegiate University, as set out in the Strategic Plan (https://www.ox.ac.uk/about/organisation/strategic-plan-2018-24). In considering nominations for external membership of Council, personal qualities will be the primary consideration. These include the abilities to see issues from all angles, to discuss and question without being adversarial, to accept collective responsibility for decisions and to exercise common sense across a broad range of matters.

Successful candidates will also need to be able to demonstrate significant levels of relevant experience. The Nominations Committee looks for evidence of the following:

- significant experience in a position or positions requiring the exercise of high levels of responsibility;
- substantial experience in the governance of large complex organisations in the public, private or not-for-profit sectors;
- a willingness to represent the values, aims and objectives of the University to those who are not part of the institution and to bring a better understanding of issues outside the institution to the members of the collegiate University;
- the capacity to act fairly and impartially in the interests of the University as a whole, using independent judgement, maintaining confidentiality as appropriate and avoiding conflicts of interest; and
- the willingness to listen, engage, understand and interact with members of the collegiate University at all levels including students.

The commitment we need from external members

There are eight main meetings of Council each year, which in most cases take place on site in the afternoon. It is expected that external members will become involved in the life of the University and will join other committees or help with ad hoc projects and challenges as they arise, getting involved in those matters that they feel passionate about. It is likely that external members will be involved in University business on two to three days a month during term time, with occasional in-person attendance and more regular availability by phone, Teams or email. Chairing the Audit and Scrutiny Committee will add around a day per month to this.

All members have a responsibility for ensuring that Council conducts itself in accordance with accepted standards of behaviour in public life, embracing selflessness, integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness, honesty and leadership. They must also play an appropriate part in ensuring that the business of Council is carried out effectively, efficiently, and in a manner appropriate for the proper conduct of public business.

Legally, the members of Council are charity trustees and are bound by fiduciary duties. Each must comply with the duties of a charity trustee, and when doing so must exercise the proper standard of care.

Audit and Scrutiny Committee

The vacancy includes chairing the Audit and Scrutiny Committee. The Audit and Scrutiny Committee reports annually to Council on the following five elements: risk management; control; governance; economy, efficiency and effectiveness (value for money); and management and quality assurance of data submitted to HESA and to HEFCE and other funding bodies. The committee meets at least four times a year, with special meetings held as required. The committee has nine members, of which five (including the chair) are external members. Information about the committee and its terms of reference are available here (behind SSO): https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/audit-and-scrutiny-committee.

The person appointed to chair the committee will work with the other committee members to ensure that the committee fulfils its responsibilities. In addition to the experience required as a member of Council, the Nominations Committee will be looking for a person who is able to demonstrate the following:

- an understanding of the principles and practice of good corporate governance (in a public administration context) and of the role of the committee;
- a commitment to the committee's aims and objectives and willingness to work within the terms of reference;
- an ability to analyse complex information, to question, probe and seek clarification and come to an independent and unbiased view;
- personal courage to raise and deal with difficult/challenging issues and support other committee members to do the same;
- an understanding of the importance of the committee's relationships with senior officers, external audit partner, internal audit partner, committee members and other stakeholders, and interpersonal skills to build and maintain effective working relationships; and
- experience of chairing committees.

Elections

Elections 25 November

Please note: in the lists below, the names listed are simply those of the persons currently in office, whose terms of office are now coming to a close (thereby prompting all the vacancies now advertised for election).

Call for nominations

The nomination period for the elections below will close at 4pm on 28 October. For further information, please contact elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Committees reporting to Council or one of its main committees

AUDIT AND SCRUTINY COMMITTEE

- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being a member of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, who shall not serve on Council or on any committee which in the view of Council has mainline executive authority within the University, or hold any office in the University or any college which involves executive authority, to serve until the start of HT 2025 [vice Dr Anne Edwards]

The terms of reference and membership of this body are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-8-audit-and-scrutiny-committee. For further information, please contact the Secretary (douglas.thornton@admin.ox.ac.uk).

CURATORS OF THE SHELDONIAN THEATRE

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2023 [vice Dr Andrew Fairweather-Tall]

The terms of reference and membership of this body are set out at: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-2-of-2004#collapse1425991. For further information, please contact the Secretary (john.weston@admin.ox.ac.uk or tom.mitchell@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Other Committees and University Bodies

POOL FOR CONSTITUTING PANELS UNDER STATUTE XII

- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies to represent the Division of Medical Sciences, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of HT 2025 [vice Liz Barnes-Moss]
- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies, not necessarily representing any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Timothy Power]

It is expected that candidates for election to represent the Division of Medical Social Sciences will also be members of the Division of Medical Sciences. Candidates for election to represent Congregation as a whole (ie in a non-divisional capacity) need only be a member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies. However, please note that a candidate may not be nominated to more than one constituency on the same committee at the same time. For further information, please see the eligibility and amendments to nominations sections at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation. Statute XII applies to: (a) professors, readers and associate professors or lecturers; (b) any employee of the University who is a member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV. In Statute XII, any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom the statute applies (Statute XII, Section 3 (1) and (2) (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board)). College staff are not covered by Statute XII as colleges have their own statutes. The exception is college staff at Kellogg, St Cross and Reuben, which follow the University's statutes. Any staff holding joint appointments will, however, be covered by Statute XII in respect of their University contract of employment and duties. Members of the Pool will be chosen by lot to serve on a number of Panels under Statute XII (ie Redundancy Panel (Section 14 (6)), Staff Employment Review Panel (Section 35) and University Appeal Panel (Section 52 (2))) and may also be expected to chair a Panel. Each member of the Pool will be required to attend appropriate training, including on equality and diversity, before serving on a Panel. Nominations from BME staff, from men and from academic and research staff are particularly encouraged. For further information, please contact the Secretary (kathryn.fairhurstjones@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Faculty Boards

BOARD OF THE FACULTY OF HISTORY

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of History holding posts on the establishment or under the aegis of the board to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2022 [vice Professor Pekka Hämäläinen]

For further information, please contact the Secretary (administrator@history.ox.ac.uk).

BOARD OF THE FACULTY OF LAW

- Two Ordinary Members elected by and from all members of the faculty exclusive of the persons qualified to be Official Members as per Regulation 10 of Council Regulations 19 of 2002, to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2023 [vice Professor Adrian Briggs and Professor Laura C H Hoyano]

For further information, please contact the Secretary (charlotte.vinnicombe@law.ox.ac.uk).

Notes

Electronic elections

The elections on 25 November will be conducted electronically.

Nominations

Hard copies of nomination forms will not be processed. Completed nomination forms should be sent as an email attachment to the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 4pm on 28 October. At least one nomination in respect of each candidate must be made on an official nomination form (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/nomination-forms). Please ensure that the nominators listed in section D are also copied into the email when the nomination form is submitted, as this will act as verification of the nomination in lieu of supplying original signatures.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate statements

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday, 10 November, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will be published in the Gazette dated 11 November. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 25 November.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 28 October. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice- Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of HT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Further information

For further information, please contact the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002. If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice- Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of HT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Committees reporting to Council or one of its main committees

CURATORS OF THE SHELDONIAN THEATRE

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2023 [vice Dr Andrew Fairweather-Tall]

The following nominations have been received:

Dr Pegram Harrison, BA Yale, MBA Lond, PhD Camb, Brasenose, Saïd Business School

Nominated by:

Mr J Bowers, QC, Principal of Brasenose
Professor E Boehmer, Wolfson, English
Dr A Fairweather-Tall, St Catherine's, Humanities Division
Dr J Katz, St Anne's, Classics
Professor M Kumbera Landrus, St Cross, Ashmolean Museum
Professor F Leach, Keble, Engineering Science
Professor J Reynolds, Green Templeton, Saïd Business School
Professor P Smith, Kellogg, Museum of Natural History
Professor W Whyte, St John's, History

Candidate statement:

My reason for standing to become a curator of the Sheldonian is to help care for a vital part of the fabric of Oxford. The Theatre is at the heart of our built environment, our traditions and ceremonies, and our distinctiveness as a university, city, destination, and home; I would like to contribute to its conservation, use, and future strategy to ensure its vitality in the present and future.

My qualifications for the role come from 20 years of research, teaching, public engagement, and consulting on the care and management of cultural institutions. In working with these organizations, I have learned about the importance of balancing curatorial priorities with community interests and commercial imperatives, and I would apply that insight to the role.

I advise museums, arts and heritage organisations on their leadership (including ensembles that regularly use the Sheldonian such as the Oxford Philharmonic), and help to train curators, conservators, commercial directors, outreach officers, and other cultural leaders. I contribute to the Oxford Cultural Leaders Programme in developing a pipeline of curatorial and leadership skills for the cultural sectors. I serve on the teaching board of the Ashmolean, and work with the University's Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) on numerous initiatives in teaching, research, public engagement, and commercial activity. And I regularly use the Sheldonian as a space for hosting events and lectures, and as a musical performer and avid concert-goer.

It would be an honour to serve in this office, caring for such an honourable building.

Mark Williams, MA Camb, Magdalen, Faculty of Music

Nominated by:

Professor Kathy Willis, Principal of St Edmund Hall, Zoology
Professor Eric Clarke, Wadham, Music
Dr A Fairweather-Tall, St Catherine's, Humanities Division
Professor Steven Grahl, Christ Church, Music
Professor Daniel Grimley, Merton, Music
Professor Elizabeth Eva Leach, St Hugh's, Music
Professor Christian Leitmeir, Magdalen, Music
Professor Robert Quinney, New College, Music

Candidate statement:

If elected to serve, I would hope that my experience as both performing musician and regular attender at concerts and events in the Sheldonian Theatre might bring a valuable and unique perspective to this role. I believe that my professional training as an organist, and particularly in the commissioning of a new instrument at Magdalen College, might be beneficial in discussions on replacing the theatre's organ. I would like to see the Theatre build on current projects that engage with the wider local community, and I would anticipate playing an active part in encouraging a greater range of events connected to this important element of the University's work. I hope that my presence on the Faculty of Music's Performance Committee might also lead to more fruitful and effective partnerships between the Faculty - and its valuable work in Access and Outreach, as well as in the promotion of contemporary music of all kinds - and the Theatre.

Candidate statement:

My reason for standing to become a curator of the Sheldonian is to help care for a vital part of the fabric of Oxford. The Theatre is at the heart of our built environment, our traditions and ceremonies, and our distinctiveness as a university, city, destination, and home; I would like to contribute to its conservation, use, and future strategy to ensure its vitality in the present and future.

My qualifications for the role come from 20 years of research, teaching, public engagement, and consulting on the care and management of cultural institutions. In working with these organizations, I have learned about the importance of balancing curatorial priorities with community interests and commercial imperatives, and I would apply that insight to the role.

I advise museums, arts and heritage organisations on their leadership (including ensembles that regularly use the Sheldonian such as the Oxford Philharmonic), and help to train curators, conservators, commercial directors, outreach officers, and other cultural leaders. I contribute to the Oxford Cultural Leaders Programme in developing a pipeline of curatorial and leadership skills for the cultural sectors. I serve on the teaching board of the Ashmolean, and work with the University's Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) on numerous initiatives in teaching, research, public engagement, and commercial activity. And I regularly use the Sheldonian as a space for hosting events and lectures, and as a musical performer and avid concert-goer.

It would be an honour to serve in this office, caring for such an honourable building.

Mark Williams, MA Camb, Magdalen, Faculty of Music

Nominated by:

Professor Kathy Willis, Principal of St Edmund Hall, Zoology
Professor Eric Clarke, Wadham, Music
Dr A Fairweather-Tall, St Catherine's, Humanities Division
Professor Steven Grahl, Christ Church, Music
Professor Daniel Grimley, Merton, Music
Professor Elizabeth Eva Leach, St Hugh's, Music
Professor Christian Leitmeir, Magdalen, Music
Professor Robert Quinney, New College, Music

Candidate statement:

If elected to serve, I would hope that my experience as both performing musician and regular attender at concerts and events in the Sheldonian Theatre might bring a valuable and unique perspective to this role. I believe that my professional training as an organist, and particularly in the commissioning of a new instrument at Magdalen College, might be beneficial in discussions on replacing the theatre's organ. I would like to see the Theatre build on current projects that engage with the wider local community, and I would anticipate playing an active part in encouraging a greater range of events connected to this important element of the University's work. I hope that my presence on the Faculty of Music's Performance Committee might also lead to more fruitful and effective partnerships between the Faculty - and its valuable work in Access and Outreach, as well as in the promotion of contemporary music of all kinds - and the Theatre.

The college's collection of medieval textiles and some of its silver will be displayed 2-5pm on 27 November in Garden Quad Reception Room. The display will highlight the ways in which the college has reused and recycled its precious objects since the 15th century. The college is also currently melting down three pieces of old and damaged silver, and commissioning a new piece, in keeping with this history of reuse and recycling - the whole process is being documented, photographed and filmed, and the results will be displayed later in the year. Committees reporting to Council or one of its main committees

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2023 [vice Dr Andrew Fairweather-Tall]

The following nominations have been received:

Dr Pegram Harrison, BA Yale, MBA Lond, PhD Camb, Brasenose, Saïd Business School

Nominated by:

Mr J Bowers, QC, Principal of Brasenose
Professor E Boehmer, Wolfson, English
Dr A Fairweather-Tall, St Catherine's, Humanities Division
Dr J Katz, St Anne's, Classics
Professor M Kumbera Landrus, St Cross, Ashmolean Museum
Professor F Leach, Keble, Engineering Science
Professor J Reynolds, Green Templeton, Saïd Business School
Professor P Smith, Kellogg, Museum of Natural History
Professor W Whyte, St John's, History

Candidate statement:

My reason for standing to become a curator of the Sheldonian is to help care for a vital part of the fabric of Oxford. The Theatre is at the heart of our built environment, our traditions and ceremonies, and our distinctiveness as a university, city, destination, and home; I would like to contribute to its conservation, use, and future strategy to ensure its vitality in the present and future.

My qualifications for the role come from 20 years of research, teaching, public engagement, and consulting on the care and management of cultural institutions. In working with these organizations, I have learned about the importance of balancing curatorial priorities with community interests and commercial imperatives, and I would apply that insight to the role.

I advise museums, arts and heritage organisations on their leadership (including ensembles that regularly use the Sheldonian such as the Oxford Philharmonic), and help to train curators, conservators, commercial directors, outreach officers, and other cultural leaders. I contribute to the Oxford Cultural Leaders Programme in developing a pipeline of curatorial and leadership skills for the cultural sectors. I serve on the teaching board of the Ashmolean, and work with the University's Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) on numerous initiatives in teaching, research, public engagement, and commercial activity. And I regularly use the Sheldonian as a space for hosting events and lectures, and as a musical performer and avid concert-goer.

It would be an honour to serve in this office, caring for such an honourable building.

Mark Williams, MA Camb, Magdalen, Faculty of Music

Nominated by:

Professor Kathy Willis, Principal of St Edmund Hall, Zoology
Professor Eric Clarke, Wadham, Music
Dr A Fairweather-Tall, St Catherine's, Humanities Division
Professor Steven Grahl, Christ Church, Music
Professor Daniel Grimley, Merton, Music
Professor Elizabeth Eva Leach, St Hugh's, Music
Professor Christian Leitmeir, Magdalen, Music
Professor Robert Quinney, New College, Music

Candidate statement:

If elected to serve, I would hope that my experience as both performing musician and regular attender at concerts and events in the Sheldonian Theatre might bring a valuable and unique perspective to this role. I believe that my professional training as an organist, and particularly in the commissioning of a new instrument at Magdalen College, might be beneficial in discussions on replacing the theatre's organ. I would like to see the Theatre build on current projects that engage with the wider local community, and I would anticipate playing an active part in encouraging a greater range of events connected to this important element of the University's work. I hope that my presence on the Faculty of Music's Performance Committee might also lead to more fruitful and effective partnerships between the Faculty - and its valuable work in Access and Outreach, as well as in the promotion of contemporary music of all kinds - and the Theatre.

3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund for the advancement of education for the benefit of the public by establishing and maintaining a post that shall be called the Associate Professor in Jewish History ("the Associate Professor").

10. These regulations shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

11. Subject to regulation 12, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

Committees reporting to Council or one of its main committees

CURATORS OF THE SHELDONIAN THEATRE

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2023 [vice Dr Andrew Fairweather-Tall]

The following nominations have been received:

Dr Pegram Harrison, BA Yale, MBA Lond, PhD Camb, Brasenose, Saïd Business School

Nominated by:

Mr J Bowers, QC, Principal of Brasenose
Professor E Boehmer, Wolfson, English
Dr A Fairweather-Tall, St Catherine's, Humanities Division
Dr J Katz, St Anne's, Classics
Professor M Kumbera Landrus, St Cross, Ashmolean Museum
Professor F Leach, Keble, Engineering Science

Professor J Reynolds, Green Templeton, Saïd Business School
Professor P Smith, Kellogg, Museum of Natural History
Professor W Whyte, St John's, History

Candidate statement:

My reason for standing to become a curator of the Sheldonian is to help care for a vital part of the fabric of Oxford. The Theatre is at the heart of our built environment, our traditions and ceremonies, and our distinctiveness as a university, city, destination, and home; I would like to contribute to its conservation, use, and future strategy to ensure its vitality in the present and future.

My qualifications for the role come from 20 years of research, teaching, public engagement, and consulting on the care and management of cultural institutions. In working with these organizations, I have learned about the importance of balancing curatorial priorities with community interests and commercial imperatives, and I would apply that insight to the role.

I advise museums, arts and heritage organisations on their leadership (including ensembles that regularly use the Sheldonian such as the Oxford Philharmonic), and help to train curators, conservators, commercial directors, outreach officers, and other cultural leaders. I contribute to the Oxford Cultural Leaders Programme in developing a pipeline of curatorial and leadership skills for the cultural sectors. I serve on the teaching board of the Ashmolean, and work with the University's Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) on numerous initiatives in teaching, research, public engagement, and commercial activity. And I regularly use the Sheldonian as a space for hosting events and lectures, and as a musical performer and avid concert-goer.

It would be an honour to serve in this office, caring for such an honourable building.

Mark Williams, MA Camb, Magdalen, Faculty of Music

Nominated by:

Professor Kathy Willis, Principal of St Edmund Hall, Zoology
Professor Eric Clarke, Wadham, Music
Dr A Fairweather-Tall, St Catherine's, Humanities Division
Professor Steven Grahl, Christ Church, Music
Professor Daniel Grimley, Merton, Music
Professor Elizabeth Eva Leach, St Hugh's, Music
Professor Christian Leitmeir, Magdalen, Music
Professor Robert Quinney, New College, Music

Candidate statement:

If elected to serve, I would hope that my experience as both performing musician and regular attender at concerts and events in the Sheldonian Theatre might bring a valuable and unique perspective to this role. I believe that my professional training as an organist, and particularly in the commissioning of a new instrument at Magdalen College, might be beneficial in discussions on replacing the theatre's organ. I would like to see the Theatre build on current projects that engage with the wider local community, and I would anticipate playing an active part in encouraging a greater range of events connected to this important element of the University's work. I hope that my presence on the Faculty of Music's Performance Committee might also lead to more fruitful and effective partnerships between the Faculty - and its valuable work in Access and Outreach, as well as in the promotion of contemporary music of all kinds - and the Theatre.

Notices

Consultative Notices

Call for nominations for Honorary Degrees and for Degrees by Diploma

Honorary degrees are conferred annually at Encaenia. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty. Members of Congregation are encouraged to nominate individuals on whom such degrees might be conferred. Nominations are welcome all year round - names submitted on or before 28 January 2022 will be considered by the Honorary Degrees Committee for an honorary degree at Encaenia in 2023.

The Honorary Degrees Committee is charged with considering nominations received, consulting Council and making recommendations to Congregation. The committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford - such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by email under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.

Committee for Development and Alumni Relations

Explanatory Note

Council, on the recommendation of the General Purposes Committee, proposes that the Committee for Development and Alumni Relations be disbanded, on the basis that it is no longer required as its aims are served by other committees or bodies across the University.

Text of Regulations

1 In Council Regulations 15 of 2002, concerning committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees, delete Part 17 concerning the Committee for Development and Alumni Relations.

2 In Part 18 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002, concerning the Committee to Review Donations and Research Funding, amend regulation 18.3.(4) as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through):

Congregation

Congregation 18 January

Voting on changes to Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002: the conduct of business in Congregation

Explanatory Note

During the pandemic the University has made use of electronic voting for elections and the Congregation Regulations were amended to allow for this in place of postal votes.

It is now proposed to make permanent the changes allowing for postal votes to be held electronically. This has the following advantages:

- Sustainability - the environmental impact will be reduced as there will be no paper ballots or envelopes and no need to transport papers to locations around Oxford, or use Royal Mail to deliver to people's homes.
- Ease and speed for voters - clicking a link is quicker than dealing with a paper ballot. All relevant information will be available online through a secure link and there will be no need to complete a ballot paper and post it back. The ease and speed of use makes it simpler for individuals to participate in the democratic process. It is anticipated that many members of staff will not be in the office full time so continuing to use paper ballots is likely to increase the risk of individuals missing the deadline.
- Security - individual links are sent securely, to a deadline, with the voting reminders built into the system.

Text of Regulations

In Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, concerning the conduct of business in Congregation, amend regulation 1.1.(4) as follows (deleted text struck through):

'(4) ~~Whilst COVID-19 social distancing or other restrictions remain in place,~~ Council may decide that any postal vote shall be held electronically, in which case the following interpretations shall apply:

(a) A "ballot paper" or a "voting paper" includes an electronic voting paper in such form as the Vice-Chancellor shall determine, including a vote hosted by an online voting or polling agency.

(b) A "postal vote" or a "postal ballot" may be conducted entirely electronically and the "dispatch" of voting papers may mean only the dispatch of electronic voting papers by email or the dispatch of a link to an online voting site.'

Meeting information

Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on 10 January, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they wish to oppose or amend the resolution above (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise or the meeting has been adjourned the resolution shall be declared carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

Note on procedures in Congregation

¶ Business in Congregation is conducted in accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/congregation-regulations-2-of-2002). A printout of these regulations, or of any statute or other regulations, is available from the Council Secretariat on request. A member of Congregation seeking advice on questions relating to its procedures, other than elections, should contact Mrs R Thomas at the University Offices, Wellington Square (telephone: (2)80317; email rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk); questions relating to elections should be directed to the Elections Office (email: elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

While COVID-19 working restrictions remain in place, any notice that needs to be given to the Registrar in writing should be sent by email to registrar@admin.ox.ac.uk. Notices sent to the University Offices may not be received.

Notices

Consultative Notices

Call for nominations for Honorary Degrees and for Degrees by Diploma

Honorary degrees are conferred annually at Encaenia. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty. Members of Congregation are encouraged to nominate individuals on whom such degrees might be conferred. Nominations are welcome all year round - names submitted on or before 28 January 2022 will be considered by the Honorary Degrees Committee for an honorary degree at Encaenia in 2023.

The Honorary Degrees Committee is charged with considering nominations received, consulting Council and making recommendations to Congregation. The committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford - such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by email under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.

Employer-Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) consultation meetings

The University's EJRA 10-year Review Group is conducting a consultation on how the University should manage retirement while balancing the needs of all staff, whatever their career stage. Feedback received via meetings and a questionnaire will form an important element of the consultation.

The questionnaire will be open until 15 December. Online town hall meetings will be held at 11am on 13 January and at 3pm on 3 February.

To register for the meetings, complete the questionnaire or obtain more information: https://staff.web.ox.ac.uk/working-at-oxford/ejra.

Council and Main Committees

Council of the University

Changes to Regulations

CORRIGENDUM*: COMMITTEE FOR DEVELOPMENT AND ALUMNI RELATIONS

When amendments were made to the regulations in order to disband the Committee for Development and Alumni Relations (Gazette No 5333, 9 December 2021, p140), an error was made in the numbering of one set of affected regulations. The affected regulations are Part 11 of Council Regulations 2 of 2004 (not Council Regulations 2 of 2002, as originally published).

General Purposes Committee of Council

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes to regulations, to come into effect on 28 January.

Edward Hall Professorship of Archaeological Science

Explanatory Note

The following changes, made on the recommendation of the Social Sciences Division, update outdated wording in the regulations. The changes are also made to formalise the trust created by the gifts received.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 24 of 2002, amend the section concerning the Edward Hall Professorship of Archaeological Science as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through):

'~~Edward Hall Professorship of Archaeological Science~~Archaeological Science Professorship Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude gifts to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Archaeological Science Professorship Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund for the advancement of education for the benefit of the public by establishing and maintaining a post that shall be called the Edward Hall Professor of Archaeological Science ("the Professor").

~~1.~~4. The ~~Edward Hall~~Professor ~~of Archaeological Science~~ shall undertake research, lecture and give instruction in Archaeological Science.

5. The Fund shall be used to pay the salary and expenses of the Professor and associated overheads. If the salary, expenses and overheads of the Professor are wholly or partly covered from other sources or there are further funds available, there shall be discretion to apply the income of the Fund to support the Professor's research; to make acquisitions of items to support the work of the Professor; or to support the work of the Professor in any other manner.

~~2.~~6. The ~~p~~Professor shall be elected by an electoral board consisting of:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor; ~~or, if the Principal of Linacre College is Vice-Chancellor, a person appointed by Council;~~

(2) the Principal of Linacre College, or, if the Principal is unable or unwilling to act, a person appointed by the Governing Body of Linacre College;

(3) a person appointed by the Governing Body of Linacre College;

(4), (5) two persons appointed by Council;

~~(6)–(8) three persons appointed by the Life and Environmental Sciences Board;~~

(6) a person appointed by the Social Sciences Board;

~~(9)~~(7) a person appointed by the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Board;

(8), (9) two persons appointed by the School of Archaeology.

7. The ~~p~~Professor shall be subject to the General Provisions of the ~~decree~~regulations concerning the duties of professors and to those Particular Provisions of the same ~~decree~~regulations which are applicable to this chair.

8. The University shall have power to pay out of the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund and the management and administration of the Fund and the post.

9. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

10. Regulations 1–5 and 8–12 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

11. Subject to regulation 12, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

12. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Congregation

Consultative Notices

Call for nominations for Honorary Degrees and for Degrees by Diploma

Honorary degrees are conferred annually at Encaenia. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty. Members of Congregation are encouraged to nominate individuals on whom such degrees might be conferred. Nominations are welcome all year round - names submitted on or before 28 January 2022 will be considered by the Honorary Degrees Committee for an honorary degree at Encaenia in 2023.

The Honorary Degrees Committee is charged with considering nominations received, consulting Council and making recommendations to Congregation. The committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford - such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by email under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.

Employer-Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) consultation meetings

The University's EJRA 10-year Review Group is conducting a consultation on how the University should manage retirement while balancing the needs of all staff, whatever their career stage. Feedback received via town hall meetings will form an important element of the consultation.

Online town hall meetings will be held at 11am on 13 January and at 3pm on 3 February. To register for the meetings or obtain more information: https://staff.web.ox.ac.uk/working-at-oxford/ejra.

Permanent Private Hall Supervisory Committee

REVIEW OF BLACKFRIARS

The Permanent Private Halls (PPH) Supervisory Committee, which is appointed by the Education Committee, has regulatory, monitoring and reporting functions in relation to the Permanent Private Halls. Under the University's agreement with the halls, each of them is to be reviewed in turn over a period of six years. On 14 June, the committee will conduct a review of Blackfriars. The review will focus on issues coming within the PPH Supervisory Committee's terms of reference. These may be found at: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-35-permanent-private-hall-supervisory-committee-subcommittee-of-the-education-commi. The PPH Supervisory Committee would welcome written comments on any matters falling within the terms of reference. Written comments should be sent to the Secretary to the PPH Supervisory Committee, Bhee Bellew, Education Policy Support, University Offices, Wellington Square, Oxford OX1 2JD (email: bhee.bellew@admin.ox.ac.uk), by 22 April.

Elections

Elections 3 March

Please note: in the lists below, the names listed are simply those of the persons currently in office, whose terms of office are now coming to a close (thereby prompting all the vacancies now advertised for election).

Call for nominations

The nomination period for the elections below will remain open until 4pm on 3 February. For further information, please contact the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Other Committees and University Bodies

POOL FOR CONSTITUTING PANELS UNDER STATUTE XII

- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM), elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of HT 2025 [vice Ms Wendy Shepherd]
- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies, not necessarily representing any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Edmund Herzig]

It is expected that candidates for election to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) will also be members of GLAM. Candidates for election to represent Congregation as a whole (ie in a non-divisional capacity) need only be a member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies. However, please note that a candidate may not be nominated to more than one constituency on the same committee at the same time. For further information, please see the eligibility and amendments to nominations sections at General Information about Elections by Congregation - Governance and Planning (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation). Statute XII applies to: (a) professors, readers and associate professors or lecturers; (b) any employee of the University who is a member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV. In Statute XII, any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom the statute applies (Statute XII, Section 3 (1) and (2) (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board)). College staff are not covered by Statute XII as colleges have their own statutes. The exception is college staff at Kellogg, St Cross and Reuben, which follow the University's statutes. Any staff holding joint appointments will, however, be covered by Statute XII in respect of their University contract of employment and duties. Members of the Pool will be chosen by lot to serve on a number of Panels under Statute XII (ie Redundancy Panel (Section 14 (6)), Staff Employment Review Panel (Section 35) and University Appeal Panel (Section 52 (2))) and may also be expected to chair a Panel. Each member of the Pool will be required to attend appropriate training, including on equality and diversity, before serving on a Panel. Nominations from BME staff, from men and from academic and research staff are particularly encouraged.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (kathryn.fairhurstjones@admin.ox.ac.uk).

BOARD OF THE FACULTY OF HISTORY

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of History holding posts on the establishment or under the aegis of the board, to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2022 [vice Professor John Nightingale]

For further information, please contact the Secretary (administrator@history.ox.ac.uk).

General Notes:

Electronic elections

The elections on 3 March will be conducted electronically.

Nominations

Hard copies of nomination forms will not be processed. Completed nomination forms (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/nomination-forms) should be sent as an email attachment to the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 4pm on 3 February. Please ensure that the nominators listed in section D are also copied into the email when the nomination form is submitted, as this will act as verification of the nomination in lieu of supplying original signatures.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate's statement

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday 16 February, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will be published in the Gazette dated 17 February. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 3 March.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 3 February. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of TT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Further information

For further information, please contact the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Deadline

Advertisements are to be received by noon on Wednesday of the week before publication (ie eight days before publication). Advertisements must be submitted online.

Publication

The Gazette is only published online, except for library and archive copies. Charges for all adverts have been reduced to reflect this.

Charges

Non-commercial advertisers: £10 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £20 per insertion of 71-150 words.

Commercial advertisers: £20 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £40 per insertion of 71-150 words.

Advertisers may also purchase advertising space for a whole academic year (a minimum of eight insertions per term) at a discount of over 50% on the individual advertisement rate: £9.50 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £19 per insertion of 71-150 words.

See the Gazette website for examples of whether an advertisement is considered commercial or private: https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette.

Online submission and payment

Advertisements must be submitted and paid for online, using a credit card or debit card, through a secure website. For details, see https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette.

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Disclaimer

8. The University of Oxford accepts no responsibility for the content of any advertisement published in the Gazette. Readers should note that the inclusion of any advertisement in no way implies approval or recommendation of either the terms of any offer contained in it or of the advertiser by the University of Oxford.

Advertisers' Warranty and Indemnity

14. The advertiser warrants:

a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. Submission of an advertisement implies acceptance of our terms and conditions, which may be found at https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/terms-and-conditions-acceptance-advertisements, and may also be obtained on application to gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Elections

Elections 3 March

Please note: in the lists below, the names listed are simply those of the persons currently in office, whose terms of office are now coming to a close (thereby prompting all the vacancies now advertised for election).

Call for nominations

The nomination period for the elections below will remain open until 4pm on 3 February. For further information, please contact the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Other Committees and University Bodies

POOL FOR CONSTITUTING PANELS UNDER STATUTE XII

- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM), elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of HT 2025 [vice Ms Wendy Shepherd]
- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies, not necessarily representing any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Edmund Herzig]

It is expected that candidates for election to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) will also be members of GLAM. Candidates for election to represent Congregation as a whole (ie in a non-divisional capacity) need only be a member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies. However, please note that a candidate may not be nominated to more than one constituency on the same committee at the same time. For further information, please see the eligibility and amendments to nominations sections at General Information about Elections by Congregation -Governance and Planning (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation). Statute XII applies to: (a) professors, readers and associate professors or lecturers; (b) any employee of the University who is a member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV. In Statute XII, any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom the statute applies (Statute XII, Section 3 (1) and (2) (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board)). College staff are not covered by Statute XII as colleges have their own statutes. The exception is college staff at Kellogg, St Cross and Reuben, which follow the University's statutes. Any staff holding joint appointments will, however, be covered by Statute XII in respect of their University contract of employment and duties. Members of the Pool will be chosen by lot to serve on a number of Panels under Statute XII (ie Redundancy Panel (Section 14 (6)), Staff Employment Review Panel (Section 35) and University Appeal Panel (Section 52 (2))) and may also be expected to chair a Panel. Each member of the Pool will be required to attend appropriate training, including on equality and diversity, before serving on a Panel. Nominations from BME staff, from men and from academic and research staff are particularly encouraged.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (kathryn.fairhurstjones@admin.ox.ac.uk).

BOARD OF THE FACULTY OF HISTORY

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of History holding posts on the establishment or under the aegis of the board, to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2022 [vice Professor John Nightingale]

For further information, please contact the Secretary (administrator@history.ox.ac.uk).

General Notes:

Electronic elections

The elections on 3 March will be conducted electronically.

Nominations

Hard copies of nomination forms will not be processed. Completed nomination forms (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/nomination-forms) should be sent as an email attachment to the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 4pm on 3 February. Please ensure that the nominators listed in section D are also copied into the email when the nomination form is submitted, as this will act as verification of the nomination in lieu of supplying original signatures.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate's statement

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday 16 February, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will be published in the Gazette dated 17 February. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 3 March.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 3 February. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of TT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Consultative Notices

Employer-Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) consultation meeting

The University's EJRA 10-year Review Group is conducting a consultation on how the University should manage retirement while balancing the needs of all staff, whatever their career stage. Feedback received via town hall meetings will form an important element of the consultation. The final online town hall meeting will be held at 3pm on 3 February.

More information and to register: https://staff.web.ox.ac.uk/working-at-oxford/ejra.

Call for nominations for Honorary Degrees and for Degrees by Diploma

Honorary degrees are conferred annually at Encaenia. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty. Members of Congregation are encouraged to nominate individuals on whom such degrees might be conferred. Nominations are welcome all year round - names submitted on or before 28 January 2022 will be considered by the Honorary Degrees Committee for an honorary degree at Encaenia in 2023.

The Honorary Degrees Committee is charged with considering nominations received, consulting Council and making recommendations to Congregation. The committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford - such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by email under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.

General Notices

IMPROVING DIGITAL SERVICES AND IT INFRASTRUCTURE

iTransform is a University initiative to plan what future investments are required in digital services and IT infrastructure at Oxford. A scoping phase, under the auspices of the University's IT Committee, is underway to develop a proposal for a digital transformation programme that, if funded, will provide a step change in how the University is supported digitally.

The scoping phase will capture needs already identified in existing and emerging strategies, including the Digital Education Strategy, but will also look to the future and emerging needs and technologies. Engagement activities with stakeholders around the University to understand their experiences and views on strategic priorities will take place during Hilary term. These will help to map out a vision for how, going forward, IT can support education, research, and administration. To find out more, visit the iTransform SharePoint site.

GENERAL BACKGROUND

1. Since the last report the committee has met 3 times: remote meetings in Michaelmas and Hilary terms and a meeting by correspondence in Trinity term. The committee was chaired, as in previous years, by the Assessor (Professor Helen Swift until 17 March 2021 and Dr Bettina Lange thenceforth) with a membership of both staff and student representatives.

2. Activities continue to be funded from two sources: an allocation from PRAC (£7.1k) and a net share (£10.5k) of the proceeds of the per-capita levy paid by all colleges to support both sports and non-sports clubs at University level.

3. During the 2020/21 academic year the committee provided a range of support for student clubs, societies and publications registered with the Proctors. Figures for 2019/20 are in brackets following 2020/21 figures:

- Around 265 (298) clubs and societies registered and re-registered with the Proctors. Of these, 184 (214) were designated non-sports clubs and publications and were registered through the Clubs Office, while 80 (84) were designated as sports clubs and dealt with their registration through the Sports Department. A total of 43 (31) new non-sports clubs were added to the register during the year.
- 10 (19) applications for financial support to non-sport clubs in the form of grants were considered. All 10 (16) were supported, including 7 (10) new clubs, which received start-up awards of £200 each. The remaining 3 applications were special purpose awards varying from £200 to £ 500.
- Clubs made 95 vehicle hires under the Driver Assessment and Vehicle Hire Scheme. Of these, 92 bookings were for sport clubs, and 3 were for non-sport clubs and societies. The overall number of hires significantly reduced due to COVID-19 restrictions but is expected to pick up again with COVID-19 restrictions having eased.

IMPACT OF COVID-19

4. As a result of restrictions arising from the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic clubs activities in 2020/21 continued to operate mostly in a remote format. Most clubs were able to adapt well and even gain new audience from online presence. However, the impact of uncertainties, especially at the start of the academic year, also meant that there were fewer activities and some smaller clubs reported difficulties in forming new committees and maintaining membership, reflected in a lower number of annual re-registrations.

5. As part of the University COVID response structure, the Student Experience Group was established in Michaelmas 2020 with the Assessor and the Clerk to the Proctors representing registered clubs.

DEVELOPMENT OF GUIDANCE AND TRAINING MATERIAL FOR REGISTERED CLUBS

6. As part of the Club Office initiative to support the running of student registered clubs, the office made a successful bid for £8,000 to Van Houten Fund to commission student interns to undertake the research and development of training material.

7. This initiative supported the University's education strategic priorities outlined in the Strategic Plan 2018-23, particularly that of Commitment 2 (excellent academic experience): students' engagement with registered clubs and societies while studying at Oxford not only helps support student wellbeing, which is at the heart of the University approach, but also provides students with opportunities to develop the personal and transferable skills to succeed in the workplace.

8. The project commenced during the long vacation 2021 with three four-week internships; surveys were conducted with current and recent committee members and senior members of registered non-sport clubs, societies and publications to ensure that the focus of the initial stage of the development reflects the needs of those responsible for management of clubs.

9. In response to the survey, further material, including best practice guidance, was developed in key areas, including duties and responsibilities of core committee members, University rules and regulations applying to registered clubs, and safety matters for meetings and events. To promote freedom of speech in the context of clubs activities, new guidance was also developed on principles of freedom of expression, including case studies of different scenarios, to assist the clubs to make appropriate decisions reflecting the University's statement on freedom of speech.

Elections

Elections 3 March

Please note: in the lists below, the names listed are simply those of the persons currently in office, whose terms of office are now coming to a close (thereby prompting all the vacancies now advertised for election).

Call for nominations

The nomination period for the elections below will remain open until 4pm on 3 February. For further information, please contact the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Other Committees and University Bodies

POOL FOR CONSTITUTING PANELS UNDER STATUTE XII

- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM), elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of HT 2025 [vice Ms Wendy Shepherd]
- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies, not necessarily representing any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Edmund Herzig]

It is expected that candidates for election to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) will also be members of GLAM. Candidates for election to represent Congregation as a whole (ie in a non-divisional capacity) need only be a member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies. However, please note that a candidate may not be nominated to more than one constituency on the same committee at the same time. For further information, please see the eligibility and amendments to nominations sections at General Information about Elections by Congregation - Governance and Planning (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation). Statute XII applies to: (a) professors, readers and associate professors or lecturers; (b) any employee of the University who is a member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV. In Statute XII, any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom the statute applies (Statute XII, Section 3 (1) and (2) (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board)). College staff are not covered by Statute XII as colleges have their own statutes. The exception is college staff at Kellogg, St Cross and Reuben, which follow the University's statutes. Any staff holding joint appointments will, however, be covered by Statute XII in respect of their University contract of employment and duties. Members of the Pool will be chosen by lot to serve on a number of Panels under Statute XII (ie Redundancy Panel (Section 14 (6)), Staff Employment Review Panel (Section 35) and University Appeal Panel (Section 52 (2))) and may also be expected to chair a Panel. Each member of the Pool will be required to attend appropriate training, including on equality and diversity, before serving on a Panel. Nominations from BME staff, from men and from academic and research staff are particularly encouraged.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (kathryn.fairhurstjones@admin.ox.ac.uk).

BOARD OF THE FACULTY OF HISTORY

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of History holding posts on the establishment or under the aegis of the board, to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2022 [vice Professor John Nightingale]

For further information, please contact the Secretary (administrator@history.ox.ac.uk).

General Notes:

Electronic elections

The elections on 3 March will be conducted electronically.

Nominations

Hard copies of nomination forms will not be processed. Completed nomination forms (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/nomination-forms) should be sent as an email attachment to the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 4pm on 3 February. Please ensure that the nominators listed in section D are also copied into the email when the nomination form is submitted, as this will act as verification of the nomination in lieu of supplying original signatures.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate's statement

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday 16 February, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will be published in the Gazette dated 17 February. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 3 March.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 3 February. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of TT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Elections

Elections 3 March

Please note: in the lists below, the names listed are simply those of the persons currently in office, whose terms of office are now coming to a close (thereby prompting all the vacancies now advertised for election).

Call for nominations

The nomination period for the elections below will remain open until 4pm on 3 February. For further information, please contact the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Other Committees and University Bodies

POOL FOR CONSTITUTING PANELS UNDER STATUTE XII

- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM), elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of HT 2025 [vice Ms Wendy Shepherd]
- One member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies, not necessarily representing any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, elected by members of Congregation to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Edmund Herzig]

It is expected that candidates for election to represent Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) will also be members of GLAM. Candidates for election to represent Congregation as a whole (ie in a non-divisional capacity) need only be a member of Congregation to whom Statute XII applies. However, please note that a candidate may not be nominated to more than one constituency on the same committee at the same time. For further information, please see the eligibility and amendments to nominations sections at General Information about Elections by Congregation -Governance and Planning (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation). Statute XII applies to: (a) professors, readers and associate professors or lecturers; (b) any employee of the University who is a member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV. In Statute XII, any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom the statute applies (Statute XII, Section 3 (1) and (2) (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board)). College staff are not covered by Statute XII as colleges have their own statutes. The exception is college staff at Kellogg, St Cross and Reuben, which follow the University's statutes. Any staff holding joint appointments will, however, be covered by Statute XII in respect of their University contract of employment and duties. Members of the Pool will be chosen by lot to serve on a number of Panels under Statute XII (ie Redundancy Panel (Section 14 (6)), Staff Employment Review Panel (Section 35) and University Appeal Panel (Section 52 (2))) and may also be expected to chair a Panel. Each member of the Pool will be required to attend appropriate training, including on equality and diversity, before serving on a Panel. Nominations from BME staff, from men and from academic and research staff are particularly encouraged.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (kathryn.fairhurstjones@admin.ox.ac.uk).

BOARD OF THE FACULTY OF HISTORY

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of History holding posts on the establishment or under the aegis of the board, to serve with immediate effect until the start of MT 2022 [vice Professor John Nightingale]

For further information, please contact the Secretary (administrator@history.ox.ac.uk).

General Notes:

Electronic elections

The elections on 3 March will be conducted electronically.

Nominations

Hard copies of nomination forms will not be processed. Completed nomination forms (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/nomination-forms) should be sent as an email attachment to the Elections Office (elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk) by 4pm on 3 February. Please ensure that the nominators listed in section D are also copied into the email when the nomination form is submitted, as this will act as verification of the nomination in lieu of supplying original signatures.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Advertisements

Candidate's statement

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday 16 February, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will be published in the Gazette dated 17 February. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 3 March.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 3 February. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of TT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

Council of the University

Changes in Regulations

Council has made the following changes to regulations, to come into effect on 4 March.

(a) Curators of the Sheldonian Theatre and Curators of the University Parks

Explanatory Note

The Curators of the Sheldonian Theatre and the Curators of the University Parks have a similar remit in making decisions about the running of a University facility. The proposed changes bring the term of office for Congregation-elected and Council-appointed curators in line with other University committees, reducing this from 6 years to 4 years, and amend the 'receive and apply any net income' clause to make the remit and requirements clearer. For the Curators of the Sheldonian Theatre the proposed changes also clarify that the Vice-Chancellor may appoint an individual to act as chair; add an option to co-opt up to 2 additional members; and delete the clause relating to appointment and removal of staff.

Text of Regulations

1 In Part 8 of Council Regulations 2 of 2004, concerning the Sheldonian Theatre, amend as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through):

'8.1. There shall be Curators of the Sheldonian Theatre consisting of:

(2), (3) the Proctors;

(4) the Assessor;

(5)-(7) three members of Congregation elected by Congregation, whose period of office shall be ~~six~~ four years, and who shall serve no more than two consecutive full terms of office. Casual terms of office shall not count towards this limit.

8.2. The curators may co-opt not more than two persons as additional members for such periods as they think fit.

8.~~2~~3. The curators shall:

(1) have charge of the theatre and its precincts, and make provision for its lighting, warming, water-supply~~,~~ and cleaning; and

(2) make arrangements for the conduct of the business at the Encaenia~~; and~~

~~(3) have power to appoint and remove all persons whose services may in their judgement be required, whether for a time or continuously, for any purpose connected with the theatre~~.

8.~~3~~4. (1) The Vice-Chancellor shall have power to hold Congregations and Convocations in the theatre, when he or she thinks fit, and to grant the use of the building for any academical purposes.

(2) Applications for its use for other purposes shall be referred to the curators.

8.~~4~~5. For the purposes outlined in 8.~~3~~2 and 8.~~3~~4 above, the curators will:

Casual terms of office shall not count towards this limit. Notwithstanding this, in the case of those appointed under regulation 10.1 (8),(9), the General Purposes Committee of Council may determine that one further consecutive period is permitted in an individual case. The period of office for members under regulation 10.1 (10) shall be one year, and for members under regulation 10.1 (11) shall be three years.

(2) The curators may co-opt not more than two persons as additional members for such periods as they think fit.

10.3. (1) The curators, under Council, shall have charge of the Parks, including the Fishery in the Cherwell, the former Bathing Place and Mesopotamia Walk, save that the maintenance, use~~,~~ and timetabling of all the ~~u~~University sports facilities in the Parks shall be the responsibility of the University Sports Strategic Subcommittee of the

(2) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in the Rodney Porter Building (building number 281) to the Department of Chemistry

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation of the Rodney Porter Building to the Department of Chemistry will allow for the further relocation of the two CDTs and, in the process, will help to consolidate Department of Chemistry activity within the Science Area.

Within Chemistry's current allocation of space in the Inorganic Chemistry Labs (ICL) is the Siemens Oxford Molecular Imaging Laboratory (SOMIL), which contains equipment for handling radioisotopes used for PET and SPECT imaging. SOMIL is based on the ground floor of the ICL, directly beneath Reuben College's proposed dining hall space on the first floor. Due to the nature of the work undertaken in SOMIL, its location directly beneath Reuben College's dining hall has given rise to a proposal to relocate the facility. Relocation of SOMIL is a future project on the Minor Capital Plan. Relocation from the existing ICL will allow for a future college refurbishment project.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 1,541 sqm net usable area (NUA) within the Rodney Porter Building (building number 281) be allocated to the Department of Chemistry for a period of 5 years from 1 December 2021 until 30 November 2026, or until the completion of a proposed new chemistry research building, if sooner.

The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. Gazette Supplement

Committee on Animal Care and Ethical Review

Annual Report 2021

The University of Oxford Local Ethical Review Process was set up in 1999 to ensure that all aspects of research involving animals conform to the requirements of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. The process has been revised to align with the latest revision of the Act that was completed in 2012 and subsequent changes in the Home Office Animals in Science Regulation Unit (ASRU) process. For the purposes of this report the Act is referred to as A(SP)A. The Animal Care and Ethical Review Committee (ACER) is the overarching ethical review committee. The ACER Committee is required to report annually to Council and, through it, to Congregation on activities concerned with research management, compliance and licensing of procedures involving the use of animals in scientific research. The ACER Committee, supported by six Animal Welfare and Ethical Review Boards (AWERBs) at cross-department and faculty level, provides assurance to the Establishment Licence Holder, the Named Person Responsible for Compliance (NPRC) and the Project Establishment Licence Holder (PEL Holder) on the ethical treatment and welfare of animals used in conjunction with scientific, medical and zoological research projects. Animal-based research at the University takes place mainly within the Medical Sciences Division (MSD) but the Department of Zoology, the Department of Engineering and other associated operations are often involved or collaborate with animal-focused research projects as the integration of technology and computing capability expands. This report summarises the range of work carried out and the support measures in place to ensure compliance with A(SP)A and the requirements of the Home Office.

A(SP)A requires all research using animals to be properly justified and that any viable alternatives to their use are fully considered. In all cases where animals are subjected to invasive or non-invasive procedures that cause any pain, distress, suffering or lasting harm the effects are mitigated through the appropriate use of anaesthetic and analgesia and are kept to an absolute minimum. The University's Animal Use Policy requires that anyone involved in research that includes the use of animals is proactive in pursuing refinement, reduction and replacement (usually referred to as the 3Rs) in procedures involving live animals wherever possible. In addition, all researchers and animal care staff must ensure they engage fully in the approved ethical process of review and monitoring of animal-based research. The University of Oxford Animal Use Policy also commits the University to providing standards of accommodation and care that exceed, wherever possible, the minimum standards required by UK national legislation. The responsibility for provision and maintenance of the accommodation and facilities is devolved by the Establishment Licence Holder to the Director of Biomedical Services (BMS) who, through cooperation with animal care staff and researchers, is charged with ensuring that animal facilities are managed and maintained efficiently and to as high a standard as possible.

Home Office inspections

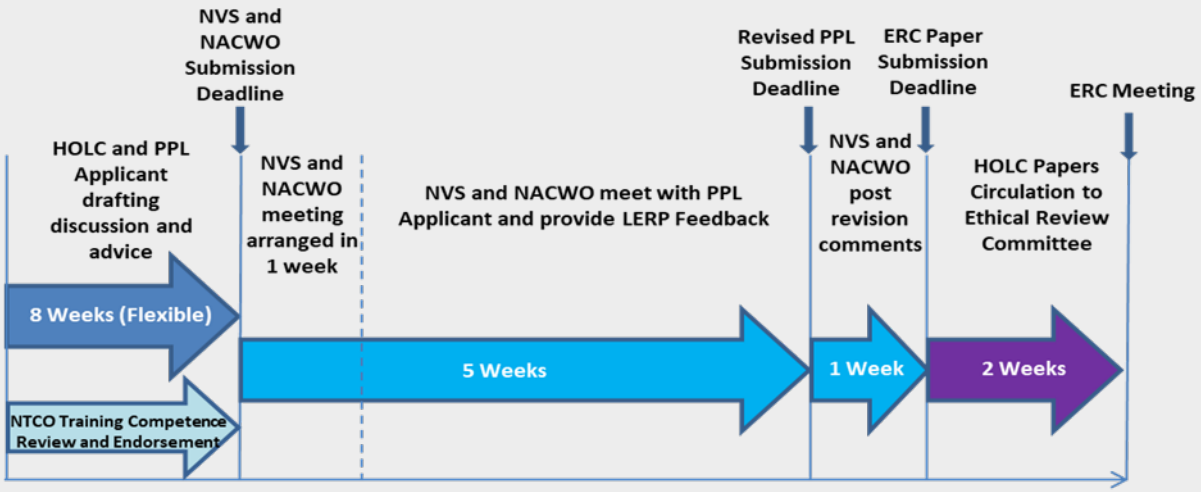
The Home Office is entitled to conduct unannounced visits to the University animal housing and research facilities at any time. Visits have not taken place during the current reporting period due to the implementation of COVID-19 control measures.

ASRU has implemented a revised licensing process during the reporting year that removed establishment-specific Home Office Inspectors and changed the process for personal and project licensing. The University continues to work closely with ASRU at the Home Office and continually reviews and adapts internal processes to ensure compliance.

The Ethical Review Process

HOME OFFICE LICENCES

The Home Office computer-based application ASPeL is now used for the majority of licensing activities including submission of PIL (Personal Licence) and PPL (Project Licence) applications, PPL annual returns, PPL transfers and secondary availability at other establishments, and final retrospective report submission where required. The Home Office Administration Unit (HOAU) is a section within Biomedical Services comprising three Home Office Liaison Contact Officers (HOLC), a Home Office Liaison Administrator and a part-time Project Licence Writing Advisor. The HOAU has responsibility for providing guidance on the Ethical Review Process for new PIL and PPL applicants and coordinating the review and submission process that takes place before applications are considered by the AWERBs. HOAU also manage and process approved applications for subsequent submission to the Home Office. The Home Office Administration Unit maintains oversight and management of all applications and guides applicants both on submission of their approved application to the Home Office using the ASPeL system and, after the granting of licences, during the review and amendment procedure. The pre-AWERB process is illustrated in the diagram below.



The HOLCs also act as Committee Secretaries for the ACER Committee and the six other AWERBs managing the regulation and membership of each committee, the annual schedule of more than 34 review meetings, and all compliance and legislative aspects of the ethical review process.

THE ANIMAL WELFARE AND ETHICAL REVIEW BODIES

There are seven AWERBs[1] that consider applications for new project licences, amendment requests for current project licences, retrospective reports on current project licences and any other welfare and ethical review matters relevant to animal-based research involving staff working at the University. In addition, there is a process for the review of collaborative projects in animal-related research that fall outside of A(SP)A and the countries covered by the European Directive 63/2010[2]. Collaborative ventures involving Oxford-based researchers that take place elsewhere in the world are reviewed and recommendations made to ensure compliance with local ethical and welfare standards. Wherever possible collaborative research projects that fall outside the jurisdiction of A(SP)A and the EU directive are required to demonstrate that they meet a similar or acceptable standard of welfare. Where there is any doubt about the quality of facilities or standards of animal welfare at the distant site or establishment, the ACER Committee require the aspects of collaborative research involving Oxford-based researchers to comply as much as possible with the welfare and ethical standards, and 3Rs requirements, that apply across the University.

The ACER Committee also has a subcommittee that considers the application of the principles of the 3Rs in research. The 3Rs subcommittee considers aspects of the 3Rs reported to AWERBs through the retrospective review process and circulates best practice information and recommendations to the research community. There is a proposal being considered to review the current AWERB structure and division of responsibilities to streamline the ethical review process.

Personal Licences (PILs)

At the end of the reporting period the number of PILs held by researchers at Oxford was 1,137. The PIL authorises the holder to undertake various procedures according to their individual training and supervision qualifications. Each PIL Holder is required to qualify at Home Office-approved training courses before being permitted to handle or perform surgical or non-surgical procedures on animals. Animal care staff also are required to undertake training on approved courses run by the Institute of Animal Technology in order to fulfil their duties. Home Office-approved training courses are run within the BMS at regular intervals. During the year a total of 245 new PILs were issued to University staff and students, while 222 PILs were revoked for staff and students who ended their courses, completed their research or moved to other establishments.

Project Licences

The maximum number of active PPLs held by researchers at the University during the period of the report was 169, compared to 153 active PPLs during the previous reporting period. PPLs authorise the holder to undertake a research project that has clearly defined objectives and anticipated outcomes; each is valid for a period of five years. PPL Holders are responsible to the Home Secretary for the compliance and conduct of all researchers working under their project and for compliance with the closely defined procedures that may be carried out in pursuit of their research goals. The University's Home Office Liaison Officers in BMS are involved throughout the PPL applications process in their role as secretary to the AWERBs and provide guidance to applicants in the initial stages of drafting a new project licence prior to the Named Veterinary Surgeon and Named Animal Care and Welfare Officer (NACWO) review. The Home Office Liaison Officers continue to support applicants after the Ethical Review Committee Process by providing feedback and guidance on the submission process and once licences are granted.

During the reporting period a total of 49 new project applications were approved and submitted to the Home Office, compared to 33 applications in the previous reporting period, representing an increase of 48% in licences held. A total of 72 amendment requests for existing projects were approved, compared to 64 amendment requests in the previous year, representing an increase in amendment applications of 12.5%. The period of the report was subject to restrictions and a reduction in active research due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The chart below shows Project Licence applications and amendments reviewed at AWERB meetings across the reporting period. Any difference in numbers reviewed when compared to the number of new licences and amendments approved and issued by the Home Office in the same period is due to the lead and lag time between AWERB meetings and the submission to the Home Office. In some cases, the Home Office Inspector reviewing the submission may require further changes to a licence application before approval, and this review and amendment process will add to the time delay between the start of the application process and the granting of the licence. In complex cases the delay can be between six and twelve months after submission. In the case of Project Licence applications where continuation of current research is necessary, the Home Office Administration Unit within BMS ensure that reminder notices are sent to applicants at least twelve months before the current Project Licence expires. The applicant is also advised of the date of AWERB review to ensure the application writing process is completed in good time so as not to compromise continuity of research. All applications and amendments are subject to full ethical review by the NVS or Veterinary Surgeons, NACWOs and the Home Office Liaison Contacts/AWERB Secretaries before consideration in committee. A number of amendments may be approved by the chair of an AWERB without being reviewed in full committee, but only for minor changes that do not have welfare or ethical considerations. An example of a chair's approval might be a change of contact information or similar.

APPLICATIONS REVIEWED BY AWERB JANUARY-DECEMBER 2021

Species used and Severity of Procedures

Animals are used in research only where there is no viable or satisfactory alternative available. All projects are subject to assessment by internal review within the University and by the Home Office, where the potential benefits are considered against the adverse effects and potential cost to the animals concerned. The University pursues research using a number of non-animal methods such as computer modelling, tissue culture, cell and molecular biology, and research with human subjects. These methods continue to be used and integrated into research projects wherever possible and appropriate, and new technology will be incorporated if it is deemed to offer a useable alternative; however, animal experimentation continues to remain necessary in certain circumstances where technology is currently lacking.

Projects where the use of animals is necessary include research into the prevention and treatment of human diseases (eg cancer, HIV, tuberculosis, Parkinson's, diabetes and heart failure); and the study of host-parasite interactions (for example in malaria), which continues to be an area where it is necessary to understand the interaction between systems (including the effects that chemical or neural changes may have on circulation, respiration or other functions). Similarly, studying behaviour or complex brain functions, transplantation and musculoskeletal systems still necessitates the use of animals, though restricted to the minimum number required. The involvement of a broad range of individuals in the ethical review process, including lay members and animal care staff, ensures that it remains proactive in pursuing the adoption of best practice, promoting a culture of care, and encouraging education and training to enhance staff skills and raise awareness of ethical issues.

A variety of different species of animals are used in research projects at the University. Data on animal numbers used was not available when compiling this report as the Home Office Return of Procedures exercise was in progress for 2021 and will not be complete at the time of submission. In order to provide continuity of reporting the data on the number of animals used and severity recorded in procedures from 2020 is provided.

Animal Use

A total of 169,511 animals were used in 2020, down by 59,625 compared to 2019 (229,163). The species and total number of each along with the severity experienced is given in the table.

Veterinary and Named Animal Care and Welfare Officer staff

The current Veterinary Team is made up of five Named Veterinary Surgeons (NVS) that equate to four full-time equivalent posts. A primary duty is the provision of advice on the welfare and treatment of the animals. The team interacts closely with the Named Animal Care and Welfare Officers (NACWOs) to provide direct support for the animals and those carrying out experimental procedures. The roles act together to ensure we provide a compliant environment when managing the animals under our care. The NVS and NACWO functions continue to support the training needs of the University, providing expert tutorials on a range of subjects relating to the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act (ASPA). A large proportion of this training is delivered by the Veterinary Team and includes the background to ASPA, ethics, concepts around the experimental effect on the animal, anaesthesia and Project Licence preparation. The NVS role has a practical aspect too and involves training in surgical and new procedures to ensure that researchers can achieve and maintain competency when carrying out procedures.

As in previous years, a high proportion of the team's effort was directed at Project Licence and ethical review. Each licence amendment or new application involves meeting with the applicant, advising researchers on health and welfare matters relating to the use of animals, and attendance at the relevant ethical review committee. The Veterinary and NACWO teams actively contribute to the termly Departmental Animal Welfare meetings to provide timely updates to the research community on various topical and practically relevant issues which relate to animal welfare, compliance and the 3Rs. Advising on suitable animal health monitoring programmes is also an integral aspect of regular responsibilities.

Training

Biomedical Services continues to offer a suite of Home Office-approved training courses to provide the necessary skills and qualifications for researchers in animal research. Delivery of training has continued despite the restrictions imposed by the COVID-19 pandemic, with the majority of training delivered online.

Biomedical Services training courses are accredited by the UK Universities Accreditation Group, the training courses have achieved accreditation by the Federation of Laboratory Animal Science Associations (FELASA). This is recognised as a mark of quality in Europe and facilitates movement of researchers within the European Union. Biomedical Services at the University of Oxford has held FELASA accreditation for more than 10 years.

The Training Director also acts as the lead Named Training and Competence Officer (NTCO); an appointment required under A(SP)A in establishments where animals are used in research. There are a further eight NTCOs: one administrative officer and seven who are also NACWOs that assist in the assessment of training and competence of research staff. All Licence Holders and some other animal care staff have to be endorsed as competent by an approved trainer or supervisor in order to be able to complete any type of procedure or animal care work. The migration of training and competence records to the Mouse Colony Management System was completed this year.

Collaboration with UK (eg RSPCA, LASA) and international organisations in animal welfare, experimental design and the ethical conduct of biomedical research continues.

Engagement with internal structure and other external organisations

NVS, Veterinary Clinicians, NACWOs and other staff from Biomedical Services attend the Departmental Animal Welfare Meetings each term to promote best practice, the 3Rs and aspects of ongoing research, and to discuss the importance of compliance with A(SP)A. The Departmental Animal Welfare Meetings provide an opportunity to share best practice and deliver updates on a number of topics such as Annual Return of Procedure Guidance; the Refinement Initiative; access to and information on guidance available via the BMS SharePoint site; Effective Breeding according to the Home Office GAA toolkit; International Collaboration on animal research projects; and various procedural changes.

The University of Oxford remains a signatory (one of over 250) to the statement supporting the EU Directive on the protection of animals used for scientific purposes.

The annual Oxford 3Rs Research Day was held online this year due to COVID-19-related restrictions. The event was well attended and provided a platform for participation by a wide range of delegates: Project Licence Holders, Personal Licence Holders, Veterinary Surgeons, Animal Welfare Staff and others with an interest in animal-based research. The University continues to promote engagement with replacement technology, the importance of public engagement in animal research, non-invasive methods in animal research, and experimental design.

The 3Rs Subcommittee and the Home Office Administration Unit have continued to liaise with the National Centre on the 3Rs (NC3Rs)[3] throughout the year to promote best practice and to incorporate the 3Rs principles in animal research projects. Oxford students and researchers are actively encouraged to participate in NC3Rs grant programmes and award schemes with positive results in the form of a Global 3Rs Award for vaccine development and Honourable Mentions for two Oxford-based researchers during the reporting period.

Visits to animal areas of the Biomedical Services Building were again cancelled this year. It is intended that the opportunity to visit the facilities will be once again extended to family members, University staff with an interest in animal-based research and other groups as soon as the restrictions imposed by the pandemic are lifted.

[3] The NC3Rs is the UK's national organisation for the discovery and application of new technologies and approaches to replace, reduce and refine the use of animals for scientific purposes.

REFLECTIONS

The college's collection of medieval textiles and some of its silver will be displayed 2-5pm on 5 March in the Garden Quad Reception Room. The college has commissioned two new silver artworks, repurposing silver from the college's existing collection. One of these pieces, by Maria Hanson and Chris Knight, is entitled Here I am: it will embody a sense that the silver is intertwined with, and reflects, the evolving community of the college. Accordingly, for this small exhibition, we have selected pieces from the collection which metaphorically mirror the people and community of the college over past centuries.

Congregation 26 February

Conferment of Honorary Degree

The degree of Master of Arts, honoris causa, approved by resolution of Congregation on 19 October 2021, was conferred upon Maurice Keeble-Smith.

The Public Orator made the following speeches in presenting to the recipient of the Honorary Degree:

MAURITIUS KEEBLE-SMITH

Ecce adest qui se regionum duarum quidem gnarum praebuit, rusticae dico et rerum valde subtilium artis machinalis. Idemque iam amplius XL annos Universitati eiusque indagatoribus, doctoribus, discipulis servivit. Aliquando enim et aliis animalibus huius orbis notus erat, ut qui iuvenis apud Institutum Comptonianum tiro versatus sit ubi, ut aptum erat Hiberniae progeniei, patrum propagavit vitam rusticam, nec minus apte se ad rationes viasque produxit fabricandi. Et vix aptius potuisset illuc adire quam per solum ipsum transgressus. Nonne enim solo natura subest?[1] Et apud nostrum circulum soli mechanicae peritorum hic honorandus illas egregias ingenii manusque sollertias adhibere coepit propter quas ad officinam primam vocatus est, ut paullo post ipse procurator ibi praeesset, ubi ex magna parte disponenda ipse disposuit. Verumque sollers videtur esse, nec solum machinandi ferruminandique; immo tales habitus humaniores in eo conspecti sunt quales vix facile captentur, difficile videantur descriptu. Nam prudentia praeditus est necnon quadam lenitate, quo facilius intellegat quomodo nos, qui minus capaces simus, saepe fallamur, ut permultos patientia consilioque ad fines attingendos conduxerit. Hic mente ac manu etiam talia concipiendi, confingendi capax est qualia lineis scriptis nullo modo antea parari potuerant. Nec tantum creat, sed fracta reparat; impedimenta denique quae paene insuperabilia visa essent hic in minimum reducit. Quid? Scilicet memoria diu tenebitur qui birotam automatariam Kawasakiensem, raedaeque alacris, ut vocatur, vim vitalem excogitatas exhibuit. Attamen vix credo eundem posthac birota prisca deserta modum illum potius sponte sua movendi positurum quo praeeminet, dummodo domum mobilem commode locaverit. Haec verba admodum salutaria super nomen huius in officina edita videmus: 'qui parum apto cultu adveniet, hic dimittetur'. Ecce igitur adstat qui aptissima veste ornatus est, nam

Praesento fabrum spectatum, praeter omnes ingeniosum, hominem certe fidum, tertium decimum modo inter eos qui hoc saeculo ita honorati sunt, Mauritium Keeble-Smith, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Magistri in Artibus.

Admission by the Pro-Vice-Chancellor

Faber inter omnes peritissime, qui duxisti, cui parebatur, quem secuti sunt et discipuli et indagatores nostri, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Magistri in Artibus honoris causa.

Paraphrase

See here a man who has known two great worlds - those of the countryside and the intricate devices of engineering. For forty years and more he served this University and its inventive researchers, teachers and students. Earlier he was known also to other members of the animal kingdom; for it was at Compton and its Institute for Animal Health that as a youngster he served his apprenticeship, a fitting continuation of his Irish forefathers' farming life, and a fitting transition to the ideas and techniques of the laboratory. And what more fitting ground than soil itself through which to make that transition. In the soil, as the Latin poet reminds us, is 'innate creative power', and it was indeed in the Soil Mechanics Group that our honorand began to ply those signal imaginative and technical skills that brought his call to our main Engineering workshop, and thence later to the Staff Student Workshop, over which he came to preside; indeed its design and layout are in no small part his own. Expert he is, a skilled machinist and welder, but well known also for those more intangible gifts of personality - wisdom, tact, and understanding of the greater limitations in our practical abilities, in which his forbearance and guidance have set so many on a more secure path to success. Here is a mind and a hand that can plan and design even when drawings cannot be made and used; here is one that can mend as well as create, can patiently teach, reassure, and make of the almost insurmountable difficulty but a minor molehill. I believe that his memory will live long in the designs of a Kawasaki motorbike and a Smart Car engine, yet in his retirement he will surely continue in that more independent movement in which he also excels - that of the bicycle, once he has strategically parked his motor-home. In the workshop you may see a safety notice above our honorand's name, telling us that 'anybody inappropriately dressed will be turned away!!!' Here, accordingly, stands that man most appropriately dressed for the occasion, for

I present an admired artist among craftsmen, a supportive guide and teacher, a dependable human being we proudly believe is to be only the thirteenth such honorand in over twenty years, Maurice Keeble-Smith, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

Admission by the Pro-Vice-Chancellor

Most skilled of technicians, who have guided with authority, and whom both our students and our researchers have willingly followed, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

Advertisements

Email: gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk

Deadline

Advertisements are to be received by noon on Wednesday of the week before publication (ie eight days before publication). Advertisements must be submitted online.

Publication

The Gazette is only published online, except for library and archive copies. Charges for all adverts have been reduced to reflect this.

Charges

Non-commercial advertisers: £10 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £20 per insertion of 71-150 words.

Commercial advertisers: £20 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £40 per insertion of 71-150 words.

Advertisers may also purchase advertising space for a whole academic year (a minimum of eight insertions per term) at a discount of over 50% on the individual advertisement rate: £9.50 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £19 per insertion of 71-150 words.

See our website for examples of whether an advertisement is considered commercial or private: https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette.

Online submission and payment

Advertisements must be submitted and paid for online, using a credit card or debit card, through a secure website. For details, see https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette.

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Disclaimer

8. The University of Oxford accepts no responsibility for the content of any advertisement published in the Gazette. Readers should note that the inclusion of any advertisement in no way implies approval or recommendation of either the terms of any offer contained in it or of the advertiser by the University of Oxford.

Advertisers' Warranty and Indemnity

14. The advertiser warrants:

a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. Submission of an advertisement implies acceptance of our terms and conditions, which may be found at https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/terms-and-conditions-acceptance-advertisements, and may also be obtained on application to gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Miscellaneous

In accordance with the procedure for dealing with repatriation claims set out in the University's Procedures for claims for the Return of Cultural Objects, the Visitors of the Pitt Rivers Museum and those of the Ashmolean Museum have considered a claim from the National Commission for Museums and Monuments of Nigeria for the repatriation of 97 objects. Council of the University

Changes to Regulations

Council has made the following changes to regulations, to come into effect on 8 April.

Safety, Health and Environment Management Subcommittee

Explanatory Note

In 2019 Council appointed a group to review health and safety at the University. The Health and Safety Review's recommendations were approved by Council at its meeting on 29 November 2021. As a part of this, Council endorsed a proposed new Health and Safety Governance structure, including the establishment of a Safety Executive Group (SEG), to replace the current Safety, Health and Environment Management Subcommittee (SHEMS).

The proposed new regulations for SEG are set out below. The current SHEMS regulations, which these replace, can be seen at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-20-health-and-safety-management-subcommittee-of-the-general-purposes-committee. The remit of SEG includes all of the current responsibilities of SHEMS. However, changes have been made to:

- the membership, to strengthen assurance and better emphasise the significance of health and safety within the University;
- the meeting arrangements, to add an expectation that work will be ongoing between termly meetings;
- the reporting line, to change this from the General Purpose Committee to Council;
- the sub-groups, to add a new Safety, Health and Environment Operations Network (and associated Steering Group) which will support SEG; and
- the remit, to divide responsibility for five themes between committee members and to make the group's role in consultation explicit.

Text of Regulations

In Part 20 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002, concerning the Safety, Health and Environment Management Subcommittee, delete the current text and replace with the following:

'Part 20: Safety Executive Group

20.4. The group will:

(1) meet at least once each term;

20.5. The quorum for the group will be not less than six members. Themes and support

20.6. The group will have collective responsibility for promoting a positive culture, setting strategy and implementing policy on behalf of Council in respect of safety, occupational health and the environment within the following five themes. Members of the group will take lead responsibility for the themes as indicated and the group will delegate authority for decision making within these themes and to these or other individuals as it considers appropriate:

This theme includes: engagement from divisions and departments; assurance reporting; events and public spaces; and domestic and international travel and transport.

(5) Estate and environment, being the responsibility of the Director of Estates and the Chair of the Building and Estates Subcommittee, supported by the Building and Estates Subcommittee. This theme includes: construction (including maintenance, repair and compliance with the Construction (Design and Management) Regulations); fire safety; environmental compliance; control of contractors; electrical safety; asbestos; and grounds and gardens.

20.7. The group will agree and keep under review the terms of reference and membership of a Network Steering Group (supported by a Safety, Health and Environment Operations Network) which will deal with operational aspects of safety, occupational health and the environment, and will support the group in all of its responsibilities. The group will have the ability to delegate appropriate decision making powers to the Network Steering Group.

20.8. The group will expect to receive full co-operation from all staff and students of the University in relation to all aspects of the group's activity.

Consultation

20.9. The group will agree and keep under review the terms of reference and membership of a Consultative Committee for Health and Safety and will:

(1) maintain a Schedule of Safety Consultations;

(2) ensure that meaningful consultation takes place with the Consultative Committee in advance of any significant changes to the policies or arrangements which the group is responsible for; and

(3) make its decision log and the minutes of its meetings available to the Consultative Committee.

Enforcement action

20.10. The group will have the authority to recommend and to take whatever action it deems necessary in relation to matters of safety, health and environmental protection where the group considers practices to pose imminent potential danger or there to be a significant risk of enforcement action from appropriate authorities. This will include the authority to issue internal notices to prohibit continued work in cases of serious or persistent non-compliance with policies for which the group is responsible, or with Health and Safety legislation.

Remit and other responsibilities of the group

20.11. The remit of the group extends to work-related, sporting and other society activities which take place away from University premises and to parties on University premises or who may be affected by the University's work and activities, as well as to matters covered by legislation including fire safety, food safety and the transport of dangerous goods.

20.12. In respect of the themes set out above, the group will:

(1) keep under review the University's legal and statutory obligations and identify and monitor where basic standards are not being met or are at risk of not being met;

(2) undertake horizon scanning for emerging legislation and risks, and review these in terms of policy and operations to enable compliance;

(3) consider major findings of internal and external audits and investigations, and the management responses to these, ensuring recommendations are implemented; and

Reporting

20.13. The group will receive and act on the following in relation to safety, occupational health and environmental issues:

Congregation 26 April

Resolution in respect of the response to the war against Ukraine

Council's response

Council considers the resolution to be acceptable to it.

The unprovoked invasion of Ukraine by Russia is causing a humanitarian catastrophe to unfold in Europe. Members of our community are appalled by Russia's action and in awe of the bravery shown by Ukrainians as well as the bravery of those Russians who have denounced their government's aggression. The University has published details on its website (www.ox.ac.uk/news-and-events/university-response-invasion-ukraine) of its response to the invasion of Ukraine, as well as advice and support for staff and students impacted. Given the rapidly changing situation, the website will be updated to provide details of the nature of the University's participation in humanitarian support, via the Council of At-Risk Academics and other routes, as this is confirmed. The wording of the resolution has been added to this webpage.

Meeting information

Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on 18 April, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they wish to oppose or amend the resolution above (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise or the meeting has been adjourned the resolution shall be declared carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

Members of Congregation are asked to note that 18 April is Easter Monday and that the University Offices will be closed from Thursday 14 April. Any notice submitted after noon on 14 April should be sent by email to registrar@admin.ox.ac.uk; notices submitted before that time may be sent either by email or delivered to the Registrar at the University Offices.

Note on procedures in Congregation

¶ Business in Congregation is conducted in accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/congregation-regulations-2-of-2002). A printout of these regulations, or of any statute or other regulations, is available from the Council Secretariat on request. A member of Congregation seeking advice on questions relating to its procedures, other than elections, should contact Mrs R Thomas at the University Offices, Wellington Square (telephone: (2)80317; email rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk); questions relating to elections should be directed to the Elections Office (email: elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Finance White Paper

On 14 March Council approved the Finance White Paper for consultation. The Finance White Paper puts forward a series of proposals to improve financial planning processes within the University. These proposals suggest a settlement for historic reserves, create cash-backed reserves for surpluses going forward, simplify funding flows and introduce a 3-year settlement for central charges. It is important to realise that the changes set out in this Finance White Paper do not of themselves 'create' any more money. They are expected to increase transparency, improve decision making, better align governance with financial responsibility, provide better financial incentives to increase both income and value for money, and promote more informed investment in the University's academic future.

The proposals described in this consultation have been endorsed by the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee (PRAC) and the Finance Committee after substantial engagement with divisions, department and services over the past two years. Academic divisions have reviewed the proposals in detail and consulted extensively with their departments, and their views to date have substantially informed these proposals.

This consultation aims to explain the rationale behind the Finance White Paper, describe the proposed changes and offer the opportunity for comment on the proposals.

TAKE PART

The consultation closes on 13 May. Comments can be made via a short online form, or by emailing financewhitepaper@admin.ox.ac.uk.

The key elements of the Finance White Paper are summarised below. The full Finance White Paper and also the Finance Green Paper can be accessed on the consultation website: https://governance.web.ox.ac.uk/finance-white-paper. Some content will be behind University single sign-on, but please email financewhitepaper@admin.ox.ac.uk if there are any access difficulties.

PRINCIPLES

The Finance White Paper's proposals have been guided by the following principles:

Sustainability

All parts of the University have a responsibility for the financial wellbeing and viability of the University as a whole, now and in the future.

1. Financial information should be used to inform decision-making by transparently linking income, expenditure and funding.

2. Decisions should be made with awareness of current and future financial implications at departmental, divisional and University level.

3. Incentives should ensure the alignment of short, medium and long-term interests and encourage efficiency and effectiveness across the University.

Subsidiarity

Financial responsibility should be held at the lowest appropriate level.

1. Governance, decision-making and accountability should rest at the same level as financial responsibility.

2. Financial responsibility includes the compliant and sustainable management of income, expenditure and investment (the 'as earned' model).

3. The application of subsidiarity should take into account the importance of fairness and the need for appropriate standards of service and infrastructure across the University.

WHY WE NEED TO CHANGE

- A lack of transparency and accountability make it difficult to identify the financial consequences of decisions and ensure that there is alignment of costs and benefits;
- The surplus that the academic divisions[1] generate is being double-counted, as part of the surplus is required to fund core University investments;
- A number of the academic divisions are in recurrent financial deficit;
- There is a lack of clarity over the status and use of historic departmental reserves;
- Financial planning is focused on a single year; and
- There is insufficient provision for future capital requirements and for meeting increasing challenges in providing essential services such as IT and repairs and maintenance.

PROPOSALS

- A simplification of funding flows - the abolition of the current 123 infrastructure charge and capital charge and the introduction of new Space and Service Charges;
- The elimination of the double-count by introducing a contribution from the divisions, to be transparent about how the divisions are contributing to the funding of a number of specific University activities agreed by Council;
- A 3-year funding settlement for the new charges and contribution to provide greater certainty to all parts of the University and support longer-term planning;
- The creation of cash-backed reserves to enable the divisions and departments to manage the financial ups and downs each year, plan for income and expenditure over more than one year, and fund modest investment to sustain and grow income;

- Drawing a line under the historic reserves, with deficit reserves being written off, surplus reserves being maintained, with the access to surplus reserves being broadened;
- Continuity of access to accumulated PI funds and SRF reserves; and
- The abolition of the 1.25% financing charge.

These reforms are underpinned by the creation of new governance arrangements for the revised funding flows, enabling the divisions departments and the services to consider collectively the best way to support academic activity across the University.

TIMETABLE

The results of the consultation will be reported back to PRAC and the Finance Committee in June to inform a final set of recommendations to be put to Council for approval in July. If approved, the proposals would operate from the start of the financial year 2023/24 (with the transitional changes to governance and processes in 2022/23.)

Note - in the context of the Finance White Paper, 'division' means the grouping of academic departments acting collectively as one of the four academic divisions

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Oration by the demitting Proctors and Assessor 2022

The following Oration was delivered in Congregation on 16 March by Ms Lucinda Rumsey, Fellow of Mansfield, on demitting office as Senior Proctor, by Dr David Johnson, Fellow of St Antony's, on demitting office as Junior Proctor, and by Dr Bettina Lange, Fellow of Wolfson, on demitting office as Assessor.

Senior Proctor: Insignissima Vice-Cancellaria, licetne anglice loqui?

Vice-Chancellor: Licet.

Senior Proctor: I am a tutor in medieval literature so I'll begin in Middle English.

The narrator of Gawain and the Green Knight tells us, as Gawain gets ready for his journey:

> A ȝere ȝernes ful ȝerne, and ȝeldez neuer lyke,
> Þe forme to þe fynisment foldez ful selden.

> A year passes very fast and what it yields is not the same,
> The beginning seldom folds neatly onto the end.

That has been our experience as Proctors and Assessor. We started our year online. My University colleagues sat in Teams meetings in front of backgrounds of the Oxford skyline, as though wearing the spire of St Mary's church as a unicorn horn, or the Radcliffe Camera as a bonnet. After some forwards and backwards steps, we are ending the year here, and in person. Like Sir Gawain we are at the end of our quest. Gawain came home a bit hacked about and miserable. I think our journey has been much less traumatic.

We begin with the Assessor.

Assessor: The academic year 2021/22 continued to present many challenges for the governance of the academic and social life of the collegiate University. It has been inspiring to see how agile, flexible and timely the University crisis management framework, including Silver and Bronze committees, has been in responding to the changing situation.

In this difficult year the core of the Assessorial role - student welfare, health and financial resources - was as relevant as ever, and was significantly supported financially from the Vice-Chancellor's Fund, the Oxford Hardship Fund and the dedicated COVID-19 Assistance Fund. My role also provided an opportunity to understand how student welfare, health and financial resources relate to the much wider range of University administration - the maintenance of buildings, audit and scrutiny processes, and environmental sustainability, as well as the innovative work of the Staff Wellbeing Programme Board, and the discussion and implementation of education policy across the collegiate University.

In my work this year I was reminded of the depiction of The City and the City by China Miéville, which describes Ul Quoma and Beszel, two distinct cities which simultaneously occupy the same urban space, but whose citizens have to 'unsee' each other. This seems to be a fitting metaphor for the University: 'Welly Square over there' and 'academic departments over here', two cities at first glance, characterised by different languages, different ways of working and different ways of seeing the world. But in The City and the City, as in the University, there is 'cross-hatching' or 'seeing across' space where the two cities exist together.

One way in which I have seen this cross-hatching between parts of the University to be effective this year is in the collection and interpretation of data by professional services and by academic departments, in collaborative projects which have generated many innovative and impressive governance initiatives, such as the Health and Safety Review, the Race Equality Task Force, the Mental Health Task Force (including work on the draft Drugs Policy), and the Environmental Sustainability Committee, as well as in the Sustainability Team, who are establishing, amongst a range of other initiatives, a biodiversity baseline for the functional University estate, in order to measure progress towards the target of a net biodiversity gain by 2035. Continuing collaborative work of this kind in the collegiate University will also be essential for progressing policy on the handling of non-academic misconduct, including harassment and sexual violence, and for developing more harmonised procedures across colleges.

It has been an honour and a humbling experience to serve in the Assessor role, and to see across 'The City and the City'. I should like to thank everyone I have worked with during this year, especially the Proctors' Office and the bedels.

Senior Proctor: The Junior Proctor and I would like to echo the Assessor's thanks and add our thanks to her for her hard work and wisdom this year.

As Proctors and Assessor we sit on more than eighty University committees, so it surprised colleagues a bit when in our first week we asked to join more: the committees of the Race Equality Task Force. I found those meetings in the early months of our year a valuable lens through which to get early glimpses of the work of the University, and to have conversations with staff and students about access and equality which continued throughout the year. A strand of those conversations was how we might diversify representation on University committees. One challenge of this is that University structures and nomination for committees can be complicated (even eligibility to be a Congregation member is a bit opaque and I was surprised by the number of University roles for which membership of Congregation is a requirement). I hope that we might do more in future to make the purpose and the process of University committees more transparent, and involve the Equality and Diversity leads in divisions and colleges in encouraging greater engagement. However, even when colleagues understand what University committees do, it is understandable that they are reluctant to volunteer for service which adds to their workload. If we want to encourage a greater variety of voices in University decision-making, we will need to recognise that service, and reward it by including it as a part of stint or duties, rather than it being an additional burden. Because volunteers don't come forward too often we end up picking from those in the room around us, and reinforcing rather than diversifying the views represented.

One example of good practice in committee representation I have admired this year is the MPLS Divisional Board. The board reinforce research as central to their divisional life with research highlights at every meeting; openness and representation is embedded, with standing items for early career research staff and students; and there is meaningful regular reporting on the work of their brilliantly dynamic Equality and Diversity team.

Finally I want to acknowledge the contribution of external members on University committees (such as Council and Audit and Scrutiny), and beyond (the work of OUEM and OUP Finance Committee). The challenge and example provided by external members who generously bring their expertise and their different perspectives has been really helpful in committee discussion. I have particular appreciated the high value that our external members place on the reputation of the University, its work and its staff. Sometimes they express and promote the importance of the work that Oxford does better than we do ourselves.

Extraordinary work has been done by the University in the pandemic, worldwide through the impact of our vaccine research, and more domestically in the work of staff across the University, who have looked after the education and welfare of our students in colleges and departments. But this has been a heavy toll on colleagues' spirit and patience. In those circumstances there is a temptation for us to get defensive when we discuss which parts of the University need the biggest share of what we all know are limited resources. I think it will be important as the University weighs up priorities, agrees the White Paper and starts thinking about a new Strategic Plan, that we remember to respect, trust and value the contribution made by all parts of the University.

In the most recent Ipsos Veracity index we are told which professions people most trust. Understandably medical professionals are up in the top five most trusted professions, but do you know who else are in those top spots? Librarians and museum curators. The area of the University that I was glad to learn more about this year was the extraordinary and important work of GLAM (Gardens, Libraries and Museums). GLAM attracts public and popular support to the University through their innovative access work and public engagement, and their showcasing of the research of divisions, as well as through their core role as custodians of the materials of learning and culture. Pragmatically, in the pandemic Oxford's parks and libraries were where students most wanted to be, and the GLAM staff worked very hard to make that possible. And GLAM do more to engage positively with the wider city of Oxford than any other part of the University. It has been an honour to get to know them better and to see their impact.

The Proctors' Office now deals with over 9,000 items of casework a year. Education Policy Support also has a growing workload of complex cases. I have huge respect for the care and detailed attention given by our colleagues in the Proctors' Office, and in EPS, to casework, and the emphasis they place on enabling students to thrive and complete their studies. However, in the challenging circumstances of the pandemic there has been a tendency for students to become dependent on seeking mitigation and extensions, rather than planning adjustments in advance so that they can complete work in time. The cumulative build-up of requests for extensions, mitigation and excusals can add to student stress, and adds to the workload of staff, including exam boards. We hope students can feel more resilient when they face assessments in the coming year. More practically the Proctors have proposed that some mitigation processes should be moved onto eVision. As well as useful streamlining, this will provide a more transparent and complete record of student progress, so that colleges, departments and students themselves can see when additional intervention and support is needed.

As well as low student confidence, open-book exams have led to some drop in the confidence academic staff and examiners have in assessment processes, with concern about student plagiarism and collusion. The cases of plagiarism we have identified have been quite low, although cases of potential poor academic practice have been higher. We hope that one positive outcome of the past two disrupted years may be that we think more innovatively about how we examine and assess students.

Regarding non-academic conduct, the Proctors have seen, and have heard from college deans, that students have lost some of their usual ways of living courteously and supportively together, both in person and online. Added to this there has been concern about the continued practice of trashing after exams. We appreciate students' hard work and achievement and respect their wish to celebrate, but throwing eggs, flour and confetti on the street as I saw last week is disrespectful to people in the Oxford city community. In the wider global context just now it is worse than disrespectful. We have enjoyed working with the energetic and positive incumbent Student Union officers and with college MCR and JCR presidents this year. We hope that with their leadership and example the student body can renew their customary ties of community and respect for one another and for others beyond the University.

This year I learnt the term 'perseverate' from my Medical Sciences colleagues: the reiterative return again and again to the same topic. In University committees over the past year there has been some perseveration about the challenges we are facing: health and safety, cyber security, loss of research funding, our need for investment in IT for everything we do, the dual tensions of the cost of repairing the parts of the University estate that are decaying and the spiralling costs of new building, the need for competitive academic salaries and pensions, that there is not enough resource to go round. In the many committees on which we have sat as Proctors and Assessor the perseverations are very often about these continuing challenges. As I finish now, I am worried that being positive about the University and its work, as I am, will sound naively optimistic. But I have met hundreds of people this year who give me grounds for optimism, who recognise the challenges Oxford faces, and the need to foster and support the work of staff and students. It has been a privilege to work with you all. I hope that Jane, Linda and Richard, our successors, can be part of conversations in the coming year that will help the University to resolve some of those challenges.

With final thanks: to the egregious Junior Proctor. I couldn't have asked for a better colleague. I pass on to him.

Junior Proctor: I am relieved that the Vice-Chancellor has given us leave to speak in English. I thank the Senior Proctor for her words. She spoke them perfectly, in both ancient and more modern forms of the language. Some satirists, always ready to lampoon the University, have asserted that in Oxford, speaking in English is 'not always so easy'. According to an 1860 edition of Punch magazine, 'One of the provisions of the Oxford University Reform act is that statutes may be made and altered, and that the Congregation may speak in English. Ah! - that is, of course, if they can.' I can only but try.

Another observation made in the same magazine a decade later is that 'much has been written about the division of labour', but that 'a remarkable instance has just occurred of the accumulation of labour' where 'A gentleman has been appointed to the office of pro-proctor in the University of Oxford who is also a master of Arts, in Clerical Orders, a Fellow of His College, and Assistant Secretary to the Board of Trade.'

This reminds me to thank our Pro-Proctors this year, all women, classicists, art historians, and medical scientists, with lineages and histories that represent a fair chunk of the world. Their accumulated labour has made ours so much more manageable and their presence in many of our ceremonies has added to the record of how Oxford has changed, and can continue to do so.

A final reference to Punch, reporting in the 1890s on the work of the Oxford statistical society, under the leadership of Professor Sillyphellow. 'The society has prepared some curious statistical records from a recent survey. In a parish containing 1500 houses, there were no less than 700 children in arms, giving the enormous average of nearly half a baby to each house; of seven hundred and forty-two knockers, there are six hundred and twenty out of reach of a child, eighty-nine want fresh painting, thirty-two are in tolerable repair, and the remaining one had been wrenched off since the Society's last survey.' A suggestion perhaps that research was esoteric and that data had little practical application.

Satirists will continue to lampoon the University; and it is good that we can occasionally laugh at ourselves. But when we look at our statistical records today, and particularly when we look at these in relation to our shared priorities as a university and the strategies that we have assembled to achieve them, we have much to celebrate.

In Education, where we are committed to attracting and admitting students from all backgrounds, our undergraduate numbers have grown by 4.6% to over 12,500, and postgraduate numbers have increased by a rate of 8.6% to just over 13,000 between 2019/20 and 2020/1.

And in our drive to make our intakes more diverse, it is pleasing that various initiatives such as Opportunity Oxford have worked well and that we have made rapid progress against nationally defined admissions targets by socio-economic status. And in ensuring that there is equity in outcome (difficult as this concept is), there are good indications, despite little and unstable data, that the outcomes gap is narrowing across groups by sex, race and disability. We look with great anticipation to the launch of Foundation Oxford next term, and to its contribution to our strategic goals.

Graduate access too has benefited from a number of initiatives including UNIQ+ and summer internships for aspiring doctoral students from non-traditional backgrounds, and the Black Academic Futures programme is showing a lot of promise.

In our goal to promote and enable ambitious research, research income has continued to grow and stands at over £650 million underwritten by nearly 8,000 research contracts; and that we continue to innovate can be judged by the fact that we have more than 150 spinout companies and that the social and economic impact from research is distributed across our divisions. To mention but a few: in Medical Sciences, in the development of vaccines to combat COVID-19 and malaria; in Humanities, on ethics in artificial intelligence; in Social Sciences, on childhood poverty and social inequalities; and in Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences, on quantum computing and rapid testing.

Our goal is to attract, recruit and retain people. Oxford is and we know will remain an attractive place to work, and those who do report positively on their experiences. Results from a recent staff survey show that engagement is high. For all that we are able to celebrate, we must be cautious. What we learn from this picture is that our people work hard, and there is perhaps some expectation that their efforts are acknowledged, if not better rewarded.

To attract people, we need to continue to find ways to expand our estate, and to provide more good-quality affordable housing. Our plans in this regard are well advanced, and long-term financial partnership arrangements offer a promising model to minimise the University's exposure to risk. But what is built and where, and to whom it should be attractive, is still far from clear.

To retain people, we must ensure that the environments that sustain our work are enabling and encourage innovation and creativity. The University's response lies in the White Paper, which aims to increase transparency and accountability and through funding settlements to give divisions and departments more control and authority over surplus income. There is no doubt that the White Paper will transform the financial management landscape of the University but we must be cautious that a shift of power through financial decentralisation to divisions does indeed offer incentives to departments and necessary protections of academic freedom.

We must redouble our efforts to look after people too, to ensure their welfare and wellbeing, and to reward them better for their efforts. Again, much is being done even against a backdrop of stretched services, and arguably continuing debates about the fairest ways to support all staff in these economically bleak times. To protect the lifeblood of fresh ideas, we must take better care of our growing numbers of research staff, many of whom are on short-term research contracts and without college memberships. Important work is underway to build and sustain a vibrant research culture and a lot will be expected from departments to mediate the professional growth trajectories of our young researchers.

At the other end of the age spectrum are those who contribute so much to secure our leading position in world university rankings and some are anxious that as they come up to the retirement age, they have more to give. In order to promote intergenerational fairness and equality and diversity in recruitment, the University has since 2011 maintained an Employer Justified Retirement Age policy. This is currently under review.

Two townhall meetings were held this year and it is clear that there are strong feelings about whether the EJRA serves the University's aims. Rising costs of living and the erosion of pensions, and the potential impact of this on younger generations of academics, as well as the confidence of older academics in their abilities to continue to contribute to the answers we seek to the wicked problems of today's world, combine to move the debate in one direction or another along a continuum of individual need and sacrifice for the collective good. Arrangements that work elsewhere are more difficult in Oxford and the EJRA review committee has mined unique data, that if followed will hopefully lead us some way to reducing the tension.

I want to end with a question that may exercise us for some time. We have, it is clear, done much to change Oxford, to align its vision to what we expect from a progressive university in a modern world. But have we done enough to transform it? For some, the answer is 'more than enough' while for others, it is 'not half enough'. And is that perhaps because the question is not a question?

The work of the Race Equalities Task Force has exposed many areas where we can do better, and must, and it is clear that for many, transformation goes beyond a shift in targets to changes in culture. And not just on questions of race - there have this year been many debates about the legitimacy of certain forms of language, on questions of sexual orientation and gender, on sexual violence, and on the freedom of academics to teach and debate hard questions on religion and nationalism amidst concerns about their personal safety. Expectations about what the University can or should do are high, if divergent, and we have seen the potential for these very difficult questions to test our collegiality. Much has happened this year to test our strength of belief in our fundamental principles of academic freedom and freedom of speech. If there was ever a time for the collegiate University to unite behind these, the pursuit of truth, justice and fairness - it is now.

Council

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences and of Medical Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Fabian Essler]
- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and of Social Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Aditi Lahiri]
- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being a member of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

Nominations from a diverse range of Congregation members are encouraged, particularly those from underrepresented groups.

The terms of reference and membership of Council are set out in Statute VI (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-vi-council). Council is chaired by the Vice-Chancellor and meets on Mondays of Weeks 4 and 9 of each term (Week 8 in Michaelmas term) and in July and September. Meetings begin at 2pm and usually last for two to three hours. Members of Council are the University's charity trustees and have a responsibility for ensuring that Council conducts itself in accordance with accepted standards of behaviour in public life, embracing selflessness, integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness, honesty and leadership. They must also play an appropriate part in ensuring that the business of Council is carried out effectively, efficiently and in a manner appropriate for the proper conduct of public business. Key skills include the ability to see issues from all angles, to discuss and question without being adversarial, to accept collective responsibility for decisions and to exercise common sense across a broad range of matters.

Elected members of Council will ordinarily be expected to serve on a small number of other committees (typically between one and three, usually including at least one of the main committees of Council, ie Education Committee, General Purposes Committee, Personnel Committee, Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, Research and Innovation Committee).

For further information, please contact Lara McCarthy (lara.mccarthy@admin.ox.ac.uk).

VISITORS OF THE ASHMOLEAN MUSEUM

- One member of Congregation from the Medical Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Martin Burton]
- One member of Congregation from the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Chris Lintott]

Further information on the Visitors can be found at: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-2-of-2019#collapse1420131.

The Visitors are responsible, under Council, for the safe keeping, preservation, orderly administration and general policy of the museum. The board meets five times a year and meetings usually last three to four hours. The role of the Congregation-elected members is to represent their division in the museum and represent the museum within their division. The board would welcome members with an understanding of the potential of the University museum and its collections to support the University's teaching and research agendas. The museum is currently engaged specifically with two areas which may be of relevance to candidates from the Medical Sciences Division - social prescribing and developing a secure evidence base for the beneficial impact of museums and cultural institutions for mental health and wellbeing.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (xa.sturgis@ashmus.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE

- Two members of Congregation elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Helen McShane and Professor James Naismith]

The role of the Nominations Committee is to recommend candidates for external membership of Council, and to keep under review the criteria for the selection and election of members. Candidates should have an understanding of the work of Council and of the qualities required in an external member. The committee has ten members, including three members of Council (two external), the Assessor, two representatives of the faculties and four members of Congregation elected by Congregation. The committee meets on an ad hoc basis when a vacancy arises on Council; this means that there will sometimes be lengthy periods between meetings followed by a more intense period of activity, with several meetings and interviews taking place in a single term.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-26-nominations-committee). For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATING COMMITTEE FOR THE VICE-CHANCELLORSHIP

- Two persons, not also being members of Council, elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2029 [vice Professor James Naismith and Dr Sam Wolfe]

The Nominating Committee for the Vice-Chancellorship reports to Council with a recommendation that a named individual be appointed as the next Vice-Chancellor. Council then submits to Congregation the name of the individual proposed for appointment. The membership of the committee includes members representing different elements of the University, including Conference of Colleges, the academic divisions and Congregation, as well as members appointed by Council. The committee is currently concluding the nomination process for the next Vice-Chancellor and in the normal course of events would not be expected to meet again until the next Vice-Chancellor is coming to the end of their seven-year term.

Further information on the committee can be found in regulation 6 of Council Regulations 21 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-21-of-2002#widget-id-1426076).

For further information, please contact Antony Willott (antony.willott@admin.ox.ac.uk).

PANEL FOR CONSTITUTING THE VISITATORIAL BOARD UNDER STATUTE XII PART C

- Three members of Congregation required to engage in academic teaching and/or research either by their written contracts of employment or by established and agreed practice elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Helen McShane, Dr Elizabeth Ewart and Dr Tom Sanders]

The Visitatorial Board is able to hear employment matters (complaints and dismissals) where there is a question of academic freedom to be resolved, though for a first hearing the staff member may elect to have the matter heard by an employment review panel instead. The board consists of four members selected from a panel of twelve members of Congregation, who must be engaged in teaching or research. The chair is an external appointee who brings legal experience and an external voice to the panel. The Visitatorial Board meets rarely (the last time was in 2016); it previously had a wider remit but this was significantly limited when Statute XII was amended in 2017. However, being a panel member is an important role as it is essential that the University is able to form a board so that a hearing can take place if required.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board#widget-id-1383011.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

- Five members of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Dr Liam Gearon, Harris Manchester; Dr Eveline D James, Business Administration; Dr J B Katz, St Anne's; The Revd Canon Dr Judith D Maltby, Corpus Christi; and Professor Lucia Zedner, All Souls]

The Prevent Steering Group is responsible for: (i) ensuring that appropriate policies and practices are in place to comply with the Prevent Duty guidance in a risk-based, proportionate manner; (ii) monitoring the University's implementation of the Prevent Duty; and (iii) advising Council on the implementation of the Prevent Duty, such that Council is able to comply with the requirements of the monitoring authority (Office for Students). The Steering Group is currently chaired by the University Registrar and comprised of representatives from the academic divisions, elected members of Congregation, UAS and the Oxford University Student Union. Meetings are held in Michaelmas and Trinity terms and usually last for around one hour.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/prevent/steering-group.

On 31 May 2016, Congregation approved 'That the University's Prevent Steering Group be afforced with a minimum of five elected members of Congregation by 0th week MT 2016'. This election will be conducted under the regulations set out in Part 8 of Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/congregation-regulations-2-of-2002#collapse1396971).

For further information, please contact the Secretary (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Divisional Boards

MATHEMATICAL, PHYSICAL AND LIFE SCIENCES BOARD

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Mathematics to serve until the start of MT 2024 [vice Professor Balazs Szendroi]
- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Materials to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Nicole Grobert]
- Two persons elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Biology to serve until the start of MT 2026 [new positions]

Note: Amendments to regulation 10 of Council Regulations 17 of 2002, to reflect the creation of the new Department of Biology following the merger of the existing Departments of Plant Sciences and Zoology (see Gazette No 5314, 27 May 2021, p431), will be effective from 1 August 2022. Within that context, the division would welcome continued representation on the board by elected members from both the existing Faculties of Plant Sciences and Zoology.

The board meets twice a term (on Fridays of Weeks 2 and 7) with meetings lasting for up to two hours. The Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Board is the primary legislative body for the division, but also acts as a forum for strategic discussion and a conduit for leading and facilitating change. Recent meetings have included sessions on inclusive leadership, environmental sustainability, and a 10-year vision for MPLS. Each meeting starts with a short 'science highlight' from a department which showcases the excellent research found across the division and reminds the board why we are all here.

MPLS welcomes nominations from staff who would bring a diversity of points of view to discussion. That might include, but is not limited to, working in an interdisciplinary research area, perspectives gained from working outside Oxford, or staff at earlier career stages or from under-represented groups.

For further information, please contact the Divisional Registrar (tracy.gale@mpls.ox.ac.uk).

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate's statement

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday 25 May, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will also be published in the Gazette dated 26 May. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 9 June.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 12 May. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of MT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Elections

Elections 9 June

Please note: in the lists below, the names listed are simply those of the persons currently in office, whose terms of office are now coming to a close (thereby prompting all the vacancies now advertised for election).

Call for nominations

The nomination period for the elections below will close at 4pm on 12 May. For further information, please contact elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Council

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences and of Medical Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Fabian Essler]
- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and of Social Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Aditi Lahiri]
- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being a member of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

Nominations from a diverse range of Congregation members are encouraged, particularly those from underrepresented groups.

The terms of reference and membership of Council are set out in Statute VI (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-vi-council). Council is chaired by the Vice-Chancellor and meets on Mondays of Weeks 4 and 9 of each term (Week 8 in Michaelmas term) and in July and September. Meetings begin at 2pm and usually last for two to three hours. Members of Council are the University's charity trustees and have a responsibility for ensuring that Council conducts itself in accordance with accepted standards of behaviour in public life, embracing selflessness, integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness, honesty and leadership. They must also play an appropriate part in ensuring that the business of Council is carried out effectively, efficiently and in a manner appropriate for the proper conduct of public business. Key skills include the ability to see issues from all angles, to discuss and question without being adversarial, to accept collective responsibility for decisions and to exercise common sense across a broad range of matters.

Elected members of Council will ordinarily be expected to serve on a small number of other committees (typically between one and three, usually including at least one of the main committees of Council, ie Education Committee, General Purposes Committee, Personnel Committee, Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, Research and Innovation Committee).

For further information, please contact Lara McCarthy (lara.mccarthy@admin.ox.ac.uk).

VISITORS OF THE ASHMOLEAN MUSEUM

- One member of Congregation from the Medical Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Martin Burton]
- One member of Congregation from the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Chris Lintott]

Further information on the Visitors can be found at: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-2-of-2019#collapse1420131.

The Visitors are responsible, under Council, for the safe keeping, preservation, orderly administration and general policy of the museum. The board meets five times a year and meetings usually last three to four hours. The role of the Congregation-elected members is to represent their division in the museum and represent the museum within their division. The board would welcome members with an understanding of the potential of the University museum and its collections to support the University's teaching and research agendas. The museum is currently engaged specifically with two areas which may be of relevance to candidates from the Medical Sciences Division - social prescribing and developing a secure evidence base for the beneficial impact of museums and cultural institutions for mental health and wellbeing.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (xa.sturgis@ashmus.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE

- Two members of Congregation elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Helen McShane and Professor James Naismith]

The role of the Nominations Committee is to recommend candidates for external membership of Council, and to keep under review the criteria for the selection and election of members. Candidates should have an understanding of the work of Council and of the qualities required in an external member. The committee has ten members, including three members of Council (two external), the Assessor, two representatives of the faculties and four members of Congregation elected by Congregation. The committee meets on an ad hoc basis when a vacancy arises on Council; this means that there will sometimes be lengthy periods between meetings followed by a more intense period of activity, with several meetings and interviews taking place in a single term.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-26-nominations-committee). For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATING COMMITTEE FOR THE VICE-CHANCELLORSHIP

- Two persons, not also being members of Council, elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2029 [vice Professor James Naismith and Dr Sam Wolfe]

The Nominating Committee for the Vice-Chancellorship reports to Council with a recommendation that a named individual be appointed as the next Vice-Chancellor. Council then submits to Congregation the name of the individual proposed for appointment. The membership of the committee includes members representing different elements of the University, including Conference of Colleges, the academic divisions and Congregation, as well as members appointed by Council. The committee is currently concluding the nomination process for the next Vice-Chancellor and in the normal course of events would not be expected to meet again until the next Vice-Chancellor is coming to the end of their seven-year term.

Further information on the committee can be found in regulation 6 of Council Regulations 21 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-21-of-2002#widget-id-1426076).

For further information, please contact Antony Willott (antony.willott@admin.ox.ac.uk).

PANEL FOR CONSTITUTING THE VISITATORIAL BOARD UNDER STATUTE XII PART C

- Three members of Congregation required to engage in academic teaching and/or research either by their written contracts of employment or by established and agreed practice elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Helen McShane, Dr Elizabeth Ewart and Dr Tom Sanders]

The Visitatorial Board is able to hear employment matters (complaints and dismissals) where there is a question of academic freedom to be resolved, though for a first hearing the staff member may elect to have the matter heard by an employment review panel instead. The board consists of four members selected from a panel of twelve members of Congregation, who must be engaged in teaching or research. The chair is an external appointee who brings legal experience and an external voice to the panel. The Visitatorial Board meets rarely (the last time was in 2016); it previously had a wider remit but this was significantly limited when Statute XII was amended in 2017. However, being a panel member is an important role as it is essential that the University is able to form a board so that a hearing can take place if required.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board#widget-id-1383011.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

- Five members of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Dr Liam Gearon, Harris Manchester; Dr Eveline D James, Business Administration; Dr J B Katz, St Anne's; The Revd Canon Dr Judith D Maltby, Corpus Christi; and Professor Lucia Zedner, All Souls]

The Prevent Steering Group is responsible for: (i) ensuring that appropriate policies and practices are in place to comply with the Prevent Duty guidance in a risk-based, proportionate manner; (ii) monitoring the University's implementation of the Prevent Duty; and (iii) advising Council on the implementation of the Prevent Duty, such that Council is able to comply with the requirements of the monitoring authority (Office for Students). The Steering Group is currently chaired by the University Registrar and comprised of representatives from the academic divisions, elected members of Congregation, UAS and the Oxford University Student Union. Meetings are held in Michaelmas and Trinity terms and usually last for around one hour.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/prevent/steering-group.

On 31 May 2016, Congregation approved 'That the University's Prevent Steering Group be afforced with a minimum of five elected members of Congregation by 0th week MT 2016'. This election will be conducted under the regulations set out in Part 8 of Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/congregation-regulations-2-of-2002#collapse1396971).

For further information, please contact the Secretary (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Divisional Boards

MATHEMATICAL, PHYSICAL AND LIFE SCIENCES BOARD

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Mathematics to serve until the start of MT 2024 [vice Professor Balazs Szendroi]
- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Materials to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Nicole Grobert]
- Two persons elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Biology to serve until the start of MT 2026 [new positions]

Note: Amendments to regulation 10 of Council Regulations 17 of 2002, to reflect the creation of the new Department of Biology following the merger of the existing Departments of Plant Sciences and Zoology (see Gazette No 5314, 27 May 2021, p431), will be effective from 1 August 2022. Within that context, the division would welcome continued representation on the board by elected members from both the existing Faculties of Plant Sciences and Zoology.

The board meets twice a term (on Fridays of Weeks 2 and 7) with meetings lasting for up to two hours. The Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Board is the primary legislative body for the division, but also acts as a forum for strategic discussion and a conduit for leading and facilitating change. Recent meetings have included sessions on inclusive leadership, environmental sustainability, and a 10-year vision for MPLS. Each meeting starts with a short 'science highlight' from a department which showcases the excellent research found across the division and reminds the board why we are all here.

MPLS welcomes nominations from staff who would bring a diversity of points of view to discussion. That might include, but is not limited to, working in an interdisciplinary research area, perspectives gained from working outside Oxford, or staff at earlier career stages or from under-represented groups.

For further information, please contact the Divisional Registrar (tracy.gale@mpls.ox.ac.uk).

SOCIAL SCIENCES BOARD

- One member elected by and from the academic members of the Faculty of Law, to serve until the start of MT 2024
- One member elected by and from the academic members of the Department of Politics and International Relations, to serve until the start of MT 2024
- One member elected by and from the academic members of the Saïd Business School, to serve until the start of MT 2024

Under the regulations governing the composition of divisional boards, the above vacancies fall within the single constituency of 'three persons elected on a rotational basis by and from academic members of the following units of the division, with each person serving a two-year period of office: (a) the Department of Economics; (b) the Department of Education; (c) the Faculty of Law; (d) the Department of Politics and International Relations; (e) the School of Geography and the Environment; (f) the Saïd Business School'. The last units elected to this constituency were (i) the Department of Economics; (ii) the Department of Education; and (iii) the School of Geography and the Environment.

The board meets twice a term and meetings generally last for around two hours.

For further information about the board, please contact the Secretary (mark.mcdermott@socsci.ox.ac.uk).

- Four persons elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics to serve until the start of MT 2024 [vice Professor Wolfgang de Melo, Dr Elinor Payne, Dr Richard Ashdowne and Dr S Paoli]

These include minutes of previous meetings, reports from working groups, proposals, applications for funding, and draft policy documents from University committees. The quantity of reading material varies, but when there are draft policy documents to consider (lately there have been many) this can be of the order of 100 pages.

General requirements and eligibility

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate's statement

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday 25 May, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). Candidates' statements will also be published in the Gazette dated 26 May. Voters may wish to read these statements before completing their electronic vote. The voting period will close at 4pm on 9 June.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 12 May. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of MT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. Submission of an advertisement implies acceptance of our terms and conditions, which may be found at https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/terms-and-conditions-acceptance-advertisements, and may also be obtained on application to gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Council

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences and of Medical Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Fabian Essler]
- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and of Social Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Aditi Lahiri]
- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being a member of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

Nominations from a diverse range of Congregation members are encouraged, particularly those from underrepresented groups.

The terms of reference and membership of Council are set out in Statute VI (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-vi-council). Council is chaired by the Vice-Chancellor and meets on Mondays of Weeks 4 and 9 of each term (Week 8 in Michaelmas term) and in July and September. Meetings begin at 2pm and usually last for two to three hours. Members of Council are the University's charity trustees and have a responsibility for ensuring that Council conducts itself in accordance with accepted standards of behaviour in public life, embracing selflessness, integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness, honesty and leadership. They must also play an appropriate part in ensuring that the business of Council is carried out effectively, efficiently and in a manner appropriate for the proper conduct of public business. Key skills include the ability to see issues from all angles, to discuss and question without being adversarial, to accept collective responsibility for decisions and to exercise common sense across a broad range of matters.

Elected members of Council will ordinarily be expected to serve on a small number of other committees (typically between one and three, usually including at least one of the main committees of Council, ie Education Committee, General Purposes Committee, Personnel Committee, Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, Research and Innovation Committee).

For further information, please contact Lara McCarthy (lara.mccarthy@admin.ox.ac.uk).

VISITORS OF THE ASHMOLEAN MUSEUM

- One member of Congregation from the Medical Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Martin Burton]
- One member of Congregation from the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Chris Lintott]

Further information on the Visitors can be found at: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-2-of-2019#collapse1420131.

The Visitors are responsible, under Council, for the safe keeping, preservation, orderly administration and general policy of the museum. The board meets five times a year and meetings usually last three to four hours. The role of the Congregation-elected members is to represent their division in the museum and represent the museum within their division. The board would welcome members with an understanding of the potential of the University museum and its collections to support the University's teaching and research agendas. The museum is currently engaged specifically with two areas which may be of relevance to candidates from the Medical Sciences Division - social prescribing and developing a secure evidence base for the beneficial impact of museums and cultural institutions for mental health and wellbeing.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (xa.sturgis@ashmus.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE

- Two members of Congregation elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Helen McShane and Professor James Naismith]

The role of the Nominations Committee is to recommend candidates for external membership of Council, and to keep under review the criteria for the selection and election of members. Candidates should have an understanding of the work of Council and of the qualities required in an external member. The committee has ten members, including three members of Council (two external), the Assessor, two representatives of the faculties and four members of Congregation elected by Congregation. The committee meets on an ad hoc basis when a vacancy arises on Council; this means that there will sometimes be lengthy periods between meetings followed by a more intense period of activity, with several meetings and interviews taking place in a single term.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-26-nominations-committee). For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATING COMMITTEE FOR THE VICE-CHANCELLORSHIP

- Two persons, not also being members of Council, elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2029 [vice Professor James Naismith and Dr Sam Wolfe]

The Nominating Committee for the Vice-Chancellorship reports to Council with a recommendation that a named individual be appointed as the next Vice-Chancellor. Council then submits to Congregation the name of the individual proposed for appointment. The membership of the committee includes members representing different elements of the University, including Conference of Colleges, the academic divisions and Congregation, as well as members appointed by Council. The committee is currently concluding the nomination process for the next Vice-Chancellor and in the normal course of events would not be expected to meet again until the next Vice-Chancellor is coming to the end of their seven-year term.

Further information on the committee can be found in regulation 6 of Council Regulations 21 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-21-of-2002#widget-id-1426076).

For further information, please contact Antony Willott (antony.willott@admin.ox.ac.uk).

PANEL FOR CONSTITUTING THE VISITATORIAL BOARD UNDER STATUTE XII PART C

- Three members of Congregation required to engage in academic teaching and/or research either by their written contracts of employment or by established and agreed practice elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Helen McShane, Dr Elizabeth Ewart and Dr Tom Sanders]

The Visitatorial Board is able to hear employment matters (complaints and dismissals) where there is a question of academic freedom to be resolved, though for a first hearing the staff member may elect to have the matter heard by an employment review panel instead. The board consists of four members selected from a panel of twelve members of Congregation, who must be engaged in teaching or research. The chair is an external appointee who brings legal experience and an external voice to the panel. The Visitatorial Board meets rarely (the last time was in 2016); it previously had a wider remit but this was significantly limited when Statute XII was amended in 2017. However, being a panel member is an important role as it is essential that the University is able to form a board so that a hearing can take place if required.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board#widget-id-1383011.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

- Five members of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Dr Liam Gearon, Harris Manchester; Dr Eveline D James, Business Administration; Dr J B Katz, St Anne's; The Revd Canon Dr Judith D Maltby, Corpus Christi; and Professor Lucia Zedner, All Souls]

The Prevent Steering Group is responsible for: (i) ensuring that appropriate policies and practices are in place to comply with the Prevent Duty guidance in a risk-based, proportionate manner; (ii) monitoring the University's implementation of the Prevent Duty; and (iii) advising Council on the implementation of the Prevent Duty, such that Council is able to comply with the requirements of the monitoring authority (Office for Students). The Steering Group is currently chaired by the University Registrar and comprised of representatives from the academic divisions, elected members of Congregation, UAS and the Oxford University Student Union. Meetings are held in Michaelmas and Trinity terms and usually last for around one hour.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/prevent/steering-group.

On 31 May 2016, Congregation approved 'That the University's Prevent Steering Group be afforced with a minimum of five elected members of Congregation by 0th week MT 2016'. This election will be conducted under the regulations set out in Part 8 of Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/congregation-regulations-2-of-2002#collapse1396971).

For further information, please contact the Secretary (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Divisional Boards

MATHEMATICAL, PHYSICAL AND LIFE SCIENCES BOARD

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Mathematics to serve until the start of MT 2024 [vice Professor Balazs Szendroi]
- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Materials to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Nicole Grobert]
- Two persons elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Biology to serve until the start of MT 2026 [new positions]

Note: Amendments to regulation 10 of Council Regulations 17 of 2002, to reflect the creation of the new Department of Biology following the merger of the existing Departments of Plant Sciences and Zoology (see Gazette No 5314, 27 May 2021, p431), will be effective from 1 August 2022. Within that context, the division would welcome continued representation on the board by elected members from both the existing Faculties of Plant Sciences and Zoology.

The board meets twice a term (on Fridays of Weeks 2 and 7) with meetings lasting for up to two hours. The Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Board is the primary legislative body for the division, but also acts as a forum for strategic discussion and a conduit for leading and facilitating change. Recent meetings have included sessions on inclusive leadership, environmental sustainability, and a 10-year vision for MPLS. Each meeting starts with a short 'science highlight' from a department which showcases the excellent research found across the division and reminds the board why we are all here.

MPLS welcomes nominations from staff who would bring a diversity of points of view to discussion. That might include, but is not limited to, working in an interdisciplinary research area, perspectives gained from working outside Oxford, or staff at earlier career stages or from under-represented groups.

For further information, please contact the Divisional Registrar (tracy.gale@mpls.ox.ac.uk).

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 12 May. Elections

Elections 9 June

Please note: in the lists below, the names listed are simply those of the persons currently in office, whose terms of office are now coming to a close (thereby prompting all the vacancies now advertised for election).

Call for nominations

The nomination period for the elections below will close at 4pm on 12 May. For further information, please contact elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Council

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences and of Medical Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Fabian Essler]
- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and of Social Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Aditi Lahiri]
- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being a member of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

Nominations from a diverse range of Congregation members are encouraged, particularly those from underrepresented groups.

The terms of reference and membership of Council are set out in Statute VI (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-vi-council). Council is chaired by the Vice-Chancellor and meets on Mondays of Weeks 4 and 9 of each term (Week 8 in Michaelmas term) and in July and September. Meetings begin at 2pm and usually last for two to three hours. Members of Council are the University's charity trustees and have a responsibility for ensuring that Council conducts itself in accordance with accepted standards of behaviour in public life, embracing selflessness, integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness, honesty and leadership. They must also play an appropriate part in ensuring that the business of Council is carried out effectively, efficiently and in a manner appropriate for the proper conduct of public business. Key skills include the ability to see issues from all angles, to discuss and question without being adversarial, to accept collective responsibility for decisions and to exercise common sense across a broad range of matters.

Elected members of Council will ordinarily be expected to serve on a small number of other committees (typically between one and three, usually including at least one of the main committees of Council, ie Education Committee, General Purposes Committee, Personnel Committee, Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, Research and Innovation Committee).

For further information, please contact Lara McCarthy (lara.mccarthy@admin.ox.ac.uk).

VISITORS OF THE ASHMOLEAN MUSEUM

- One member of Congregation from the Medical Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Martin Burton]
- One member of Congregation from the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Chris Lintott]

Further information on the Visitors can be found at: https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-2-of-2019#collapse1420131.

The Visitors are responsible, under Council, for the safe keeping, preservation, orderly administration and general policy of the museum. The board meets five times a year and meetings usually last three to four hours. The role of the Congregation-elected members is to represent their division in the museum and represent the museum within their division. The board would welcome members with an understanding of the potential of the University museum and its collections to support the University's teaching and research agendas. The museum is currently engaged specifically with two areas which may be of relevance to candidates from the Medical Sciences Division - social prescribing and developing a secure evidence base for the beneficial impact of museums and cultural institutions for mental health and wellbeing.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (xa.sturgis@ashmus.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE

- Two members of Congregation elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Professor Helen McShane and Professor James Naismith]

The role of the Nominations Committee is to recommend candidates for external membership of Council, and to keep under review the criteria for the selection and election of members. Candidates should have an understanding of the work of Council and of the qualities required in an external member. The committee has ten members, including three members of Council (two external), the Assessor, two representatives of the faculties and four members of Congregation elected by Congregation. The committee meets on an ad hoc basis when a vacancy arises on Council; this means that there will sometimes be lengthy periods between meetings followed by a more intense period of activity, with several meetings and interviews taking place in a single term.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/part-26-nominations-committee). For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

NOMINATING COMMITTEE FOR THE VICE-CHANCELLORSHIP

- Two persons, not also being members of Council, elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2029 [vice Professor James Naismith and Dr Sam Wolfe]

The Nominating Committee for the Vice-Chancellorship reports to Council with a recommendation that a named individual be appointed as the next Vice-Chancellor. Council then submits to Congregation the name of the individual proposed for appointment. The membership of the committee includes members representing different elements of the University, including Conference of Colleges, the academic divisions and Congregation, as well as members appointed by Council. The committee is currently concluding the nomination process for the next Vice-Chancellor and in the normal course of events would not be expected to meet again until the next Vice-Chancellor is coming to the end of their seven-year term.

Further information on the committee can be found in regulation 6 of Council Regulations 21 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-21-of-2002#widget-id-1426076).

For further information, please contact Antony Willott (antony.willott@admin.ox.ac.uk).

PANEL FOR CONSTITUTING THE VISITATORIAL BOARD UNDER STATUTE XII PART C

- Three members of Congregation required to engage in academic teaching and/or research either by their written contracts of employment or by established and agreed practice elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Helen McShane, Dr Elizabeth Ewart and Dr Tom Sanders]

The Visitatorial Board is able to hear employment matters (complaints and dismissals) where there is a question of academic freedom to be resolved, though for a first hearing the staff member may elect to have the matter heard by an employment review panel instead. The board consists of four members selected from a panel of twelve members of Congregation, who must be engaged in teaching or research. The chair is an external appointee who brings legal experience and an external voice to the panel. The Visitatorial Board meets rarely (the last time was in 2016); it previously had a wider remit but this was significantly limited when Statute XII was amended in 2017. However, being a panel member is an important role as it is essential that the University is able to form a board so that a hearing can take place if required.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-xii-academic-staff-and-the-visitatorial-board#widget-id-1383011.

For further information, please contact the Secretary (rebecca.thomas@admin.ox.ac.uk).

- Five members of Congregation elected by Congregation to serve until the start of MT 2025 [vice Dr Liam Gearon, Harris Manchester; Dr Eveline D James, Business Administration; Dr J B Katz, St Anne's; The Revd Canon Dr Judith D Maltby, Corpus Christi; and Professor Lucia Zedner, All Souls]

The Prevent Steering Group is responsible for: (i) ensuring that appropriate policies and practices are in place to comply with the Prevent Duty guidance in a risk-based, proportionate manner; (ii) monitoring the University's implementation of the Prevent Duty; and (iii) advising Council on the implementation of the Prevent Duty, such that Council is able to comply with the requirements of the monitoring authority (Office for Students). The Steering Group is currently chaired by the University Registrar and comprised of representatives from the academic divisions, elected members of Congregation, UAS and the Oxford University Student Union. Meetings are held in Michaelmas and Trinity terms and usually last for around one hour.

The terms of reference and membership are set out at https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/prevent/steering-group.

On 31 May 2016, Congregation approved 'That the University's Prevent Steering Group be afforced with a minimum of five elected members of Congregation by 0th week MT 2016'. This election will be conducted under the regulations set out in Part 8 of Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/congregation-regulations-2-of-2002#collapse1396971).

For further information, please contact the Secretary (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Divisional Boards

MATHEMATICAL, PHYSICAL AND LIFE SCIENCES BOARD

- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Mathematics to serve until the start of MT 2024 [vice Professor Balazs Szendroi]
- One person elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Materials to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Nicole Grobert]
- Two persons elected by and from among the members of the Faculty of Biology to serve until the start of MT 2026 [new positions]

Note: Amendments to regulation 10 of Council Regulations 17 of 2002, to reflect the creation of the new Department of Biology following the merger of the existing Departments of Plant Sciences and Zoology (see Gazette No 5314, 27 May 2021, p431), will be effective from 1 August 2022. Within that context, the division would welcome continued representation on the board by elected members from both the existing Faculties of Plant Sciences and Zoology.

The board meets twice a term (on Fridays of Weeks 2 and 7) with meetings lasting for up to two hours. The Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Board is the primary legislative body for the division, but also acts as a forum for strategic discussion and a conduit for leading and facilitating change. Recent meetings have included sessions on inclusive leadership, environmental sustainability, and a 10-year vision for MPLS. Each meeting starts with a short 'science highlight' from a department which showcases the excellent research found across the division and reminds the board why we are all here.

MPLS welcomes nominations from staff who would bring a diversity of points of view to discussion. That might include, but is not limited to, working in an interdisciplinary research area, perspectives gained from working outside Oxford, or staff at earlier career stages or from under-represented groups.

For further information, please contact the Divisional Registrar (tracy.gale@mpls.ox.ac.uk).

SOCIAL SCIENCES BOARD

- One member elected by and from the academic members of the Faculty of Law, to serve until the start of MT 2024
- One member elected by and from the academic members of the Department of Politics and International Relations, to serve until the start of MT 2024
- One member elected by and from the academic members of the Saïd Business School, to serve until the start of MT 2024

Under the regulations governing the composition of divisional boards, the above vacancies fall within the single constituency of 'three persons elected on a rotational basis by and from academic members of the following units of the division, with each person serving a two-year period of office: (a) the Department of Economics; (b) the Department of Education; (c) the Faculty of Law; (d) the Department of Politics and International Relations; (e) the School of Geography and the Environment; (f) the Saïd Business School'. The last units elected to this constituency were (i) the Department of Economics; (ii) the Department of Education; and (iii) the School of Geography and the Environment.

All candidates are asked to note the general requirements which apply to all committee members, as set out in Council Regulations 14 of 2002 (General Regulations of Council for Committees (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-14-of-2002)). Current members seeking re-election are also asked to check for specific restrictions on consecutive service. For further information, please see the eligibility (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections-by-congregation#collapse1580081) and amendments to nominations (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/key-election-stages-and-procedures#collapse1577651) sections within the Information about University elections (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/information-about-university-elections) pages of the Elections website (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/elections).

Candidate's statement

Candidates are invited to include with their nomination forms a written statement of no more than 250 words, setting out their reasons for standing and qualifications for the office being sought. In the event of a contested election, these statements will be published both online and in the Gazette.

Contested elections

In the event of a contested election, the successful candidates will be determined by an electronic ballot. An email with further instructions will be sent to eligible voters on Wednesday 25 May, using the email addresses provided in the electronic register of Congregation (NB with few exceptions, notably clinical staff, this will be the work address ending 'ox.ac.uk'). The voting period will close at 4pm on 9 June.

Uncontested elections

If the number of nominations received by the closing date is no more than sufficient to fill the vacancies, the candidates nominated shall be deemed to be duly elected as of the close of the nomination period on Thursday, 12 May. When required, places will be allocated according to academic standing, as defined in Council Regulations 22 of 2002, Part 2: Academic Precedence and Standing (https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-22-of-2002). If the number of nominations received by the closing date is less than sufficient to fill the vacancies, those candidates nominated will be deemed elected unopposed, and the remaining vacancies will lapse, in which case, in accordance with the regulations, the places must remain vacant until appointments are made jointly by the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors.

Period of office

All vacancies are from the beginning of MT 2022 unless otherwise stated. In accordance with Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002, in any election where vacancies are to be filled for periods of different length, the elected candidates shall hold office so that the tenure of those who receive more votes shall be longer than that of those who receive fewer votes; but if the election is uncontested or if two candidates receive the same number of votes, the candidate senior in academic standing shall hold office for the longer period.

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Disclaimer

8. The University of Oxford accepts no responsibility for the content of any advertisement published in the Gazette. Readers should note that the inclusion of any advertisement in no way implies approval or recommendation of either the terms of any offer contained in it or of the advertiser by the University of Oxford.

a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. Explanatory Note

Council has approved a proposal from the Medical Sciences Division to establish a new degree of Master in Science in Experimental Psychology, and a new degree of Master in Science in Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics. The new four-year MSci in Experimental Psychology, to be introduced from October 2022, builds on the existing BA in Experimental Psychology with the opportunity to take a new fourth year at master's level. Likewise, the new four-year MSci in Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics, to be introduced from October 2022, builds on the existing BA in Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics with the opportunity to take a new fourth year at master's level.

To implement that decision, changes are required to Statute X and to Congregation Regulations 3 of 2002 to add the degrees. Changes are also required to Council Regulations 22 of 2002, concerning academic precedence and standing.

WHEREAS it is expedient to establish the degrees of Master in Science in Experimental Psychology and Master in Science in Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics THE UNIVERSITY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS.

1 In section 1 of Statute X, after 'Master of Engineering', insert 'Master in Science in Experimental Psychology'.

2 In section 1 of Statute X, after 'Master of Physics and Philosophy', insert 'Master in Science in Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics'.

3 In regulation 4.2 (1) of Congregation Regulations 3 of 2002, concerning the conduct of ceremonies in Congregation, and certain other ceremonies, amend as follows (new text underlined):

3 Ibid, in regulation 4.3, amend paragraph (21) as follows (new text underlined):

'(21) Master of Biochemistry, Biology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Earth Sciences, Engineering, Mathematics, Physics, Mathematics and Computer Science, Mathematics and Philosophy, Mathematics and Physics, Physics and Philosophy, Computer Science and Philosophy, and Biomedical Sciences; Master in Science in Experimental Psychology, and Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics

Insignissime, etc, praesento vobis hos meos scholares et has meas scholares in facultate Artium, ut admittantur ad gradum Magistri in illis scientiis quae in schedula a Registrario publicata scriptae sunt.'

4 Ibid, in regulation 4.4, amend paragraph (16) as follows (new text underlined):

'(16) Master of Biochemistry, Biology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Earth Sciences, Engineering, Mathematics, Physics, Mathematics and Computer Science, Mathematics and Philosophy, Mathematics and Physics, Physics and Philosophy, Computer Science and Philosophy, and Biomedical Sciences; Master in Science in Experimental Psychology, and Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics

Domini, ego admitto vos ad gradum Magistri in Biochimia, vel Biologia, vel Chimia, vel Scientia Computatoria, vel Scientiis Terrenis, vel Ingeniaria, vel Mathematica, vel Physica, vel Mathematica et Scientia Computatoria, vel Mathematica et Philosophia, vel Mathematica et Physica, vel Physica et Philosophia, vel Scientia Computatoria et Philosophia, vel Scientiis Biomedicis, vel ad gradum Magistri in Scientia in Psychologia Experimentali, vel in Psychologia, Philosophia et Linguistica, prout in schedula a Registrario scriptum est; insuper auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis, do vobis potestatem legendi, et reliqua omnia faciendi quae ad eundem gradum spectant.'

Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved

1 In regulation 2.1 of Council Regulations 22 of 2002, concerning academic precedence and standing, amend as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck though):

'Master of Arts, or Master of Biochemistry or Biology or Biomedical Sciences or Chemistry or Computer Science or Computer Science and Philosophy or Earth Sciences or Engineering or Mathematics or Mathematics and Computer Science or Mathematics and Philosophy, or Mathematics and Physics or Physics or Physics and Philosophy with effect from the twenty-first term from matriculation[2], or Master in Science in Experimental Psychology or Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics with effect from the twenty-first term from matriculation[2]'.

2 Ibid, in regulation 2.1, amend footnote 2 as follows (new text underlined):

'[2] If the Degree of Master of Biochemistry or Biology or Biomedical Sciences or Chemistry or Computer Science or Computer Science and Philosophy or Earth Sciences or Engineering or Mathematics or Mathematics and Computer Science or Mathematics and Philosophy or Mathematics and Physics or Physics or Physics and Philosophy, or the Degree of Master in Science in Experimental Psychology or Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics, is held together with a higher degree, the holder will rank in precedence equally with a person who holds the same higher degree together with the Degree of Master of Arts.'

3 Ibid, in regulation 2.1, amend as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck though):

'Bachelor of Arts, or Master of Biochemistry or Biology or Biomedical Sciences or Chemistry or Computer Science or Computer Science and Philosophy or Earth Sciences or Engineering or Mathematics or Mathematics and Computer Science or Mathematics and Philosophy or Mathematics and Physics or Physics or Physics and Philosophy, or Master in Science in Experimental Psychology or Psychology, Philosophy and Linguistics until the twenty-first term from matriculation'.

4 Ibid, in Part 3, after 'Master of Physics and Philosophy (MPhysPhil)' insert 'Master in Science (MSci)'.

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and of Social Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Aditi Lahiri]

The following nominations have been received:

Nandini Gooptu, BA Calcutta, PhD Camb, St Antony's, Department of International Development

Nominated by:
Professor David Gellner, All Souls, Anthropology and Museum Ethnography
Professor Christopher Gerry, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies

Professor Timothy Power, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea,

St Antony's, International Development
Professor Julia Smith, All Souls, History
Professor Nikita Sud, Wolfson, International Development

Candidate statement:
Oxford faces a number of challenges that will require a rethinking of many of our strategies, structures and practices. In this critical period, I will advocate in Council an approach that emphasises the impact of change on our working lives and our students. In nearly three decades at Oxford, I have gained an understanding of the experience of work in various contexts and at different career stages, which I shall bring to bear on Council deliberations.

Significant financial pressures will affect our academic resources and the working conditions of both permanent and fixed-term staff. The climate crisis necessitates a change in our work practices and the adoption of new technology for overseas research and collaborations, and much else. EDI matters have assumed an urgency for both staff and students.

These are but a few of the issues that will affect us all and require strategies alive to the needs of students and staff, that I am well placed to represent. I teach graduates and undergraduates across several departments and faculties (International Development, Area Studies, Politics, History). I work both as a sole researcher and in a team with external funding. I have been Head of Department, and have had a variety of student and staff-facing roles and academic administration responsibilities, ranging from Director of Graduate Studies and Senior Tutor to membership of the University's Personnel Committee, Research Staff Working Group, Equality and Diversity Unit, Visitatorial Board, Grievance Committee and the Conference of Colleges Steering Committee and Appeals Tribunal.

Professor Helen Margetts, BSc Brist, MSc PhD LSE, Mansfield, Oxford Internet Institute

Nominated by:
Professor Helen Mountfield, Principal of Mansfield, Law
Professor Roger Goodman, Master of St Anthony's, Anthropology
Professor Ros Ballaster, Mansfield, English
Professor Rebecca Eynon, Education/Internet Institute
Professor Louise Fawcett, St Catherine's, Politics and International Relations
Professor Desmond King, Nuffield, Politics and International Relations
Professor Melinda Mills, Nuffield, Sociology
Dr Vicki Nash, Oxford Internet Institute
Professor Tim Power, St Antony's, Social Sciences
Professor Jared Tanner, Exeter, Mathematics

Candidate statement:
I am Professor of Society and the Internet (from 2004) and Professorial Fellow at Mansfield College. From 2011 to 2018 I was Director of the Oxford Internet Institute, a multi-disciplinary department in the Social Sciences Division. Before I came to Oxford I was UCL's first political scientist and the Director of the School of Public Policy. As a social scientist with a background in computer science and mathematics, I have a keen interest in methodological innovation and research that crosses disciplinary boundaries. From 2018 I have directed the Public policy programme of research at the Alan Turing Institute for data science and AI, where we work with policymakers to maximise the potential of data-driven technologies for public good.

Having spent more than 15 years as Head of Department or Programme Director, I have wide experience of academic leadership and hiring, supporting, mentoring and managing researchers at all career stages. I would like now to take my experience to the wider stage of the University Council, for example bringing awareness of the needs of people working on the ground to tackle longstanding issues of career progression and contract stability. My fields of research are demographically narrow - I care passionately about issues of equality, diversity and inclusion, and am excited by the prospect of tackling them across the University. As well as my longstanding and wide-ranging track record of social science research, I would bring to Council my experience of multi-disciplinary research spanning all Divisions of the University.

Professor Sophie Marnette, Lic UL Brussels, MA Oxf, PhD Berkeley, Balliol, Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages

Nominated by:
Professor Kate Blackmon, Merton, Saïd Business School
Professor Mishtooni Bose, Christ Church, English Language and Literature
Professor Danny Dorling, St Peter's, Geography and the Environment
Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Philosophy
Gillian Hamnett, Brasenose, University Administration
Dr David Johnson, St Antony's, Education
Professor Martin Maiden, Hertford, Zoology
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages
Professor William Whyte St John's, History
Dr Sam Wolfe, St Catherine's, Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics

Candidate statement:
From being the president of student representatives at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, to my graduate years in Berkeley, and then being a member of college and faculty committees in Cambridge and Oxford, I have always been involved in the governance of universities and dedicated to their fair and democratic working. I have never been afraid to ask tough questions, especially when I was on Council as Junior Proctor. In my departing oration, just before lockdown, I remarked: "[...] alongside this narrative of success, there is also a narrative of challenge, and lessons to be learnt... The main challenge here is: does our University have the means of its ambitions while also being able to address its core needs? And therefore what should our core priorities really be? Indeed, in building possible future narratives, we should have the courage, flexibility and humility to change course if things do not go according to plan." This is truer than ever as we prepare to transition to a new VC, a new team of PVCs, a new strategic plan, and some old and new challenges (e.g. investment in research and teaching, welfare, pensions, affordability to live, work and study in Oxford). Decisions need to be made and communicated in a transparent way in order for people to engage with them and support needs to be expressed not only in words but also in actions in order for all people to feel empowered in our vibrant and increasingly diverse University community.

- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being members of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

The following nominations have been received:

Professor Proochista Ariana, SM Harvard, DPhil Oxf, Mansfield, Medicine

Nominated by:
Helen Mountfield QC, Principal of Mansfield
Professor Patricia Daley, Jesus, Geography and Environment
Professor Adrian Hill, Magdalen, Medicine
Professor Matt Jarvis, St Cross, Physics
Professor Kevin Marsh, St Cross, Medicine
Professor Sarah Rowland Jones, Christ Church, Medicine
Lucinda Rumsey, Mansfield, English
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea, St Antony's, International Development
Dr Rebecca Surender, Green Templeton, Social Policy and Intervention
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages

Candidate statement:
As a member of the collegiate University since 2003, I have benefited from inspiring colleagues, a nurturing environment, and extraordinary students. I have been afforded the opportunity to contribute to an increasingly diverse community of global health leaders. I work continually to realise the University's strategic priority of fostering inclusive and supportive environments to further enhance diversity and innovation. As course director for the MSc in International Health and Tropical Medicine, I have extended opportunities for access to under-represented students from LMICs with tremendous potential to effect positive change in their contexts through securing more than £3,600,000 in graduate scholarships. I recognise that recruiting students from disadvantaged backgrounds necessitates efforts to support them to succeed. This involves creative curriculum design and teaching innovations. I am immensely proud to have been recognised by Oxford SU with six teaching awards to date, including the Special Recognition Award, and by MSD with a Major Educator Award. I share my passion for teaching through Divisional teacher training workshops as well as workshops across our Oxford Tropical Medicine sites in Thailand (MORU and SMUR), Vietnam (OUCRU) and Kenya (KEMRI). As a current member of the University's Education Committee, I advocate for graduate education, encourage multidisciplinary conversations, and help inform educational policy decisions. I am also involved in efforts to address attainment gaps, a significant challenge to meaningful inclusion efforts.

On Council, I will draw on my experience to advocate for accountability on commitments to diversity, inclusion, educational innovation, and the well-being of our community.

Dr Edward H Bispham, MA DPhil Oxf, Brasenose/St Anne's, Classics/Ancient History

Nominated by:
Professor Rhiannon Ash, Merton, Classics
Professor Nick Barber, Trinity, Law
Dr Anna Clark, Christ Church, Classics
Professor Katherine Clarke, St Hilda's, Classics
Professor Roger Crisp, St Anne's, Philosophy
Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Politics
Professor Ian McBride, Hertford, History
Professor Simon Shogry, Brasenose, Philosophy
Professor Andrew Wilson, All Souls, Archaeology

Candidate statement:
I believe that Oxford stands the best chance of achieving its full potential, and growing as a diverse and inclusive community, when its members engage actively with its governance, and do so on behalf of the interests of Congregation, and the wider population of institution. My experience as a Proctor provided me with insight into the full spectrum of the workings of the University and its governance, as well as offering some instructive, and sometimes difficult, lessons. I have experience of sitting on Council and of being a University trustee. Just as importantly, my tenure brought home strongly to me how the University is an aggregate of interactions within a very complex range of hard-working individuals: from those who maintain facilities or mow the Parks, to those who support examinations and research grants, to those who sequence genes, look for exo-planets and explicate Schiller. Finally, I have been lucky enough to spend more than two decades engaging with students, without whom there would be no University. The nature of the student experience, from the tutorial to the research group in the lab, in Colleges and Faculties, is central, whether it manifests in pedagogy, sport or welfare. I aim to draw on my direct experience of the enormous range of constituencies and contributions which make up the University. I believe this would usefully inform the opportunity which a seat on Council would give me to contribute to the debates through which the University will confront a very challenging future.

Lukasz Bohdan, MA Exe, Mag Jagiellonian, MBA Open, Assurance Directorate

Nominated by:
Baroness Royall of Blaisdon, Principal of Somerville
Tony Brett, Corpus Christi, Medical Sciences/IT Services
Alison Broadby, Humanities Divisional Office
Professor Chris Conlon, Oriel, Medicine
Professor Sue Dopson, Green Templeton, Saïd Business School
Dr Anne Edwards, Brasenose
Dr Tracy Gale, St Hilda's, Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Divisional Office
Graham Ingram, Assurance Directorate/IT Services
Richard Ovenden, Balliol, History
Professor Anne Trefethen, St Cross, Engineering Science

Candidate statement:
My role as Director of Assurance is to support academic excellence. I believe that focusing on Oxford's core purpose of research and teaching, respecting local autonomy, and adopting a holistic, participative approach is what matters when delivering professional services. I demonstrated my pragmatic approach and my ability to collaborate for the common good most recently while leading on our COVID-19 response.

My experience covers 20 years as a Board advisor, governor/trustee and non-executive holding senior leaders to account in the private, public and charity sectors, including local government, the NHS, and academia. I have served on and supported numerous Boards, governing bodies and committees (e.g. IT/Digital, Estates, Finance, and Personnel). At Oxford, I support the Audit and Scrutiny Committee and have served on the Saïd Business School's subsidiary Board, the Saïd Finance Committee, and the Subsidiaries Subcommittee.

I am standing for the Council because I believe that professional services need to reach out and work closely with divisions, departments, faculties and Colleges to support them in delivering the University's academic mission. I also believe that Oxford's principle of democratic self-governance is one of its greatest strengths.

It would be a privilege to represent my constituency on the Council. It would further my understanding of Oxford so that I can support academic colleagues effectively. If elected, I would bring my professional insights to bear on the issues that affect Oxford and would champion the views of the Congregation, constructively challenging the University to do its best for all its constituencies.

Professor Sir Charles Godfray, MA Oxf, PhD Imp, Balliol, Oxford Martin School

Nominated by:
Dame Helen Ghosh, Principal of Balliol
Professor Patricia Clavin, Worcester, History
Professor Tim Coulson, Jesus, Biology
Professor Patrick Grant, St Catherine's, Materials
Professor Dame Angela McLean, All Souls
Professor Dame Sarah Whatmore, Keble, Geography

Candidate statement:
This is both an exciting and challenging time for the University. Research across the whole university during the pandemic has highlighted the critical role of Oxford and other research-intensive universities in addressing the most pressing issues facing the nation and the world. There are great opportunities to build on our existing strengths and create capacity in new areas. But we also face difficult challenges, perhaps the most important being supporting the people who work here, our human capital, the University's most precious resource. The Oxford area is one of the most expensive regions of the country to live in causing significant problems for both academic and non-academic staff; the continuing saga of USS pension reforms raises numerous worrying issues, both now and for the future; and we need to translate the University's commitments on equality and diversity into more measures that make a difference to people in their working lives. We also face challenges in improving our students' experience of Oxford and learning lessons from the pandemic in exploring new ways of teaching and interacting. And we have hard choices to make in implementing the University's excellent net zero and sustainability goals. I would relish the opportunity of helping the University address these challenges and opportunities by joining Council. I am a biologist by background and am currently Director of the interdisciplinary Oxford Martin School within the Social Science Division.

Advertisements

Email: gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk
Web: https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette

Deadline

Advertisements are to be received by noon on Wednesday of the week before publication (ie eight days before publication). Advertisements must be submitted online.

Publication

The Gazette is only published online, except for library and archive copies. Charges for all adverts have been reduced to reflect this.

Charges

Non-commercial advertisers: £10 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £20 per insertion of 71-150 words.

Commercial advertisers: £20 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £40 per insertion of 71-150 words.

Advertisers may also purchase advertising space for a whole academic year (a minimum of eight insertions per term) at a discount of over 50% on the individual advertisement rate: £9.50 per insertion of up to 70 words, or £19 per insertion of 71-150 words.

See our website for examples of whether an advertisement is considered commercial or private: https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette.

Online submission and payment

Advertisements must be submitted and paid for online, using a credit card or debit card, through a secure website. For details, see https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette.

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Disclaimer

8. The University of Oxford accepts no responsibility for the content of any advertisement published in the Gazette. Readers should note that the inclusion of any advertisement in no way implies approval or recommendation of either the terms of any offer contained in it or of the advertiser by the University of Oxford.

Advertisers' Warranty and Indemnity

14. The advertiser warrants:

a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. Submission of an advertisement implies acceptance of our terms and conditions, which may be found at https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/terms-and-conditions-acceptance-advertisements, and may also be obtained on application to gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Council

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and of Social Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Aditi Lahiri]

The following nominations have been received:

Nandini Gooptu, BA Calcutta, PhD Camb, St Antony's, Department of International Development

Nominated by:
Professor David Gellner, All Souls, Anthropology and Museum Ethnography
Professor Christopher Gerry, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies
Dr Nayanika Mathur, Wolfson, Global and Area Studies
Professor Ankhi Mukherjee, Wadham, English Language and Literature
Professor Timothy Power, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea, St Antony's, International Development
Professor Julia Smith, All Souls, History
Professor Nikita Sud, Wolfson, International Development

Candidate statement:
Oxford faces a number of challenges that will require a rethinking of many of our strategies, structures and practices. In this critical period, I will advocate in Council an approach that emphasises the impact of change on our working lives and our students. In nearly three decades at Oxford, I have gained an understanding of the experience of work in various contexts and at different career stages, which I shall bring to bear on Council deliberations.

Significant financial pressures will affect our academic resources and the working conditions of both permanent and fixed-term staff. The climate crisis necessitates a change in our work practices and the adoption of new technology for overseas research and collaborations, and much else. EDI matters have assumed an urgency for both staff and students.

These are but a few of the issues that will affect us all and require strategies alive to the needs of students and staff, that I am well placed to represent. I teach graduates and undergraduates across several departments and faculties (International Development, Area Studies, Politics, History). I work both as a sole researcher and in a team with external funding. I have been Head of Department, and have had a variety of student and staff-facing roles and academic administration responsibilities, ranging from Director of Graduate Studies and Senior Tutor to membership of the University's Personnel Committee, Research Staff Working Group, Equality and Diversity Unit, Visitatorial Board, Grievance Committee and the Conference of Colleges Steering Committee and Appeals Tribunal.

Professor Helen Margetts, BSc Brist, MSc PhD LSE, Mansfield, Oxford Internet Institute

Nominated by:
Professor Helen Mountfield, Principal of Mansfield, Law
Professor Roger Goodman, Master of St Anthony's, Anthropology
Professor Ros Ballaster, Mansfield, English
Professor Rebecca Eynon, Education/Internet Institute
Professor Louise Fawcett, St Catherine's, Politics and International Relations
Professor Desmond King, Nuffield, Politics and International Relations
Professor Melinda Mills, Nuffield, Sociology
Dr Vicki Nash, Oxford Internet Institute
Professor Tim Power, St Antony's, Social Sciences
Professor Jared Tanner, Exeter, Mathematics

Candidate statement:
I am Professor of Society and the Internet (from 2004) and Professorial Fellow at Mansfield College. From 2011 to 2018 I was Director of the Oxford Internet Institute, a multi-disciplinary department in the Social Sciences Division. Before I came to Oxford I was UCL's first political scientist and the Director of the School of Public Policy. As a social scientist with a background in computer science and mathematics, I have a keen interest in methodological innovation and research that crosses disciplinary boundaries. From 2018 I have directed the public policy programme of research at the Alan Turing Institute for data science and AI, where we work with policymakers to maximise the potential of data-driven technologies for public good.

Having spent more than 15 years as Head of Department or Programme Director, I have wide experience of academic leadership and hiring, supporting, mentoring and managing researchers at all career stages. I would like now to take my experience to the wider stage of the University Council, for example bringing awareness of the needs of people working on the ground to tackle longstanding issues of career progression and contract stability. My fields of research are demographically narrow - I care passionately about issues of equality, diversity and inclusion, and am excited by the prospect of tackling them across the University. As well as my longstanding and wide-ranging track record of social science research, I would bring to Council my experience of multi-disciplinary research spanning all Divisions of the University.

Professor Sophie Marnette, Lic UL Brussels, MA Oxf, PhD Berkeley, Balliol, Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages

Nominated by:

Professor Kate Blackmon, Merton, Saïd Business School
Professor Mishtooni Bose, Christ Church, English Language and Literature
Professor Danny Dorling, St Peter's, Geography and the Environment
Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Philosophy
Gillian Hamnett, Brasenose, University Administration
Dr David Johnson, St Antony's, Education
Professor Martin Maiden, Hertford, Zoology
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages
Professor William Whyte St John's, History
Dr Sam Wolfe, St Catherine's, Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics

Candidate statement:

From being the president of student representatives at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, to my graduate years in Berkeley, and then being a member of college and faculty committees in Cambridge and Oxford, I have always been involved in the governance of universities and dedicated to their fair and democratic working. I have never been afraid to ask tough questions, especially when I was on Council as Junior Proctor. In my departing oration, just before lockdown, I remarked: "[...] alongside this narrative of success, there is also a narrative of challenge, and lessons to be learnt... The main challenge here is: does our University have the means of its ambitions while also being able to address its core needs? And therefore what should our core priorities really be? Indeed, in building possible future narratives, we should have the courage, flexibility and humility to change course if things do not go according to plan." This is truer than ever as we prepare to transition to a new VC, a new strategic plan, and some old and new challenges (eg investment in research and teaching, welfare, pensions, affordability to live, work and study in Oxford). Decisions need to be made and communicated in a transparent way in order for people to engage with them and support needs to be expressed not only in words but also in actions in order for all people to feel empowered in our vibrant and increasingly diverse university community.

- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being members of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

The following nominations have been received:

Professor Proochista Ariana, SM Harvard, DPhil Oxf, Mansfield, Medicine

Nominated by:
Helen Mountfield QC, Principal of Mansfield
Professor Patricia Daley, Jesus, Geography and Environment
Professor Adrian Hill, Magdalen, Medicine
Professor Matt Jarvis, St Cross, Physics
Professor Kevin Marsh, St Cross, Medicine
Professor Sarah Rowland Jones, Christ Church, Medicine
Lucinda Rumsey, Mansfield, English
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea, St Antony's, International Development
Dr Rebecca Surender, Green Templeton, Social Policy and Intervention
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages

Candidate statement:
As a member of the collegiate University since 2003, I have benefited from inspiring colleagues, a nurturing environment, and extraordinary students. I have been afforded the opportunity to contribute to an increasingly diverse community of global health leaders. I work continually to realise the University's strategic priority of fostering inclusive and supportive environments to further enhance diversity and innovation. As course director for the MSc in International Health and Tropical Medicine, I have extended opportunities for access to under-represented students from LMICs with tremendous potential to effect positive change in their contexts through securing more than £3.6m in graduate scholarships. I recognise that recruiting students from disadvantaged backgrounds necessitates efforts to support them to succeed. This involves creative curriculum design and teaching innovations. I am immensely proud to have been recognised by Oxford SU with six teaching awards to date, including the Special Recognition Award, and by MSD with a Major Educator Award. I share my passion for teaching through Divisional teacher training workshops as well as workshops across our Oxford Tropical Medicine sites in Thailand (MORU and SMUR), Vietnam (OUCRU) and Kenya (KEMRI). As a current member of the University's Education Committee, I advocate for graduate education, encourage multidisciplinary conversations and help inform educational policy decisions. I am also involved in efforts to address attainment gaps, a significant challenge to meaningful inclusion efforts.

On Council, I will draw on my experience to advocate for accountability on commitments to diversity, inclusion, educational innovation, and the well-being of our community.

Dr Edward H Bispham, MA DPhil Oxf, Brasenose/St Anne's, Classics/Ancient History

Nominated by:
Professor Rhiannon Ash, Merton, Classics
Professor Nick Barber, Trinity, Law
Dr Anna Clark, Christ Church, Classics
Professor Katherine Clarke, St Hilda's, Classics
Professor Roger Crisp, St Anne's, Philosophy
Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Politics
Professor Ian McBride, Hertford, History
Professor Simon Shogry, Brasenose, Philosophy
Professor Andrew Wilson, All Souls, Archaeology

Candidate statement:
I believe that Oxford stands the best chance of achieving its full potential, and growing as a diverse and inclusive community, when its members engage actively with its governance, and do so on behalf of the interests of Congregation and the wider population of institution. My experience as a Proctor provided me with insight into the full spectrum of the workings of the University and its governance, as well as offering some instructive, and sometimes difficult, lessons. I have experience of sitting on Council and of being a University trustee. Just as importantly, my tenure brought home strongly to me how the University is an aggregate of interactions within a very complex range of hard-working individuals: from those who maintain facilities or mow the Parks, to those who support examinations and research grants, to those who sequence genes, look for exo-planets and explicate Schiller. Finally, I have been lucky enough to spend more than two decades engaging with students, without whom there would be no University. The nature of the student experience, from the tutorial to the research group in the lab, in Colleges and Faculties, is central, whether it manifests in pedagogy, sport or welfare. I aim to draw on my direct experience of the enormous range of constituencies and contributions which make up the University. I believe this would usefully inform the opportunity which a seat on Council would give me to contribute to the debates through which the University will confront a very challenging future.

Lukasz Bohdan, MA Exe, Mag Jagiellonian, MBA Open, Assurance Directorate

Nominated by:

Baroness Royall of Blaisdon, Principal of Somerville
Tony Brett, Corpus Christi, Medical Sciences/IT Services
Alison Broadby, Humanities Divisional Office
Professor Chris Conlon, Oriel, Medicine
Professor Sue Dopson, Green Templeton, Saïd Business School
Dr Anne Edwards, Brasenose
Dr Tracy Gale, St Hilda's, Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Divisional Office
Graham Ingram, Assurance Directorate/IT Services
Richard Ovenden, Balliol, History
Professor Anne Trefethen, St Cross, Engineering Science

Candidate statement:

My role as Director of Assurance is to support academic excellence. I believe that focusing on Oxford's core purpose of research and teaching, respecting local autonomy, and adopting a holistic, participative approach is what matters when delivering professional services. I demonstrated my pragmatic approach and my ability to collaborate for the common good most recently while leading on our COVID-19 response.

My experience covers 20 years as a Board advisor, governor/trustee and non-executive holding senior leaders to account in the private, public and charity sectors, including local government, the NHS, and academia. I have served on and supported numerous Boards, governing bodies and committees (e.g. IT/Digital, Estates, Finance, and Personnel). At Oxford, I support the Audit and Scrutiny Committee and have served on the Saïd Business School's subsidiary Board, the Saïd Finance Committee, and the Subsidiaries Subcommittee.

I am standing for the Council because I believe that professional services need to reach out and work closely with divisions, departments, faculties and Colleges to support them in delivering the University's academic mission. I also believe that Oxford's principle of democratic self-governance is one of its greatest strengths.

It would be a privilege to represent my constituency on the Council. It would further my understanding of Oxford so that I can support academic colleagues effectively. If elected, I would bring my professional insights to bear on the issues that affect Oxford and would champion the views of the Congregation, constructively challenging the University to do its best for all its constituencies.

Professor Sir Charles Godfray, MA Oxf, PhD Imp, Balliol, Oxford Martin School

Nominated by:

Dame Helen Ghosh, Principal of Balliol
Professor Patricia Clavin, Worcester, History
Professor Tim Coulson, Jesus, Biology
Professor Patrick Grant, St Catherine's, Materials
Professor Dame Angela McLean, All Souls
Professor Dame Sarah Whatmore, Keble, Geography

Candidate statement:
This is both an exciting and challenging time for the University. Research across the whole university during the pandemic has highlighted the critical role of Oxford and other research-intensive universities in addressing the most pressing issues facing the nation and the world. There are great opportunities to build on our existing strengths and create capacity in new areas. But we also face difficult challenges, perhaps the most important being supporting the people who work here, our human capital, the University's most precious resource. The Oxford area is one of the most expensive regions of the country to live in causing significant problems for both academic and non-academic staff; the continuing saga of USS pension reforms raises numerous worrying issues, both now and for the future; and we need to translate the University's commitments on equality and diversity into more measures that make a difference to people in their working lives. We also face challenges in improving our students' experience of Oxford and learning lessons from the pandemic in exploring new ways of teaching and interacting. And we have hard choices to make in implementing the University's excellent net zero and sustainability goals. I would relish the opportunity of helping the University address these challenges and opportunities by joining Council.

I am a biologist by background and am currently Director of the interdisciplinary Oxford Martin School within the Social Science Division.

Council

- One member of Congregation elected by Congregation from members of the faculties in the Divisions of Humanities and of Social Sciences, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Professor Aditi Lahiri]

The following nominations have been received:

Nandini Gooptu, BA Calcutta, PhD Camb, St Antony's, Department of International Development

Nominated by:
Professor David Gellner, All Souls, Anthropology and Museum Ethnography
Professor Christopher Gerry, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies
Dr Nayanika Mathur, Wolfson, Global and Area Studies
Professor Ankhi Mukherjee, Wadham, English Language and Literature
Professor Timothy Power, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea, St Antony's, International Development
Professor Julia Smith, All Souls, History
Professor Nikita Sud, Wolfson, International Development

Candidate statement:
Oxford faces a number of challenges that will require a rethinking of many of our strategies, structures and practices. In this critical period, I will advocate in Council an approach that emphasises the impact of change on our working lives and our students. In nearly three decades at Oxford, I have gained an understanding of the experience of work in various contexts and at different career stages, which I shall bring to bear on Council deliberations.

Significant financial pressures will affect our academic resources and the working conditions of both permanent and fixed-term staff. The climate crisis necessitates a change in our work practices and the adoption of new technology for overseas research and collaborations, and much else. EDI matters have assumed an urgency for both staff and students.

These are but a few of the issues that will affect us all and require strategies alive to the needs of students and staff, that I am well placed to represent. I teach graduates and undergraduates across several departments and faculties (International Development, Area Studies, Politics, History). I work both as a sole researcher and in a team with external funding. I have been Head of Department, and have had a variety of student and staff-facing roles and academic administration responsibilities, ranging from Director of Graduate Studies and Senior Tutor to membership of the University's Personnel Committee, Research Staff Working Group, Equality and Diversity Unit, Visitatorial Board, Grievance Committee and the Conference of Colleges Steering Committee and Appeals Tribunal.

Professor Helen Margetts, BSc Brist, MSc PhD LSE, Mansfield, Oxford Internet Institute

Nominated by:
Professor Helen Mountfield, Principal of Mansfield, Law
Professor Roger Goodman, Master of St Anthony's, Anthropology
Professor Ros Ballaster, Mansfield, English
Professor Rebecca Eynon, Education/Internet Institute

Professor Desmond King, Nuffield, Politics and International Relations
Professor Melinda Mills, Nuffield, Sociology
Dr Vicki Nash, Oxford Internet Institute
Professor Tim Power, St Antony's, Social Sciences
Professor Jared Tanner, Exeter, Mathematics

Candidate statement:
I am Professor of Society and the Internet (from 2004) and Professorial Fellow at Mansfield College. From 2011 to 2018 I was Director of the Oxford Internet Institute, a multi-disciplinary department in the Social Sciences Division. Before I came to Oxford I was UCL's first political scientist and the Director of the School of Public Policy. As a social scientist with a background in computer science and mathematics, I have a keen interest in methodological innovation and research that crosses disciplinary boundaries. From 2018 I have directed the Public policy programme of research at the Alan Turing Institute for data science and AI, where we work with policymakers to maximise the potential of data-driven technologies for public good.

Having spent more than 15 years as Head of Department or Programme Director, I have wide experience of academic leadership and hiring, supporting, mentoring and managing researchers at all career stages. I would like now to take my experience to the wider stage of the University Council, for example bringing awareness of the needs of people working on the ground to tackle longstanding issues of career progression and contract stability. My fields of research are demographically narrow - I care passionately about issues of equality, diversity and inclusion, and am excited by the prospect of tackling them across the University. As well as my longstanding and wide-ranging track record of social science research, I would bring to Council my experience of multi-disciplinary research spanning all Divisions of the University.

Professor Sophie Marnette, Lic UL Brussels, MA Oxf, PhD Berkeley, Balliol, Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages

Nominated by:
Professor Kate Blackmon, Merton, Saïd Business School
Professor Mishtooni Bose, Christ Church, English Language and Literature
Professor Danny Dorling, St Peter's, Geography and the Environment
Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Philosophy
Gillian Hamnett, Brasenose, University Administration
Dr David Johnson, St Antony's, Education
Professor Martin Maiden, Hertford, Zoology
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages
Professor William Whyte St John's, History
Dr Sam Wolfe, St Catherine's, Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics

Candidate statement:
From being the president of student representatives at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, to my graduate years in Berkeley, and then being a member of college and faculty committees in Cambridge and Oxford, I have always been involved in the governance of universities and dedicated to their fair and democratic working. I have never been afraid to ask tough questions, especially when I was on Council as Junior Proctor. In my departing oration, just before lockdown, I remarked: "[...] alongside this narrative of success, there is also a narrative of challenge, and lessons to be learnt... The main challenge here is: does our University have the means of its ambitions while also being able to address its core needs? And therefore what should our core priorities really be? Indeed, in building possible future narratives, we should have the courage, flexibility and humility to change course if things do not go according to plan." This is truer than ever as we prepare to transition to a new VC, a new strategic plan, and some old and new challenges (e.g. investment in research and teaching, welfare, pensions, affordability to live, work and study in Oxford). Decisions need to be made and communicated in a transparent way in order for people to engage with them and support needs to be expressed not only in words but also in actions in order for all people to feel empowered in our vibrant and increasingly diverse University community.

- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being members of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

The following nominations have been received:

Professor Proochista Ariana, SM Harvard, DPhil Oxf, Mansfield, Medicine

Nominated by:
Helen Mountfield QC, Principal of Mansfield
Professor Patricia Daley, Jesus, Geography and Environment
Professor Adrian Hill, Magdalen, Medicine
Professor Matt Jarvis, St Cross, Physics
Professor Kevin Marsh, St Cross, Medicine
Professor Sarah Rowland Jones, Christ Church, Medicine
Lucinda Rumsey, Mansfield, English
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea, St Antony's, International Development
Dr Rebecca Surender, Green Templeton, Social Policy and Intervention
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages

Candidate statement:
As a member of the collegiate University since 2003, I have benefited from inspiring colleagues, a nurturing environment, and extraordinary students. I have been afforded the opportunity to contribute to an increasingly diverse community of global health leaders. I work continually to realise the University's strategic priority of fostering inclusive and supportive environments to further enhance diversity and innovation. As course director for the MSc in International Health and Tropical Medicine, I have extended opportunities for access to under-represented students from LMICs with tremendous potential to effect positive change in their contexts through securing more than £3,600,000 in graduate scholarships. I recognise that recruiting students from disadvantaged backgrounds necessitates efforts to support them to succeed. This involves creative curriculum design and teaching innovations. I am immensely proud to have been recognised by Oxford SU with six teaching awards to date, including the Special Recognition Award, and by MSD with a Major Educator Award. I share my passion for teaching through Divisional teacher training workshops as well as workshops across our Oxford Tropical Medicine sites in Thailand (MORU and SMUR), Vietnam (OUCRU) and Kenya (KEMRI). As a current member of the University's Education Committee, I advocate for graduate education, encourage multidisciplinary conversations, and help inform educational policy decisions. I am also involved in efforts to address attainment gaps, a significant challenge to meaningful inclusion efforts.

On Council, I will draw on my experience to advocate for accountability on commitments to diversity, inclusion, educational innovation, and the well-being of our community.

Dr Edward H Bispham, MA DPhil Oxf, Brasenose/St Anne's, Classics/Ancient History

Nominated by:
- Professor Rhiannon Ash, Merton, Classics
- Professor Nick Barber, Trinity, Law
- Dr Anna Clark, Christ Church, Classics
- Professor Katherine Clarke, St Hilda's, Classics
- Professor Roger Crisp, St Anne's, Philosophy
- Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Politics
- Professor Ian McBride, Hertford, History
- Professor Simon Shogry, Brasenose, Philosophy
- Professor Andrew Wilson, All Souls, Archaeology

Candidate statement:
I believe that Oxford stands the best chance of achieving its full potential, and growing as a diverse and inclusive community, when its members engage actively with its governance, and do so on behalf of the interests of Congregation, and the wider population of institution. My experience as a Proctor provided me with insight into the full spectrum of the workings of the University and its governance, as well as offering some instructive, and sometimes difficult, lessons. I have experience of sitting on Council and of being a University trustee. Just as importantly, my tenure brought home strongly to me how the University is an aggregate of interactions within a very complex range of hard-working individuals: from those who maintain facilities or mow the Parks, to those who support examinations and research grants, to those who sequence genes, look for exo-planets and explicate Schiller. Finally, I have been lucky enough to spend more than two decades engaging with students, without whom there would be no University. The nature of the student experience, from the tutorial to the research group in the lab, in Colleges and Faculties, is central, whether it manifests in pedagogy, sport or welfare. I aim to draw on my direct experience of the enormous range of constituencies and contributions which make up the University. I believe this would usefully inform the opportunity which a seat on Council would give me to contribute to the debates through which the University will confront a very challenging future.

Lukasz Bohdan, MA Exe, Mag Jagiellonian, MBA Open, Assurance Directorate

Nominated by:
- Baroness Royall of Blaisdon, Principal of Somerville
- Tony Brett, Corpus Christi, Medical Sciences/IT Services
- Alison Broadby, Humanities Divisional Office
- Professor Chris Conlon, Oriel, Medicine
- Professor Sue Dopson, Green Templeton, Saïd Business School
- Dr Anne Edwards, Brasenose
- Dr Tracy Gale, St Hilda's, Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Divisional Office
- Graham Ingram, Assurance Directorate/IT Services
- Richard Ovenden, Balliol, History
- Professor Anne Trefethen, St Cross, Engineering Science

Candidate statement:
My role as Director of Assurance is to support academic excellence. I believe that focusing on Oxford's core purpose of research and teaching, respecting local autonomy, and adopting a holistic, participative approach is what matters when delivering professional services. I demonstrated my pragmatic approach and my ability to collaborate for the common good most recently while leading on our COVID-19 response.

My experience covers 20 years as a Board advisor, governor/trustee and non-executive holding senior leaders to account in the private, public and charity sectors, including local government, the NHS, and academia. I have served on and supported numerous Boards, governing bodies and committees (e.g. IT/Digital, Estates, Finance, and Personnel). At Oxford, I support the Audit and Scrutiny Committee and have served on the Saïd Business School's subsidiary Board, the Saïd Finance Committee, and the Subsidiaries Subcommittee.

I am standing for the Council because I believe that professional services need to reach out and work closely with divisions, departments, faculties and Colleges to support them in delivering the University's academic mission. I also believe that Oxford's principle of democratic self-governance is one of its greatest strengths.

It would be a privilege to represent my constituency on the Council. It would further my understanding of Oxford so that I can support academic colleagues effectively. If elected, I would bring my professional insights to bear on the issues that affect Oxford and would champion the views of the Congregation, constructively challenging the University to do its best for all its constituencies.

Professor Sir Charles Godfray, MA Oxf, PhD Imp, Balliol, Oxford Martin School

Nominated by:
- Dame Helen Ghosh, Principal of Balliol
- Professor Patricia Clavin, Worcester, History
- Professor Tim Coulson, Jesus, Biology
- Professor Patrick Grant, St Catherine's, Materials
- Professor Dame Angela McLean, All Souls
- Professor Dame Sarah Whatmore, Keble, Geography

Candidate statement:
This is both an exciting and challenging time for the University. Research across the whole university during the pandemic has highlighted the critical role of Oxford and other research-intensive universities in addressing the most pressing issues facing the nation and the world. There are great opportunities to build on our existing strengths and create capacity in new areas. But we also face difficult challenges, perhaps the most important being supporting the people who work here, our human capital, the University's most precious resource. The Oxford area is one of the most expensive regions of the country to live in causing significant problems for both academic and non-academic staff; the continuing saga of USS pension reforms raises numerous worrying issues, both now and for the future; and we need to translate the University's commitments on equality and diversity into more measures that make a difference to people in their working lives. We also face challenges in improving our students' experience of Oxford and learning lessons from the pandemic in exploring new ways of teaching and interacting. And we have hard choices to make in implementing the University's excellent net zero and sustainability goals. I would relish the opportunity of helping the University address these challenges and opportunities by joining Council. I am a biologist by background and am currently Director of the interdisciplinary Oxford Martin School within the Social Science Division.

Online submission and payment

Advertisements must be submitted and paid for online, using a credit card or debit card, through a secure website. For details, see https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/classified-advertising-gazette.

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Disclaimer

8. The University of Oxford accepts no responsibility for the content of any advertisement published in the Gazette. Readers should note that the inclusion of any advertisement in no way implies approval or recommendation of either the terms of any offer contained in it or of the advertiser by the University of Oxford.

Advertisers' Warranty and Indemnity

14. The advertiser warrants:

a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. Submission of an advertisement implies acceptance of our terms and conditions, which may be found at https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/terms-and-conditions-acceptance-advertisements, and may also be obtained on application to gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk.

The following nominations have been received:

Professor David Gellner, All Souls, Anthropology and Museum Ethnography
Professor Christopher Gerry, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies

Professor Timothy Power, St Antony's, Global and Area Studies
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea, St Antony's, International Development
Professor Julia Smith, All Souls, History
Professor Nikita Sud, Wolfson, International Development

Candidate statement:
Oxford faces a number of challenges that will require a rethinking of many of our strategies, structures and practices. In this critical period, I will advocate in Council an approach that emphasises the impact of change on our working lives and our students. In nearly three decades at Oxford, I have gained an understanding of the experience of work in various contexts and at different career stages, which I shall bring to bear on Council deliberations.

Significant financial pressures will affect our academic resources and the working conditions of both permanent and fixed-term staff. The climate crisis necessitates a change in our work practices and the adoption of new technology for overseas research and collaborations, and much else. EDI matters have assumed an urgency for both staff and students.

These are but a few of the issues that will affect us all and require strategies alive to the needs of students and staff, that I am well placed to represent. I teach graduates and undergraduates across several departments and faculties (International Development, Area Studies, Politics, History). I work both as a sole researcher and in a team with external funding. I have been Head of Department, and have had a variety of student and staff-facing roles and academic administration responsibilities, ranging from Director of Graduate Studies and Senior Tutor to membership of the University's Personnel Committee, Research Staff Working Group, Equality and Diversity Unit, Visitatorial Board, Grievance Committee and the Conference of Colleges Steering Committee and Appeals Tribunal.

Professor Helen Margetts, BSc Brist, MSc PhD LSE, Mansfield, Oxford Internet Institute

Nominated by:
Professor Helen Mountfield, Principal of Mansfield, Law
Professor Roger Goodman, Master of St Anthony's, Anthropology
Professor Ros Ballaster, Mansfield, English
Professor Rebecca Eynon, Education/Internet Institute
Professor Louise Fawcett, St Catherine's, Politics and International Relations
Professor Desmond King, Nuffield, Politics and International Relations
Professor Melinda Mills, Nuffield, Sociology
Dr Vicki Nash, Oxford Internet Institute

Professor Tim Power, St Antony's, Social Sciences
Professor Jared Tanner, Exeter, Mathematics

Candidate statement:
I am Professor of Society and the Internet (from 2004) and Professorial Fellow at Mansfield College. From 2011 to 2018 I was Director of the Oxford Internet Institute, a multi-disciplinary department in the Social Sciences Division. Before I came to Oxford I was UCL's first political scientist and the Director of the School of Public Policy. As a social scientist with a background in computer science and mathematics, I have a keen interest in methodological innovation and research that crosses disciplinary boundaries. From 2018 I have directed the Public policy programme of research at the Alan Turing Institute for data science and AI, where we work with policymakers to maximise the potential of data-driven technologies for public good.

Having spent more than 15 years as Head of Department or Programme Director, I have wide experience of academic leadership and hiring, supporting, mentoring and managing researchers at all career stages. I would like now to take my experience to the wider stage of the University Council, for example bringing awareness of the needs of people working on the ground to tackle longstanding issues of career progression and contract stability. My fields of research are demographically narrow - I care passionately about issues of equality, diversity and inclusion, and am excited by the prospect of tackling them across the University. As well as my longstanding and wide-ranging track record of social science research, I would bring to Council my experience of multi-disciplinary research spanning all Divisions of the University.

Professor Sophie Marnette, Lic UL Brussels, MA Oxf, PhD Berkeley, Balliol, Faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages

Nominated by:
Professor Kate Blackmon, Merton, Saïd Business School
Professor Mishtooni Bose, Christ Church, English Language and Literature
Professor Danny Dorling, St Peter's, Geography and the Environment
Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Philosophy
Gillian Hamnett, Brasenose, University Administration
Dr David Johnson, St Antony's, Education
Professor Martin Maiden, Hertford, Zoology
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages
Professor William Whyte St John's, History
Dr Sam Wolfe, St Catherine's, Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics

Candidate statement:
From being the president of student representatives at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, to my graduate years in Berkeley, and then being a member of college and faculty committees in Cambridge and Oxford, I have always been involved in the governance of universities and dedicated to their fair and democratic working. I have never been afraid to ask tough questions, especially when I was on Council as Junior Proctor. In my departing oration, just before lockdown, I remarked: "[…] alongside this narrative of success, there is also a narrative of challenge, and lessons to be learnt… The main challenge here is: does our University have the means of its ambitions while also being able to address its core needs? And therefore what should our core priorities really be? Indeed, in building possible future narratives, we should have the courage, flexibility and humility to change course if things do not go according to plan." This is truer than ever as we prepare to transition to a new VC, a new strategic plan, and some old and new challenges (e.g. investment in research and teaching, welfare, pensions, affordability to live, work and study in Oxford). Decisions need to be made and communicated in a transparent way in order for people to engage with them and support needs to be expressed not only in words but also in actions in order for all people to feel empowered in our vibrant and increasingly diverse University community.

- One member of Congregation, not necessarily being members of any division and not in any case being nominated in a divisional capacity, who shall be elected by Congregation, to serve until the start of MT 2026 [vice Tania Boyt]

The following nominations have been received:

Professor Proochista Ariana, SM Harvard, DPhil Oxf, Mansfield, Medicine

Nominated by:
Helen Mountfield QC, Principal of Mansfield
Professor Patricia Daley, Jesus, Geography and Environment
Professor Adrian Hill, Magdalen, Medicine
Professor Matt Jarvis, St Cross, Physics
Professor Kevin Marsh, St Cross, Medicine
Professor Sarah Rowland Jones, Christ Church, Medicine
Lucinda Rumsey, Mansfield, English
Professor Diego Sanchez-Ancochea, St Antony's, International Development
Dr Rebecca Surender, Green Templeton, Social Policy and Intervention
Professor Helen Swift, St Hilda's, Medieval and Modern Languages

Candidate statement:
As a member of the collegiate University since 2003, I have benefited from inspiring colleagues, a nurturing environment, and extraordinary students. I have been afforded the opportunity to contribute to an increasingly diverse community of global health leaders. I work continually to realise the University's strategic priority of fostering inclusive and supportive environments to further enhance diversity and innovation. As course director for the MSc in International Health and Tropical Medicine, I have extended opportunities for access to under-represented students from LMICs with tremendous potential to effect positive change in their contexts through securing more than £3,600,000 in graduate scholarships. I recognise that recruiting students from disadvantaged backgrounds necessitates efforts to support them to succeed. This involves creative curriculum design and teaching innovations. I am immensely proud to have been recognised by Oxford SU with six teaching awards to date, including the Special Recognition Award, and by MSD with a Major Educator Award. I share my passion for teaching through Divisional teacher training workshops as well as workshops across our Oxford Tropical Medicine sites in Thailand (MORU and SMUR), Vietnam (OUCRU) and Kenya (KEMRI). As a current member of the University's Education Committee, I advocate for graduate education, encourage multidisciplinary conversations, and help inform educational policy decisions. I am also involved in efforts to address attainment gaps, a significant challenge to meaningful inclusion efforts.

On Council, I will draw on my experience to advocate for accountability on commitments to diversity, inclusion, educational innovation, and the well-being of our community.

Dr Edward H Bispham, MA DPhil Oxf, Brasenose/St Anne's, Classics/Ancient History

Nominated by:
Professor Rhiannon Ash, Merton, Classics
Professor Nick Barber, Trinity, Law
Dr Anna Clark, Christ Church, Classics
Professor Katherine Clarke, St Hilda's, Classics
Professor Roger Crisp, St Anne's, Philosophy
Professor Cécile Fabre, All Souls, Politics
Professor Ian McBride, Hertford, History
Professor Simon Shogry, Brasenose, Philosophy
Professor Andrew Wilson, All Souls, Archaeology

Candidate statement:
I believe that Oxford stands the best chance of achieving its full potential, and growing as a diverse and inclusive community, when its members engage actively with its governance, and do so on behalf of the interests of Congregation, and the wider population of institution. My experience as a Proctor provided me with insight into the full spectrum of the workings of the University and its governance, as well as offering some instructive, and sometimes difficult, lessons. I have experience of sitting on Council and of being a University trustee. Just as importantly, my tenure brought home strongly to me how the University is an aggregate of interactions within a very complex range of hard-working individuals: from those who maintain facilities or mow the Parks, to those who support examinations and research grants, to those who sequence genes, look for exo-planets and explicate Schiller. Finally, I have been lucky enough to spend more than two decades engaging with students, without whom there would be no University. The nature of the student experience, from the tutorial to the research group in the lab, in Colleges and Faculties, is central, whether it manifests in pedagogy, sport or welfare. I aim to draw on my direct experience of the enormous range of constituencies and contributions which make up the University. I believe this would usefully inform the opportunity which a seat on Council would give me to contribute to the debates through which the University will confront a very challenging future.

Lukasz Bohdan, MA Exe, Mag Jagiellonian, MBA Open, Assurance Directorate

Nominated by:
Baroness Royall of Blaisdon, Principal of Somerville
Tony Brett, Corpus Christi, Medical Sciences/IT Services
Alison Broadby, Humanities Divisional Office
Professor Chris Conlon, Oriel, Medicine
Professor Sue Dopson, Green Templeton, Saïd Business School
Dr Anne Edwards, Brasenose

Graham Ingram, Assurance Directorate/IT Services
Richard Ovenden, Balliol, History
Professor Anne Trefethen, St Cross, Engineering Science

Candidate statement:
My role as Director of Assurance is to support academic excellence. I believe that focusing on Oxford's core purpose of research and teaching, respecting local autonomy, and adopting a holistic, participative approach is what matters when delivering professional services. I demonstrated my pragmatic approach and my ability to collaborate for the common good most recently while leading on our COVID-19 response.

My experience covers 20 years as a Board advisor, governor/trustee and non-executive holding senior leaders to account in the private, public and charity sectors, including local government, the NHS, and academia. I have served on and supported numerous Boards, governing bodies and committees (e.g. IT/Digital, Estates, Finance, and Personnel). At Oxford, I support the Audit and Scrutiny Committee and have served on the Saïd Business School's subsidiary Board, the Saïd Finance Committee, and the Subsidiaries Subcommittee.

I am standing for the Council because I believe that professional services need to reach out and work closely with divisions, departments, faculties and Colleges to support them in delivering the University's academic mission. I also believe that Oxford's principle of democratic self-governance is one of its greatest strengths.

It would be a privilege to represent my constituency on the Council. It would further my understanding of Oxford so that I can support academic colleagues effectively. If elected, I would bring my professional insights to bear on the issues that affect Oxford and would champion the views of the Congregation, constructively challenging the University to do its best for all its constituencies.

Professor Sir Charles Godfray, MA Oxf, PhD Imp, Balliol, Oxford Martin School

Nominated by:
Dame Helen Ghosh, Principal of Balliol
Professor Patricia Clavin, Worcester, History
Professor Tim Coulson, Jesus, Biology
Professor Patrick Grant, St Catherine's, Materials
Professor Dame Angela McLean, All Souls
Professor Dame Sarah Whatmore, Keble, Geography

Candidate statement:
This is both an exciting and challenging time for the University. Research across the whole university during the pandemic has highlighted the critical role of Oxford and other research-intensive universities in addressing the most pressing issues facing the nation and the world. There are great opportunities to build on our existing strengths and create capacity in new areas. But we also face difficult challenges, perhaps the most important being supporting the people who work here, our human capital, the University's most precious resource. The Oxford area is one of the most expensive regions of the country to live in causing significant problems for both academic and non-academic staff; the continuing saga of USS pension reforms raises numerous worrying issues, both now and for the future; and we need to translate the University's commitments on equality and diversity into more measures that make a difference to people in their working lives. We also face challenges in improving our students' experience of Oxford and learning lessons from the pandemic in exploring new ways of teaching and interacting. And we have hard choices to make in implementing the University's excellent net zero and sustainability goals. I would relish the opportunity of helping the University address these challenges and opportunities by joining Council. I am a biologist by background and am currently Director of the interdisciplinary Oxford Martin School within the Social Science Division.

THURSDAY 9 JUNE 2022 • SUPPLEMENT (1) TO NO 5352 • VOL 152

Gazette Supplement

Question under Part 5 of Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002

Congregation 14 June

Question

The University must secure lawful freedom of speech in order to comply with the law and in order to maintain its reputation as a free-thinking institution. It also has, simultaneously, legal and indeed moral obligations to prevent the harassment of all staff and students.

We believe the University's Harassment Policy and its policy on 'Using social media: Guidance for managers and employees on social media use' (the "policies") prohibit speech that is lawful and thereby breach the University's legal duty to take such steps as are reasonably practicable to secure freedom of speech within the law.

This is not a matter of mere legal technicality. These policies frustrate academic freedom - the lifeblood of this University - and harm academic careers. The signatories do not seek to undermine the University's culture of robust tolerance and decency. They do believe, however, that restrictions on academic freedom and freedom of speech must be lawful, and therefore ask if Council will amend, or procure the amendment of the policies so that they comply with the University's legal obligations to secure academic freedom and freedom of speech, by taking the following steps:

(a) Amending Statute XI.1(1)(e), the Harassment Policy and any other University policy that adopts a legally incorrect definition of harassment, so as to make them compliant with the law and the Code of Practice on Meetings and Events, in particular by taking account of the fact that the University may not rely on the Equality Act 2010 as a lawful ground to restrict the free speech of students.

(b) Amending the Code on Meetings and Events as follows:

(i) clarifying that the University's policy of ensuring that 'all members of the University community, its visitors and contractors to treat each other with respect, courtesy and consideration' is 'subject at all times to the University's duty to take reasonably practicable steps to secure freedom of speech within the law';

(ii) stating that 'by law the University may not prohibit or sanction speech solely on the ground that it is offensive';

(iii) stating in summary the enhanced legal protections for academic freedom and political speech;

(iv) stating in summary the legal protections for extramural speech by academic staff members; and

(v) stating in summary the law's protection of value judgements and the limitation of employees' duty of loyalty in relation to academic freedom and freedom of speech.

(c) Amending the Harassment Policy to state explicitly that malicious or vexatious allegations are considered a serious offence, and to specify the level of sanction warranted by the making of such allegations.

(d) Amending the Harassment Procedure to include an initial stage, prior to the investigation stage, at which the relevant authority may, having consulted the accused person and the accuser, dismiss a complaint if he or she reasonably believes it to be malicious, frivolous or vexatious.

(e) Ensuring that all staff and decision-makers engaged in disciplinary processes are properly trained in legal standards of academic freedom and freedom of speech.

(f) In the Using Social Media guidance (the "Guidance"), restating, or referring and linking to, the statements set out at paragraph (b) above and removing the wording regarding 'respect, professionalism, courtesy and consideration' and 'highly controversial opinions.'

(g) Amending the Guidance to provide that:

(i) all social media content that is within the Article 10 protection for extramural speech shall fall outside the Guidance;

(ii) the social media content of any student or academic who adopts the recommended disclaimer shall fall outside the Guidance, unless he or she rebuts the disclaimer by taking positive steps to portray his or her opinion as the official opinion or position of the University; and

(iii) any student or (subject to sub-paragraph (i) above) any academic who chooses not to adopt the disclaimer shall otherwise be fully responsible under the Guidance and other University policies.

(h) Adopting best practice measures that acknowledge the limited scope on social media for conveying academic and political ideas in a formal way (for instance with citations), and the importance of platforms' terms of service.

(i) Deleting the requirement that academic staff members seek the University's prior approval for public campaigning, or amending the policy to state the limited circumstances in which the University believes it would be lawful to impose such requirement.

The below note, which forms part of this question, sets out in detail the illegality of the policies.

Signatories:

Dr Michael Biggs, St Cross College (proposing member)
Dr Roger Teichmann, St Hilda's College (supporting member)
Professor Nigel Biggar, Christ Church
Dr Alexander Morrison, New College
Professor Faisal Devji, St Anthony's College
Professor Ruth Harris, All Souls' College
Professor Jeff McMahan, Corpus Christi College
Professor Paul Elbourne, Magdalen College
Dr Yasmin Khan, Kellogg College

The following reply to the question above has been approved by Council:

'Given the importance of ensuring academic freedom, legal advice has been sought from leading counsel as to the concerns raised by the signatories to the letter and, in particular, as to the lawfulness of the University's policies (including its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance).

It is correct that the University must take such steps as are reasonably practicable to ensure freedom of speech within the law, and that the University must take into account Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights (the "Convention"). The University's commitment to freedom of speech is clear. Its statement on Freedom of Speech, a link to which can be accessed from every page of the University's website, describes it as the lifeblood of a university, stating that "It allows students, teachers and researchers to become better acquainted with the variety of beliefs, theories and opinions in the world."

In formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as its duties to staff and students, other obligations under the Convention, its public sector equality duties, and the risk of vicarious liability for the acts of its staff. Those factors are reflected, for example, in the University's Policy and Procedure on Harassment, which states that "The University does not tolerate any form of harassment or victimisation and expects all members of the University community, its visitors and contractors to treat each other with respect, courtesy and consideration".

The University's policies reflect its at times conflicting obligations by requiring standards of behaviour of its members, distinguishing between the freedom to explore and express ideas and the manner in which such ideas are expressed, reflecting the issues to be balanced in the University's approach to concerns that are raised, and making clear the University's commitment to freedom of speech.

In requiring standards of behaviour, the University protects freedom of speech, as reflected in the Code of Practice on Meetings and events: "The University believes that a culture of free, open and robust discussion can be achieved only if all concerned engage critically but courteously with each other."

In summary, the University is both allowed and obliged to take action in response to concerns about the treatment of a member of the University community by a fellow member of the same community and the University is confident that its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance reflect and comply with its legal obligations.'

This note was appended to the question:

Note on the Harassment Policy and social media guidance of the University of Oxford

For the reasons set out below, the University's Harassment Policy and Social Media Policy interfere unlawfully with freedom of speech.

A. The University's policies

The Harassment Policy

1. Statute XI.2(1)(m) provides:

> No member of the University shall in a university context intentionally or recklessly … engage in the harassment of or sexual misconduct towards any member, visitor, employee, or agent of the University or of any college.

2. Members of the University include academic staff and student members. Harassment is defined at paragraph 1(1)(e) of the Statute as:

> unwanted and unwarranted conduct towards another individual which has the purpose or effect of:
> (i) violating that other's dignity; or
> (ii) creating an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment for that other.

3. The University's Harassment Policy also prohibits harassment by academic staff and students on similar terms.[1] It is owned by the Personnel Committee (in respect of staff) and Education Committee (in respect of students), and was approved by the University Council. Both committees are constituted under Council Regulations 15 of 2002: Regulations for Committees Reporting Directly to Council or one of its Main Committees, parts 4 and 2 respectively.

4. The Policy further specifies and limits the scope of harassment:

> [7] Freedom of speech and academic freedom are protected by law though these rights must be exercised within the law. Vigorous academic debate will not amount to harassment when it is conducted respectfully and without violating the dignity of others or creating an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment for them….
> [11] The intentions of the alleged harasser are not always determinative of whether harassment has taken place. The perception of the complainant and the extent to which that perception is in all the circumstances reasonable will also be relevant.

5. The Policy also states that 'harassment may involve repeated forms of unwanted and unwarranted behaviour, but a one-off incident can also amount to harassment.'

Harassment in law - the Equality Act 2010

6. Harassment is a statutory tort under the Equality Act 2010. The wording of the Harassment Policy is taken (almost verbatim - see below) from the definition of harassment at section 26 of that Act, and footnote 1 to the Policy identifies that Act as the provenance of the definition adopted. Unlike many universities the University, to its credit, explicitly acknowledges at section 11 of the Policy that, in law, any finding of harassment must take into account whether it is reasonable for an alleged victim to perceive that they are being harassed.

7. The statement at section 7 of the Policy that 'vigorous academic debate will not amount to harassment' creditably takes account of relevant guidance on the relationship between the Equality Act and academic freedom, and reflects the approach a court would be likely to take. The explanatory notes to the Act, which are legally relevant, clearly emphasise the need to balance academic freedom and academic free speech against the harassment provisions:

> [99] In determining the effect of the unwanted conduct, courts and tribunals will continue to be required to balance competing rights on the facts of a particular case. For example, this could include balancing the rights of freedom of expression (as set out in Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights) and of academic freedom against the right not to be offended in deciding whether a person has been harassed.

8. The 2019 guidance issued by the Equality and Human Rights Commission, Freedom of expression: a guide for higher education providers and students' unions in England and Wales, further affirms the importance of this balancing exercise and advises that the Equality Act's harassment provisions cannot be used to undermine academic freedom and are unlikely to apply to academic or political communication (pages 18-19).

9. In other respects, however, both Statute XI and the Policy depart from the legal definition of harassment.

10. As Footnote 1 openly states, the Policy exceeds the requirements of the Equality Act, as does Statute XI. Whereas under that Act conduct only constitutes harassment if it is 'related to a relevant protected characteristic' (i.e. age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, and sexual orientation), Statute XI and the Policy do away with this requirement. Both provisions therefore purport to exceed the Equality Act, and authorise suppression of speech which is not unlawful under that Act.

11. Both provisions also depart from the Equality Act in applying the prohibition on harassment to students. The Equality Act does not apply universally, but only in the specified contexts and between the specified parties set out in the Act. Sections 91 and 92 of the Act prohibit the University's governing body from harassing students. Under sections 109 and 110 the University can be liable for harassment of students by its employees, as can the employees themselves. As an employer, the University can further be liable for harassing its employees. Nothing in the Act, however, imposes liability on students, nor is the University liable for the conduct of its students as third parties (apart from in specific and limited circumstances). As such, in relation to the Equality Act, it follows that the Policy prohibits speech and conduct that are lawful.

Harassment in law – The Protection from Harassment Act 1997

12. The University may also seek a legal basis for the Policy under the Protection from Harassment Act 1997, which makes harassment a tort and a criminal offence. That Act and the associated case law define harassment as a course of conduct which targets another person, is oppressive and unacceptable, and which the person knows or ought to know amounts to harassment.

13. The Policy, however, purports to prohibit harassment even when it is a 'one-off' incident. This would not amount to a 'course of conduct' and therefore, in relation to the 1997 Act, cannot constitute unlawful speech. To that extent, therefore, the Harassment Policy authorises suppression of speech which is lawful under the 1997 Act.

The Social Media Policy

14. The University's guidance on 'Using social media' (the 'Social Media Policy') states:

> The University expects all its staff members to treat each other with respect, professionalism, courtesy and consideration in all forms of communication with one another.
> Be aware that the creation, transmission, or display of material, which is intended or likely to harass another person, constitutes a breach of the University Policy and Procedure on Harassment. This could lead to both disciplinary action by the University and action by external bodies, depending on the severity of the offence.
> At all times be aware that potential conflicts may arise through the use of social media channels, for example publicly expressing highly controversial opinions online. This is especially important with anything that could be interpreted as discriminatory under the terms of the Equality Act 2010, in relation to disability, gender, sexual orientation, race, etc.[2]

15. The Social Media Policy also states that members of staff should 'obtain written permission from the University before commencing online public campaigns.'

B. The University's breach of the section 43 duty

The section 43 duty

16. Under section 43(1) of the Education (No. 2) Act 1986, the University has a statutory duty to take reasonably practicable steps to secure freedom of speech within the law for students and academic staff of the University. Section 43(1) extends beyond arrangements for speaking events and 'seeks the securing of freedom of speech in all respects' (Sedley J in R (ex p. Riniker) v UCL [1995] ELR 213, 216).

17. The University is also obliged by the same Act to issue, and to take reasonably practicable steps to comply with, a code of practice setting out how it will fulfil its statutory duty. The University's Code on Meetings and Events, as approved by Council on 20 July 2016, is the University's code of practice under the 1986 Act.[3] For ease of reference, it is termed in this note the 'Code of Practice'.

18. The Code of Practice states:

> [2] The University of Oxford seeks to protect robustly civic and academic freedoms and to foster an academic culture of openness and inclusivity, in which members of our community engage with each other, and the public, in debate and discussion, and remain open to both intellectual challenge and change....
> [5] This Code of Practice must be followed by all members, students and employees of the University and visiting speakers....

19. Parliament enacted the Education (No 2) Act 1986 with the clear intention of compelling universities to protect freedom of speech within the law - not freedom of speech as universities see fit, nor freedom of speech in accordance with the good taste of the right-minded. It follows that the University is not at liberty to impose restrictions on freedom of speech even more restrictive than Parliament intended. Put simply, under section 43 and as a matter of fundamental legality, the University may not dispense with or amend the law as it sees fit. It must take reasonably practicable steps to secure freedom of speech as it is defined by the law. A failure to secure freedom of speech as defined in law may be lawful, but only where securing it would have been impractically onerous - for instance due to limitations on resources.

20. It is suggested that Parliament's intended meaning when it required the securing of 'freedom of speech within the law' in 1986 accords with the dicta of Hoffmann LJ (as he was then) in R v Central Independent Television plc [1994] 3 All ER 641 at 651 (emphasis added):

> The motives which impel judges to assume a power to balance freedom of speech against other interests are almost always understandable and humane on the facts of the particular case before them.... [A] freedom which is restricted to what judges think to be responsible or in the public interest is no freedom. Freedom means the right to publish things which government and judges, however well motivated, think should not be published. It means the right to say things which 'right-thinking people' regard as dangerous or irresponsible. This freedom is subject only to clearly defined exceptions laid down by common law or statute.... It cannot be too strongly emphasised that outside the established exceptions (or any new ones which Parliament may enact in accordance with its obligations under the convention) there is no question of balancing freedom of speech against other interests. It is a trump card which always wins.

Particulars of breach of the section 43 duty

The Harassment Policy

21. The University is in breach of its duty under section 43(1) of the Education (No 2) Act 1986 to take reasonably practicable steps to secure freedom of speech with the law because, as set out at paragraphs 10 to 13 above, Statute XI.2(1)(m) and the Harassment Policy (the "harassment policies") prohibit speech by academics and students that is lawful, and thereby authorise an unlawful act.

22. Further, the University has no other lawful basis to prohibit the speech governed by the harassment policies, and it would be a reasonably practicable step for the University to secure such speech.

23. In enacting section 43 of the 1986 Act, Parliament intended to go beyond Article 10 protections by imposing a positive duty to secure all speech that is free 'within the law' - i.e. that is not expressly prohibited by statute or common law. While Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights allows interferences which are 'prescribed by law' - 'law' in that context including contractual obligations and disciplinary codes - Parliament in section 43 expressly preferred a higher standard of rights protection. The statutes, policies and contractual terms of the University do not create 'law' in the sense intended by section 43.

24. It is accepted that the University's terms and conditions of employment oblige academic-related staff to comply with the University's policies. It could therefore be argued that academic staff waive the rights that arise from section 43. However it is fanciful to suppose that Parliament intended to impose a duty which, by way of contracting out, could be simply set aside by those bound by it. If that were possible, section 43 would be a dead letter. In the words of Lord Steyn: `Parliament does not intend the plain meaning of its legislation to be evaded. And it is the duty of the courts not to facilitate the circumvention of the parliamentary intent' (R v J [2004] UKFIL 42 at [37]).

25. It is suggested that a court would assess any `contracting out' argument by applying the principles set out in Johnson v Moreton [1978] 3 All ER 37. A court will not enforce a contractual term that purports to waive a protection granted in the interest both of a contracting party and the public (pages 48h and 56h). The Hansard record shows that Parliament clearly intended to protect the public interest, as well as the private interests of individual academics, in enhancing free speech protections at UK universities.

26. Any contracting out provision is similarly unlikely to be enforceable because of academics' weaker bargaining power in agreeing terms of employment (Johnson pages 49d and 55d), and because of the courts' unwillingness to accept any construction that would oust the jurisdiction of the Administrative Court to review whether a university is complying with its section 43 duties.

27. It is accepted nevertheless that section 43 imposes a weaker obligation than the 'clearly mandatory' statutory wording analysed by the House of Lords in Johnson, and that universities need only take 'such steps as are reasonably practicable'. It is suggested therefore that a contractual term prohibiting mere gratuitous abuse or insult would not frustrate the policy of section 43 and would be enforceable — however any term inhibiting legitimate exercise of academic freedom, or political comment, would not be.

The Social Media Policy

28. The Social Media Policy, including when it is implemented in conjunction with the harassment policies, is unlawful under section 43 by virtue of the fact it imposes, and authorises imposition of, blanket restrictions on certain forms of free speech within the law when securing such speech would be reasonably practicable.

29. Speech is not without the law by virtue of the fact it lacks respect, professionalism, courtesy and consideration. The requirement that academic staff so conduct themselves is reasonable but legally baseless - speech that lacks respect, professionalism etc. is still free speech within the law.

30. The University must secure such speech, even if it would rather not, unless the steps required to do so would be unreasonably impracticable - that is not the case. It is easily practicable for the University to refrain from policing the online speech of academic staff.

31. The University can protect academics' extramural speech in practice, while safeguarding its legitimate interests by adopting best practice as set out below.

32. The University should adopt or develop an existing model in devising a pragmatic policy that acknowledges when content is 'academic' in nature despite the constraints of social media. For instance the Academic Expertise and Public Debate policy of the School of Oriental and African Studies provides:

> In public debate, such as opinion pieces or columns in the media, it is generally not possible to provide a detailed scholarly justification of the position adopted, nor to present every possible perspective on an issue; but it is expected that the position adopted should be defensible and that justification for it should be either available or able to be given at a level which would be of acceptable standard in the field of scholarship.[4]

33. The Social Media Policy should further take account of the 'house rules' of individual social media platforms. In any disciplinary proceedings concerning social media content, the decision-maker should presume that, if the content is found not to breach the terms of service of the relevant hosting platform, then in turn it cannot breach University policy. This presumption would be rebutted if the impugned content caused a breach of University policy that the platform could not have been aware of or have competently adjudicated (for instance, breach of confidence or intellectual property rights).

34. As a matter of principle, the policy of the University - as an institution founded on tolerance, free thought and free expression - should in all circumstances be more liberal and open-minded than the policy of social media platforms. For that reason, the converse of the above should not apply - content that is removed from a social media platform should not be presumed to breach University policy. It is suggested that the advent of the Online Safety Bill, which will compel platforms to proactively moderate illegal and harmful content, will make the proposed amendment inevitable - it will be implausible to hold that social media content allowed under the new online regime shouldn't be allowed under the University's liberal regime.

Compliance with Code of Practice

35. The harassment policies are unlawful because they breach the University's obligation to take reasonably practicable steps to secure compliance with the requirements under the Code of Practice that the University will 'protect robustly civic and academic freedoms and to foster an academic culture of openness and inclusivity' and protect freedom of speech and academic freedom.

36. To the extent that the Code of Practice purports to limit lawful freedom of speech in order to secure that 'all members of the University community, its visitors and contractors to treat each other with respect, courtesy and consideration', the Code of Practice is in breach of section 43(3) of the 1986 Act which requires the University to issue the Code 'with a view to facilitating the discharge of the duty' at section 43(1).

C. The University's breach of the Human Rights Act 1998

37. The University is a public authority for the purposes of the Human Rights Act 1998, and under section 6 of that Act may not act incompatibly with the rights set out in the European Convention on Human Rights.

38. Article 10 of the Convention states:

> (1) Everyone has the right to freedom of expression. This right shall include freedom to hold opinions and to receive and impart information and ideas without interference by public authority and regardless of frontiers.
> (2) The exercise of these freedoms, since it carries with it duties and responsibilities, may be subject to such formalities, conditions, restrictions or penalties as are prescribed by law and are necessary in a democratic society, in the interests of national security, territorial integrity or public safety, for the prevention of disorder or crime, for the protection of health or morals, for the protection of the reputation or rights of others, for preventing the disclosure of information received in confidence, or for maintaining the authority and impartiality of the judiciary.

Scope of Article 10(1)

The freedom to offend

39. It is well established in the common law and the case law of the European Court of Human Rights that the right to freedom of speech extends far beyond the limits envisaged by the Harassment Policy. As the Strasbourg Court said in Handyside v United Kingdom (1979-80) 1 EHRR 737, the freedom protected by Article 10 'is applicable not only to "information" or "ideas" that are favourably received or regarded as inoffensive or as a matter of indifference, but also to those that offend, shock or disturb the State or any sector of the population.' The freedom to offend is also recognised in common law. Lord Justice Sedley held in Redmond-Bate v Director of Public Prosecutions (1999) 7 BHRC 375 at para 20 that: 'Free speech includes not only the inoffensive but the irritating, the contentious, the eccentric, the heretical, the unwelcome and the provocative … Freedom only to speak inoffensively is not worth having.'

Academic freedom protections

40. The European Court accords a particularly high level of protection to academic freedom, and has held that academics, like members of the press, merit the highest level of protection as 'public watchdogs' (Magyar Helsinki Bizottság v. Hungary, App. no. 18030/11 (2016), [167] and [168).

41. In Kula v Turkey, App. No. 20233/06 (2018) [38] and [39], the Court held that even a minimal sanction or reprimand can constitute an unlawful interference with an academic's exercise of academic freedom.

42. Further, in the case of Sorguç v. Turkey, App. no. 17089/03 (2009) [34] and [35], the Court held that academic freedom comprises freedom to distribute knowledge and truth without restriction, and that attacks on reputation of person or institution must be assessed in light of the special importance of academic freedom.

43. The above was reaffirmed in Erdoğan v. Turkey, Apps. nos. 346/04 and 39779/04 (2014), a case which concerned a group of academics' scathing attack against members of Turkey's constitutional court, in which the academics asserted that they lacked intellectual and professional capability, were incapable of open-mindedness, and acted out of 'prejudice'. The Court explicitly stated (concurring opinion, [10]) that 'ordinary' protections of reputation and private life do not apply in the context of academic discussion of matters of public concern, whether that discussion be within or without the academic context. The academic's 'strategic role in guaranteeing an informed public and in building a society based on democracy' therefore limits even further the scope to interfere with academic speech on the ground it is offensive or intemperate.

Extramural speech

44. The judgment in Erdoğan at paragraph [40] also established that academic freedom protections apply beyond the teaching and research settings and extend 'to the academics' freedom to express freely their views and opinions, even if controversial or unpopular, in the areas of their research, professional expertise and competence.' At paragraph [3] of the concurring opinion, the Court also stated that Article 10 guarantees freedom of 'extramural' speech 'which embraces not only academics' mutual exchange (in various forms) of opinions on matters of academic interest, but also their addresses to the general public.'

Political speech protections

45. Political expression merits the highest degree of protection under the common law and under Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights. The lawful scope for limiting such expression is highly restricted. In the words of Lord Nicholls in R v BBC, ex p ProLife Alliance [2003] UKHL 23:

> Freedom of political speech is a freedom of the very highest importance in any country which lays claim to being a democracy. Restrictions on this freedom need to be examined rigorously by all concerned, not least the courts.

This position was echoed by the European Court of Human Rights in Vajnai v Hungary, App. no. 33629/06 (2008).

46. Therefore, any interference by the University with the political speech of its employees or students will require exceptional justification if it is to be lawful.

47. In Kharlamov v. Russia, App no. 27447/07 (2016) concurring opinion [5], the European Court held that the range of political speech protected by the Convention extends to the internal politics of universities and 'inherently protects democratic principles through the freedom of expression applicable to any organisation.'

48. Employees' and students' comments regarding political events and political figures within the local political world of the University (such as election to various student unions and bodies within the University and political activities, campaigns, opinions etc by students and staff), as well as expressions that fall within the broad definition of politics as 'matters of public concern' (Wingrove v United Kingdom, App no.17419/90 (1996) [58]), are to receive a very high degree of protection in the University's policies.

Lawful interference

49. Under Article 10(2) of the Convention, the University may interfere with free expression where interference is 'prescribed by law', 'necessary in a democratic society' (that is to say, corresponding to a pressing social need), and a proportionate means of achieving a legitimate aim prescribed by Article 10(2). As set out above, there is little scope for interference in relation to speech that is academic or political in nature (or both), and any interference must be carefully scrutinised by a court of law.

Prescribed by law: contractual obligations

50. While the University is a public authority subject to human rights and public law duties, its contractual relationship with its employees is a matter of private law. The law recognises that employees owe a duty of loyalty. An employee's contractual promise to comply with his or her employer's policies and instructions (such as the Harassment Policy) are 'prescribed by law' and can in certain circumstances override that employee's right to freedom of expression.

51. The University's power to rely on such contractual promises is, however, constricted by the principle in Herbai v Hungary App. no. 11608/15 (5 February 2020), in which the European Court set out the following criteria to be applied by courts in determining when an employee's duty of loyalty can override his or her right to freedom of expression:

a) Nature of the speech - academic and political/public interest speech is highly protected. Aspects that would weigh against Article 10 protection would include the comments being racist or otherwise hateful, or constituting an exceptionally gratuitous attack on another person.

b) Motives of the author - comments made in good faith would be more likely to be protected. Comments made from personal grievance or antagonism, or for pecuniary gain, would be less likely to be protected.

c) Damage caused to the employer - for instance breach of confidential information (but note that 'disrepute' carries little weight - see below).

d) Severity of sanction - a more severe sanction is less likely to be a proportionate interference with the right to freedom of expression.

52. The University cannot therefore rely automatically on the contractual obligation of academic staff to comply with University policy. Determining whether the duty of loyalty outweighs the right to freedom of expression calls unavoidably for judgment and sensitivity to the facts of the case. In light of the very high level of protection for speech of an academic or political nature, we suggest that in most cases the balance will tip in favour of freedom of expression, unless the academic in question has engaged in extreme conduct.

Reputation or rights of others

53. The legitimate aim of the Harassment Policy, within the limits of Article 10(2), is to protect the right of others not to be harassed or abused and to protect their reputation from baseless attack. However, important limitations constrict pursuit of this aim.

54. First, the University's right to suppress speech causing 'disrepute' to itself is restricted by the judgment in Kharlamov v. Russia, App no. 27447/07 (ECtHR 8 January 2016), paragraph 29 where the Court held that protection of a university's reputation is a 'mere institutional interest' and 'not necessarily of the same strength as "the protection of the reputation or rights of others" within the meaning of Article 10§2.'

55. In parallel, though not under the Convention, UK employment law restrains employers from dismissing employees in response to a 'kneejerk' impression that an employee's conduct has caused disrepute. The employer must demonstrate either that the employee's conduct actually caused disrepute, or that disrepute was reasonably likely as a result of the employee's conduct.

56. As previously mentioned, the Convention further protects academics' right to criticise the institution in which they work (see Sorguç [35], Kharlamov [27]). The UNESCO Recommendation concerning the Status of Higher-Education Teaching Personnel, 11 November 1997, to which the Statutes give effect, affirms the same right. Such criticism must therefore be excluded from conduct prohibited on the grounds of 'disrepute'.

57. Second, a value statement or value judgement with a 'sufficient' basis in fact cannot be deemed 'harassment' under Statute XI or the Harassment Policy. Indeed Strasbourg jurisprudence is clear that academic freedom in particular includes a wide freedom to express value judgments, even when expressed in 'strong and harsh remarks' (Erdoğan, concurring opinion [9]) so long as it can be proven, for instance because it was 'based on personal experience … and information which was already known in academic circles' (Sorguc [32]).

58. Within the context of political debate, the European Court has held that the terms 'closet Nazi' (Scharsach and News Verlagsgesellschaft v Austria, App. no. 39394/98 (2004)) and 'neofascist' (Karman v Russia, App. no. 29372/02 (2009)) constitute protected value judgments.

Particulars of breach of the Human Rights Act 1998

59. The harassment policies and/or the Social Media Policy are unlawful under section 6 of the Human Rights Act 1998 because, for the reasons set out below, they are incompatible with Article 10 of the Convention and therefore authorise unlawful interference with freedom of expression.

Unlawful interference with freedom of expression and academic freedom

60. The harassment policies interfere with, or authorise interference with, speech that is protected by Article 10.

61. Speech that has the purpose or effect of violating another's dignity, or creating an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment for another is (whatever its moral wrongness) protected under Article 10 absent some reason why its prohibition either pursues a legitimate aim under Article 10(2), or is unlawful under Article 17 of the Convention. The harassment policies establish no such grounds. They apply irrespective of whether the impugned speech relates to a protected characteristic (or otherwise constitutes unlawful conduct) and without regard to the special protections for academic freedom and political speech, or to the limitations on employees' duty of loyalty. It is to be reasonably inferred that the harassment policies are intended to apply despite these legal limitations.

62. Furthermore, by failing to have in place a preliminary stage at which meritless complaints (including vexatious, malicious and/or frivolous complaints) can be dismissed, the Harassment Policy allows and authorises disproportionate interference with the right to freedom of expression. Pursuit of the legitimate aim of protecting the rights and reputations of others does not require a blanket commitment to pursue all complaints regardless of their merits. Initiating harassment proceedings on the basis of clearly meritless complaints will impose a disproportionate burden on students and academics who have exercised their lawful rights, and will in practice incentivise baseless complaints in the knowledge that the targeted academic or student will in effect be punished simply by virtue of being dragged through the process.

Unlawful interference with extramural speech

63. The Social Media Policy, including when it is implemented in conjunction with the harassment policies, is unlawful under section 6 of the Human Rights Act 1998 because, for the reasons set out at paragraphs 25 and 26 above, it interferes, and authorises interference with, speech that is protected under Article 10.

64. It is accepted that the University has a legitimate interest in requiring its employees to conduct themselves in a respectful, professional, courteous and considerate way, and that an obligation to do so as part of employees' duty of loyalty can be consistent with Article 10 protections.

65. Under the Herbai v Hungary criteria, however, the University's scope to compel such conduct narrows when the speech in question is academic or political in nature. The Social Media Policy makes no such allowance - in fact, in warning employees about 'highly controversial' speech, the Policy applies more onerously when it should by law be more permissive.

66. By warning academic staff against 'expressing highly controversial opinions' in public, the Social Media Policy imposes at least a 'minimal' interference with academics' protected extramural speech. Contrary to the Social Media Policy, free speech protections should apply with particular force in relation to highly controversial opinions, as expression of such opinions is likely to constitute political speech.

67. The requirement that academic staff seek the University's written permission before commencing any public campaign is an unlawful interference with academics' rights to freedom of expression under Article 10 and association under Article 11. The University may not dictate what kinds of campaigns (online or otherwise) its staff might wish to run, support or subscribe to. The Strasbourg Court held in Kula v Turkey (cited above at [39]) that academic freedom includes an academic's untrammelled freedom to disseminate information without the authorisation of his or her supervisors.

68. While it is foreseeable that the University could have a legitimate interest in seeking prior approval for certain forms of campaigning - for instance, a campaign that might be mistaken for a campaign by the University - a blanket requirement is disproportionate and unlawful.

D. Next steps

69. The law leaves the University very little scope to interfere with the free speech of its academic staff and students. The University's policies, however, purport to dispense with its legal obligations and authorise unlawful conduct. They are therefore unlawful. Implementation of the policies as they stand is likely further to result in unlawful decisions.

70. The University's failure to implement policies that defend academics' legal right to freedom of speech and academic freedom encourages and helps those who call for harassment of, and violence against, dissenting academics. That failure puts the University at risk of legal action and liability in damages, a risk which will only increase when the Higher Education (Freedom of Speech) Bill becomes law. In addition, failure to secure academic freedom and freedom of speech poses a grave risk to the University's reputation.

71. In relation to a more general culture of free speech compliance, it is suggested that the University should adopt the liberal position taken by the University of Cambridge in its recent Statement on Freedom of Speech, and replace demands in the policies for 'respect' with a demand for 'tolerance'[5]. The Oxford Statement on Freedom of Speech correctly states that 'not all theories deserve equal respect.'

72. For all of the reasons set out in this note, the University should make the changes to the Harassment Policy and the Social Media Policy that are set out in the question to which this note is attached.

Question and Reply: Report of Proceedings

At the meeting of Congregation on 14 June, the question and reply, first published in the Supplement to the Gazette of 9 June, were taken as read. Seven supplementary questions were asked, as set out below.

QUESTION

'The University must secure lawful freedom of speech in order to comply with the law and in order to maintain its reputation as a free-thinking institution. It also has, simultaneously, legal and indeed moral obligations to prevent the harassment of all staff and students.

We believe the University's Harassment Policy and its policy on 'Using social media: Guidance for managers and employees on social media use' (the "policies") prohibit speech that is lawful and thereby breach the University's legal duty to take such steps as are reasonably practicable to secure freedom of speech within the law.

This is not a matter of mere legal technicality. These policies frustrate academic freedom - the lifeblood of this University - and harm academic careers. The signatories do not seek to undermine the University's culture of robust tolerance and decency. They do believe, however, that restrictions on academic freedom and freedom of speech must be lawful, and therefore ask if Council will amend, or procure the amendment of the policies so that they comply with the University's legal obligations to secure academic freedom and freedom of speech, by taking the following steps:

(a) Amending Statute XI.1(1)(e), the Harassment Policy and any other University policy that adopts a legally incorrect definition of harassment, so as to make them compliant with the law and the Code of Practice on Meetings and Events, in particular by taking account of the fact that the University may not rely on the Equality Act 2010 as a lawful ground to restrict the free speech of students.

(b) Amending the Code on Meetings and Events as follows:

(i) clarifying that the University's policy of ensuring that 'all members of the University community, its visitors and contractors to treat each other with respect, courtesy and consideration' is 'subject at all times to the University's duty to take reasonably practicable steps to secure freedom of speech within the law';

(ii) stating that 'by law the University may not prohibit or sanction speech solely on the ground that it is offensive';

(iii) stating in summary the enhanced legal protections for academic freedom and political speech;

(iv) stating in summary the legal protections for extramural speech by academic staff members; and

(v) stating in summary the law's protection of value judgements and the limitation of employees' duty of loyalty in relation to academic freedom and freedom of speech.

(c) Amending the Harassment Policy to state explicitly that malicious or vexatious allegations are considered a serious offence, and to specify the level of sanction warranted by the making of such allegations.

(d) Amending the Harassment Procedure to include an initial stage, prior to the investigation stage, at which the relevant authority may, having consulted the accused person and the accuser, dismiss a complaint if he or she reasonably believes it to be malicious, frivolous or vexatious.

(e) Ensuring that all staff and decision-makers engaged in disciplinary processes are properly trained in legal standards of academic freedom and freedom of speech.

(f) In the Using Social Media guidance (the "Guidance"), restating, or referring and linking to, the statements set out at paragraph (b) above and removing the wording regarding 'respect, professionalism, courtesy and consideration' and 'highly controversial opinions.'

(g) Amending the Guidance to provide that:

(i) all social media content that is within the Article 10 protection for extramural speech shall fall outside the Guidance;

(ii) the social media content of any student or academic who adopts the recommended disclaimer shall fall outside the Guidance, unless he or she rebuts the disclaimer by taking positive steps to portray his or her opinion as the official opinion or position of the University; and

(iii) any student or (subject to sub-paragraph (i) above) any academic who chooses not to adopt the disclaimer shall otherwise be fully responsible under the Guidance and other University policies.

(h) Adopting best practice measures that acknowledge the limited scope on social media for conveying academic and political ideas in a formal way (for instance with citations), and the importance of platforms' terms of service.

(i) Deleting the requirement that academic staff members seek the University's prior approval for public campaigning, or amending the policy to state the limited circumstances in which the University believes it would be lawful to impose such requirement.

The note, which forms part of this question, sets out in detail the illegality of the policies; it has not been reproduced here but is available in the Supplement to the Gazette of 9 June 2022.'

Signatories:

Dr Michael Biggs, St Cross College (proposing member)
Dr Roger Teichmann, St Hilda's College (supporting member)
Professor Nigel Biggar, Christ Church
Dr Alexander Morrison, New College
Professor Faisal Devji, St Anthony's College

Professor Ruth Harris, All Souls' College
Professor Jeff McMahan, Corpus Christi College
Professor Paul Elbourne, Magdalen College
Dr Yasmin Khan, Kellogg College

REPLY

'Given the importance of ensuring academic freedom, legal advice has been sought from leading counsel as to the concerns raised by the signatories to the letter and, in particular, as to the lawfulness of the University's policies (including its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance).

It is correct that the University must take such steps as are reasonably practicable to ensure freedom of speech within the law, and that the University must take into account Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights (the "Convention"). The University's commitment to freedom of speech is clear. Its statement on Freedom of Speech, a link to which can be accessed from every page of the University's website, describes it as the lifeblood of a university, stating that "It allows students, teachers and researchers to become better acquainted with the variety of beliefs, theories and opinions in the world."

In formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as its duties to staff and students, other obligations under the Convention, its public sector equality duties, and the risk of vicarious liability for the acts of its staff. Those factors are reflected, for example, in the University's Policy and Procedure on Harassment, which states that "The University does not tolerate any form of harassment or victimisation and expects all members of the University community, its visitors and contractors to treat each other with respect, courtesy and consideration".

The University's policies reflect its at times conflicting obligations by requiring standards of behaviour of its members, distinguishing between the freedom to explore and express ideas and the manner in which such ideas are expressed, reflecting the issues to be balanced in the University's approach to concerns that are raised, and making clear the University's commitment to freedom of speech.

In requiring standards of behaviour, the University protects freedom of speech, as reflected in the Code of Practice on Meetings and events: "The University believes that a culture of free, open and robust discussion can be achieved only if all concerned engage critically but courteously with each other."

In summary, the University is both allowed and obliged to take action in response to concerns about the treatment of a member of the University community by a fellow member of the same community and the University is confident that its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance reflect and comply with its legal obligations.'

SUPPLEMENTARY QUESTIONS

Supplementary Question 1 - Dr Michael Biggs, St Cross College (proposing member)

The Reply distinguishes (begin quote) 'between the freedom to explore and express ideas and the manner in which such ideas are expressed' (end quote). In Council's opinion, what is the basis in law for this distinction specifically in relation to cases where the manner of expression does not, in law, constitute harassment?

Supplementary Question 2 - Dr Roger Teichmann, St Hilda's College (supporting member)

The Reply states (begin quote) 'In formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as its duties to staff and students' (end quote). What specifically are the duties relied on in this 'formulation'?

Supplementary Question 3 - Dr Michael Biggs, St Cross College (proposing member)

The Reply states (begin quote) 'the University is confident that its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance reflect and comply with its legal obligations' (end quote). In Council's opinion, how is a prohibition on speech that, in the words of the Harassment Policy, 'has the effect of creating an offensive environment' consistent with the University's legal obligation to secure freedom of speech within the law?

The Reply states that (begin quote) 'the University is confident that its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance reflect and comply with its legal obligations' (end quote). Council does not explain in its Reply how that can be the case in the light of the specific queries about lawfulness raised in the text which is published as having been 'appended to the Question'. Will it now do so in a further detailed reply?

Supplementary Question 5 - Dr Michael Biggs, St Cross College (proposing member)

The Reply states (begin quote) 'In formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as ... its public sector equality duties' (end quote). In Council's view, exactly what obligations are imposed by the public sector equality duty in relation to academic freedom and free speech at the University?

Supplementary Question 6 - Dr Roger Teichmann, St Hilda's College (supporting member)

The Reply states (begin quote) 'In formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as ... other obligations under the Convention' (end quote). In Council's view, what specifically are those 'other obligations' under the European Convention on Human Rights?

Supplementary Question 7 - Dr Roger Teichmann, St Hilda's College (supporting member)

The Reply does not mention the Statement of Freedoms in Statute XII (4), although this has been approved by Congregation. Where in the University's hierarchy of internal legislation do the Policy and Procedure on Harassment, the Social Media Guidance and the Statement on Freedom of Speech stand and on what authority are they relied on in the Reply?

These supplementary questions will be received by Council and Council's reply will be published in a future edition of the Gazette.

Consultative Notices

Call for nominations for Honorary Degrees and for Degrees by Diploma

Honorary degrees are conferred annually at Encaenia. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty. Members of Congregation are encouraged to nominate individuals on whom such degrees might be conferred. Nominations are welcome all year round.

The Honorary Degrees Committee is charged with considering nominations received, consulting Council and making recommendations to Congregation. The Committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford – such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by e-mail under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.

Congregation 11 October

(1) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in New Radcliffe House to the Department of Experimental Psychology

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within New Radcliffe House to the Department of Experimental Psychology would extend an existing space allocation which was put in place in response to the closure of the Tinbergen Building.

The building provides substantial office, meeting and teaching space, supporting the department's research activities at the nearby Anna Watts Building. New Radcliffe House accommodates around 230 research staff and students in addition to providing the department's only large seminar room. As such, ongoing use of the space provided at New Radcliffe House is considered essential until the completion of the Life and Mind Building (LaMB).

Text of Resolution

The allocation of approximately 2,118 sqm net usable area NUA within New Radcliffe House (building number 553), to the Department of Experimental Psychology, for an ongoing period of approximately three years, from 26 June 2022 until 20 April 2025, or until completion of the Centre for Life and Mind Sciences, if sooner.

(2) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in Wytham Field Station to the Department of Zoology

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within Wytham Field Station to the Department of Zoology would extend an existing space allocation which was put in place in response to the closure of the Tinbergen Building.

The Wytham Field Station comprises offices, communal and welfare areas, and specialist research laboratories, including a molecular lab, aquarium rooms, and wet and dry labs. The building services 21 PIs, including those of two statutory chairs and one RSIV, 49 graduate students, 26 post-docs and academic visitors, and 12 other staff. The field station is currently allocated to Zoology until the formal merger with the Department of Plant Sciences in August 2022 when allocation will change to the Department of Biology. Although the field station was initially allocated in response to the sudden closure of the Tinbergen Building, it is not intended that the Department of Biology will vacate the building following the completion of LaMB.

Text of Resolution

The allocation of approximately 703 sqm NUA within the Wytham Field Station (building number 267), to the Department of Zoology for a period of five years, from 13 March 2022 to 12 March 2027.

(3) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of a site on the Churchill Hospital site to the Medical Sciences Division

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation of a site on the Churchill Hospital site to be used to construct the expansion to the Clinical BioManufacturing Facility.

The University has purchased approximately ten acres of land at the Churchill Hospital site for the purpose of providing long-term development potential for the expansion of the Medical Sciences Division (MSD). Parts of the land have been utilised by MSD for COVID- related vaccine trials and other related purposes, centred around the Clinical BioManufacturing Facility (CBF) and the Clinical Centre for Vaccinology and Tropical Medicine (CCVTM). Part of this activity has been housed within temporary units, and MSD's aspiration is to consolidate this activity into more permanent accommodation within that area of the Churchill site.

Text of Resolution

The allocation of approximately 1,612 sqm on the Churchill Hospital site to the Medical Sciences Division to be used to construct the expansion to the Clinical BioManufacturing Facility (building number 634).

Meeting information

Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on 3 October, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they wish to oppose or amend the resolutions at (1), (2) or (3) above (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise or the meeting has been adjourned the legislative proposals and the resolution shall be declared carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

The Committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford - such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by e-mail under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.

New policy for business travel

The University has a new Travel Policy that will come into effect on 1 August. This formal policy replaces the guidance that was in place before, clarifying the rules about business travel - whether for conferences, fieldwork, placements or interviews - and introducing measures that will help the University achieve the targets set out in its 2021 Environmental Sustainability Strategy (https://sustainability.admin.ox.ac.uk/environmental-sustainability-strategy).

After extensive consultation and a pilot rollout in five departments, the policy has been approved by the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee. It introduces a flight levy charged at a rate of £30 per tonne of carbon; a requirement to travel by rail to most destinations within the UK and to Paris and Brussels, rather than flying (unless exceptions or reasonable adjustments are applicable); a flight reduction target of 20% by 2024/25; and a process of additional authorisation for business-class flights. More information about the policy and what it means for staff and students can be found on the Estates Services' Travel pages (https://travel.admin.ox.ac.uk/business).

Extracts from the terms and conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. Advertisements are accepted for publication at the discretion of the editor of the Gazette.

Note. When an advertisement is received via the online shop, an acknowledgement will be emailed automatically to the email address provided by the advertiser. The sending of this acknowledgement does not constitute an acceptance of the advertisement or an undertaking to publish the advertisement in the Gazette.

2. The right of the Gazette to edit an advertisement, in particular to abridge when necessary, is reserved.

3. Advertisements must be accompanied by the correct payment, and must be received by the deadline stated above. No refund can be made for cancellation after the acceptance of advertisements.

4. Once an advertisement has been submitted for publication, no change to the text can be accepted.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Disclaimer

8. The University of Oxford accepts no responsibility for the content of any advertisement published in the Gazette. Readers should note that the inclusion of any advertisement in no way implies approval or recommendation of either the terms of any offer contained in it or of the advertiser by the University of Oxford.

a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. 1 Conferment of Honorary Degrees

The Public Orator made the following speeches in presenting the recipients of honorary degrees at the Encaenia on Wednesday, 22 June:

BERNARD TAYLOR

Ecce, Domine Cancellarie, coram adest qui agmini hospitum insignium procul alicunde receptorum exordio sit candido; produco e nostris hominem cum familiarem tum laudatum, apud quem consilium firmum, officia constantia ac fidelia hodie revocemus Universitati et curatoribus nostris impertita. Cum ad ea respicio quae confecit, in dubitationem adducor: qualisnam Doctoris ad gradum supplicabo ut admittatur? Chemiae peritum se praebuit, ut callide ac scienter prodesset vel hic alicubi vel etiam patriae gubernationi, necnon columen suppeditavit quo sustentarentur aedes nostrae ecclesiasticae et cathedrales - ubi, ut eloquenter dicit, celebratur, animi coluntur, memoriae servantur, cives congressi colloquuntur, nam ibidem refugium datur, religiones observantur, omnibus fere auxilium invenitur, quaslibet religiones colant aut reiciant. Nonne mirati spectavimus quemadmodum impedimenta atque pericula rerum aerariarum vel iurum superaverit, et urbana et agraria administraverit, et artium et scientiarum patrimonium nostrum tuitus curaverit? Mihi autem ante omnia fabulis musicis studenti amoena ea placent quibus cum nomine anima Garsingtoniana fovetur - nam et ibi opera officiis huius profecerunt, spiritu et elegantia creverunt. Atenim nuper audivimus, quod his temporibus fortasse displicet audire, senes saepe, ut videatur, in talibus scaenis dilectis vexare licere vel etiam irridere. Aliquando tamen, ut apud Wolfgangum Amadeum vel Iosephum semper viridem apparet, quidam firmioris generis esse se praebent; quorum voces nunc mansuefacere velim, ut honorandus noster posthac oratorem hunc senilem his verbis revocatis mente teneat: senex iste mihi benedixit! Huc accedat quod, etsi me nullo modo Commendatorem appello, nihilominus hunc virum commendo, simul obsecrans ut tecum, Domine Cancellarie, et hic 'auscultet, nam brevius modo commoror'.

Praesento negotiatorem peracutum, civem in munificentia impigrum, huius Universitatis amicum diu stabilem, Bernardum Taylor, Excellentissimi Ordinis Imperii Britannici Commendatorem, Collegii Collegium Sancti Iohannis Baptistae socium, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili.

Paraphrase

My Lord Chancellor, behold in person a resounding overture to our array of distinguished guests from far and wide; I introduce an imposing, albeit familiar figure from inside our numbers, whose presence with us recalls long and faithful service and counsel to our University and its governance. His accomplishments are such that I might have presented him for a degree in almost any category. For here is a proven scientist who has lent his expertise to the management of bodies not only in Oxford but at a national level, and here also a stalwart support and sustainer of our churches and cathedrals - places, as he says so eloquently, of 'celebration, culture, commemoration and community gatherings, places of sanctuary and worship, and a resource for people of all faiths and none'. His skill in triumphantly traversing the minefields of worlds financial and legal, his stewarding of both city and countryside, his protective oversight of our artistic as well as scientific patrimony, all of this we mark with wondering eye. But above all my taste is for opera, and the pleasant pastures that have fostered the name and spirit of Garsington, for there too the Taylor's work is worn with pride and elegance. Now it has recently been pointed out, perhaps unfashionably, that old men often seem to be regarded, in that hallowed repertoire, as fair game for discomfiture or even ridicule. But let us note some stern exceptions. I call to mind some characters in Mozart and Verdi, and allow myself, Lord Chancellor, to tame their voices. May our honorand long remember this old orator with the thought: Quel vecchio benedivami![1] And further, myself no Commendatore, I nevertheless commend him, and beg you, and him, 'hear, since short is my stay'[2]:

I present an astute businessman, diligent philanthropist and long-standing friend of this University, Bernard Taylor CBE, Honorary Fellow of St John's College, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

Admission by the Chancellor

Artium et scientiarum socium assiduum, apud nos consilii auctorem et ducem, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Iure Civili honoris causa.

Untiring ally of arts and sciences, guide and counsel to our endeavours, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

Degree of Doctor of Letters

SIR LENNY HENRY

…τοῦ δὲ γαργαλίζεσθαι μόνον ἄνθρωπον αἴτιον ἥ τε λεπτότης τοῦ δέρματος καὶ τὸ μόνον γελᾶν τῶν ζῴων ἄνθρωπον.[1]

Hominibus inest, ut mihi videtur Aristoteles censuisse, vel ob titillationem vel iocationem ridere, etsi et alia ad humanitatem definiendam quaerenda sunt. Sed multo post scilicet eum Gallicus quidam monuit - id quod momenti erat - hoc quoque proprium nostrum esse, quod non modo ridemus sed ipsi ridiculi apparemus. Ecce amici hodie nostrum agmen ducit qui puerulus olim Dudeleiensis expedire cognovit aliis animos in hilaritatem traducere, quo facto condiscipulis eum minus procaciter lacessere libebat. Quid? Audimus nil adesse quod hic non risu dignum praebere valeat, ut recte in ordinem praeclarum surrexerit quinquaginta Britannorum ridiculissimorum. Qui voce sua nos delectat atque habitu, necnon eis partibus quas tam subtiliter nos stupefaciens sustinet. Sed et hoc miramur, quod intellegit ea lepidissima habere oportere qualia minime noceant, nullo modo violent. Immo imprimis facetiae breviloquentia impressae ei cordi sunt, quibus etiam omnibus aliis praecellit. Iamdudum enim sale facetiisque admodum benignis comoediam vero comiter fovet, ut res nostrae feliciores floreant. Ne tamen omittamus quae in scaena theatrali cum comoediae tum tragoediae effecit - ibi enim dicitur certo decore egisse, praesertimque ita praestitisse ubi Othello eum verbis ac sensibus invidiae, suspicionis, diffidentiae totum arreptum involvisse visus esset. Et commendo vobis ea quae de se ipso scripsit, ea quae iuniores artis generis sui prudenter et acriter docet ut arte perficienda magna spectent.

Praesento comoediae, artium theatralium, beneficentiae denique cultorem impigrum, dilectissimum, Lenworth Georgium Henry, equitem auratum, Excellentissimi Ordinis Imperii Britannici Commendatorem, Universitatis Urbis Birminghamiae Cancellarium, ud admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Paraphrase

That man alone is affected by tickling is due firstly to the delicacy of his skin, and secondly to his being the only animal that laughs.[1]

If I understand Aristotle correctly, laughter, whether caused by tickling or by listening to a joke, is a condition of being human - not a sufficient condition, but perhaps a necessary one. Long after he said that, a Frenchman will have taught him the necessary lesson that 'our own peculiar condition is that we are as fit to be laughed at as able to laugh.'[2] My friends, our line is led by one who, as a lad growing up in Dudley, learnt the strategy of making others laugh at him and at themselves, for when finding him funny his schoolboy tormentors tormented him less. It has been said that he has the gift of making anything sound funny, and so he has duly earned his place in the illustrious list of the fifty funniest Brits. We laugh at his voice, his gestures, the devastating accuracy of his impersonations, but he is admirably aware that the best humour does not hurt or victimise. It is the one-liner he loves best, and in which he excels. And his good-natured wit and energy have for decades fostered comedy in making the world happier. Let us also record his proven prowess on the theatrical stage, not in comedy alone but in Shakespearean tragedy - 'a performance', said a critic, 'of dignity which peaks when Othello's jealous inferences begin to grip his whole being.' Further, though, I must commend to you our honorand's writing on himself, and the wise and acute advice he gives to younger comics on their craft and their aspirations. 'Craft', he says, 'is everything.'

I present a tireless and much-loved supporter of comedy, drama and charity, Sir Lenworth George Henry, CBE, Chancellor of Birmingham City University, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Admission by the Chancellor

Legate dignissime Thaliae Melpomenesque, qui risu, scribendo, impetu animi permultis felicitatem humaniter restituit, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris honoris causa.

Worthy envoy of Thalia and Melpomene, whose personality, whose laughter, whose writing, whose energy have helped to restore happiness to so many, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

PROFESSOR WILLIAM CHESTER JORDAN

'Hic sunt tigres', ut facile in mentem revoco, ita a Princetoniensibus recte dici potest. Ecce ex locis illis augustis procedit qui splendide candet, qui iampridem apud Americanos rerum gestarum medii aevi studiosus eminet, qui propter ea quae ipse passus cognovit dignus est qui clare honesteque affirmet talia studia nostra multi referre. Spectate, precor, quam primum Encaeniam aliam quandam - officium dico 'Initii' anno propiore apud Universitatem Catholicam Americanam celebratum. Ibi enim de Roberto Sorbonensi narravit in Francia Septentrionali abhinc amplius mille annos servorum filio nato. Qui contemptione aliorum molliter lata, rebusque iniquis superatis, effecit ut inter omnes maxime fere studiis, et optime Academiae, prodesset. His relatis, vitaque sua ipsius item tradita, hunc decet scholares hortari ut iunioribus, quibus aliquando obviam fiant, bona atque beneficia eruditionis oblata praebeant. Et quae indagat, qualia docet, haec multa ac varia nobis miratis videntur. Hoc enim ducente de gubernatione regum didicimus, de vita actionibusque Ludovici Noni cognomine sancti, de moribus et administratione monachorum Britannorum et Gallicorum. Accedit etiam quod de mutuis rebus Iudaeorum Christianorumque certiores nos facit, de pecunia mulierum, de inopia ac fame, de servitio. Omnia argumento admodum accurato usus expromit, admirationem movens docet, ut discipuli eius iam late ubique apud collegia multa et praeclara adsint videndi. Itaque tali exemplo fructi et aequitate observata intellegere conemur quae antehac obstiterint, quomodo meliora sint inventa. Monet hic ne temporibus maiorum nostra imponamus, neve acta priora velut exempla ad hodierna vel ad futura adhibeamus. Ut praeiuducare fugiamus, hoc aliquando nil nisi 'somnium excelsum' esse videbatur; ecce qui multi facit, dulce habet, ita vero somniare.

Praesento, Domine Cancellarie, f lumen verum ubertate ac perennitate praeditum, inter historicos ducem, Willelmum Chester Jordan, Academiae Britannicae Socium, apud Universitatem Princetoniensem Professorem, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Paraphrase

In Princeton, as I well remember, it may be truly said: 'Here there be Tygers.'[1] And here, forth from Princeton's historic corridors, is one who burns bright indeed, a scholar who has for decades led the study of Medieval History in the USA. He is also one who can tell, with the vivid clarity and integrity of personal experience, how History matters. Tune in to another Encaenia - for so I might term the 2021 'Commencement' of the Catholic University of America.[2] In his address to the students he relates the story of Robert de Sorbon, born in Northern France in 1201 the son of serfs, who overcame disadvantage and prejudice to become one of the greatest ever benefactors to education and to the best purposes of a university. That story, and our honorand's own comparable story, enable him to call students to 'preach the beatitude of education' to those youngsters whom they encounter throughout their lives. His own research and teaching cover an astonishing range of subjects. From him we learn much about royal governance, the career and achievements of the hallowed King Louis IX, monastic life and administration in Britain and France, relations between Jews and Christians, women and credit, famine and serfdom. His writing is full of evidence and argument, his teaching widely admired, his former students spread liberally in many leading colleges. Let us attempt, under guidance such as his, to understand objectively the problems and solutions of the past. At the same time he cautions us against reading our present into the past, or finding in the past a 'blueprint' for the present and the future. Objectivity, he says, though it has been described as merely a 'noble dream', is nevertheless a 'dream worth dreaming'.

I present a veritable river whose flow is rich and constant, doyen of medievalists, William Chester Jordan, Professor at Princeton University, Fellow of the British Academy, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

PROFESSOR THEDA SKOCPOL

Inter terminos aliis opus esse cognovimus, aliis potius violatis frui solemus. Nunc ex agmine procedit quae transcensis finibus scientiisque collatis lumen adhibuit rebus inopinatum quas omnes magni facimus. Hoc enim ante omnia curare monet, ne ulli viae vel rationi omnino captati addicti fiamus. Sive eam historicam agnoscamus, seu reipublicae vel communis vitae morum scientiae antistitem, verum etiam omnium horum summam comprehensam superat. Mente enim integra rationem secuta hortatur ut denuo cogitemus quibus de causis nationes ad novas res adducantur, unde populis dominationes contingant, quonam modo status civitatum turbentur aut in meliora corrigantur, quaenam denique afferant cives coniuncti vel consociati ad ea beneficia quae nuper inter primos alius quidam apud nos honorandus 'opes civiles' nomine vocavit. Haec et collegae eius olim a Theae Circuli fautoribus benigne 'liberales' vocati sunt, nec tamen ut eis odio forent. Nam omnes discipulos suos docet aliis in talibus rebus versantibus vel agentibus ita uti, quamvis animis dissideant, ut mutue comiter ac sincere colloquantur. Quod praeceptum apud nos bene scimus colendum esse. Respicite quantum in investigationibus huius nostra quoque intersit; spectandum modo est quae eveniant cum extra magnas urbes regiones aliquae propter moderationes impositas advenis careant, nempe ubi ad agros colendos vel ad alia peragenda requiruntur. Iamdudum, ut haec animadvertit, Universitatibus cum vita communi minus minusque est commercii. 'Reticuli' igitur nomine concepto in animo habet indagatores et gubernatores nostros, et quae utrique perspiciunt, hortari ut una ad eadem conitantur. Peritorum - ut qui neve desint neve unquam superf luere putentur - utinam utilitas magistratibus nostris manifesta videatur.

Praesento igitur veram scientiarum vitae communis peritam, quae ad morum et sermonum liberalium utilitatem agnoscendam nobis fidem restituat, Thedam Skocpol, apud Universtitatem Harvardianam Professorem, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

Paraphrase

Some boundaries are useful in themselves, others more so in the breach. Next in our distinguished line is one who by crossing boundaries and combining disciplines has cast new light on subjects that matter to all of us. 'The important thing', she says, 'is not to be captured by any one given method or school of thought.' We may call her a historian, or political scientist, or sociologist, but in truth she is more than the sum of all of these, for her open-minded pursuit of evidence has invited us to think afresh about what forces make states face revolt, what are the social origins of dictatorship, how revolutions work, what constitutes a welfare system, what drives social and political reform, and above all what are the roles of civic groups and associations in the development of what another of our recent honorands pioneeringly termed 'social capital'.[1] She and her young researchers have been generously described by a Tea Party organiser as 'liberals - but they're not so bad!', for she teaches all her students to engage in mutual respect and open dialogue with political thinkers and activists with whom they may disagree. We know we must admire this principle in the academy. There is for us an evocative ring in her investigations, of what happens, for example, when outside the big cities some US counties suffer restrictions in immigration precisely where people are most needed for agricultural and other work. Over many decades, she notes, there has been a collapsing of bridges between the universities and public life. Her 'Network' aims to bring the insights of scholars into greater engagement with government policy. Expertise - we can never have too much of it - must be made more attractive to our legislators.

I present a true social scientist, one who may help to restore faith in truly liberal values and arguments, Theda Skocpol, Professor at Harvard University, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

WIM WENDERS

'Si quo opere huius generis certiores fimus res mutari posse, id mihimet magnum vero videtur.'

Medicus fieri poterat, vel philosophus, sed ea quibus huic puero vel adulescenti placebat incumbere - scribendi artem dico vel pingendi vel photographica conficiendi - haec omnia credit tantum narrationibus cinematographicis creandis optime in unum conferre potuisse. Et gaudemus quod ita miri ingenii imaginum factus est creator motorque, nam in tali animatione magister perspicitur. Secundum hunc, ut audimus, videre et arbitrari multum differunt; nam in videndo omnino abesse ut opinemur, immo re vel persona altera conspecta, vel externis nobis praestitis, nos nullam ad opinionem adduci, sed haec revera intellecta nos perspicere, ut modo videndo veritatem capiamus coniectam. Nostrae aetati veritas saepe difficilis videtur captu; ecce qui praesentia imaginum oblata ad vera concipienda nobis subveniat, sive homines ita contemplantibus sive loca agrestia aut urbana. Simul tamen intellegit ipsas imagines, si quis malus eis usus nobis invideat, infeste tractari posse. Liceat mihi per me opus aliquod commendare, Terrae Salem; ubi hic more doctoris imagines ab egregio photographo Sebastiano Salgado admirabiliter effectas in motum narrationemque commoventem transtulit, ut inde veram peregrinationem quandam excipiamus, ab locis desperationis tandem in spem felicioris fortunae conducamur, ideoque confidamus vires devastantes naturae posse repugnari. Haud tamen negarem et aliter vitam humanam identidem huius fabulis operibusque tam artificiosis collustratam et corroboratam esse, id quod a Parisiis Texanis usque ad Vaticana vel ad vigilias angelicas Berolini etiamque ultra videtur. Idemque apud opera admodum laudata quae una cum aliis scriptoribus atque artificibus tam praeclare produxit.

Praesento vobis scriptorem, photographum VIM fortem habentem, Germaniae Recentis et semper recentioris Theatri Cinematici verum lumen, Ernestum Willelmum Wenders, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Litteris.

'Any film that supports the idea that things can be changed is a great film in my eyes.'

He might have become a doctor, or a philosopher, but of all those things that he has liked doing, writing, taking photographs and painting, he believes he could not have put all of them together in any better way than with film-making. We rejoice that he became such a conjurer of images, narratives and observations - for in such animation is revealed the master[1] - who says that seeing is different from thinking, for 'there are no opinions in seeing; in seeing you can come to a view of another person, an object, the world, that doesn't imply an opinion, where you just confront the thing or person, take it on board, perceive it. It suggests you can have truth and understanding just from seeing.'[2] These days truth so often seems elusive, but here is one who may help us to catch it in the immediacy of what we see - of persons as well as landscapes and cities - while also knowing that in the wrong hands images can be dangerously manipulated. I commend to you 'The Salt of the Earth', a documentary in which our honorand, as co-director, spirits into movement and moving narrative the astonishingly captured still scenes of master photographer Sebastião Salgado, and presents thereby a journey from scenes of human despair to ultimate optimism, in which we see that, as he suggests, 'the destructive power of nature can be reversed.' But life is constantly re-examined in so many of the stories that his filmic masterpieces tell, from Paris (Texas) to the angelic oversight of Berlin, to Rome and beyond, and through the masterly collaborations he has shown with other artists and writers.

I present Wim, a powerful writer, photographer and luminary of the New and ever newer German and international cinema, Ernst Wilhelm Wenders, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

PROFESSOR ARA WARKES DARZI, BARON DARZI OF DENHAM

Adest Armenius insignis, familia natus multum peregrinata, quem nos decuit, immo iuvit, Britannum adoptasse, qui sanitatem nostram scrutatus quemadmodum temperata sit contendit ut posthac magis haec floreat. Recordemur illum olim nuper senatorem creatum collegam quendam, qui paullo ante sibi oratione refragatus erat, in vitam rettulisse. Haud scio an multum prius hic puerulus Bagdetiae meningitide morbo affectus tum primum officiis vere vitalibus valetudinarii observatis semitam suam futuram agnovisset. Qua lustrata multum respexit apud valetidinaria nostra, nec solum ipse medici officio functus sed etiam ea diligenter contemplatus quae permulti humiliore minorisque aestimato loco, quantaevis ipsi essent aestimationis digni, efficiebant, quos diutius, ut puto, simul et requisivimus et neglegere soliti fuimus. Visne aliquid melius facere? Primo, monet hic, illud metare. Et quae nostra metatus est, illa et deficere videt et meliora fieri posse. Condiscipuli Dublinenses dixerunt eum habitum placidum, temperatum praestare, sese tamen eum melius novisse, revera in scientia studiosum, et in medicina impigrum et in officiis regendis. Chirurgiam adhibet levissimae actionis, scopum tamen certum petentem; in machinis roboticis dirigendis vi animi ducit, multa denique investigata scripsit. In rebus publicis versatus - cursum honorum, ut videtur, propter sollertiam modo ascendit - hoc in animo habuit, aequitati inter ordines nostros consulere. Unum praeceptum ei semper bene suffecit: Si aliquid facere veteris, quare vetaris rogato. Audio huic in insula remota residenti 'Certe, Praefecte' oblectationi fore. Audeo igitur novum titulum pro hoc saltem tempore proponere: Այո, նախարար, քանի դեռ այդ նախարարը Դուք էք – 'Certe, Praefecte, si tu quidem Praefectus eris.'

Praesento chirurgum, indagatorem, reipublicae consultum insignem, hominem humanum ac beneficum, Aram Warkes, Baronem Darzi de Denham, Regiae Maiestatis ex Intimo Consilio, Ordini insigniter Meritorum adscriptum, Excellentissimi Ordinis Imperii Britannici Equitem Commendatorem, Regiae Societatis Sodalem, apud Universitatem Londiniensem Professorem, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia.

Paraphrase

Here stands a distinguished Armenian, one of a much-travelled family whom we proudly own as Armenian-British, who has examined the health provision of our nation, and sought to help plan its future. His first great achievement in our Upper House, let us remember, was to save the life of a fellow parliamentarian who had just opposed him. It was perhaps in early childhood in Baghdad that a brush with meningitis introduced him to lifesaving hospital medicine and thereby set him on his chosen path, along which he has seen much of the life of our hospitals, and not only as a doctor but from close observation in those less glamorous, less recognised, but no less crucial, corners of service that we have too long taken for granted. You can only improve things he says, if you measure them, and his measurements have found our performance both wanting and capable of improvement. His fellow Dublin students once said that, while he appeared 'calm and collected', they knew him better. He is in truth a tireless and questioning scientist, clinician and leader. 'Minimally invasive' but finely targeted is his surgery, inventive his pioneering of robotics in medicine, copious his research and writing, and in his political career - I note that he was appointed to a ministry on grounds of expertise alone - his aim has been to reduce inequalities in our society. He has always observed a fine principle: when told not to do something, always ask 'why not?' I understand that his desert island entertainment would be 'Yes, Minister'. For the moment I venture to suggest a new title: Այո, նախարար, քանի դեռ այդ նախարարը Դուք էք - 'Yes, Minister, if that Minister is you!'

I present a surgeon, a scientist, a policy-maker of great distinction, and above all a kindly and effective human being, Ara Warkes, Baron Darzi of Denham, PC, OM, KBE, FRS, Professor at Imperial College, London, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Admission by the Chancellor

Domine, proles et Hippocratis et Mkhitaris Heratsi, qui in chirurgia ut clavi ita oculis nostris foramen praestitisti quo melius ad meliora prospiciamus, ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto te ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia honoris causa.

Lordly scion of both Hippocrates and Mkhitar Heratsi, who have given us a keyhole through which to glimpse a better future, I on my own authority and that of the whole University admit you to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

πολίτης δὲ κοινῇ μὲν ὁ μετέχων τοῦ ἄρχειν καὶ ἄρχεσθαί ἐστι, καθ᾽ ἑκάστην δὲ πολιτείαν ἕτερος, πρὸς δὲ τὴν ἀρίστην ὁ δυνάμενος καὶ προαιρούμενος ἄρχεσθαι καὶ ἄρχειν πρὸς τὸν βίον τὸν κατ᾽ ἀρετήν.[1]

Nonne credidit Aristoteles cives etiam variis reipublicae formis usos honeste atque efficaciter officia satisfacere posse? Sed ubi honeste ducendo gubernatur, talem 'politeiam' haud minimi faciebat. Quam virtutem cum miramur tum persaepe scimus apud eos deesse qui nobis praepositi sunt, aut potius se praeposuerunt. Audio apud Sudanenses inter alias Africae gentes in proverbio esse qui digito ad aliquem intendant eos non semper sentire ad ipsos sese digitos ceteros suos intentos esse. Caute igitur intendamus! Cognovimus magistratuum nostrorum eorumque munerum odorem tentandum esse. Virum produco, Domine Cancellarie, qui satis cauto digito intendit, contendit tamen nihilominus ut alibi reipublicae mores in statum prosperum ac salutarem provehantur; nam ibi animum praestat ubi ingenium videt antecellere, et bona affectata perfici. Ipse machinalis scientiae valde peritus hic incepta varia summi ingenii excogitat, ut propter ea quae valde enixus collocat Africanis innumeris iam facultas data sit - beatam hanc MObilitatem animi! - undecunque colloquendi operamque conferendi. Merito profecit, recte inde auctoritatis et gubernandi moribus per illam continentem optimis profuit. Visis eis quibus hic sumptibus suis subvenit, optandum est ut posthac minores quoque talia exempla secuti futura quaedam firmiora, feliciora condere possint. Iam annos aliquot lentius, incertius plerumque nos homines progressi sumus; munera huius et providentiam oportet considerare ut spei ac confidentiae MOmenti vis conferatur ubicumque maxime ea opus esse videatur. Et domi quoque mores ab eo foris promotos nobiscum volvere decet.

Itaque praesento qui re ipsa gubernatis et recte gubernantibus amicum se praebuit, Mahometum (Mo) Ibrahim, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia.

Paraphrase

A citizen is generally one who shares in governing and being governed, although he is different according to each form of constitution, but in the best he is one who has the capacity and the will to be governed and to govern with a view to the life in accordance with virtue.[1]

Aristotle can envisage virtuous and effective participation in more than one form of constitution. But he is also aware of the value of true leadership - that admirable virtue that is so often found wanting in those who are placed, or have placed themselves, in authority. Now there is, I am told, a Sudanese proverb, apparently shared by other African countries: 'those who point a finger at others are not always aware that the remaining fingers are pointing in their own direction.' Let us do so only with due caution. We are aware that our own institutions of government and governance are deserving of scrutiny. Chancellor, here stands a man who, while also being cautious in pointing the finger, seeks to bring about the most effective salutary political changes through recognising and encouraging talent, aspiration and achievement. Himself a brilliant engineer, he is an entrepreneur whose ideas, efforts and investments have brought mobile communication within the reach of countless people in Africa, and who has used his justly earned success to promote the values and culture of good governance and leadership throughout that continent. On the example of those his foundations have rewarded, let us hope that future generations may build greater stability, happiness and prosperity. These last years have slowed and threatened progress in most of the world, and the vision of our honorand's foundation may raise momentum and confidence in places where these are most to be desired. Let us, too, at home learn for ourselves from such values as Mo promotes abroad.

I present a philanthropist in the strongest and truest sense of the word, Mohammed Ibrahim, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Ecce sub Oceano viridum frondentia ramis silvarum decora; ecce animis capiuntur et illic mutua permotis semper certamina rerum; omnia percipiunt oculi, spirantque per undas corpora. sic etiam qui nunc habitamus in orbe terrarum cernamus, et hic subtilia sensu spirantes, longinqua alios fortasse colentes.

Producitur nunc quae mentes nostras ab altera in alteram regionem dirigit, ab oceano ad terram dico, a profundis scientiae biologicae in tempora fortasse minus remota ubi hunc orbem certe admodum a nobis frequentatum tutius colamus. Olim tanta erat fiducia, tanta neglegentia nostra ut oceanum declararemus propter magnitudinem in aeternum incorruptum fore, pauloque post desperantes eum propter eandem irreparabilem esse. Sed haec femina comprehendit illa profunda nunquam iam neglegi posse, ut quae certe miranda sint sed praeterea hominibus universis sint saluti ac valetudini. Ibi enim vires maximae utilitatis invenimus, quae et renovandae videntur dummodo sciamus quo ventus res vertat, ut ita dicam. Et inde datur quo nos alamur, quod caute metiendo colere possimus. Quam peritiam et aliis benefico modo diffundit; acu enim vere magnetica ipsius collegarumque eius ad melius intellegendum ducimur quantas opes Natura per maria impertierit, quibus circumdati nos lucem novam ex oceano ortam videamus, ut Latine diceret poeta. Huic, apud universitatem suam collegarum prudentia fructae, primae generis sui, ut puto, licuit ad 'fractiones' pactionis spectanti pariter et domui et officiis consulere. Nonne hoc facto fractoque certissimi fimus minus aliquando maius contrahere?

Praesento nuntiam sanioris status oceanorum et populi et reipublicae opum, Jane Lubchenco, apud Universitatem Civitatis Oregoniae professorem, Regiae Societatis inter socios exteros adlectam, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Scientiae.

Paraphrase

The world below the brine,

Forests at the bottom of the sea, the branches and leaves…

Passions there, wars, pursuits, tribes, sight in those ocean-depths, breathing that thick-breathing air, as so many do,

The change thence to the sight here, and to the subtle air breathed by beings like us who walk this sphere,

The change onward from ours to that of beings who walk other spheres.[1]

Behold here one who points from realm to realm - from ocean to land, and from the depths of biology to a safer future for all of us in our in our humandominated planet. Such was human confidence and carelessness that once we said the ocean was 'too big to fail', then later we despaired that it was 'too big too fix', but this lady has rather found those depths 'too big to ignore', a source of wonder in themselves but, further, a source of healing and security for the world. For there is energy, renewable as long as we know which way the wind is blowing, and there too is nourishment than can be managed, husbanded. And such science is one she diffuses to great effect, for the COMPASS2 of her and her colleagues leads us to greater understanding of the natural bounty that surrounds us in our waters, so that once again a new dawn may be seen to rise from the ocean, as the Latin poet would say. Once her University had the wisdom to allow her - the first, it seems, of her genus - a 'fractional' contract that allowed child-rearing and profession equal weight. What greater proof than that fraction, that less is more?

I present a herald of healthier oceans, healthier people, and healthier economies, Jane Lubchenco, Professor at Oregon State University, Foreign Member of our Royal Society, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Denique iam tuere hoc, circum supraque quod omne continet amplexus terram…

Ecce iterum quaedam e profundis orta - quae in duritiiS CUBAntibus nobis exemplum praebeat, quae iam aetate ineunte, amoenitates oceani silentio submersas mirata Gallice praesentatas, se ad illecebras rerum naturae adlectam sentiebat. Adulescens autem studio chemiae provocante ita mutata est ut revera ad astra appropinquatura esse videretur. Paulo post, in regione antarctica investigatoribus praefecta, multum profuit ad demonstrandum stratum ozontis re quidem tenuatum esse - quod mirum opinione modo antehac coniectum erat. Huic accedit quod ea ducente cognovimus quibus de causis hoc detrimentum tam perniciosum nobis obvenerit; ut hoc exploratum intellegeret, solis et lunae varias claritates consociatas conduxit. Vere vatis more abhinc multos annos declaravit se nuper anquirere incepisse quomodo chemia ad mutationes tempestatum attineret. Et confidere velimus haec talia et tanta studia olim nobis auxilio fore, ut non iam nimium Phoebi ardorem metuere cogamur, sed opibus et beneficiis ab eo forte oblatis mente pacata receptis fruamur. Ne omittam hanc honorandam studiis et historicis quibusdam serviisse; arguit enim Scottum illum magnum comitesque eius a polo redeuntes, liceat semper incerta sint mortalia, tantundem asperitate caeli periise superatos. Domine Cancellarie, tuere, quaeso, feminam non modo callidissimam sed ingenii calidi, ut dicimus, cuius tamen nomen moli conglaciatae in perpetuum tributum est. In perpetuum dico, nam moles huius generis etsi a divis exstructae sunt, sicut monumenta omnia manu mortali exacta moventur et tandem tabescunt, sed nomina et gloriae eorum, cum non propter materiam subsistant, vivent vel glacie vel aere perennius.

Nunc praesento eam quae cum profunda cognovit tum alta, immo in altis profundissima percepit, lacunas denique minitantes repperit, heroida eponymon regionis meridionalis, Susannam Solomon, apud Massachusettense Institutum Technologiae professorem, Regiae Societatis inter socios exteros adlectam, ut admittatur honoris causa ad gradum Doctoris in Scientia.

Paraphrase

And then look at the sky, which overhead and all around contains all earth in its embrace… [1]

And here is yet another paragon risen from the deep, for she, indeed a scuba diver, is one whose childhood fascination with the natural order was inspired by the silent beauty of Cousteau's Undersea World. But chemistry and its study transformed her as she grew, and truly the stratosphere beckoned; a little later, an authoritative leader in Antarctica, she helped to show that our strange notion of a hole in the ozone layer was a fact; and what is more she led the way to understanding what caused this baneful depletion, conscripting an alliance of sun and moon and their variously illuminating radiance to help her diagnosis. What prophetic words she spoke in 1997: 'I'm beginning to work on the way that chemistry enters into climate change.' Such work, we trust, will help us one day, while yet living, to fear no more the heat o' the sun, to receive and face with more confidence the true bounties that Phoebus may bestow. And this our honorand's science has also served history; she has shown how, long ago, exceptionally inclement weather was as much to blame as human frailty when our great Scott and his companions perished on their return from the Pole. Here, my Lord Chancellor, is a woman of brilliance and warmth after whom an Antarctic glacier has been given a name and immortality - for divinely fashioned glaciers themselves, like manmade monuments, may move and melt; but their names and distinction, those less material things, live on, more enduring than ice.

I present a fathomer of depths and of heights, and of depths on high, a perceiver of voids and eponymous heroine of a southern clime, Susan Solomon, Foreign Member of our Royal Society, Professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to be admitted to the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

The Public Orator delivered the following introduction to the Creweian Oration:

Public Orator: Insignissime Domine Cancellarie, licetne anglice loqui?

Chancellor: Licet.

Public Orator: Bonum est!

or rather - 'That's, like, awesome!'

Latin has its uses, even apart from its ancient beauty and fine literature. We learnt recently, if I may put it this way round, that knowledge of it can even ease your handling of the Northern Ireland Protocol. Perhaps that helps explain why our number ten classicist, still trying to get Brexit done, was until now slow to suggest scrapping that troublesome document.

Here we see Latin as the continuation of a tradition greater and longer lived than ourselves. And today we have used it to honour those who represent that greater world of progress and achievement in and out of the Academy. But now we may turn to English to thank our friends and benefactors, obedient to the will of Nathaniel Crewe. Awesome! Well, English is a changing language, as one of our Linguistics Professors here has noted recently. Soon the dominant dialect is likely to be MLE - 'Multicultural London English'. It's already catching on, like, really fast. My colleague explains that change is always underway, and confirms what I have suspected for some time now, that 'we don't speak in the same way people did in the time of Shakespeare or Chaucer.'

I must stress I say all this in English - admittedly in my own marginal dialect of British RP. Last year one of our honorands - a US Senator, no less - said after the ceremony that I had continued to speak Latin for this next half hour - fresh evidence of our two nations divided by a common language, but probably not a threat to our 'special relationship'. Were it so, I would take heart from a book called 'When Allies Differ' by the political scientist Louise Richardson; she wrote cautiously, but I think optimistically, at what we thought was the end of the Cold War, of our alliance - 'likely,' as she saw it, 'to survive the passing of the reasons for its coming into being in the first place.' See before us here living proof of our respect for the special relationship, and our admiration of the brightest and best. Half of our honorands from outside our immediate circle are from that greater realm within the Anglosphere. In last year's delayed Encaenia we celebrated the centenary, though one year late because of the pandemic, of the year when women first collected their degrees in this building - a building now its 353rd year. Two of our honorands were then still unable to come, but we are so much the more delighted to welcome them today.

There remain some cultural imbalances to attend to. The first among this year's welcome donations that I note today ensures a bright future for American Football at Oxford. Our new pitch was opened in May at the University Parks. Please admire, in a photograph on our Development Office website, the Oxford University Lancers Club rejoicing in a Varsity victory; with them you may also see the club president and the donor, veteran of the game Ryan Millsap, whose gift is also set to help young players with financial support and training.

I must also mention the generosity of the Bank of America, which seems to have put some trust in our financial responsibility (or perhaps sees the desirability of encouraging it) and has invested in our Smith School of Enterprise and the Environment, with funding to support carbon capture and sustainable finance research. As I understand it, this is the first partnership of its kind for Bank of America in Europe.

Am I alone in immediately seeking a second opinion when reading that we have yielded supremacy in the World University League? We yield to Cambridge, and actually worse - it's to MIT and then Cambridge and then Stanford. Alas, the second opinion I found confirmed the diagnosis. Let us then graciously, if provisionally, celebrate runner-upmanship. After all, even our noble Queen is a so far a gracious runner-up to Louis XIV in length of reign, though ultimate victory appears within her reach. And remember, Louis XIV was himself only runner-up to the Sun.

Lunatics that we are, we may in any case prefer moon to sun. I am reminded by the Master of Campion Hall that my admired and lamented predecessor, Oxford's first Public Orator, Edmund Campion, a hero of mine ever since, as a teenager, I first read Evelyn Waugh's biography of him, gave a speech coram regina, that is to say in front of Queen Elizabeth I, at Commencement, as it was then called, on 27 June 1566. Campion compared the relation of the monarch to the University to that of the moon to the seas, and thereby stylishly managed to honour the Queen while also registering a plea for distant government.

Campion Hall, our esteemed Jesuit foundation, has marked its 125th year, among other ways, by hospitably receiving on long-term loan from All Souls the fine altar piece by Anton Raphael Mengs, now returned after its sojourns in the Ashmolean and the National Gallery. It is a Noli me tangere. Do go along, admire this wonder, and be touched by it.

Veterans, or survivors, of this ceremony will know that I like to mention one or two of our anniversaries in town, gown and garden. We are quite good at anniversaries, and I suppose we should get better at them - at least there are more of them - as the years roll on. But as they proliferate, so the risk also grows of omitting even the most important ones. Gardens first. We are about to celebrate, with music, poetry, drama, food, and of course botany, the quatercentenary of our glorious Botanic Garden, now more open than ever to the public. I cannot conceal my pleasure that the Orator has been asked to help that celebration.

And some further news on Catholic Oxford. Last year I carelessly omitted the 800th anniversary of the arrival of the Dominicans. They came to England in early August 1221, visited Canterbury and London, and within days had established their first community, inside the city walls of Oxford, England's intellectual capital even then; they then settled into the life and teaching of the early University. Please follow my example and read more about them, and their later vicissitudes, on the website of our Blackfriars Priory.

And what of the Benedictines, paragons of both hospitality and education? A 'unique community at the heart of the University of Oxford', correctly says the St Benet's Hall website, with a warm and neat description of the Hall's character, its mission and its wide religious and social diversity, by its Master, Professor Richard Cooper. Financial difficulty has brought a halt to its admission of students and its academic programmes. Its spirit lives on in what we may hope is merely hibernation.

On an equivocal note we remembered another 800th, with a heartwarming commemorative and restorative service in Christ Church Cathedral, a fine location, in my view, to start a reconciliation. It was in 1222 that the Synod of Oxford introduced severe restrictions on the lives of Oxford's important Jewish community, with decrees that were followed by more anti-Jewish laws, and eventually the mass expulsion of England's 3,000 Jews in 1290, not to return for three and a half centuries.

But let us also mark, and celebrate less equivocally, another that I missed last time round, for we have just passed the 150th anniversary of the University Tests Act, which prevented the colleges at Oxford, Cambridge and Durham from religious discrimination in admissions and most appointments, thus perhaps initiating a course of gradual - painfully gradual, you might say - growth in freedom and diversity of our academic body.

Our lifeblood here is mixed, and any suggestions of national insularity may focus the mind on our ability and our will to welcome newcomers. My colleague the President of Reuben, our newest college, was able to join a 'remote' conversation from the Union with the President of Ukraine and inform him that twenty refugees from his country will benefit from free graduate studies and grants for living expenses from this University. We understand that the Kharkiv National University, the second oldest university in Ukraine, had no buildings left intact by the end of March. I know you will forgive me for repeating some words I have used before. Part of our mix comes from those who have fled from tyranny and chaos elsewhere and found peace, freedom and opportunity in our country.

Earlier I praised runners-up, or perhaps (in MLE) runnerups. But we may also take satisfaction in top-ranking performance. Down there I see some of our own brightest and best, from among this year's prize-winners in our several divisions, the already gleaming stars of the future. You may admire their names and their distinctions on page 24 of the booklet. In a schoolmasterly moment that I treasure on each of these occasions, I ask them to stand and, with all due modesty - that is to say, not too much of it - accept our applause.

Now, discipuli, I am sure you know your Sheldonian. In this early modern building, with its early modern seating and other comforts, are certain older features, such as the open air of the ancient theatre, or better still, considering the English climate, a 17th century revelation of the heavens themselves. Look up, and observe Truth itself - yes, you see it now, there is such an entity - descending on the arts and sciences and dispelling Ignorance and Spite and Prejudice. Look through, Ad Astra, to the stars, and aspire to join them. Truth, and virtue - let's say the ethical . You know, Socrates is out there somewhere, enjoying sublime weather and a good interfaith chat with Edmund Campion and others. He knew these things are hard to learn and perhaps impossible to teach. But he will want to know that when you rise to high places in academy, or state, you will remember that they must be kept in view, and that your University days helped you to do so.

Stars seem to have inspired the naming of a recently endowed initiative that will make opportunities for talented students from under-represented backgrounds. I hope I correctly understand the appellation 'Astrophoria Foundation', to which I am proud to say my own college is one of those that have signed up. My guess is that it aims to carry these students happily into stardom, starting from the launchpad of a new one-year foundation course, added to those we have already happily put in play. We look forward to seeing those students too, down there in that same row on some such occasion as this.

And before we descend from those heights, let us keep the lens for a moment on AstraZeneca. A new book, at once diverting and alarming, bearing the title 'Chums', shines rather dismal light on some of the more recent contributions this University has made to our national politics. The protagonists of this drama, or sequence of dramas, are there dubbed an 'Oxocracy'. For what it's worth, I'd say the blame might be spread a little more generously than just Oxford. To borrow some recent international language, no, Britain in not squeaky-clean, Britain is what it is. I omit the next bit. In any case I believe we often, if not always, get the leaders we deserve.

But take heart, for our alumnus and former colleague Lord Adonis has comfortingly said, in reviewing that book, that our 'current public profile' has little to do with the old Union hacks but rather with such as the vaccine heroes. New Year and Birthday Honours lists include numerous Oxford University names that would justify his plaudit - Dames and Knights and Commanders and Others that return a little latter-day lustre (much needed, I believe) to that so tarnished name of that Behemoth, the British Empire. These colleagues, individually and collectively, have rendered invaluable service to science and public health or in other ways kept our arrangements of research, teaching and public engagement functioning and flourishing during times of pandemic anguish.

Such work depends on support. Not so long ago we thanked and honoured the pioneering Serum Institute of India and its founder Dr Cyrus Poonawalla. Their extraordinary achievements in manufacturing affordable vaccines for the developing world are matched by their support of research. We are now to have, through the Natasha Poonawalla Foundation, Serum Life Sciences and Dr Cyrus, a Poonawalla Vaccines Research Building, to house the headquarters and main laboratory space of our Jenner Institute, whose teams brought the Oxford University/AstraZeneca COVID-19 vaccine, and will lead new projects such as the development of a malaria vaccine.

Also with us today, and warmly welcomed, are representatives of the Login5 Foundation, which has made a substantial grant to our Department of Zoology and the Oxford Martin School to research means of reducing unwanted environmental effects of agriculture; if I understand the project correctly, we have here one among many that will strengthen links between academic research and the guidance of responsible public policy.

This year no fewer than eight of our colleagues have been elected Fellows of the Royal Society, and ten of the British Academy. Oxford is now largely a research university, says Lord Adonis. Well, yes, but we continue to do the odd bit of teaching, and here too we are munificently supported by benefactors. I take special pleasure in thanking the Stonehouse Educational Foundation not only for endowing a graduate scholarship fordoctoral study in Classics but for supporting, for many years into the future, our outreach through tuition to school pupils who will have no other opportunities to study Latin and what some of us here still call the 'Classics'. I am ever mindful that when, in 1969, I told a student in Leipzig that that was my intended course at University he smiled warmly and said he had not realised that Marx and Lenin were so much appreciated in my country.

Both research and teaching will benefit greatly from additional funding to the new Humanities Centre from Mr Stephen Schwarzman. Even before the physical construction of the centre starts, we already have in its Institute for Ethics in Artificial intelligence a healthy team studying ethical questions posed by artificial intelligence. This is only one among many projects, but it reminds us that a certain amount can be achieved even without buildings.

And here some stirring thoughts, or at least some stirrings of thoughts, have come from what were once unlikely sources. A Union debate was recently conducted on the motion: 'This house believes that Artificial Intelligence will never be ethical'. A robot (actually a virtual robot) spoke for both sides. I could not attend, but I believe the argument was impeccably balanced. In the autumn I went to the Ashmolean to hear Ai-Da's reflections on Dante and other subjects. May I call this colleague 'she' and 'her'? The name does suggest some kind of up-to-date, state-of-the-art femininity, and I remember reporting a little while ago that she had fired the passions of at least one visitor who met her. I too was charmed. To be completely frank, I found some of her ideas, and particularly her poetry, a little too formulaic, but in answer to the question, 'Often Artificial Intelligence is presented as a kind of threat to humanity – what do you think about that?' she answered, 'Humanity is a threat to itself.' Now that's what I call being well taught.

Some of our buildings contain those older vehicles of culture and learning, books, manuscripts and artefacts. The Bern Schwartz Family Foundation have donated an important archive of portrait and other photographs by Bern Schwartz, and have endowed a much-needed curatorship of photography in the Bodleian Library. And at the Ashmolean Museum, through the generosity of the late Mrs Jaleh Hearn, her daughter Zara Bone, and the Silberzweig foundation, we are to have a curatorship to look after the Ancient Middle East collections, which are widely deemed among the most important in the world.

Museums and libraries preserve the knowledge and memory of what preceded us and even made us what we are. They offer some kind of immortality, I suppose, where we need it. But let us keep alive the thoughts those colleagues, too, who passed away this year. The names I have myself respectfully gathered are many, their contributions great, their memory precious.

I call to mind Tony Wrigley and James Adams, Fellows of All Souls; Piers Nye, Godfrey Fowler, Joseph Raz and Roger Lonsdale of Balliol; Bruce Kent, Brasenose; Gerard Hughes, former Master of Campion Hall; Richard Hamer and Simon Preston of Christ Church; of Green Templeton, Jeffery Burley, Crispin Tickell (one-time Warden of then-Green College) and Roger Undy (one-time Dean of then-Templeton College); Harris Manchester's Thomas Moyle; Tony Cockshut of Hertford; Fred Taylor and Christopher Foster, Jesus College; John Axford of Kellogg; David Andrew, Ann Hudson and Alain Viala of Lady Margaret Hall; Richard Bird, Lincoln; Roger Smith, Charles Young, Oliver Braddick, Ray Freeman and former President Anthony Smith of Magdalen; Vassos Karageorghis, Courtenay Phillips, Derek Bergel, Gavin Lightman and Robert Krueger of Merton; Laura Marcus and Joseph Horowitz, New College; David Cox, former Warden of Nuffield; Gordon Macpherson and John Elliott, Oriel; Martin Edwards, Allen Hill, The Queen's College; Monna Besse and Michael Kaser, St Antony's; Alan Jones, Donald Richards and former Master Richard Repp of St Cross; Nigel Palmer, St Edmund Hall; Ann Buchanan, Joanna Rose and Louisa Service, St Hilda's; Anne Hudson, Geneviève Adams and Gillian Cohen of St Hugh's; Francis Warner and Stuart Turnbull of St Peter's; Sarah Broadie and former Principal Fiona Caldicott of Somerville; Mike Inwood of Trinity; and of Wolfson College Julie Meisami and Martin Wood. To all our late lamented colleagues we say Lux perpetua luceat eis.

Vice-Chancellor, I return for a moment to our Queen, for by her courtesy I may now at last address you in Latin as Domina Vice-Cancellaria, as Dominae are the 'true' – I mean *etymo*logical – ancestors of Dames as well as many of our Dons. Nos duxisti, you have led us, our University and our Colleges, through times we might well describe, in that modern phrase, as 'challenging', and we have survived, and in many ways flourished against the odds. Next year we lose you to the gain of the Carnegie Corporation of New York. I think we need no reminding that you have been a specialist in terrorism – I refer of course to a former research area of yours – but I am assuming you will not return to that now. You will, we are sure, continue to foster the best of special relationships, and we shall cherish those values and vital freedoms you have kept under scrutiny here, the advancement of research, access to higher education, and the indispensability of free speech, debate and the invigorating power of opposition. As readers of our own Oxford Magazine will know, never for us the sinister concept of 'fostering a collective understanding'; we have seen too much of that elsewhere in the past and in the present.

Pain, the Stoics would have said, is a 'moral indifferent'. Actually at least in this matter I'd go more for Andrew Carnegie's words: 'When fate hands us a lemon, let's try to make lemonade.' Pain relief, on the other hand, is no moral indifferent, whether for the Stoics or any of the rest of us, and it is foremost among the many specialities and accomplishments of our future Vice-Chancellor, now set to continue, all the way from Merton College, her fascinating life's journey. I dare hope I will be asked in due course to welcome her formally in Latin.

Continuity and change, we welcome both, while in both, as we hear in Psalm 27, יְהוָה אוֹרִי וְיִשְׁעִי--מִמִּי אִירָא or say in a later translation, Dominus illuminatio mea, and later again, 'The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear?'

But now I look across and proudly hand over to one, both classicist and poet, who can, and does, show us true poetry in her own work and the language of so many others – I confidently include MLE among those idioms of present and future. I give you Professor Alice Oswald.

CREWEIAN ORATION 2022

The Professor of Poetry delivered the Creweian Oration 'in commemoration of the Benefactors of the University according to the intention of the Right Honourable Nathaniel, Lord Crewe, Bishop of Durham'.

Thank you for those speeches. It is wonderful to hear the Latin language and to remember the Romans, whom I value above all for their attitude to triumph. We are poorly dressed today, compared to the purple and gold cloaks, red boots and red painted faces of Roman generals at their award ceremonies. And we do not have here with us that quiet public servant whose task was to walk alongside the victor whispering every so often: 'you are not divine… you are not divine'.

We might all be helped by such a character; but I want to suggest, in the light of the orator's praises, that we could be doubly helped by the presence of a second public servant whose task was to whisper in the other ear: 'you are quasi-divine, you are quasi-divine…' and maybe a third public servant with a megaphone calling out the correct definition of quasi-divinity.

Goethe, the German playwright, said: it is quasi-divine to see things not in terms of what pleases but in terms of what IS. He developed the faculty to see what IS through patient attention to something beyond the self… a daily habit of coming out of character, shifting perspective, listing data, suspending judgement, beginning again. What emerged – in both Goethe's science and his poetry – was a non-despotic faculty, a vegetal or beehive habit of always seeing multiple points of view.

We must all keep whispering and shouting to each other the importance of this quasi-divine faculty. It is called imagination and anyone, however human, can possess it. Imagination is different from knowledge. It cannot be measured. It is a kind of magic which lets a film-maker collaborate with his subject; and alerts the financier and the entrepreneur to a polyphony of needs; and makes a scientist pursue more than human truths and compels a marine ecologist to devote her life to deep sea creatures; social history and mediaeval history might be mere statistics without imagination… and who would be a surgeon these days without a quasi-divine compassion to spur him on? As for humour (that on-going war against pomposity), well Homer called humour asbestos, meaning that once laughter starts up it cannot be extinguished. To be a mouthpiece for immortal unquenchable laughter is surely one of the first signs of quasi-divinity.

When I think of all these professions with their particular excitements, when I consider how each expert connects to an array of others… so that, for example, the film-maker works with the photographer, the photographer works with the migrant, the miner, the hunter, the forest, the forest works with the atmosphere and the atmosphere works (so far!) with each one of us… when I consider how a similar trail of collaborators connects to each person being honoured today, then it occurs to me that we are gathered here primarily to praise one thing: the ability to hold multiplicity in the mind. And I thought I might underline that rare skill, by reading you one of John Clare's poems, Autumn Birds. Listen to the sound of Clare's imagination meeting and containing multiplicity!

Autumn Birds
The wild duck startles like a sudden thought
And heron slow as if it might be caught.
The flopping crows on weary wings go by
And grey-beard jackdaws noising as they fly.
The crowds of starnels wiz and hurry by
And darken like a cloud the evening sky.
The larks like thunder rise and suthy round
Then drop and nestle in the stubble ground.
The wild swan hurries high and noises loud
With white necks peering to the evening cloud.
The weary rooks to distant woods are gone;
With length of tail the magpie winnows on
To neighbouring tree and leaves the distant crow
While small birds nestle in the hedge below.

Through the lovely profusion of that poem, I want to thank each one of you for not giving up on imagination. When a culture gives up on imagination its people can no longer think patiently out beyond themselves, can no longer imagine what it is like to be a refugee or an invalid or a wild swan or an oak tree or any member of the 'world below the brine'. And all kinds of abuse follow on from that.

In this country we have begun to wonder whether our leaders have given up on imagination, since it is no longer funded in schools or encouraged in universities. Imagination is not the only thing we need, but we do need it… desperately…and without the government's support, it falls to the rest of us to remember its importance, so that the next generation needn't be locked into merely subjective thought-forms. For that reason I am grateful to the people being honoured today and to this university for rewarding them and to all the proctors, beadles, administrators, singers, students, polishers, lunch makers, chair-setters and tidiers away, to the scroll-makers and the trumpeters and most especially to the three window cleaners whom I saw in this room on Monday unblocking a path for the sunlight… to them and to any other quasi-divines who have walked and whispered in our procession, I offer my brief Latin comment: bravo!

General Purposes Committee of Council

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 22 July.

(a) Beit Fund

Explanatory Note

These changes are made to add in standard trust provisions and remove some of the administrative provisions.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 25 of 2002, delete the two sections concerning the Beit Fund and the Beit Prize, and replace with the following:

'Beit Fund

1. The University received with gratitude a gift from Mr Alfred Beit to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Beit Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Funds which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund for the advancement of education for the benefit of the public as follows:

(1) by establishing and contributing to the maintenance costs of the post of Beit Professor of the History of the British Commonwealth ("the Professor")

(2) the payment of the Beit Prize and of the Examiners for that prize ("the Prize");

4. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of a board of management consisting of;

(1) the Vice-Chancellor;

(2) the Beit Professor of the History of the British Commonwealth;

(3) one person appointed by the Board of the Faculty of History;

(4) one person appointed by the Board of the Social Sciences Divisional Board;

The elected members of the board of management shall hold office for three years and shall be re-eligible.

The board of management may co-opt up to two additional members, who may be internal or external, on condition that the board shall always ensure by the use of its power of co-optation that the overall range of activities and concerns of the Beit Fund is as fully represented within the total membership of the board as is reasonably practicable.

5. No more than an annual contribution equal to two-fifths of the total income of the Fund shall be used towards the payment of the full salary of the Professor.

6. The Beit Prize shall be for an essay on some subject connected with Global and Imperial History. It shall be open to student members of the University and be administered by the Faculty of History. The value of the prize, and the annual sum for the payment of the judges, shall be as determined by the board of management.

7. If there is income remaining once the primary purposes have been met, there shall be discretion to apply the income and/or capital of the Fund to support activities such as, but not limited to:

- The establishment of Scholarships in Global and Imperial History;
- Provision of funds to support the research of the Professor;
- Provision of funds for the purchase of such books, documents and resources as in the opinion of the Curators of the Library are required in the study of Global and Imperial History;
- Grants made by the board of management for any purposes which in its opinion will promote the study of Global and Imperial History in the University.

Any balance of the income not so applied shall be carried forward for expenditure in subsequent years.

8. The University shall have power to pay out of the income of the Funds all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Funds and the management and administration of the Funds and the post.

9. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Funds in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

10. Regulations 1-3 and 5-12 shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

11. Subject to regulation 12, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

12. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Funds for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(b) Establishment of The June Ilott Fund

Explanatory Note

These new regulations are made to formalise the trust created by the receipt of the gift from the late Ms June Ilott.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 25 of 2002, insert the following:

'The June Ilott Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude a legacy gift from the late Ms June Ilott to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as The June Ilott Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund (if any) which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment (if any); and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund to provide support to students accepted for Masters Courses within the Medical Sciences Division.

4. For so long as it is lawful to do so, support from the Fund will be restricted to students who the Graduate School identify, through a considered background check process, as being from disadvantaged socioeconomic backgrounds.

5. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Medical Sciences Division.

6. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

7. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund, and the management and administration of the Fund.

8. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

9. These regulations shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of Part D of Statute XVI.

10. Subject to regulation 11, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to:

(1) cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales; or

(2) be outside the objects of the University.

11. Any amendment to regulation 3 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

(c) Mathematical Prizes Fund

Explanatory Note

These changes are made to add in standard trust provisions and reflect the original trust objective.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 25 of 2002, delete the section concerning Mathematical Prizes and insert the following:

'Mathematical Prizes Fund

1. The University receives with gratitude gifts to be held as permanent endowment on the trusts declared in this regulation. Further money or property may be paid or transferred to the University as either expendable or permanent endowment to be held on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the Mathematical Prizes Fund ("the Fund").

2. The University shall retain as permanent endowment those of the assets in the Fund which are contributed on the express understanding that they are to be treated as permanent endowment ("the Permanent Endowment").

3. The University shall (a) apply the income of the Permanent Endowment; and (b) apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, towards the provision of Mathematical Prizes for students studying Mathematics at the University.

4. There shall be a number of Mathematical Prizes offered each year:

(1) Senior Mathematical Prizes for postgraduate research students;

(2) Mathematical Prizes for postgraduate taught students; and

The board of management shall have discretion to set conditions for the award of these prizes, including on matters concerning the number and value of prizes and adjudication, in so far as those conditions are not inconsistent with these regulations.

5. The administration of the Fund, and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of a Board of Management, comprising:

(1) The Head of the Mathematical Institute, who shall be Chair;

(2) The Associate Head of Department (Research) of the Mathematical Institute;

(3) The Director of Graduate Studies (Research) of the Mathematical Institute;

(4) Two members of the Mathematical Institute appointed by its Departmental Committee for a term of three years.

The presence of three members shall be necessary to constitute a board.

6. The Board of Management shall have the power to make presents of money, instruments, or books to meritorious, though unsuccessful candidates, for the prize, and to apply any surplus income in such other ways as they may think appropriate to promote the study of Mathematics at the University. This may include support for student bursaries or fees at the recommendation of the Director of Graduate Studies (Research) of the Mathematical Institute.

7. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of this regulation, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. For full text of resolution see Gazette No 5355, 30 June 2022, p460.

(3) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of a site on the Churchill Hospital site to the Medical Sciences Division

Corrigendum

In the notice published in Gazette No 5355, 30 June 2022, p460, the site in question was described as being on the Old Road Campus rather than on the Churchill Hospital site. The corrected wording of the notice appears below:

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation of a site on the Churchill Hospital site to be used to construct the expansion to the Clinical BioManufacturing Facility.

The University has purchased approximately ten acres of land at the Churchill Hospital site for the purpose of providing long-term development potential for the expansion of the Medical Sciences Division (MSD). Parts of the land have been utilised by MSD for COVID- related vaccine trials and other related purposes, centred around the Clinical BioManufacturing Facility (CBF) and the Clinical Centre for Vaccinology and Tropical Medicine (CCVTM). Part of this activity has been housed within temporary units, and MSD's aspiration is to consolidate this activity into more permanent accommodation within that area of the Churchill site.

Text of Resolution

The allocation of approximately 1,612 sqm on the Churchill Hospital site to Medical Sciences Division to be used to construct the expansion to the Clinical BioManufacturing Facility (building number 634).

Meeting information

Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on 3 October, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they wish to oppose or amend the resolutions at (1), (2) or (3) above (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise or the meeting has been adjourned the legislative proposals and the resolution shall be declared carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

A printout of these regulations, or of any statute or other regulations, is available from the Council Secretariat on request. A member of Congregation seeking advice on questions relating to its procedures, other than elections, should contact the Council Secretariat at the University Offices, Wellington Square (email congregation.meeting@admin.ox.ac.uk); questions relating to elections should be directed to the Elections Office (email: elections.office@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Call for nominations for Honorary Degrees and for Degrees by Diploma

Honorary degrees are conferred annually at Encaenia. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty. Members of Congregation are encouraged to nominate individuals on whom such degrees might be conferred. Nominations are welcome all year round.

The Honorary Degrees Committee is charged with considering nominations received, consulting Council and making recommendations to Congregation. The committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford - such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by e-mail under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.

5. Voucher copies or cuttings cannot be supplied.

Charges

6. Two separate charging arrangements will apply, for commercial and private advertisers. The rates applicable at any time will be published regularly in the Gazette, and may be obtained upon enquiry. The rates, and guidance on applicability of each rate, are also available online. The editor's decision regarding applicability of these rates to an individual advertiser will be final.

7. Particular arrangements apply to advertisers who declare their intention to advertise for a full academic year ("whole-year advertisers"), and receive a discount on their advertisements for doing so:

a. With effect from January 2022, whole-year advertisers must pay for the year's advertisements upfront via the University's online shop and may opt for 24 insertions (8 per term), 27 insertions (9 per term) or 34 insertions (all issues).

b. Whole-year advertisers whose arrangements were entered into before January 2022 may only withdraw their advertisements partway through the year upon payment of the difference between the discounted rate and the standard rate for each advertisement which has already been published. If such payment is not received by the University of Oxford, the advertiser remains liable for the number of insertions and the discounted rate originally agreed.

Disclaimer

8. The University of Oxford accepts no responsibility for the content of any advertisement published in the Gazette. Readers should note that the inclusion of any advertisement in no way implies approval or recommendation of either the terms of any offer contained in it or of the advertiser by the University of Oxford.

Advertisers' Warranty and Indemnity

14. The advertiser warrants:

a. Not to discriminate against any respondents to an advertisement published in the Gazette on the basis of their gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, race, religion or belief, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, disability, age, or pregnancy.

b. That the advertisement does not contravene any current legislation, rules, regulations or applicable codes of practice.

c. That it is not in any way illegal or defamatory or a breach of copyright or an infringement of any other person's intellectual property or other rights.

You are advised to view our full Terms and Conditions of acceptance of advertisements. Submission of an advertisement implies acceptance of our terms and conditions, which may be found at https://gazette.web.ox.ac.uk/terms-and-conditions-acceptance-advertisements, and may also be obtained on application to gazette@admin.ox.ac.uk.

Council of the University

Changes in Regulations

Council has made the following changes to regulations, to come into effect on 5 August.

(a) Changes in Regulations for Committees following the ten-year review of the EJRA

Explanatory Note

Council has approved a proposal from the Personnel Committee to remove the restrictions on committee membership on the basis of age and retirement status. This proposal is based on a recommendation from the Review Group which has recently carried out the ten-year review of the Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA).

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 14 of 2002 concerning committees, amend clause 1 regarding committees of the University as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through):

'1.1. These regulations shall apply to any "committee" of the University as defined in section 6 (3) of Statute I.

~~1.2. (1) No person appointed, elected or serving as a member of a committee while holding any academic post of the University or any other of the University or college posts specified in section 3 (6)–(9) of Statute IV shall continue to serve on that committee after having retired from that post (or, in the case of a person retiring at different dates from those University and college posts previously held by him or her, after the date of the later of those retirements), unless the General Purposes Committee of Council or, in cases falling within the Personnel Committee's delegated authority or cases concerning the membership of the General Purposes Committee, the~~

~~Chair of the Personnel Committee, shall otherwise determine in an individual case.~~

~~(2) No person who has previously retired from any of the University or college posts specified in section 3 (6)-(9) of Statute IV, and who does not continue to hold another such post, shall be appointed or elected a member of a committee, unless the General Purposes Committee of Council or, in cases falling within the Personnel Committee's delegated authority or cases concerning the membership of the General Purposes Committee, the Chair of the Personnel Committee, shall otherwise determine in an individual case.~~

~~(3) No other person appointed, elected or serving as a member of a committee while not holding such a University or college post shall continue to serve on that committee, and no such person shall be appointed or elected a member of a committee, after the 30 September immediately preceding his or her 66th birthday, unless the General Purposes Committee of Council or, in cases falling within the Personnel Committee's delegated authority or cases concerning the membership of the General Purposes Committee, the Chair of the Personnel Committee, shall otherwise determine in an individual case.~~

1.2~~3~~. The person taking the chair at any committee meeting shall, in the absence of provision to the contrary in any statute or regulation, have a second or casting vote in the event of equality of voting.

1.3~~4~~. (1) A vacancy about to be caused by lapse of time in any committee shall, in the absence of provision to the contrary in any statute or regulation, be filled by the appointing or electing body in the term before the vacancy will arise, and the person appointed or elected shall enter office on the first day of the following term.

(2) (a) A vacancy caused otherwise than by lapse of time shall be filled as soon as may be after the occurrence of the vacancy.

(b) The person appointed or elected shall enter office immediately upon appointment or election, and shall, in the absence of provision to the contrary in any statute or regulation, hold office for the unexpired residue only of the period of office of the person whom he or she replaces.

1.4~~5~~. If at any time a vacancy arises in any committee through an appointing or electing body having failed to make an appointment or, in the case of an election, through insufficient nominations having been received by the due date or for any other reason, the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors shall appoint a person to the vacancy.

1.5~~6~~. Existing membership of all committees shall terminate automatically on taking office as Proctor or Assessor.

1.6~~7~~. When a person other than the Vice-Chancellor, a Proctor or the Assessor becomes by virtue of holding any office a member of a committee of which he or she was an appointed or elected member, he or she shall be deemed to have resigned from his or her former place.'

(b) Changes in Regulations for Committees to support the implementation of the Finance White Paper

Explanatory Note

Changes to Council Regulations 15 of 2002 are required to support the changes to financial planning and responsibilities laid out in the Finance White Paper. This includes the abolition of the Capital Steering Group and Budget Subcommittee, and the establishment of three new committees: the Budget Planning Subcommittee, the Services Subcommittee and the Estate Investment Subgroup. Updates are also required to the regulations for the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee (PRAC) and the Building and Estates Subcommittee, as well as to the Financial Regulations.

Text of Regulations

1 In Part 9 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002, concerning committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees, delete the current wording relating to the Budget Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee and insert the following:

In particular, the subcommittee shall:

(3) make proposals to the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee for multi-year planning settlements to ensure adequate investment in priority areas and the financial sustainability of the University;

(4) by exception and at the instruction of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee, review and make proposals on variances to agreed multi-year planning settlements within the settlement period, in light of budgetary monitoring and other information affecting the financial sustainability of existing plans.'

2 In Part 11 of Council Regulations 15 of 2002, concerning committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees delete the current wording relating to the Capital Steering Group and insert the following:

11.2. The subgroup shall be responsible to the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee for managing the investment in the functional estate across the Minor Capital Plan and repairs and maintenance programme, including submitting a proposal for annual budgets.

11.3. The Estate Investment Subgroup shall be a subgroup of the Buildings and Estates Subcommittee. It will:

(1) agree the repairs and maintenance programme on behalf of the subcommittee;

(2) make regular reports to the subcommittee on the repairs and maintenance programme.[1]

11.4. the subgroup shall report directly to the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee on the management of the Minor Capital Plan, which is defined in accordance with the financial limits set out in the Financial Regulations (i.e. excluding those within remit of the Strategic Capital Steering Group (SCSG) or the IT Committee). It will:

(1) develop a rolling minor capital programme for submission to the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee;

(2) consider and make recommendations to the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee on minor capital project proposals;

(3) ensure business cases, other than those that are the responsibility of the SCSG or the IT Committee as set out in the regulations governing those bodies, have been appropriately prepared, signed by the appropriate officers of the University in accordance with the Financial Regulations and are consistent with the University's priorities and plans; and

(4) oversee the financial management of the design and construction of projects submitted in accordance with these regulations, including the gateway approval process, subject to obtaining approval from PRAC on the Gateway process for individual projects prior to that committee's release of project funding.

11.5. Consider and make proposals to the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee on the acquisition, leasing, and disposal of land and property within the functional estate, except the purchase of land for development within the remit of the Strategic Capital Steering Group.

11.6. In respect of multi-year planning settlements, the subgroup shall:

(1) consider the levels of investment necessary to improve, repair, and maintain the functional estate throughout the next planning settlement period;

(c) Professor of Poetry: Council Regulations 8 of 2002

Explanatory Note

Following the election of the Professor of Poetry in 2019, Council established a Review Group to consider both the nature of the position and the selection process. The Review Group, which was chaired by the then Head of the Humanities Division, made a number of recommendations with a view to mitigating the reputational risks that have been associated with the electoral process, to promoting equality and diversity in the selection process, and to clarifying the role and importance of the post. Council has approved the recommendations of the Review Group and a number of legislative changes are required. The post will no longer be subject to the EJRA and an amendment to Statute XIV to effect this change will be proposed to Congregation as part of the recommendations arising from the EJRA ten-year review.

Council has also approved changes to the selection process. The current process whereby candidates are nominated by Convocation will be replaced with a process in which a new committee, established to oversee the selection process, invites nominations and creates a shortlist of candidates for subsequent election by Convocation. The new committee will also oversee the timing of nominations, the date of the election and the information to be provided by candidates. It is envisaged that the new committee will begin its work in Michaelmas term 2022, making preparations for the next election (due to take place in Trinity term 2023) and reporting to the General Purposes Committee (GPC) and Council as necessary.

A minor change to the numbering and the heading in the section relating to the election of the Chancellor is also being made for clarity. Otherwise, the regulations relating to the election of the Chancellor are unchanged.

Text of Regulations

1 In Council Regulations 8 of 2002, relating to Convocation elections, amend regulation 1 as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through) and renumber subsequent regulations accordingly:

'1. ~~(1)~~ An election in Convocation shall be held in Full Term, unless Council shall order otherwise, on a date fixed by Council.

Election of the Chancellor

2. ~~(2)~~ The Registrar shall publish at least twenty-one days' notice of every election and shall at the same time give notice of the latest days on which nominations of candidates must be received by them~~him or her~~.'

2 Ibid, delete existing regulations 4-6 and substitute as follows (renumbered following the change at 1 above) (the current regulations are available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-8-of-2002):

'Election of the Professor of Poetry

5. The election to fill a vacancy, other than a casual vacancy, in the office of Professor of Poetry shall take place not later than the term before the vacancy will arise and, in the case of a casual vacancy in the office of the Professor of Poetry, the election shall take place as soon as may be after the occurrence of the vacancy (subject to the provisions of regulation 1 above).

6. The Professor of Poetry shall be elected in accordance with the following procedure:

(1) The Professor of Poetry Election Committee shall oversee the election process.

(2) The committee shall consist of:

(a) a member of the Faculty of English Language and Literature, appointed by the General Purposes Committee of Council, who shall chair the committee;

(b) three academic representatives of the Humanities Division, appointed by the Division;

(c) one of the Proctors or the Assessor as may be agreed between them;

(d) one member of the Governing Body of All Souls College, appointed by the Governing Body;

(e) two external members with relevant experience/expertise in the writing of or study of poetry, appointed by the General Purposes Committee of Council;

(f) a student member representative, usually the President of the Oxford University Poetry Society, or their nominee.

(3) The committee may co-opt up to two additional members for such periods as the committee shall deem appropriate.

(5) The committee shall report to the General Purposes Committee of Council and Council as necessary.

(6) The committee shall be responsible for:

(a) determining the timeline for the election process, including the date by which nominations must be received and the date of the election;

(b) approving the role specification for the post and determining the information to be provided by candidates;

(c) inviting written nominations from potential candidates, from within the University and from the public;

(7) The date of the election is here understood to be the day the poll closes, after which time it is no longer possible to cast a vote: and not the date the results are announced.

(8) After the closing date for nominations, the committee shall consider all the nominations it has received, and, having due regard to the principles of equality and diversity and the approved role specification, shall determine which candidates will progress to the next stage of the selection process.

(9) If the committee determines that only one nominated candidate will progress to the next stage of the selection process or if only one candidate remains after other nominated candidates have withdrawn that candidate shall be deemed to be duly elected from the date appointed for the election; and the result of the election shall be published in the University Gazette.

(10) If the committee determines that no nominated candidate will progress to the next stage of the selection process, or all those nominated have withdrawn, Council shall have power to nominate a candidate, and such a candidate shall then be declared to be duly elected; and the result of the election shall be published in the University Gazette.

(11) If the committee determines that more than one nominated candidate will progress to the next stage of the selection process, an election by Convocation shall be held as follows:

(a) The form of the voting-paper, and the method of casting votes, shall be prescribed by the Vice-Chancellor.

(b) The Registrar shall be responsible for the counting of the votes but the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors shall decide on the validity of any vote which, in the opinion of the Registrar, is in doubt.

(c) In the case of an equality of votes, the Vice-Chancellor shall decide between the candidates.

(d) The Vice-Chancellor and Proctors shall attend at the place and day fixed for the meeting of Convocation to announce the results of the election during such times as the Vice-Chancellor shall determine (these times having been published in the University Gazette when the notice of the meeting was given).

(e) The result of the election shall be published in the University Gazette.'

3 These regulations shall be effective from 1 October 2022.

(d) Proposed changes to Part 5 (Access Fund Management Board)

Explanatory Note

Changes are proposed to the regulations for the Access Fund Management Board (AFMB), to amend these regulations so as to expand the membership of the AFMB to ensure wider representation from across the collegiate University.

Text of Regulations

In Part 5 of Council Regulations 1 of 2020, concerning the Access Fund Management Board, amend regulation 20 (1) as follows (new text underlined):

'20. (1) The Access Fund Management Board ('the board') shall consist of:

(a) the Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Education), who shall be co-chair of the board

(b) the chair of the Admissions Executive, who shall be co-chair of the board

General Purposes Committee of Council

Establishment of the Dame Louise Richardson Professor in Global Security

Corrigendum:

When these regulations were published in Gazette No 5356, 7 July 2022, the Explanatory Note should have noted that, when the General Purposes Committee of Council approved the establishment of this post in the University Regulations on 27 June 2022, Congregation Regulations 2 of 2002 1.6 (3) did not apply as the post is being fully funded by external donors and will not draw upon or divert any University funds.

Changes in Regulations

The General Purposes Committee of Council has made the following changes in regulations, to come into effect on 5 August.

Establishment of the University of Oxford ffennell Fund

Explanatory Note

These new regulations are made to formalise the restrictions to apply to the use of funds received by the University following payment of deferred consideration from the sale of Wytham Abbey.

Text of Regulations

In Council Regulations 25 of 2002, insert:

'The University of Oxford ffennell Fund

1. The funds received by the University following payment of deferred consideration from the sale of Wytham Abbey shall be held as expendable endowment on the trusts declared in this regulations. Further money and property may be paid or transferred to the University to be held as expendable endowment on the same trusts. The assets so held will be known as the ffennell Fund ("the Fund").

2. (1) The University shall apply the income and, in its discretion, the capital of the remainder of the Fund, to support the preservation and upkeep of the Wytham Estate and its use for educational and research purposes.

(2) The University shall give preference to the funding of educational activity whenever practicable. The term 'educational' shall be used in its widest sense and refers here in the main to brightening the mind and strengthening the body.

3. The preservation and upkeep of the Wytham Estate shall include but not be limited to:

(1) preservation and upkeep of buildings and other structures on the Wytham Estate, including (but not limited to) preserving their characteristics on the date that the ffennell Agreement was entered into;

(2) preservation of the natural beauty of the Wytham Estate as an adjunct to the valuable gardens and open spaces of Oxford, including (but not limited to) preservation of the woodlands and preservation of parts of the Wytham Estate as a bird sanctuary and wild flower sanctuary;

(3) permitting access to Wytham Woods to the citizens of Oxford and;

4. The educational and research purposes shall include but not be limited to:

(1) work for the benefit of school children and young people, in particular work in which the latest methods in children's education are tried, practised and proved or the best methods for children's education are demonstrated;

(2) special facilities that will tend to the happiness health and welfare of children and young persons, both those living in the neighbourhood and in large cities, especially children and young people from deprived socio-economic areas including (but not limited to) providing special facilities for scouts, guides and school children on portions of the Wytham Estate for air, exercise, schoolwork, camping, play and relaxation;

(3) use of Wytham Woods for instruction of all students;

(4) the provision of facilities for research in Wytham Woods; and

4. The administration of the Fund and the application of its income, shall be the responsibility of the Environmental Sustainability Subcommittee of the Planning and Resource Allocation Committee.

5. The University may in its absolute discretion in the period ending 21 years from the date of these regulations, instead of applying the income of the Fund in any year, accumulate all or any part of such income by investing it, and holding it as part of the capital of the Fund. The University may apply the whole or any part of such accumulated income in any subsequent year as if it were income of the Fund arising in the then current year.

6. The University shall have power to pay out of the capital or the income of the Fund all costs of and incidental to the creation of the Fund and the management and administration of the Fund.

7. The University may exercise any of its corporate powers in the management and administration of the Fund in so far as those powers are not inconsistent with these regulations.

8. These regulations shall be deemed to be Trust Regulations under the provisions of part D of Statute XVI.

9. Subject to regulation 10, Council may amend, repeal or add to these regulations in accordance with Part D of Statute XVI, but no amendment is valid if it would cause the Fund to cease to be exclusively charitable according to the law of England and Wales.

10. Any amendment to regulation 2 is an amendment to the main objects of the Fund for the purposes of Part D of Statute XVI and must be approved both by the Congregation of the University and subsequently by Her Majesty in Council.'

Congregation 14 June

Replies to supplementary questions

At the meeting of Congregation on 14 June (see Gazette No 5354, 23 June 2022), seven supplementary questions were asked. The supplementary questions and the replies, which have been approved by Council, are set out below.

Question 1

The Reply distinguishes (begin quote) 'between the freedom to explore and express ideas and the manner in which such ideas are expressed' (end quote). In Council's opinion, what is the basis in law for this distinction specifically in relation to cases where the manner of expression does not, in law, constitute harassment?

Reply

As stated in Council's response to the original question, Council has sought legal advice and is satisfied that the University's policies reflect and comply with the University's legal obligations in this regard.

The distinction between the freedom to explore and express ideas and the manner in which such ideas are expressed is reflected in the Education (No. 2) Act 1986, in Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights and the UNESCO 1997 Recommendation.

Question 2

The Reply states (begin quote) 'in formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as its duties to staff and students' (end quote). What specifically are the duties relied on in this 'formulation'?

Reply

Key duties to staff and students are as follows:

- various common law duties of care;
- obligations under the Equality Act 2010, to prevent discrimination, harassment and victimisation;
- obligations in respect of confidentiality and data protection.

Question 3

The Reply states (begin quote) 'the University is confident that its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance reflect and comply with its legal obligations' (end quote). In Council's opinion, how is a prohibition on speech that, in the words of the Harassment Policy, 'has the effect of creating an offensive environment' consistent with the University's legal obligation to secure freedom of speech within the law?

Reply

See original answer, as well as the response to Question 1 above.

Question 4

The Reply states that (begin quote) 'the University is confident that its Policy and Procedure on Harassment and its Social Media guidance reflect and comply with its legal obligations' (end quote). Council does not explain in its Reply how that can be the case in the light of the specific queries about lawfulness raised in the text which is published as having been 'appended to the Question'. Will it now do so in a further detailed reply?

Reply

The substance of the queries about lawfulness raised in the text have been considered and are addressed generically in Council's response to the original question.

Question 5

The Reply states (begin quote) 'in formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as … its public sector equality duties' (end quote). In Council's view, exactly what obligations are imposed by the public sector equality duty in relation to academic freedom and free speech at the University?

Reply

The duty to eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation; the duty to advance equal opportunities and the duty to foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and those who do not: these require the University to have due regard to the need to tackle prejudice and promote understanding.

Question 6

The Reply states (begin quote) 'in formulating its statutes, policies and procedures, the University must also take into account other factors, such as … other obligations under the Convention' (end quote). In Council's view, what specifically are those 'other obligations' under the European Convention on Human Rights?

Reply

Other Convention rights that may be relevant, depending on the particular circumstances, include the right to respect for private life, the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, the right not to be discriminated against, and the right to life (including the University's obligation to take steps to prevent foreseeable risks to life).

Question 7

The Reply does not mention the Statement of Freedoms in Statute XII (4), although this has been approved by Congregation. Where in the University's hierarchy of internal legislation do the Policy and Procedure on Harassment, the Social Media Guidance and the Statement on Freedom of Speech stand and on what authority are they relied on in the Reply?

Reply

The University's statutes set out the main principles of the University's constitution. Policies, guidance and statements sit behind these to provide detail on the application of these principles. For example, section 4 of Statute XII sets out a Statement of Freedoms, listing the freedoms that comprise 'academic freedom', before stating in s.4(3) that 'all members of the University must observe University policy concerning behaviour at work and the conduct of their duties.' Further detail to support those principles is then set out in the University's Statement on Freedom of Speech, Policy and Procedure on Harassment, and Social Media Guidance.

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Schedule to Council Statutes Part 4: Beit Professor of the History of the British Commonwealth

Explanatory Note

The following legislative proposal amends the name of the Beit Professor of the History of the British Commonwealth to the Beit Professorship of Global and Imperial History. This proposal corrects titular anomalies, better reflects the current situation, and clarifies the role for potential applicants. The opportunity has also been taken to update the responsibilities of the professorship to include research.

WHEREAS it is expedient to change the existing provisions governing the Beit Professor of the History of the British Commonwealth, NOW THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD, in exercise of the powers in that behalf conferred upon it by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act, 1923, and of all other powers enabling it, ENACTS, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, AS FOLLOWS.

In the Schedule to the Statutes, amend Part 4 as follows (new text underlined, deleted text scored through):

'Part 4: Beit Professor of ~~the~~ Global and Imperial History ~~of the British Commonwealth~~

4.1. The annual contribution from the Beit Fund towards the stipend of the holder of the Professorship of ~~the~~ Global and Imperial History ~~of the British Commonwealth~~ shall be used as partial funding for that chair, which shall be called the Beit Professorship.

4.2. The Beit Professor of ~~the~~ Global and Imperial History ~~of the British Commonwealth~~ shall undertake research, lecture and give instruction in ~~the History of the British Empire and Commonwealth~~ global and imperial history.

4.3. The professor shall be elected by an electoral board consisting of:

(1) the Vice-Chancellor~~, or, if the head of the college specified in (2) of this section is Vice-Chancellor, a person appointed by Council~~;

(2) the head of the college to which the professorship shall be for the time being allocated by Council under any statute or regulation, or, if the head is unable or unwilling to act, a person appointed by the governing body of the college;

(3) a person appointed by the governing body of the college specified in (2) of this section;

(4), (5) two persons appointed by Council;

(6) ~~a person appointed by the Humanities Board~~ the Head of the Humanities Division, or their nominee;

(7)-(9) three persons appointed by the Board of the Faculty of History.

4.4. The professor shall be subject to any general statutes or regulations concerning the duties of professors and to any particular regulations which are applicable to this chair.'

Change to Regulations to be made by Council if the Statute is approved by Her Majesty in Council

1 In Council Regulations 3 of 2004, in the Schedule of Statutory Professorships, delete 'Beit Professor of the History of the British Commonwealth' and substitute 'Beit Professor of Global and Imperial History'.

2 This change to regulation shall be effective from the date on which the Statute approved by Congregation is approved by Her Majesty in Council.

(2) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of a site on the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter to the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division

Explanatory Note

A key strategic goal for the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division is the construction of a new Informatics building on the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter (ROQ). This will consolidate the Department of Computer Science, facilitating its continued growth (including strategic plan commitments relating to expansion of undergraduate education in computer science) and co-locating it with information engineers from the Department of Engineering Science. The building's location on the ROQ will support further synergies and collaborations with the Mathematical Institute, the Oxford Internet Institute, the new Institute for Ethics in AI, and digital health research in the Nuffield Department of Primary Care Health Sciences. Design work is in its initial stages.

The facility will create a distinctive and multidisciplinary cluster of excellence in the information sciences stretching from their fundamental underpinning to technology development and application and wider societal impacts. It will enable research that will make information technologies better, faster, more reliable, more sustainable, more secure, more transparent and more trustworthy. The building will facilitate training of the technology innovators of tomorrow.

Text of Resolution

That the 'Plot K' site, approximately 6,328 sq m, on the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter be allocated to the Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division for the construction of a new building for the Departments of Computer Science and Engineering Science, this allocation to take effect following completion of the Life and Mind Building.

(3) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in Alden Press Annexe to the Gardens, Libraries and Museums Division

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within Alden Press Annexe to the Gardens, Libraries and Museums Division (GLAM) would extend an existing space allocation and will facilitate the moving of storage linked to the Radcliffe Science Library and Swindon Book Facility projects.

Items will be decanted from the Alden Press Annexe to the new Collections Teaching and Research Centre in Spring 2023. Items will be decanted to the Swindon Book Storage Facility which is anticipated for completion in January 2025. An allocation end date of November 2025 is proposed to allow sufficient time for the relocation of museums items to take place. There are currently no alternative options for accommodating the museums storage across other GLAM-allocated space.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 825 sqm net usable area (NUA) in the Alden Press Annexe (building number 848) be allocated to GLAM, for occupation by the Ashmolean Museum, the Museum of Natural History, the Pitt Rivers Museum and the History of Science Museum, for a further period of approximately three years from 1 October 2022 to 30 November 2025, or until the site is required as part of the wider redevelopment of Osney Mead or the transfer of museums items to alternative long-term storage, if sooner.

(4) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in the Biochemical & Biological Sciences Teaching Centre to the Department of Biochemistry

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within the Biochemical & Biological Sciences Teaching Centre to the Department of Biochemistry is part of a suite of space allocations needed to facilitate academic activity in response to the closure of the Tinbergen Building and in advance of the opening of the Life and Mind Building.

The Biochemical & Biological Sciences Teaching Centre is a single-storey modular building on Mansfield Road, located on land to the rear of the University Club previously used as sports pitches. The centre has been fitted out to provide two 475 sq m teaching laboratories plus associated support spaces. The building offers good adjacency to labs based in the nearby Biomedical Sciences Building at 6 South Parks Road.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 707 sq m net usable area (NUA) within the Biochemical & Biological Sciences Teaching Centre (building number 614) be allocated to the Department of Biochemistry for an ongoing period of approximately three years, from 31 October 2022 until 30 September 2025 (subject to planning permission), or until completion of the Centre for Life and Mind Sciences (building number 269), if sooner.

(5) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in the Biochemical & Biological Sciences Teaching Centre to the Department of Biology

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within the Biochemical and Biological Sciences Teaching Centre to the Department of Biology is part of a suite of space allocations needed to facilitate academic activity in response to the closure of the Tinbergen Building and in advance of the opening of the Life and Mind Building.

The Biochemical and Biological Sciences Teaching Centre is a single-storey modular building on Mansfield Road, located on land to the rear of the University Club previously used as sports pitches. The centre has been fitted out to provide two 475 sq m teaching laboratories plus associated support spaces. The building offers good adjacency to labs based in the nearby Biomedical Sciences Building at 6 South Parks Road.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 699 sq m NUA within the Biochemical & Biological Sciences Teaching Centre (building number 614) be allocated to the Department of Biology for an ongoing period of approximately three years, from 31 October 2022 until 30 September 2025 (subject to planning permission), or until completion of the Centre for Life and Mind Sciences (building number 269), if sooner.

(6) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in Biology Mansfield Road to the Department of Biology

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within Biology Mansfield Road to the Department of Biology is part of a suite of space allocations needed to facilitate academic activity in response to the closure of the Tinbergen Building and in advance of the opening of the Life and Mind Building.

Biology Mansfield Road is a two-storey modular building located on Mansfield Road adjacent to the Biochemical and Biological Sciences Teaching Centre. Biology is the sole occupier of the building. The ground floor provides approximately 640 sq m of lab, research and teaching support facilities, in addition to 141 sq m of lecture and seminar space. The first floor provides 1,065 sq m of office accommodation.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 2,155 sq m NUA within Biology Mansfield Road (building number 615) be allocated to the Department of Biology for an ongoing period of approximately three years, from 31 March 2023 until 30 September 2025 (subject to planning permission), or until completion of the Centre for Life and Mind Sciences, if sooner.

(7) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in the Anna Watts Building to the Department of Experimental Psychology

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within the Anna Watts Building to the Department of Experimental Psychology is part of a suite of space allocations needed to facilitate academic activity in response to the closure of the Tinbergen Building and in advance of the opening of the Life and Mind Building.

The Anna Watts Building is a two-storey modular building located on the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter opposite

New Radcliffe House. Experimental Psychology is the sole occupier of the building. The ground floor provides approximately 421 sq m NUA of teaching and research support facilities. The first floor provides a further 207 sqm of research and teaching support facilities as well as 588 sq m NUA of offices and 102 sq m NUA of lecture and seminar facilities.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 1,594 sq m NUA within the Anna Watts Building (building number 616) be allocated to the Department of Experimental Psychology for an ongoing period of approximately three years, from 31 January 2023 until 30 September 2025, or until completion of the Centre for Life and Mind Sciences, if sooner.

(8) Voting on a Resolution authorising the allocation of space in the Robert Hooke Building to the Department of Physics

Explanatory Note

The proposed allocation within the Robert Hooke Building to the Department of Physics extends the existing allocation for five years, during which time the department aims to consolidate all its activity on to a single site (centred on the Clarendon Laboratory complex and Beecroft Building), with a view to ultimately releasing the Denys Wilkinson Building.

The allocation provides laboratory, research and office accommodation for Atmospheric, Oceanic and Planetary Physics, Condensed Matter Physics, Particle Physics and Central Physics. Research accommodated within this space represents key aspects of the department's strategic plan and continues to contribute financial support through research funding. The student support and outreach activities accommodated within Robert Hooke are considered critical to the department's continued ability to attract exceptional candidates, and support them through their learning experience. The Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences Division has confirmed support of this allocation and Estates Services can confirm that there is currently no competing interest in this space.

Text of Resolution

That approximately 1,433 sqm NUA within the Robert Hooke Building (building number 160) be allocated to the Department of Physics for an ongoing period of five years, from 1 October 2022 until 30 September 2027.

If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise or the meeting has been adjourned the legislative proposals and the resolutions shall be declared carried, and the meeting may be cancelled.

Congregation 18 October

(1) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute XIV: Employment of Academic and Support Staff by the University

Explanatory Note

Council has approved a proposal from the Personnel Committee to remove from the coverage of the Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA), with immediate effect, all holders of posts in grades 8-10 and clinical equivalents and posts in grade ALC6 so that coverage is restricted to holders of the posts of Statutory Professor, Associate Professor and grade RSIV researcher, and equivalents of those posts. This proposal is based on a recommendation from the Review Group which has recently carried out the ten-year review of the EJRA.

To implement that decision, changes are required to Statute XIV.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove grades 8-10 and clinical equivalents and grade ALC6 from the coverage of the EJRA and restrict coverage to Statutory Professors, Associate Professors and RSIV researchers, and equivalents of those posts, THE UNIVERSITY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS.

In Statute XIV, concerning the Employment of Academic and Support Staff by the University, amend section 15 (1) regarding the coverage of the EJRA as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through):

'15. (1) Every employee of the University who holds the post of Statutory Professor or Associate Professor, or a post on, or assessed as equivalent to, grade RSIV ~~grade 8 or above~~, other than the holder of a professorship to which a canonry is annexed who is exempt from membership of the appropriate pension scheme referred to in section 12 of this statute, shall normally retire from employment not later than the 30th September immediately preceding their ~~his or her~~ 69th birthday.'

(2) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute XIV: Employment of Academic and Support Staff by the University

Explanatory Note

Council has approved a proposal from the Personnel Committee to remove from the coverage of the Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) the Professor of Poetry and employed visiting professors, with effect from 1 January 2023. This proposal is based on a recommendation from the Review Group which has recently carried out the ten-year review of the EJRA and a review of the Professorship of Poetry.

To implement that decision, changes are required to Statute XIV.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove the Professor of Poetry and employed visiting professors from the coverage of the EJRA, THE UNIVERSITY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS.

In Statute XIV, concerning the Employment of Academic and Support Staff by the University, amend section 15 (1) regarding the coverage of the EJRA as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through, noting that the words in square brackets (in which words to be deleted are shown in italics) are the subject of a separate legislative proposal taking effect during Michaelmas term 2022 if approved):

'15. (1) Every employee of the University who holds [the post of Statutory Professor or Associate Professor, or] a post on, or assessed as equivalent to, [grade RSIV grade 8 or above], other than the Professor of Poetry, employed visiting professors, and the holder of a professorship to which a canonry is annexed who is exempt from membership of the appropriate pension scheme referred to in section 12 of this statute, shall normally retire from employment not later than the 30th September immediately preceding their ~~his or her~~ 69th birthday.'

This change shall be effective from 1 January 2023.

(3) Voting on Legislative Proposal: Statute XIV: Employment of Academic and Support Staff by the University

Explanatory Note

Council has approved a proposal from the Personnel Committee to raise the age of the EJRA by one year to 30 September preceding the 70th birthday, with effect from 1 October 2023. This proposal is based on a recommendation from the Review Group which has recently carried out the ten-year review of the EJRA.

To implement that decision, changes are required to Statute XIV. The opportunity is also taken to remove gender-specific terminology.

WHEREAS it is expedient to raise the age of the EJRA by one year to 30th September preceding the 70th birthday, THE UNIVERSITY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS.

In Statute XIV, concerning the Employment of Academic and Support Staff by the University, amend section 15 (1) regarding the coverage of the EJRA as follows (new text underlined, deleted text struck through, noting that the words in square brackets (in which words to be deleted are shown in italics) are the subject of two separate legislative proposals taking effect (1) during Michaelmas term 2022 and (2) on 1 January 2023 if approved):

'15. (1) Every employee of the University who holds [the post of Statutory Professor or Associate Professor, or] a post on, or assessed as equivalent to, [grade RSIV grade 8 or above], other than the [Professor of Poetry, employed visiting professors, and] the holder of a professorship to which a canonry is annexed who is exempt from membership of the appropriate pension scheme referred to in section 12 of this statute, shall normally retire from employment not later than the 30th September immediately preceding their ~~his or her 69~~70th birthday.'

This change shall be effective from 1 October 2023.

Call for nominations for Honorary Degrees and for Degrees by Diploma

Honorary degrees are conferred annually at Encaenia. Degrees by diploma are conferred on heads of state and royalty. Members of Congregation are encouraged to nominate individuals on whom such degrees might be conferred. Nominations are welcome all year round.

The Honorary Degrees Committee is charged with considering nominations received, consulting Council and making recommendations to Congregation. The committee appreciates the time taken by members of Congregation to bring names to its attention. It will be re-considering names brought to it in the last three years and hopes to receive a wide and diverse selection of new names to add to those.

When considering possible honorands, the committee will focus on individuals in the following categories:

1 those of high academic distinction in the fields of research and scholarship of specific interest to the University of Oxford

2 those distinguished in the visual, literary, musical and performing arts

3 those distinguished in business and industry

4 those who have played a distinguished role in public life, for example in contributing to progress and change in society

5 those who have made a significant contribution to the activities of the University of Oxford - such individuals would normally also fall into one of the categories above.

Within the categories above the committee will aim to produce a balanced and diverse list, which takes account of the global dimension that characterises this University's activities.

It has adopted a target that at least half of the final list of names proposed to Congregation for the conferment of honorary degrees will be women and/or minorities. Members of Congregation are therefore encouraged to nominate individuals of conspicuous distinction with particular reference to diversity.

Honorary degrees will not be conferred on anyone who holds, or who has retired from, a resident teaching, research or administrative post within the University or in any college or other society, except in exceptional circumstances such as distinguished service outside the terms of his or her paid service. In these circumstances, a proposal for an honorary MA may be put forward.

Nominations for honorary degrees and for degrees by diploma should be submitted on the approved application form, which requires the name of the nominee and a short supporting paragraph. Further information, including the nomination form, is available at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees or from the Secretary to the Honorary Degrees Committee (sarah.cowburn@admin.ox.ac.uk). The completed form should be returned to the Secretary by e-mail under 'Strictly Confidential' cover.

While informal soundings within the University will often be desirable, every effort should be made to ensure that publicity is not at any stage given to any specific proposal for the conferral of an honorary degree. All nominations will be considered in strict confidence by the committee.

The names of people on whom degrees by diploma and honorary degrees have recently been conferred are published in the University Calendar and can also be found on the Committee for Honorary Degrees webpage at https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/committee-on-honorary-degrees.
